Jim,

I think being honest with Graham is the right move as well. We have begun some preliminary talks with LaKritz, the developer he wants to see win the site.

If Graham wants to cut the deal with Lakritz for a "better project" we could do that. But I just can't give the project to anyone.

Other issues, I spoke with my father and he certainly did know about or pay for any racist posters. He couldn't speak for his partner Paul, but he's deceased. And no one would have thought he would have paid for them as well.

"Jim, wanted to let you know and give you the heads up that Bill Meyers of the dc examiner contacted me on Friday afternoon and recounted out entire conversation from our meeting with me, Jim, you and your staff and the Williams. And while I know this meeting was off the record, he knew quite a bit and was calling for a confirmation because he was writing a story on it next week. Despite our legal and general concerns regarding your request that the Williams' withdraw from the wmata development contract--contracts they won oth fair and square and other contract information, in exchange for your support of the lottery contract, please know that no one from our team contacted the media as it would not be in our interest or your interests to publicize your unusual request at our meeting. We have discussed this situation with our lawyers and are awaiting their thoughts on how to navigate these issues and potential issues raised by Bill.

Bill also confirmed for me that his source was from the District Building, but not from anyone in the meeting. That makes sense as he would not need a confirmation from you or us, had he got it directly from a meeting participant. In any event, my sense is that he will be contacting you next week regarding the same. To date, we have not provided any confirmation or comment on the story. You and your communications person may want to strategize on your response to Bill, as he express serious political and legal concerns, as our lawyers have, regarding the linking of the subject projects as well as your vote, your role as a legislator and your opposition to the same on both of these projects.

In the interim, please check with your staff as to whether they may have had conversations with third parties as to the text and substance of our meeting. We remain concerned about this apparent leak and its impact on our ability to work with you on resolving these matters and your ability to remain active on these matters as a legislator.

I think the email should come from Warren because it will appear much more authentic. See my suggested edits. This should be sent today, as it takes Graham 24 hours to check his email.

Crystal

Councilmember Graham,

I wanted to let you know Bill Meyers of the DC Examiner contacted our public relations consultant Crystal Wright Friday afternoon and recounted our off the record conversation from our meeting with you and your staff. While we didn't confirm any of the information, he knew quite a bit and wanted confirmation for a story he plans to write next week. I am truly stunned by this turn of events, as we treated our meeting with you in the strictest of confidence and didn't share it with anyone. In fact, I was heartened by our meeting and viewed it as the beginning of a dialogue with you.

Please know that no one from our team contacted the media as it would not be in our interest or your interests to publicize your unusual request during our meeting about the merits W2I to handle the District's lottery. Bill confirmed to Crystal that his source was from the Wilson Building and not from anyone in the meeting. That makes sense as he would not need a confirmation from you or us, had he got it directly from a meeting participant. We have discussed this situation with our lawyers and are awaiting their thoughts on how to navigate the potential ramifications of these issues raised by Bill.

In any event, it is our sense he will likely contact you next week on the matter. You may want to ask your staff if they shared the details of our meeting with anyone. We remain concerned about this apparent leak and its impact on our ability to work with you on resolving your concerns about the lottery contract and your ability to remain active on these matters as a legislator.

Please give me a call if you would like to discuss this further.

Regards,

Warren Williams

Subject: Recommendation on Graham Email
Importance: High

We could all debate the merits of who the email should come from. As I indicated during my call with Warren this morning, I thought having it come from Warren may make it have more credibility in Graham's eyes since during the meeting Graham continually questioned Warren's truthfulness regarding Club U, posters and many other things. Neither Link nor I feel comfortable putting this in writing and frankly I think it has many legal ramifications for everyone involved. I think a phone call would be better. However, if the group feels I should send an email to Graham, giving him a heads up on the reporter call, I will send a simple watered down email. Either way, I do not believe we will be served by telling Graham about the reporter call or not telling him and I certainly don't feel comfortable putting this in writing. In either scenario, the outcome will be the same, he will think W2I contacted the reporter. Crystal Councilmember Graham, I wanted to let you know Bill Meyers of the DC Examiner contacted our public relations consultant Crystal Wright Friday afternoon and recounted our off the record conversation from our meeting with you and your staff. While we didn't confirm any of the information, he knew quite a bit and wanted confirmation for a story he plans to write next week. I am truly stunned by this turn of events, as we treated our meeting with you in the strictest of confidence and didn't share it with anyone. In fact, I was heartened by our meeting and viewed it as the beginning of a dialogue with you. Please know that no one from our team contacted the media as it would not be in our interest or your interests to publicize your unusual request during our meeting about the merits W2I to handle the District's lottery. Bill confirmed to Crystal that his source was from the Wilson Building and not from anyone in the meeting. That makes sense as he would not need a confirmation from you or us, had he got it directly from a meeting participant. We have discussed this situation with our lawyers and are awaiting their thoughts on how to navigate the potential ramifications of these issues raised by Bill. Neither Jim or I are not comfortable with emailing Graham. I spoke with the lawyer, who counsels me on business matters and she strongly advises us against putting anything in writing, acknowledging this meeting and its contents, as it would have far reaching implications, even though we did nothing wrong. I think any email making Graham aware of the reporter's call should come from Scott.

We can discuss this in a conference call on Monday but we can't be the ones sending an email. I hope you understand our concerns.

We are all concerned about this. we want to alert Graham to avoid being blamed for the leak. He may still believe we were the leak, but I know he will believe we were the leak if we don't alert him. it has to be in writing to be a credible and authentic effort to alert him and to protect our collective interests--otherwise it won't work. You also want to block Graham from blaming us for the proposed deal--the email is our protection against that possibility. Next, this leak puts Graham in a bad box and we want to keep the upper hand--we don't if we say nothing. Now, as for me sending it--I was not in the meeting, nor was I contacted so my sending an alert doesn't have any direct credibility. Plus, as the lawyer, it raises Graham's suspicions even further that we are setting him up and it is just going to get more lawyers involved from his side when all we want is to tell him--it wasn't us--he will have his own problems in going forward. Can't judge your separate legal advice, but I doubt they have the necessary experience on this stuff. Sorry Crystal, but you got the call from Meyers; you want to control the message; you are the communications person and again, you got the call and you were in the meeting. All this makes you a direct witness to both the Graham meeting and the Meyers conversation. Hence, you are the best person to send the email. You have the ball--you are open--shoot it. Having said that, I just give legal advice and have no problem alerting Graham myself--but strategically it works best coming from a non-lawyer and a direct participant in the meetings--that is all I am saying. You can edit the language to your satisfaction if that makes you feel better, but the facts are what the facts are. The participants in the meeting are all witnesses to Graham's crap--that is just how it is. Folks, we have not done anything wrong, but we are playing for keeps cause $120m is worth playing it smart and playing for keeps. You can do nothing and if this thing gets crazy with the press or the authorities--we are in the same position--witnesses to Graham's crap. Finally, I know I am preaching to the saved here, but we are all grown folks and professionals; we are all getting paid for our professional services; we are all driven/guided by strong professional ethics; all of us have insurance and/or are indemnified--so let's act like it and be smart about making this decision and all future ones regarding this contract award. These are my best thoughts. Thanks. A. against that possibility. Next, this leak puts Graham in a bad box and we want to keep the upper hand--we don't if we say nothing. Now, as for me sending it--I was not in the meeting, nor was I contacted so my sending an alert doesn't have any direct credibility. Plus, as the lawyer, it raises Graham's suspicions even further that we are setting him up and it is just going to get more lawyers involved from his side when all we want is to tell him--it wasn't us--he will have his own problems in going forward. Can't judge your separate legal advice, but I doubt they have the necessary experience on this stuff. Sorry Crystal, but you got the call from Meyers; you want to control the message; you are the communications person and again, you got the call and you were in the meeting. The participants in the meeting are all witnesses to Graham's crap--that is just how it is. I would rather not continue this on email.

I will check on the examiner. I know I did not speak to them.

The rejection of your application at Metro (which has not been approved) is necessitated not by any of this but by other factors relating to the application.

I typically answer emails before 9 AM on weekdays. If you email me after that, it is likely that you will hear from me the next weekday. If there is a need to communicate prior to that, you may wish to call me.

Councilmember Graham,

I know you are out of town, but hopefully you are checking email?

We looked into the questions you asked. As you know, Warren Williams spoke emphatically that he had absolutely no involvement in paying for, producing or promoting the racist posters that were painted of you. Warren spoke with his father who said he did not know about or pay for the posters. While he couldn't speak for his partner Paul who is deceased, no one believes he would have paid for them either.

Warren also spoke with Sinclair Skinner who denied putting the posters up or paying for them to be produced. He did have a newspaper at one time that he was the editor of called the Georgia Ave. Defender and does remember his editorials that were critical of you and which spoke about gentrification, but that was the extent of his actions.

The Williams family confirmed with me again that no family member ever made a contribution to the campaign of Chad Williams, who challenged your seat.

As for Metro, there are a number of factors that make it impossible for us to even consider accommodating your request.

I wanted you to also be aware that our communications person, Crystal Wright, received a call from a reporter from the DC Examiner who was asking questions about our meeting and seemed to know a great deal about what was said. Since I don?t talk to reporters, I would suggest that you contact Crystal directly if you would like to know more about this. Please know that no one from our team contacted the media as it would not be in our interest or your interest to publicize what was discussed.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Warren,
I'll see you tomorrow. From a business strategy standpoint, I suggest you do this:

1. Our Nupe is totally correct on the facts. However, only you can get him to see the fact that in the long run, you are the one that gets hurt in this (more delays in getting the deal moving); the city has to either spend extra money to do a contract under $1m; and the DC residents are hurt.
2. On the illegal point, it is not illegal according to current DC contracting rules. For example, there are no restrictions, that I can see, that would prevent your company from selling an equity stake or bringing on an equity party, etc., that would impact the current contract. He should have his legal team research this point.
3. Our Nupe could be the one that is viewed by the public as brining 'smart' resolution to this problem. It's not like the Council can say (and we can confirm this) that they conceived of this idea. The beauty here is that you (Warren) and our Nupe can say that you both turned to LONG-TIME friends and business colleagues to bring in additional expertise. You could also state that you approached me a year or two years ago. However, I was tied up with getting Walter Reed back on track given the Presidential level attention on the facility. I have one of the Top Lottery executives in the country that happens to be a black female; we have been a CBE company since 1997; we current have Millions of dollars in Federal contracts with respected agencies, such as, NIST (one of the most respected research federal agencies in the government), Dept of Defense (we rescued Walter Reed, which our DC Congress Rep was instrumental in brining to the National stage and a DC based company help Walter Reed receive it's highest JACHO hospital inspection score ever; we work with Dept of Commerce and Dept of Labor; and we are close to being 3 out of 290 minority companies to receive an actual contract from the Treasury Dept on TARP.

Again, I think it totally right for our Nupe to feel this way. However, the smarter play, especially for you, is to get this done now. I don't think there has to be any precedent setting. He can make it clear to the older guy that it is not. Rather than a compromise, our Nupe can play this as Barack would -put the best interest of the residents first; work with rivals; get this done.

I want to give this one last shot before I jump off this deal (still work with you on other stuff), because it is really taking a lot of time. Again, whatever you need me to do, let me know. /eb

New year...new news. Be the first to know what is making headlines.

The truth about the D.C. Lottery contract

By Jim Graham, Friday, February 24, 8:09 PM

Aweb of sullying intrigue and aspersion can be spun by selectively choosing some facts while ignoring others. Such is the case with six editorials published by The Washington Post in a recent three-week period, all concerning my role in 2008 on a Metro development project and the D.C. Lottery contract.

"More questions for Mr. Graham," the most recent editorial headline called out. Actually, this was not quite true — it was the same question, somewhat repackaged, that has been asked over some 5,600 words in the six editorials. It was also mind-boggling: The Post, which has spent the past year calling for ethics reform in District government, is now criticizing me for having requested an ethics inquiry when I had a compelling reason to do so.

Why all this attention? The Post itself seemed puzzled in its Feb. 12 editorial, spending hundreds of words trying to explain why it was so cross with me after it had endorsed me in every one of my election campaigns.

Much of what was written would have been red-lined out of a news story. But editorial is opinion, and pretty much anything goes.

The Post builds much of its case on speculation regarding a four-year-old conversation I had with a group bidding to become the local and majority partner in the D.C. Lottery contract. While I cannot recall every detail of the meeting, I remember repeatedly challenging the qualifications of the bidders and the irresponsible actions of one of the group's principals, who had held a D.C. government lease and alcohol license at the Reeves Municipal Center, later revoked, for the notorious Club U. I expressed similar strong reservations at a D.C. Council hearing on April 7, 2008.

Members of this group were also involved with Banneker Ventures, an engineering and contracting firm that, in 2009, would be at the center of allegations of political cronyism, lack of qualifications and overbilling. Indeed, Banneker executives were compelled to testify before the council about what they did and didn't do with millions in city contracts. The council's special counsel, Robert Trout, concluded his examination of the matter by recommending that the U.S. attorney conduct "further investigation" into Banneker officials regarding these contracts.

For some reason, The Post sees an injustice perpetrated against those bidding for the lottery, as well as against Banneker and its principals. I do not agree. Let's get some clarity on the facts.

First and foremost, there is zero allegation of any crime — because none was committed. There is also no suggestion of any financial gain by me.

The Post brushes aside, with little or no mention, these facts:

• No evidence of wrongdoing by Graham, the D.C. inspector general concluded last month in a lengthy review of my involvement with the lottery contract process.

• No evidence of wrongdoing by Graham, the Metro general counsel concluded in a five-page letter dated May 28, 2010, after a careful review of the major points raised by attorney A. Scott Bolden concerning the lottery and Metro projects. The review found that the problem with Banneker's Metro bid was Banneker. The contractor missed deadlines, slashed its initial offer for the land and failed to demonstrate the capacity to do the work.

• A few days ago, the current Metro board chair said that the board's unanimous decision in March 2010 to drop Banneker from the project was "based upon a dramatic change in the developer's proposed price and other factors adverse to WMATA's business interest." She added that the decision was not based on "the views of Mr. Graham or any individual board member."

Similarly, the group bidding for the lottery contract lost out not because of me but because — as one person close to the deal put it — "Forces don't want you guys in the lead decision making role."

None of this can be found in The Post's editorials.

In May 2010, out of an abundance of caution, I did the ethical thing and asked the D.C. attorney general, Peter J. Nickles, to review these matters. I don't know what action he took.

Banneker Ventures and its principals were surely not happy to lose the Metro project. It probably cost them and their lawyer, Bolden, millions. Although city staff advised him as early as 2008 to take his complaints to the D.C. inspector general, Bolden curiously took no action until the Metro project had been lost. Then in April 2010, he wrote the letter that is the cold soup The Post has been warming up over the past month.

But what about other major issues? For example, why did the city's chief financial officer in early 2011 approve — by "making no objection" — the addition of Emmanuel Bailey as the replacement for the majority-ownership role for the lottery contract? Why was Bailey — a Maryland resident with a start-up company and no experience or qualifications in gaming — given 51 percent of the lottery? Why wasn't this selection resubmitted to the D.C. Council, since Bailey was not in the lottery contract as approved? How did his company become a Certified Business Enterprise, thus earning it preferential treatment, after city inspectors had rejected his application on the merits?

The Post asked similar questions in editorials in August 2010 and last November; why is it not pursuing the answers?

Bolden's clients also have questions to answer. The Washington Times reported in August on e-mails to one of his clients from Bailey, who proposed a "business strategy" involving the sale of an equity stake in the lottery contract, many months before Bailey was selected for the majority-ownership role. Bailey wrote that such a sale would not be illegal, suggesting to the client that Mayor Adrian Fenty's lawyers "research this point." Did this outreach lead to a business deal or understanding between the parties?

These issues are closer to the heart of the matter, yet The Post would rather carpet-bomb the underbrush.

[redacted]

SUMMARY OF INTERVIEW

On October 7, 2011, SA TAYLOR interviewed Warren WILLIAMS (WARREN) regarding the D.C. Lottery contract. WARREN's attorney (A. Scott BOLDEN, Attorney, Reed Smith LLP) was present during the interview. After advising WARREN about the nature of the interview, he provided the following information:

WARREN described himself as a businessman who specializes in real estate investment and development. He also managed his family's nightclub (Club U) which was located in the Reeves Center at 14th and U Streets.

REDACTED

During the meeting, GRAHAM told WARREN that he had been winning [contracts] a lot, and asked him what made him qualified. WARREN tried to explain to GRAHAM, to no avail, that he would not be involved with the lottery contract; ALAKA was in charge of W2I. GRAHAM told WARREN he was really interested in the parcel of land his company Banneker Ventures had been by the Washington Metropolitan Transit Authority (WMATA) to develop. GRAHAM told him that if he gave it up the WMATA contract, he (GRAHAM) would support him (WARREN) on the lottery contract award. GRAHAM, who served as the chair of WMATA's board of directors, had tabled the WMATA contract award. WRIGHT took copious notes during the meeting, but refuse to give them to WARREN or BOLDEN.

SUMMARY OF INTERVIEW

On October 7, 2011, SA TAYLOR interviewed Alaka WILLIAMS (ALAKA) regarding the D.C. Lottery contract. ALAKA's attorney (A. Scott BOLDEN, Attorney, Reed Smith LLP) was present during the interview. After advising ALAKA about the nature of the interview, she provided the following information:

REDACTED

GRAHAM brought up the fact that Banneker Ventures (a company in which WARREN Jr. is part owner) had recently won a development contract from the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA)[1]. GRAHAM told WARREN Jr. that "I can't give you everything." ALAKA believed that GRAHAM told them that if WARREN Jr. gave up the WMATA contract he would reconsider his (GRAHAM's) position on the lottery contract. However, GRAHAM never told them he would vote for or against the lottery contract award. GRAHAM was just saying I can't give you the lottery contract because you just got the WMATA contract. Give up one for the other.

Warren,
I'll see you tomorrow. From a business strategy standpoint, I suggest you do this:

1. Our Nupe is totally correct on the facts. However, only you can get him to see the fact that in the long run, you are the one that gets hurt in this (more delays in getting the deal moving); the city has to either spend extra money to do a contract under $1m; and the DC residents are hurt.
2. On the illegal point, it is not illegal according to current DC contracting rules. For example, there are no restrictions, that I can see, that would prevent your company from selling an equity stake or bringing on an equity party, etc., that would impact the current contract. He should have his legal team research this point.
3. Our Nupe could be the one that is viewed by the public as brining 'smart' resolution to this problem. It's not like the Council can say (and we can confirm this) that they conceived of this idea. The beauty here is that you.(Warren) and our Nupe can say that you both turned to LONG-TIME friends and business colleagues to bring in additional expertise. You could also state that you approached me a year or two years ago. However, I was tied up with getting Walter Reed back on track given the Presidential level attention on the facility. I have one of the Top Lottery executives in the country that happens to be a black female; we have been a CBE company since 1997; we current have Millions of dollars in Federal contracts with respected agencies, such as, NIST (one of the most respected research federal agencies in the government), Dept of Defense (we rescued Walter Reed, which our DC Congress Rep was instrumental in brining to the National stage and a DC based company help Walter Reed receive it's highest JACHO hospital inspection score ever; we work with Dept of Commerce and Dept of Labor; and we are close to being 3 out of 290 minority companies to receive an actual contract from the Treasury Dept on TARP.

Again, I think it totally right for our Nupe to feel this way. However, the smarter play, especially for you, is to get this done now. I don't think there has to be any precedent setting. He can make it clear to the older guy that it is not. Rather than a compromise, our Nupe can play this as Barack would -put the best interest of the residents first; work with rivals; get this done.

I want to give this one last shot before I jump off this deal (still work with you on other stuff), because it is really taking a lot of time. Again, whatever you need me to do, let me know. /eb

"Jim, wanted to let you know and give you the heads up that Bill Meyers of the dc examiner contacted me on Friday afternoon and recounted out entire conversation from our meeting with me, Jim, you and your staff and the Williams. And while I know this meeting was off the record, he knew quite a bit and was calling for a confirmation because he was writing a story on it next week. Despite our legal and general concerns regarding your request that the Williams' withdraw from the wmata development contract--contracts they won oth fair and square and other contract information, in exchange for your support of the lottery contract, please know that no one from our team contacted the media as it would not be in our interest or your interests to publicize your unusual request at our meeting.
We have discussed this situation with our lawyers and are awaiting their thoughts on how to navigate these issues and potential issues raised by Bill.
Bill also confirmed for me that his source was from the District Building, but not from anyone in the meeting. That makes sense as he would not need a confirmation from you or us, had he got it directly from a meeting participant. In any event, my sense is that he will be contacting you next week regarding the same. To date, we have not provided any confirmation or comment on the story. You and your communications person may want to strategize on your response to Bill, as he express serious political and legal concerns, as our lawyers have, regarding the linking of the subject projects as well as your vote, your role as a legislator and your opposition to the same on both of these projects.
In the interim, please check with your staff as to whether they may have had conversations with third parties as to the text and substance of our meeting. We remain concerned about this apparent leak and its impact on our ability to work with you on resolving these matters and your ability to remain active on these matters as a legislator.
Please give me a call if you would like to further discuss. thanks."

Jim,

I think being honest with Graham is the right move as well. We have begun some preliminary talks with LaKritz, the developer he wants to see win the site.

If Graham wants to cut the deal with Lakritz for a "better project" we could do that. But I just can't give the project to anyone.

Other issues, I spoke with my father and he certainly did know about or pay for any racist posters. He couldn't speak for his partner Paul, but he's deceased. And no one would have thought he would have paid for them as well.

In speaking with Sinclair he denied putting the posters up. And paying for them to get done. He did have a newspaper at one time that he was the editor of called the GA Defender. And does recall some editorials that spoke about gentrification.

One other thing that should be mentioned to council member Graham is that we have tried to support him several times during his runs for city council and that he has accepted thousands of dollars that were bundled and hand delivered to him from Clubu and various entities that were in my control. Thousands.

So when he ask was I funding his enemies, the answer is no they funded you Mr. Graham.

Just a thought,

Warren

Warren, I think we should be upfront with Graham about why this piece of his request cannot be accommodated. Its pretty clear that you are unable for very strict legal reasons to unilaterally make that decision. Is there a possibility that this project could be expanded to include someone of his liking? This Metro project is only one project in a long list of upcoming projects and if we were to have some idea of that list and work with Graham proactively going forward and perhaps on something specific that he wants, that would be very useful and valuable to him. Let me know what you think...we should have an idea of our position and what we can offer before we have the conversation with Graham or Calvin. Jim James E. On November 2, 2011, Special Agent (SA) Elliott TAYLOR, D.C. Office of the Inspector General (OIG), spoke with Crystal WRIGHT (Intralot's lobbyist during the first lottery contract award) via telephone in an attempt to schedule her for an interview. WRIGHT advised that she is a public relations strategist and runs a single person firm with many clients. She explained that she is very busy and does not have time to be interviewed, nor does she see the need to be interviewed because she no longer performs works for Intralot, Inc. and only vaguely remembers her activities associated with the work she performed for Intralot Inc. during the lottery contract. WRIGHT recalled attending a meeting between Jim GRAHAM, Councilmember, Council of the District of Columbia, and Warren and Alaka WILLIAMS. However, she claims she has no recollection of what transpired during the meet or of the conversation. WRIGHT also claimed that she no longer possesses the notes she took during the meeting; she does not maintain notes beyond 6 months.

PROCEEDINGS

MR. BONDI: We're here, as you know, because of a subpoena, and so this is going to be under oath, so I'd like to go ahead and swear you in.

THE WITNESS: I will affirm, though.

Whereupon,

OMAR ANTHONY KARIM

was called as a witness and, having first been duly affirmed, was examined and testified as follows:

EXAMINATION

BY MR. BONDI:

Q Mr. Karim, how are you?

A I'm fantastic. Could not be better. How are you?

Q I'm doing well. Could you state your full name for the record, please.

A Omar Anthony Karim.

Q And what is your occupation, Mr. Karim?

A I work with a local company called Banneker Ventures.

Q And you're here pursuant to a subpoena that we issued; correct?

A That is correct. Although I would have come voluntarily.

Q Appreciate you noting that for our record.

Mr. Karim, we're going to ask you a few questions today about a development that WMATA was involved in that we understand you have some information about.

A few ground rules, though, before we get started. Because we are using a court reporter, there's a couple ground rules.

Number one is please wait until I finish asking my question or Emily asks her question before you answer. That way the court reporter can get down both the question and the answer.

The second thing is because we do have a court reporter today, we want to make sure that you answer orally, verbally, as opposed to a nod of the head or uh-huh, huh-uh.

And the final point is if you don't understand a question, please ask us to explain the question or repeat it. Otherwise, we're going to assume that you understood the question and were able to answer it.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013313

Are you okay with those ground rules?

A I am.

Q I'm glad you didn't nod or say "uh-huh."

(Laughter.)

A That's right. We were going to test that. A couple of questions myself. Can we get a copy of the written deposition following? Or how does that work?

Q I'm glad you asked that question. Not during our investigation, no. While we're doing our investigation, we're going to mark everything confidential, and we're not going to allow anyone to order copies of the transcript.

After our investigation completes, we'll take that under advisement if you want a copy and want to ask your attorney.

But that's to protect you, it's to protect the integrity of the investigation, that we don't have transcripts out floating around.

A Huh. Okay. Is that standard during investigations?

Q It oftentimes is. We're working with WMATA, and we are -- we're retained by the audits and investigations committee of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, or WMATA for short, sometimes referred to as Metro.

So if you ever hear us say during the course of this -- our deposition today, if you hear us say "WMATA" or "Metro," that's what we're referring to, the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority.

The audits and investigations committee of WMATA retained us to conduct an investigation into the development on Florida Avenue near Shaw that was a development of Metro property above the Metro station.

So if you hear us refer to today the Florida Avenue development or the Shaw Florida Avenue development or the development of WMATA, that's what we're referring to.

You're familiar with that from the fact that you're a bidder; correct?

A Certainly. The rightful winner of that Florida Avenue Metro or WMATA project.

Q Wonderful. Well, Emily is going to be asking you some questions today. And because this is --

A Can I ask a question?

Q Yes, sir.

A So why did the audit and investigation committee of WMATA hire you all?

Q That's a great question. I'd be happy to answer it.

In WMATA's bylaws, any time there is a question about the appropriateness or action of a board decision or a board member, the audits and investigations committee is empowered to hire outside counsel to conduct such an investigation.

WMATA, or Metro, has an Inspector General's Office that can investigate internal issues relating to developments and to staff and to employees and those sorts of issues.

Unfortunately, though, they are not obligated or able -- excuse me, I should strike the "obligated." They're not able to investigate board decisions or board members or board actions.

What we're here to do is we were retained by the audits and investigations committee to look at the board's action, to see if the board's action or any of the actions of the board members was in violation of WMATA's codes of conduct and procedures.

So we're looking at this internally to look to see whether the board or any of its board members violated any codes of conduct or procedural codes that the board members are obligated to follow.

We are a factfinding body. We're not a prosecutorial body, Mr. Karim. We aren't awarding money. We can't award judgments or anything like that.

What we're doing is we are investigating to find out if the board acted appropriately, and that, of course, assumes actions of individual board members as well.

We're not a prosecutor, as we mentioned, although we are a quasi-governmental organization, WMATA is, and we're acting as agents for them, even though we're private sector employees.

So normal rules would apply about providing false information to the government being potentially illegal under 18 USC 1001. And Mr. McDaniel, I'm sure, has explained that to you.

The other thing that we should tell you is that although we're not a prosecutor or prosecutorial body, if we were to determine that there was some suspected criminal activity, the board has certain obligations under its own rules to report suspected criminal activity to the appropriate prosecutor's office.

What we envision in terms of our work is creating a report for the board to review of our findings. What the board decides to do with that report and whether it makes it public is up to the board and hasn't been decided.

As a governmental organization, I believe there will probably be a strong likelihood that the board will make the report public, and that includes our findings and what we've done and what we've found and concluded in our investigation.

A May I ask, who is the chair of the committee?

Q The chair of the audits and investigations committee is a WMATA board member named Alvin Nichols from Maryland.

A Sure. Did Mr. Nichols -- did you all have any conversation as to why the audits and investigations committee felt it was necessary at this time to investigate the actions of a board member or the board as a whole, when two years ago, Carol O'Keeffe, WMATA's general counsel, sent a letter saying that they had looked into it and there was nothing illegal, unethical about either the full board or Mr. Graham's actions, Jim Graham's actions, and what made the committee now think it's an appropriate time to look into the matter?

Q Well, Mr. Karim, as a member of the bar yourself, I'm sure you would appreciate the fact that we're not in a position to divulge attorney-client privileged communications.

The audits and investigations committee is our client, and we've had communications with our client that we're just not in a -- it would not be appropriate for us to divulge.

A Okay.

Q So I am sorry, but we're not going to get into talking about why the audits and investigations committee has done something or didn't do anything.

A Sure. I just -- it just helps, as this is the first time that I am talking with you all.

Do you know if Carol -- if the board or a particular committee of the board is a client or Metro as an organization is a client of Carol O'Keeffe?

Q I'm not sure, Mr. Karim, that I follow. But I'd appreciate it if we could get to asking the questions about why we're here today.

A Let's go. Let's go.

Q So I'm happy to answer any questions that you might have about the procedure of today's deposition or the like, but getting into the --

A LaKritz Adler, were they subpoenaed?

Q Mr. Karim, just as I'm not going to tell people that you were subpoenaed, I'll leave that up to your lawyer if he wants to say that in The Washington Post.

A I'm fine, absolutely.

Q I'm not going to say who was subpoenaed and who was not subpoenaed.

A Okay. Let's go.

Q I'd like to get into asking you about the background of the transaction and the like. And we're going to cover a few things today and show you some documents, and we appreciate your truthful responses. And we have no reason to believe that you won't be truthful today, and we appreciate your time and your honesty today as we get into these issues.

Emily?

EXAMINATION

BY MS. ROCKWOOD:

Q Sure. We're going to just start at the very beginning, when you all first got involved with the development of the property. Just how did you come to bid on the Florida Avenue property?

A Any specifics about that or --
Q When did you first learn that the Florida Avenue property was up for bid?
A It was in 2007, early part of 2007.
Q And what got your interest about it?
A Our -- one of the architect firms that we work with mentioned it to us, that they heard it was out on the street.
Q What firm was that?
A Torti Gallas.
Q And what -- why did you become interested?
A Oh, man. It's -- it was right near my alma mater, Howard's campus, local development, doing development in the area, and thought it would be a great idea to go after it.
Q Who did you speak with when you were making the decision to put in a bid or not put in a bid?
A I don't -- can you be more specific?
Q I don't know. Did you -- did you speak with anyone about whether you should bid for it or not?

A Anyone like whom? I'm --
Q Colleagues or people in the community.
A Absolutely, we spoke with our -- my staff, first of all, and we decided -- we looked at it, read the solicitation and whether -- decided whether we should go after it, decided we should, put together a strategy for it, put together a team, private equity, debt investors, our architect engineering firm, joint development partners, talked to people from the ANC, from the viable neighborhood commission. Everybody who we thought we could help put together support for.
Q And then as you got into the negotiations and you were selected as the developer, what were kind of the major issues that came up during the course of the negotiations?
A You're skipping a lot, but that will be fine. Are you referring to -- the negotiation was pretty protracted, as you know. If you kind of limit a timetable, that would kind of help.
Q Sure.

A Or if you're just speaking broadly what some of the issues were.
Q Sure. I can be more specific. I know there were some issues about affordable housing that came up in the negotiations.
A They did, yeah.
Q Yeah. If you could just tell us when -- when that first became an issue in the negotiations.
A Sure. So the board of directors approved our term sheet in June 2008, I think it was the 26th or sometime around there. A board member, Jim Graham, made an -- amended the approval of our term sheet and added an affordable housing requirement onto that.
So the term sheet was negotiated back in, I guess, February or March. It was supposed to go to the board in April. Graham pushed it no less than 60 days. It went back to the board in June.
And then Graham materially changed the terms of the term sheet by making a motion and the board accepting his motion to add affordable housing requirement to it.

And after he did that, staff and my staff began discussing the impact of the affordable housing component and what impact it would have on our offer price, on the price that we had agreed to, which was about 597 a year on an all market rate deal.
And to give you some further background to that, in our proposal that we submitted to Metro, we included some affordable housing on it. Rosalyn Doggett, who is a Metro staff person handling this, told us to take out any affordable housing component so that they could look at everybody's offers apples to apples.
So we took it off, and as a result, she increased what she thought was the value of our bid. And we accepted that, and that became the terms of our deal.
Q What percentage of affordable housing did you originally include in your bid?
A I don't recall.
Q Did you kind of get down to a percentage, or was it more of there will be an affordable housing component?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013316

A There was a percentage.
Q But you don't recall what it was specifically?
A I don't recall what it was. And affordable housing, you discuss -- affordable housing product is pretty broad. You have what's considered workforce housing, then you have 80 percent AMI, 60 percent AMI, 50, 40. I mean, it's a broad range in there.
We put what we thought Metro would want in there, what the DUKE plan wanted, just kind of our broadest, you know, understanding of that.
And we put it in there. And then we -- once we got selected and began having the discussions with Metro and discussions probably with the city, kind of we looked into it more.
Q At the time you were submitting your bid, what was your understanding of what the DUKE plan required as far as affordable housing?
A I don't recall that.
Q And did --

Page 19

A But it was a range. I think it was like 20 to 30. I forget what we wound up putting in there.
Q Did you understand that what was originally in your proposal was consistent with what was in the DUKE plan?
A I don't recall.
Q Okay. And then at what point, if you can remember a date range, did Ms. Doggett tell you to take that out of your proposal?
A When she called me, I think it was on a Friday morning, and said that we had been the selected developer. It was February or March 2008. And this was kind of a verbal conversation.
And then I think she followed it up with an e-mail saying they were going to take it out. Or she might not have been specific in the e-mail, but certainly, she indicated that they were raising the amount of our offer and removed any affordable housing components to it.
Q When you say you became the selected developer, do you mean you were selected by the

Page 20

Metro staff?
A Yes, that's correct.
Q Okay. Not by the board at that point?
A According to the board, did they ever select us? I don't know.
Q Okay. So then what did you all do internally after that June 26 meeting when you were designated by the board as the developer of the site?
A There was a kickoff meeting that was, I think, scheduled. We brought them our $100,000, which they still have, by the way. So if you talk to them, let them know I'm still looking for my $100,000.
We looked at the impact of what Graham did at the meeting, in terms of the affordable housing requirement. We did some analysis and ran some projections and some models to see how it would impact our -- our -- the feasibility of the project.
And we discussed and negotiated what we thought -- what the staff and my staff thought and my equity and debt partners thought was an appropriate reduction of that amount, and came to an agreement as to what the final lease payment would be.

Q You came to an agreement with who?
A The staff.
Q Okay.
A Metro staff. Their professional real estate staff, Rosalyn Doggett, Joel Washington, all of the folks that were working on the project at that time.
Q And what was that agreement? What did you agree to?
A It was -- a dollar amount?
Q Uh-huh.
A I don't know the exact dollar amount. The exact dollar amount changed so much, you know, throughout the course of the negotiation period. But it was -- it reflected the -- Graham and the board's decision to put affordable housing on the project, I do know that. And it was less than the amount that was in the term sheet -- the executed term sheet.

Q And when was it that you came to that agreement?
A Sometime between August and call it November/October, probably November 2008. The first agreement.
Q Okay. So when you say "the first agreement," was there -- did that change again? Did the economic value of the offer change again at some point?
A It was a -- yes, it did change, as you know.
Q And can you just describe to me a little bit about how it changed, I guess, following November 2008?
A Really, how much time have you got? I mean, it changed pretty -- I mean, I don't want to lose anybody here. But it went to -- it changed a lot, because -- it changed a lot over those couple of years, okay. So if we're at the June 2008 agreement, and then sometime it changed again that fall, right.
And then we were -- negotiated our JDA and lease and were pretty much there.

Then let me try to find some e-mail to see when it changed again.
(Witness reviewed the document.)
Hmm.
Q We don't need a specific date or anything, if you have a general idea of the timeline and the major changes that occurred.
A Yep. So we -- we agreed to -- we agreed to an amount -- this is helpful, this binder here. Hopefully, I saved Metro some money by making it easy for you all and them with these.
So we agreed to -- I think us and the staff agreed to an amount. And then we got to an impasse, I think, as you recall, seeing the December 4 e-mail that I sent to Neil Albert.
Q Sorry, that's December 4, 2008?
A 2008, yep. And then --
Q What was the impasse?
A I don't know, I think it was Graham somewhere lurking around there, trying to kill our deal. But things didn't get approved. Our JDA and lease did not get approved, were not getting approved. We were trying to get it approved, and they kept kicking the bucket down the road.

But I do see an e-mail from December 11, saying, "based on our conversation last week and in preparation of tomorrow's 3 p.m. meeting, we attach for your review the latest pro forma."
At this point, Metro was asking for our financial performance to be sent over and it had what our lease payments were. This one had $150,000 lease payment. So it was pretty -- so that's what we agreed to.
And then I think Neil was able to set up a meeting after the inauguration with WMATA's general manager, I think, and their senior staff at his office. And I think at that meeting, we finally came to an agreement to what we were going to pay.
I think it might have been 200-something thousand dollars a year. So it was more than that initial e-mail that I just sent to Roz Doggett.
Q What changed between that e-mail that you referenced and this meeting after the inauguration?

A I don't know what changed, but we had been working on it for call it a year now, in terms of negotiating. And when we met back in, you know, February of 2009 now, we were ready to get the deal done.
So although we had offered 150 a year, I'm not sure if they talked about it internally, but maybe they said we are willing, if you pay this, this will be fine, and that's what happened.
Q And is that the final price that they accepted --
A Final price --
Q -- going all the way up to March of 2010?
A Who accepted, your client or the staff?
Q Staff.
A No. I think if you go to 2010 and you see what the latest -- I forget what the latest amount was, but it wasn't the $597,000 a year. It might have been somewhere around the two-something.
So once we negotiated this, then we said, oh, no, we can't sell it to you or lease it to you at this time, we have to order an appraisal, if you recall some of those conversations. Took them about four or five months.

And we said, fine, we'll pay whatever the appraisal says. And we wound up paying more than the appraisal at that particular time.

Q When did the appraisal first get brought up?

A Sometime in the spring of 2000.

Q Just to the best of your recollection. It doesn't need to be an exact date.

A The spring, how about that?

Q Spring of 2009?

A '9, spring of 2009, yeah.

Q Who brought that up with you?

A WMATA brought it up. They said they had to order an appraisal. After we had negotiated everything and were ready to roll, they said no -- so I see an e-mail from Emeka Moneme or a call that somebody got from him. This was March 30, so I bet it was sometime around that period.

Q When you say "WMATA," do you mean WMATA staff or the board?

A WMATA staff. I'll try to be particular when I mention the staff. But they're all the same; right? They all have the same -- they work for the same organization. But yeah, I'll try to be more specific.

Q So once the appraisal was completed, how did that affect the offer price?

A It was fine with us. It was great. We were ready to again proceed.

I mean, as you know, WMATA staff recommended that the board approve either our term sheet, JDA and lease and other documents at least a half dozen, it might have even been a dozen different times, every single time.

Not one time did they say, no, Banneker's offer is too low so kill the deal with them, don't approve the deal with them, anything like that.

Q What did you understand the board's position to be about your offer price?

A At which time are you referring to?

Q I guess start in 2008.

A What board are you referring to? Let me tell you how it works with WMATA. Jim Graham dictated what went on at WMATA at least for the entirety of 2009, when he was the chairman. And then he became the committee chair of our committee, the real estate committee, so he dictated what went on there.

And prior to that, he dictated what went on as well. And that's how he was able to just punt our approval by 60 days for no particular reason.

So that's how it went down. And it was whatever Jim Graham says, that's what John Catoe, who is the general manager, told me, saying, look, whatever Jim Graham says I'm fine with. This is his quote.

So it's not the board. It's not to be spooky or anything. It's very, very clear, the other board members did not mess with Jim Graham. They did whatever he said. So it's a very specific -- D.C. board members didn't get involved in Maryland deals. Virginia board members didn't get involved with anybody's deals.

The District and Graham had the heaviest hand in the District, and it was whatever Graham said.

BY MR. BONDI:

Q Mr. Karim, when was your first interaction directly with Councilman Graham concerning the Florida Avenue development?

A To my knowledge, which was when he came up to me and sat next to me in the full board meeting prior to the board voting on our June 26 term sheet, at that meeting.

And he said, "Mr. Karim, I'm going to vote for your term sheet, but you're going to have to come see me," right.

I said, "yes, sir."

He got back up out of his seat, sat back up. I wish there was a camera that could see it. Got back up, sitting in his seat, voted for our term sheet, and I went to go see him in his office.

Q And you went to go see Mr. Graham in his office at WMATA or at the D.C. council?

A I know where you're trying to go, right. I would go see -- I didn't know he had an office at

WMATA. I went to go see him at his office at the council on Pennsylvania Avenue.

But if you're trying to -- if in any way you're trying to attempt to throw Mr. Graham under the bus without the board and WMATA having some responsibility, it's their fault as well.

I mean, wherever you're going, I'm not sure where you're going. I know you've been hired by the audits and legal committee.

But I met with him on Pennsylvania Avenue at the Wilson Building.

Q And, Mr. Karim, I appreciate that you're very emotional about this.

A It is an emotional thing, I'll tell you.

Q And you've invested a lot of resources in time and money in this.

A We sure have.

Q But I'd appreciate it if you just answer the questions that I ask here.

A No problem.

Q It will make things a lot more efficient today, and we can get to the -- get to understanding what happened.

So you said you went to go visit Mr. Graham at his office on Pennsylvania Avenue at the D.C. council. When was that approximately? Was this shortly after your initial term sheet was -- or you initially were approved to be the exclusive negotiator with WMATA, that first meeting?

A The June 2008 meeting, after that, right.

Q Right after the June 2008 meeting, you went to go see Mr. Graham. Were you alone?

A Yes, I was.

Q Did anyone -- was anyone else in the meeting aside from Mr. Graham?

A No.

Q And did it take place in his office?

A You know, we met twice. Once it was in his office, and then once it was at lunch at 1010 Penn, or the French restaurant.

Q LaHalles, the --

A LaHalles, yeah. So I'm not sure which meeting took place first. I believe the first meeting we had probably was in -- at the restaurant.

I get them mixed up. It's been four years ago, yeah.

Q Okay. Well, why don't we -- why don't we focus --

A But both meetings were just he and I. Both of those meetings were just he and I.

Q Okay. Were there other meetings that you --

A Yes.

Q -- attended with Mr. Graham where other people were there?

A Yes. We had a meeting on October 22, 2009. It was myself, our CFO, Jim Graham and his chief of staff at the time. There was four of us.

Q Okay. And were there any other meetings that you had with Mr. Graham?

A No, not that I can recall.

Q I'd like to first focus on your lunch meeting with Mr. Graham. Did you invite him to lunch? Did he invite you to lunch? How did it come about?

A No, he invited -- he said, "we're going to meet at my favorite French restaurant," it's X, Y and Z, and I'll see you there at the particular time.

Q Did you bring any documents with you?

A No. He didn't ask me to bring any, so I didn't bring any.

Q And did he bring any documents?

A Not that I knew of. He might have, but he didn't show me any documents.

Q Okay. What did you discuss over lunch with Mr. Graham?

A So he -- he strongly recommended that we add LaKritz Adler to our development team. It's a development company, he told us to do it. He might have even given me Josh Adler's phone number, because immediately thereafter, I contacted him and began -- no, no.

Okay. I'm mixing the dates up.

The lunch occurred between April when Graham tabled our deal and June before they approved our deal. And then our meeting in his office where he showed me all his shovels happened after that.

And that's when, between April and June, at his favorite restaurant, that he strongly recommended that we add LaKritz Adler to our team.
Q So the first meeting at the restaurant you believe was between April and June 2008?
A That's correct.
Q And the second meeting was when?
A Shortly there -- I would say two or three weeks after. I think there's an e-mail in here where I'm asking his staff to -- Q We can get to that in a second.
A Sure. I would say within 30 days of their approving our term sheet.
Q And then the final meeting you said was October 22, 2009, that took place in his office?
A No, that took place at Busboys and Poets on 14th and W Street, Northwest.
Q So in the meeting between April and June 2008 that you said took place at LaHalles restaurant --
A Did I say that it took place, or did you know that it took place? Okay. Go ahead.

Q You gave an address for LaHalles restaurant. You said it was 1010 Pennsylvania Avenue; right?
A Is that where LaHalles was?
Q That's right.
A Uh-huh.
Q The meeting that took place at the restaurant at 1010 Pennsylvania Avenue, did Mr. Graham express why he wanted you to get LaKritz involved?
A I can't recall. But if I think about it, I'll get back with you on that.
Q Did -- what did you say when he suggested that you get LaKritz involved?
A I'm pretty sure I told him I would consider it.
Q Did you have another partner involved at the time?
A When you say "another partner" --
Q Were you involved with other organizations in the proposal to develop the Florida Avenue property?

Page 36

A Yes, we did. We had a number of partners at that time.
Q But LaKritz was not one of them at the time; correct?
A That's correct.
Q Okay. Why would it have been in your interest to get involved with LaKritz?
A Because the guy that's controlling our deal suggested that we do it. Jim Graham, that is.
Q Sure. And, Mr. Karim, if you don't mind, can we just put those aside? We'll get to documents in a second.
A Sure.
Q I just want to learn about what you had, okay, and what you talked about.
So following the --
A But I -- I wouldn't -- I'm not making the -- you said why would it be in our best interests. I didn't make that statement; you made that statement.
Q No, I said why would it be in your interest.

A Oh, in our interest. The reason why we -- so there's a separate paragraph. The reason why we began discussions with LaKritz is because Graham told us to.
Q Would -- let me phrase it this way, Mr. Karim. Would you have gotten LaKritz involved and had discussions with LaKritz, had Councilman Graham not told you to contact LaKritz?
A Absolutely not.
Q Okay. And so following the lunch meeting at the restaurant at 1010 Pennsylvania Avenue, what did you do then, reached out to LaKritz?
A Yes.
Q Who did you call at LaKritz?
A I'm not sure if it was Josh Adler or Robb LaKritz.
Q What do you remember saying to either Mr. Adler or Mr. LaKritz when you first contacted them?
A I don't recall specifically, but it might have gone something like Jim Graham told us to contact you about this Metro deal.

And if you recall, I do have -- I had a diary and took notes from a meeting that I had with -- or a phone call that I had with Josh. Shortly after that conversation. We even had lunch or breakfast one or two times around that time.

Q Mr. Karim, I appreciate that you really want to get into documents. We've got a lot of time to get into documents.

A All right.

Q I just want to ask for your recollections here without getting into documents, okay?

A Uh-huh. Well, it's been four years for me. You probably spent the last three months really looking at this, and I haven't. So it's --

Q Sure. And we can refresh your recollection with documents in a moment.

But what I'm asking you -- because I don't believe there's a document of a phone call. So what I'm asking you is --

A Yes, there is a document of a phone call, and I wrote it down. And then Josh sent me a detailed analysis, saying as a follow-up to our phone call, this is what we want to do.

Q Okay. Did LaKritz Adler or the representative from LaKritz Adler with whom you spoke on the phone, did that person acknowledge that they expected your call or that they were expecting you to have called them?

A I don't recall.

Q Did they seem surprised by your call?

A Certainly not.

Q From your call, did you then agree to meet?

A I'm not sure what happened, whether our first-time meeting was after our deal got approved or he sent me documents first but --

Q "He" meaning?

A Josh and Robb.

Q Josh Adler and Robb LaKritz?

A That's correct.

Q Now, you said there was a subsequent meeting, and we'll get to in a second, your interactions with LaKritz. But you said there was a subsequent meeting --

A I mean, let's not forget that. This is like the Josh --

Q I know, Mr. Karim. We're going to get to that in a second, okay?

A Sure.

Q You said there was a subsequent meeting with Mr. Graham two weeks later, in his office.

A About 30 days after the meeting where he said you need to come see me, then I went and saw him, and I saw him in his office.

Q And that meeting in his office took place after your lunch meeting with him? Is that the chronology you remember?

A That's correct, yes.

Q And when you went to go see him in his office, then, after the lunch meeting, what was said?

A So the lunch meeting occurred between April and June before they approved our deal. The meeting at his office on Pennsylvania Avenue occurred after the June 26 project. What occurred.

So he asked me, hey, so basically -- not basically. He said, you've never been in my office before.

And I said, no, sir, I haven't. I felt like I needed to wash my hands at that point.

And then he goes -- we get to sit on his couch there, and we get to talking about our deal, about the affordable housing. Hey, okay. So how much affordable housing do you want in this deal; right? That was the one question that we had a conversation about.

He told us to -- he said, hey, I'm starting this BID, I want your support on it, right. It's a U Street BID. We're on Florida Avenue. We weren't on U Street. The cost is about the price of a table at one of these functions, that's what he was saying.

And I told him I needed to think about it and go back to -- basically, to give it some thought before I could agree to anything like that.

So there was a number of different things that we talked about at the time, yeah.

Q Let me just interrupt you. I don't think

I follow. You said U Street BID and then talked about the cost of a table.

What was he asking of you that you said I'll have to give it some thought?

A He started a -- or was pushing for a U Street BID, business improvement district along U Street. And he wanted me and our project to pay for that, because the developers were footing -- the owners of parcels along the U Street corridor were paying for that and basically asked me for $40,000.

I thought it was $1000, but it was really to the tune of 40,000, per year, that I would have been paying had I agreed to this with him.

Q And, Mr. Karim, I'm not following your conversation. I thought your meeting with Mr. Graham was on the Florida Avenue development. Was this a separate topic of that communication, or were these two topics related?

A They were related. This was the Florida Avenue -- this project that I owned, would have been the owner of, would have had to pay $40,000 per year to this BID that Graham was spearheading, had we agreed.

Q Was that part of the proposal, though, with WMATA, that you would also be part of this business development district to pay this 40,000?

A No, it wasn't.

Q Okay. Then what was WMATA's interest in ensuring that you got -- paid a $40,000 price to -- as part of this business development district? What is your understanding of WMATA's interest?

A I'm not sure of WMATA. But this is what Jim Graham wanted.

Q Okay. And you -- did he indicate to you that you needed to pay this $40,000 in order to get support from him on the WMATA Florida Avenue development?

A Oh, it was certainly implied that that was the case.

Q And what did you say to him in response to that?

A I told him I would have to get back with him.

Q Okay. Now, you mentioned something about a cost of a table? Maybe I misunderstood. Is that a different issue?

A That's correct. No, that's the same issue. I asked him how much would it cost for us to be a member of this BID, and he said, oh, it's the cost of a table at one of these events. That's his quote.

Q Then that's when you learned that the cost of a table was $40,000?

A That's correct. Well, it's not a set fee. It's the size of the project and that type of thing. So some projects are 40,000. Ours could have been between 30 and 40,000, give or take, you know.

Q So, Mr. --

A Per year.

Q Mr. Karim, I realize and appreciate that this has been a while for you, and I know this is cumbersome. But if you could try to tell me what exactly you remember Mr. Graham saying about this U Street BID and what was involved in it.

And how did it come up in the conversation that you were having with him? Was there a segue?

Was there a, well, great, now let's move on to a different topic?

Tell me how this came up in the conversation, please.

A I don't 100 percent recall the timeline of our conversation. I'm in this man's office, right, it's pretty intimidating, and my first time in his office, not like we were buddies or anything like that.

And he brought it up in the context of several weeks prior, he came and sat next to me, saying I'm going to approve your deal, but you need to come see me. I went to go see him, and he raised these issues during that meeting.

So I don't think that they were divergent or had different interests. I think that they were connected.

We talked about the affordable housing component and what percentage of affordable housing we were going to include in the deal. We talked about this U Street BID that he raised during the conversation as well.

Q What other topics did you discuss?
A I don't remember. Those two stick out. I'm not sure if he asked me how my conversations were going with LaKritz or whatever the case might be.
Q Did Warren Williams' name come up during this conversation?
A I don't recall his name being brought up in that conversation.
Q Who raised the idea of the U Street BID? Was that a topic that you raised or he raised?
A No. I didn't even know about it.
Q All right. And aside from the Florida Avenue project that you were bidding on, were you involved in any other real estate development near or around U Street that would qualify you to be a participant in this business development, this BID?
A No.
Q So but for Florida Avenue, you wouldn't have had a reason to even be talking about the U Street business development?
A That's correct.

Q And if we could go back, what do you remember him saying about the U Street BID? How do you remember it being raised in the conversation? What do you remember him saying?
A I'm leading this U Street BID thing, and it's the cost of about -- I remember asking him, well, how much is it? U Street automatically raised an eyebrow because we're on Florida Avenue, we're not even on U Street.
He said -- I said, how much is it?
He said, oh, it's the cost of about one of these tables, that I remember. And I remember me telling him with respect to that, I'll have to get back with you.
Q Is that how the meeting ended, or did you continue to talk about the Florida Avenue development?
A That was part of the Florida Avenue development, and we did talk about the affordable housing part of the development in that conversation.
Q After you talked about the U Street BID?

What I'm trying to understand is the chronology of the conversation from start to finish.
A I don't really recall -- it was, you know, three or four years ago -- the exact, you know, chronology of that particular meeting.
I know we didn't sit in there for six hours. It was probably a 30-minute to 45-minute meeting.
Q Was the discussion, though, about the U Street BID the last topic that you talked about in your conversation with Councilman Graham?
A I don't -- I don't recall.
Q And did you get back to Councilman Graham on his request relating to the U Street BID?
A No.
Q Not at all?
A Not at all, not that I can recall.
Q Is there a reason why you didn't get back to him?
A I felt like he was shaking me down, and I wasn't going to agree to pay any money or anything like that. You know, and it was $40,000, so we clearly probably would have told him no if he would have -- if he would have pressed us out on it.

Q Did you tell anyone about Mr. Graham's request that he conveyed about the U Street BID?
A I did.
Q Who did you tell?
A Like a few days later, or maybe a few weeks later, but shortly around that time, one of my -- our partners at the time, Josh Kern, sent me an e-mail about the U Street BID. And I replied, you know, Graham brought this up in a meeting. It's in the e-mail that I gave to you. Graham brought this up in a meeting.
And I told him the same thing that I told you, that hey, he said it was about the cost of the table, I thought it was $1000 but wound up it's $40,000.
Q Did you tell anyone else about your conversation with Councilman Graham on the U Street BID?
A So did I tell anybody that I was having that meeting? Absolutely. I'm sure I told people that I was having that meeting. I'm sure I told my partners that, that the U Street BID was a component of that meeting.

So when I told people about that meeting, did I tell them everything that happened in that meeting? I'm not sure -- including the U Street BID? I don't recall.

But at a minimum, I told Josh Kern and Phinis, who probably was copied in that e-mail, I don't recall, or Warren. I'm not sure who was copied in that e-mail. But whoever at least was in that e-mail knew about it.

MR. BONDI: Can we take a one-minute break, if you don't mind?

(Recess.)

BY MS. ROCKWOOD:

Q So I guess we wanted to move on to the next meeting, which was October 22.

A The third meeting.

Q Yes. Where did that meeting take place?

A Busboys and Poets on 14th and W.

Q Who attended that meeting?

A Jim Graham and his chief of staff, myself and our chief financial officer at the time.

Q Who is Jim Graham's chief of staff at that time?

A I don't know.

Q Is it Ted Loza?

A I wish it was. That would have been priceless. He is in prison right now. I think I Googled who his chief of staff was during that month. I think Ted had been gone. But if that was, we probably wouldn't even be having this meeting right now.

Q Your CFO was?

A Anthony Ives.

Q And what -- who called that meeting?

A We agreed to have that meeting -- our deal was being stalled, and I knew Jim Graham would be at a groundbreaking ceremony at Justice Park, who we were program managers for. And I went and saw him basically to go find out what's happening. It's been a long time, what's going on.

We went. I said, can we sit down and have lunch? He said, fine, let's go to Busboys and Poets. Right after the groundbreaking, he met us there, and that's where we had the meeting.

Q What did you discuss?

A First thing he said is, you shouldn't have gone after this deal. And my response was, I wish somebody would have told me. But somebody really did tell us. I was really being facetious. Because Boyd told us we shouldn't have gone after that deal previously so --

Q What else did he say after he made that statement?

A Oh, a whole lot -- we had a negotiation, protracted negotiation, right there over lunch, where he told us that he wasn't going to accept this project going out as a sale, it was going to be a lease, and that got negotiated. And even though he supported it a year later, when JBG -- when they put it back out, he was still on the board and a committee chair when it went out as a sale.

So we negotiated about that. I told him our partner at the time, Bank of America/CDC, wanted to have it as a lease -- they were comfortable with the sale and everything moving forward. So I knew that they would cause them some issues.

And he said, fine, you can find another partner. And I tried to be a little coy about it, well, who could we find or whatever. And I think -- I don't think I threw Adler's name out, but I might have thrown out Chris Donatelli's name again.

But we didn't come to anything on that. And then right afterwards, I think he gave me the cellphone number for John Catoe, who is general manager.

I called Catoe and said, hey, I just left Graham, we agreed to this, this and that. Catoe's quote was "whatever Graham said, I'm down with."

And within an hour, there was e-mails going back and forth from the real estate manager, the deputy assistant general manager, Catoe, per the meeting, blah, blah, blah, blah, this is what happened, this is what the deal is.

He agreed to have a special board meeting in two weeks in exchange for our agreeing to change some of the terms of the deal up. And he said he would push the deal forward.

Unbeknownst to me, at the same time he's asking Carol O'Keeffe in confidential board memos if they can go do BAFOs so his buddy Chris Adler can get the deal again.

Q Did he say why you never should have bid on this deal?

A No, not on the 22nd of October to me.

Q Did he say that another time?

A To my understanding, he told Bua Benitez the morning we had our pitch, December 17, 2007, that this deal wasn't for us, we weren't supposed to go to this deal.

And board called my then partner at the time, Warren, on the way -- while he was walking into WMATA's headquarters and told him that. Warren relayed that message to me immediately when he got off the phone with him, and we said we were going to go anyway.

Q So you discussed the -- whether the property would be a sale or a lease at that October 22 meeting. What else did you discuss?

A As I indicated to you, we indicated -- we discussed who our partner was going to be, since he wanted to change the terms of what we had agreed to with the staff at that time.

Q Did he bring up LaKritz Adler at that point?

A I don't recall. I wish I did.

Q But you brought up Donatelli?

A I probably did bring up Donatelli.

Q Why?

A Because I knew that was his man.

Q How did you know that?

A How did I know that? Everybody knows that. It's -- Donatelli is doing three developments in the guy's ward, four now, five probably, several Metro projects. They were close. Donatelli was the one who was -- scheduled a meeting with him back in November/December 2007. He canceled with Donatelli. Donatelli sent me an e-mail saying Graham canceled. Everybody knows they're big-time friends.

Q Why did he cancel the meeting?

A I don't know. What did he tell you?

(Laughter.)

Q So Donatelli was part of your team in 2007?

A He was, yeah.

Q But subsequently he dropped out?

A He dropped out the day before we were going to bid.

Q And why was that?

A I think Graham told him. So to give you some -- as you already know, December 2007, Chris Donatelli was on our team, it was DDG, Donatelli and Banneker. Banneker was the lead on the project.

We got word, and I'm not sure from who, from Chris or whomever, said that Graham wasn't going to support us. So we decided that we would take a back seat to -- on the deal, because we had worked so hard on it, and we just really would take 20 percent of the deal versus 33 percent of the deal, 25 percent, whatever.

And since we had worked out with DDG, and Chris Donatelli would be the lead, and they would -- it would be DDG and Donatelli. And then Donatelli called DDG that weekend, that Saturday night or Sunday morning, saying that they dropping out.

And not only did they call Josh or e-mail them or something, but then they called our partners on the deal to let them know that they dropping out. So effectively, there would be no presentation that Monday morning to WMATA, thus leaving LaKritz Adler and maybe the other company, Moddie Turay's company, to bid.

Q Did Chris Donatelli call you?

A No.

Q But he spoke with -- who on your team did he speak with?

A John or Phinis.

Q Can you spell that for me?

A Phinis's name or Josh -- Josh Kern.

Q Oh, Josh Kern, okay. I see. And he was your CFO at the time?

A No, Joshua Kern is a partner in District Development Group, DDG. It was Josh and Phinis at DDG, and then it was Banneker, and then it was Donatelli Development.

Q What did you understand was the reason that Donatelli had dropped out?
A We knew Graham had gotten to him. It was clear. Graham had canceled the meeting a week or two before we were supposed to -- a week or two prior. We got word that Graham was going to go against us on the deal, and then Graham is buddies with Chris.
Q What did Chris tell people was his reason for dropping out?
A I don't recall. I know he didn't give me the professional courtesy to call me. And I consider Chris a friend.
Q So why did you propose adding him back into the team in 2009?
A Because I knew that he liked -- I knew that they were friends at the time. Again, it was probably a little bit out of desperation.
I just couldn't get my lips around recommending to Graham or asking Graham, hey, you want us to get LaKritz Adler back into it? I don't like those guys. They were jerks. And I don't think I did. I might have.

Q Had you had any conversations with Donatelli about coming back into the deal?
A Oh, man. You know what, throughout the life of this negotiation, I called Chris pretty often to kind of keep him updated. So I might have called him at one time or another.
But we had our partnership together, so until that lunch meeting with Graham in October 2009, I don't think that I had a conversation with him about rejoining the team.
(Mr. McDaniel left deposition.)
Q So what did you do? You mentioned you called Mr. Catoe following that October 22 meeting.
A Uh-huh.
Q What else did you do, or what action items did you have?
A Well, first of all, I had a conversation with our CFO, and he said, unbelievable, I can't believe Graham said that. I can't believe that he said we shouldn't have went after this deal. That was amazing.

I talked to our former CFO just last week, and we were talking about it again. I mean, it was unbelievable that Graham would say that we shouldn't have gone after this deal.
And then the staff reworked the terms of the deal and -- you know, to a lease, and we negotiated with them, continued having conversations about how the deal was going to get moved forward and that type of thing.
Q Uh-huh.
A I'm sure we spoke with our lawyers at the time, because they were heavy in getting the documents prepared.
Q Did Graham do anything following that meeting? Did he have any agenda items?
A Agenda items? Graham always had agenda items. You're opening it up for yourself. I know that he asked Carol O'Keefe whether they could do a best and final offer. And Carol sent them a confidential memo, she probably sent them a couple. I'd be surprised whether you all have a copy of that memo. That would be interesting to see whether they gave it to you.

But I had a copy, and I wanted to make it known to you all what Graham was doing at the time.
Q Did Carol O'Keeffe send you a copy of that memo?
A I'm not sure how I got that memo.
Q Did you get that memo from Mr. Graham?
A I'm not sure how I got that memo. I wish I did. I wish I had all of the confidential memos that Carol O'Keefe put together with our deal. There probably would be some damning information in there.
Q Do you recall when you received that memo?
A No.
Q Did you receive it close to the time that it was written or --
A I don't recall, but I wish I -- I wish I did.
Q You mentioned that in 2007, you had discussed with Donatelli changing roles on the development team, that you would let them take a larger share of the deal.

A I didn't say that. I said that the agreement between our partners was that we were going to do it. I'm not sure whether it was just Chris and I or whether it was DDG, everybody. Or I don't recall everybody that was in the room or who was in the room, but it certainly was decided that we were going to take a back seat to D -- on the project. This is days before we were going to go in to interview with WMATA.
Q Whose idea was that?
A I don't recall.
Q When did you first conceive of that idea with your team?
A First of all, I didn't say I conceived of the idea. Secondly, it was right around I would call it December 2007.
Q And what was the purpose of doing that?
A Because Graham was -- we were getting word that Graham was not going to support our deal and he was going to kill our deal.
Q How would this help?

A I thought erroneously at the time, and DDG thought erroneously at the time as well, that if Chris was the lead, then Graham would have supported it. Unbeknownst to us, he promised that deal to LaKritz Adler.
So regardless of who was the lead and who was the silent partner or whatever, this deal wasn't going to get done.
Q Did anyone have any conversations with Graham about the composition of your development team?
A I'm not sure who had conversations. I didn't have conversations with him, but I bet you Chris did.
Q Did he tell you about those conversations?
A No. Well, I can't say definitively.
Q I guess what made you think that this would help if --
A I wish I had my -- my -- the word we were getting was that Graham wasn't going to support our deal. We knew Graham was on the board. We didn't know about all of the makeup and all of the shenanigans that board members do.

But it was our understanding that he wasn't going to support us, us wrongfully thinking that he just wasn't going to support Banneker being a lead. But he didn't want this team bidding on it, because if the team bid -- if it was just Adler and Moddie Turay, Adler would have won, just hands down.
Q Why do you think that?
A I spoke with Rosalyn Doggett last week, because I forgot who the third bidder was on this deal. And I asked her, who was the third bidder? She couldn't remember at the time, but she said it was a small development company or whatever. And just that couple of years ago out of the blue gave me the understanding.
And I knew, it was a one-person -- I know Moddie, and it was a one-person shop. And Clark, who was his teaming partner, it wasn't Clark's development group, it was the parent company. So, you know, I'm not sure how much they offered, but Josh probably had a little bit more experience than he did. And we had a lot more experience than Josh

had. So --
Q So you mentioned that you were getting word that Graham wasn't supporting you. Who were you getting that word from?
A I'm not sure.
Q Were you personally getting word or was it other members of your development team?
A I don't recall.
Q So you mentioned -- we talked about Metropolis -- or sorry, Donatelli was the original development partner. They subsequently dropped out and Metropolis came in. Why did you bring them in to replace Donatelli?
A So we had -- when we first was looking at this deal, we thought about a whole lot of different people, kind of put names on the board. I think Metropolis might have been one of them.
And I knew that the folks from Howard had a good relationship with Metropolis, with Merrick Malone in particular. And when they gave us the letter of support, they thought it -- they thought it would be a good idea to do a project with

Metropolis.
We said, fine, we know Merrick, you know, so that's why we brought them on board and subsequently decided, once the principal of their firm got brain cancer, I'm not sure if he died or -- yeah, but he got brain cancer, he got really sick. I think he passed away. We had to find another partner, unfortunately.
Q Was that Mr. Malone?
A No, it was Scott Pinnick, I think was the guy's name. He was the president of the company. I think Merrick was a vice president.
Q I see. So they dropped out at that point because --
A Yeah, the guy had -- yeah, I don't even think the company is still around. It was -- you know, it was a pretty bad time for them at this particular time so --
Q What was their relationship with Mr. Graham?
A I don't know. But Merrick, I think, was a former deputy mayor or something like that in the city. So I'm pretty sure he had a pretty decent relation -- more than me, more than the relationship that I had with the guy.

Q Was that a consideration when you all were deciding which development partner to bring on?
A I'm pretty sure if we thought that somebody that Graham hated, we wouldn't have recommended or we wouldn't have even considered having them as a partner.
Q And then subsequently, you partnered with Bank of America?
A Finally, yes.
Q How did you select them?
A I'm not sure how they got -- I don't recall how they got in the picture, but I was glad they did. They are the largest developer of affordable housing in the country. They recently did a major development over in Southeast at that particular time.
Their office was across the street from ours. I mean, how about that; right? Our address was 729, they were 740. I mean, so our project team meetings, everything like that, no commute time at all.

We had a great relationship with them. I went to Texas to visit with the head of their development arm, and it was a really -- really, really good relationship.
They are a large behemoth, so sometimes it takes a while to make decisions. But they were a great partner.
And they're a bank. We're banking with B of A. They have debt, they have equity. It just -- man, it made a lot of sense.
Q Now, when you brought them on, was the transaction being done as a sale or as a lease?
A I believe it was a lease at the time.
Q And when did they drop out?
A "Drop out" is -- around the time that Graham -- at the October 22 meeting, right, Graham told us that he would not support a sale, October 22, 2009, and he would support a lease.
We knew, we had spent a lot of time with B of A, all the underwriters, stuff like that. They liked a sale better, and we had gotten comfortable with it.

So it was sometime around there. I can't recall exact date.
Q And why was that?
A Why was what?
Q Why did they drop out of the team?
A Well, as I indicated, I know that Graham was not supporting a -- Graham didn't support a sale, and he wanted a lease. And I knew they didn't want a lease. I mean, yes, they preferred a sale.
Q But you just mentioned they came on when the transaction was being structured as a lease.
A Right. It was a whole year. I mean, a long time had went past or -- a long time had went past.
So they did come on when it was a lease, but then the terms got negotiated and that type of stuff. And once they kind of -- the underwriters and all of those folks or whatever, it worked out for them better for the deal to be a sale than a lease.

Q Do you think if the -- if the sale had never been on the table at all, that they would have gone forward with you with the transaction as a lease?

A Do you think that Graham would have ever approved this deal? I mean, that's -- that's the really million dollar question there, whatever.

I think we had a ton of equity. We had CalPERS, CalSTRS, two of the largest public pension funds in the country, McFarland Partners. We had Goldman, JP Morgan. We had a ton of equity, a ton of debt, TIFs, everything. We had the deal ready to go.

And this deal got killed because of Graham. I mean, whether B of A -- I can't answer that now.

Q Okay. Did you ever discuss -- in your meetings with Graham, did you ever discuss Warren Williams?

A I don't think so. Although he did send -- although I did have a conversation with Joe Washington and Rosalyn Doggett in the spring of 2008 when both of them said Jim Graham wanted us to send additional information or he was trying to kill our deal because of Warren, or something around that. I wrote a couple of letters. I think you all saw that.

Q Did anyone ever speak with you about or were you hearing anything at the time about Graham's feelings on Warren Williams?

A Around which time are you referring?

Q Sorry. In spring of 2008.

A So what's your question?

Q Did anyone -- did you hear anything --

A Rosalyn Doggett -- I heard from WMATA staff. And they said that Graham said that Warren owed -- what I was getting was that Graham was trying to kill our deal. And then as part of that, it was, well, one of the principals of Banneker owes the city money or one of the principals of Banneker X, Y and Z.

That was Warren who -- and Graham was telling -- according to the staff, was telling the staff these things.

Q Uh-huh. Did he ever -- when did Warren Williams drop -- leave Banneker?

A I forget the exact date. But it was at a particular date sometime.

Q And why did he leave?

A We just felt that it was probably appropriate for him to leave. He had his own company, and we were just going to keep going, yeah.

Q Did it have anything to do with the fact that you knew that Graham had these concerns about him?

A No, I don't think that was the major reason.

Q Can you -- was it in 2008, 2009?

A I forget when we had it effective, right, you know. It was -- it was prior to the spring of 2009, I know that.

Q Did you ever have any conversations with Jim Graham about the composition of your development team, about personnel at Banneker who would be working on the deal?

A Not that I can recall.

Q What was Graham's role in negotiations with you? You mentioned the October 22 meeting.

A He was all in it. He was -- for a board member, he was all in the details.

You saw the e-mails; right? Again, I know Bondi doesn't want me to go back to the e-mails. But Graham is saying in e-mails prior to -- this is June 25, 2008, I want to be very specific. He was very specific about language in the board meetings, right.

He was specific as to its affordable housing component. He was specific when he told me that Chris Adler needed to be involved in the deal. He was specific that the deal wasn't going to be a sale but that it was going to be a lease.

He was specific every single time going -- directing the staff to go back and get more money from us, which he'd done three or four different times, where there's not enough money, there's not enough money. At least this is what was being conveyed to us about offering more money, Graham was saying.

And I know what he said to the paper that we didn't have the experience and that type of stuff. But we had more experience than LaKritz Adler, but he would approve the deal, yet if we added Adler? Just doesn't smell right to me.

Q What about Neil Albert? What's his role in the negotiations? He was also a board member, obviously.

A He became a board member in 2008, yep. And I don't know everything, all of the backdrop behind those type of -- what happened in those private board meetings.

But at least we went to him because he was the deputy mayor as well and a board member, and this was in the city, to help when the deal got stalled.

Q And when is the first time you remember going to him in that capacity?

A Like sometime late fall 2008.

Q What was happening at that time?

A Well, our deal was supposed to be done. Rosalyn Doggett promised me that the deal -- our JDA, joint development agreement, and lease would be approved by September 2008. And that's why we agreed to the terms that we -- the stringent terms that we agreed to back in March of 2008. That's the only reason.

And when that didn't get -- when that continued to get pushed and pushed and pushed and pushed and pushed and pushed, and we went to him and asked for his help, which I think I gave you a copy of the e-mail, screaming out help, please help us.

That's when he set up that meeting with John Catoe, WMATA's general manager, and then we finally cut a deal or what we thought was going to be the terms of a deal with Metro on the project.

Q What are some other examples of some times that he either set up meetings for you or other times that you maybe went to him for help?

A I'm pretty sure -- there was numerous times. It was over the life of two years. We tried to get everybody to support -- I called all the board members. I don't know if they told you that, right. When Graham was killing our deal, I called them, and everybody said we got to talk to Graham. These are the exact quotes from the board members, right.

Not that, oh, it's not appropriate or anything like that. You need to go talk to Graham.

Q Did you speak with all the board members?

A I'm pretty sure I did. I know I spoke to Catherine Hudgins. Yeah, she will recall that.

Q What did she say to you?

A I don't recall the exact conversation. But I do recall in general everybody telling me that I need to speak with Graham.

Q Did they say why?

A No.

Q So you mentioned LaKritz Adler, you got in touch with them in 2008 following your meeting with Graham.

A Uh-huh.

Q What was the first meeting you had with them or the first conversation you had with them?

A I do not recall the first conversation I had with them. But I do recall on June 17, 2008, which was -- which was nine days prior to the upcoming board meeting, Josh Adler calling me, right.

And these are my notes from that day, contemporaneous notes, where I'm writing down what he's saying to me.

And I got Josh Adler there. And he's saying that the word he's getting is that they, WMATA, I put that, at the time, waiting until we, meaning Adler and us, work out something before they approve our deal.

I guess that was pretty important to you all too out of all the stuff I sent.

MR. BONDI: We're going to mark that as an exhibit.

MS. ROCKWOOD: We will mark this as Exhibit 1.

(Karim Exhibit 1 identified.)

BY MS. ROCKWOOD:

Q And that's this document?

A That is that document, yeah.

Q And can you just read what you wrote about your conversation with Adler?

A Josh Adler, and it's underlined, because I'm on the phone with him, word he's getting is that they, WMATA, are waiting until we work out something before they approve our deal.
And then he goes to explain after that the terms of a deal that he has with the adjacent landowner, and he wants us to be part of -- at the deal or whatever it was at that particular time.
(Mr. Bondi left deposition.)
And he talks about a particular ground lease that they had, started in October of 2007, which was interesting, because it was like right before they -- he cut his deal right before the Metro selected us.
And he talked about how much he had to pay them a year. And then he goes into that.
And then the next day -- or, no, later that day, he goes and sends me a confidential two-page e-mail, explaining, "following up on our telephone conversation today, we would like to see," blah, blah, blah, blah, blah.

Q So he wanted to -- what was his proposal?
A Either to add them to our project or to have us purchase the lease option that they had on an adjacent parcel to our parcel.
Q So if adding them to your team would mean that they would have an equity stake in the project? Or what kind of -- in practical terms, what would that mean?
A That's what it would mean.
Q And his second proposal was --
A It would be a development partner, you know, to us, yeah.
Q Okay. Would they replace anybody on your team?
A At this particular time, I'm not sure if -- did we have Merrick? Do you have an executed term sheet available? The executed term sheet has the partners in there.
Q Well, that's fine. It's not --
A I'm not sure if they would be replacing anybody. I don't recall what the composition was.
Q Okay. Right. And the second option was that you would take over an option on their lease on the adjacent property; is that right?

A Uh-huh, and pay them, yeah, a couple million dollars.
Q So would they still be involved at that point, or would -- are you just taking over their property?
A At that point, they wanted us to pay them basically 2-1/2 to $3 million, right, to take over the lease option that they had. Sell you 3.5 million -- we paid them $3.5 million. Wow, that's a lot of -- glad we didn't do that deal.
And they wanted -- they wanted our approval within a week, so prior to the June 26 board meeting.
Q Okay. So would they be involved in the development of the entire project if you took over their lease option?
A If we took it over and just paid them 3.5 million, they wouldn't.
Q But under option 1, would they have some sort of decision-making authority as one of your development partners?

A Decision-making -- I'm not sure if we got into, like, all of the details or if I recall all of the details. But certainly, they would be a development partner and play a role in it. They would be -- it's a major parcel that they're, quote, contributing or that we're purchasing, yeah.
Q Right. And what did you do when you received this call and then the e-mail?
A I laughed, really. It was -- it was comical in that it was so detailed, like within minutes of us getting off the phone, this long dissertation.
So clearly, the guy had this thing ready for me. I mean, you just don't -- I'm a lawyer, but you don't push something out as detailed as this in a couple minutes or, quite frankly, maybe even in a couple hours. This took a while to do.
And I remember sharing it with Warren, and we were just -- it was comical at the time.
But we did think about it. Then he followed back up with it a couple of days later, like hey, where are you all at, like 48 hours prior to the board meeting.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013332

But I think what was happening was that our term sheet was coming to approval so quickly, it was June 26, that I know we didn't begin executing any documents or drafting any documents in connection with this at that time, because there's a lot of stuff happening.

Q Did you respond to them to say you're interested or not?

A I don't -- I don't recall. Clearly, from his e-mail that he sent me, he was saying that he hadn't heard from us. So it looked like that I probably didn't even get back with him.

Q But subsequently, you did?

A Subsequently, we did. Because Graham, right after our -- because Graham sat next to me at the board meeting and told me he needed to meet with me. I met with him, and he strongly recommended that we add Adler onto our team.

And at that point, we began having discussions with them.

Q So what -- what were your discussions?

A Again, it was more --

Q How, I guess -- did you pick one of the two options?

A He sent a letter of interest or a letter of intent, I think we began drafting something up. So we met, apparently, like days --

Q When was that?

A It says, "following up on our meeting last week." So this was July 15, this July 15 e-mail. So it was apparently probably the week of July 8, somewhere around there, we met.

And they revised their proposal, apparently, because it says we are -- revised our proposal. And how much are -- do they want us to pay at this point? 2.32. So went from 3.5 million -- man, I was negotiating with these guys at the time, right.

So I guess they felt that the value -- their value went down now that we had this approved term sheet, from 3.5 to 2.32. So wasn't a quarter million dollars. Not bad.

Q What do you remember about that meeting?

A I remember it was in this place right up on 13th and G Street, because I remember that place, they had a little mouse on the wall, like, subsequently. I'll never forget it. M&G or G&H, restaurant right there up on 13th and G Street. But yeah, so I do -- and we discussed the project. I don't recall.

Q Do you remember who was there?

A It was me, and I'm not sure if it was both Josh and Robb at the time.

Q Anyone else from your side?

A I don't recall if Warren came or something.

Q And what did you -- what did you discuss?

A I'm sure we discussed his proposal, and we probably told him it's too much or can you talk a little bit more about it. Or Graham told us to come see you after my meeting with him. And it's probably -- I think I probably got with Graham just a day or two prior, and immediately thereafter, I met with them.

Q Did you bring any documents with you, about the project?

A I don't know why I would have done that.

Q Current plans or anything like that? No?

A I probably didn't. I don't recall me bringing anything.

Q Did they ask you a lot of questions about, you know, your plans for the project and that sort of thing?

A They were selling us. If you clearly see, it would be better for this, this, this, this, this and that, blah, blah, blah, the tunnel expenses would be cheaper, all of these different things, they were trying to get us to buy into it. And we were just, you know, listening to see if it made some sense.

Q Did they present both of the two alternatives that we talked about at this meeting?

A The -- staying in the deal or the --

Q Right. Or the lease option.

A I don't recall. I've got to look through this. I'm not sure what we -- what we discussed in totality there.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013333

Q So what happens after that? You had this meeting, they sent you a follow-up e-mail, they lowered their price, and then what happened?
A So --
Q And if it would be helpful, let me show you, and we'll mark this as Exhibit 2.
(Karim Exhibit 2 identified.)
A I think on July 21, we got back to them and told them --
Q This is an e-mail chain that goes through September.
A Yeah, it says --
Q So it looks like they sent you that July 15 e-mail.
A Right. And we told them $1.5 million.
Q Okay.
A Right. And then they said they accept our 1.5 million, blah, blah, blah, blah, blah.
And then he said -- asks them, can he draft something up. And that's what began to take place.

Q So did that happen? Did they draft something? Or it looks like he went on vacation?
A Yeah, yeah, they did draft something. Did you guys get that?
Q Yeah. So as far as I have, it goes up to September 5.
A What's that, the draft?
Q Yeah. It looks like Josh sent you a letter of intent, scan of the ratified ground lease, purchase option.
A All these documents, yeah.
Q But that's the last I see of that. So what happened after they drafted these documents for you?
A We -- we started negotiating with them. And apparently, did you see this e-mail, August 12. So I met with Chris -- did I meet with him before or after. So they sent over this signed document on September 5. I just -- I don't think we -- I think we did some analysis and just didn't seem like the deal would work, even at $1.5 million.
Q How come? Or what was -- what was wrong with it?

A I don't recall. It just didn't -- I mean, it was just too much or whatever.
Q Yeah. How would having this property have helped you in your development of the Metro property?
A Because Graham said do it. We were cool with it not being -- so -- I can't draw, can I? I can draw -- no, I can't draw because you can't see what I'm doing.
COURT REPORTER: I can't see, that's true.
THE WITNESS: This parcel was less valuable than the WMATA parcel, because it didn't have frontage on Florida Avenue, it only had alley and 8th Street. So our parcel had two different fronts, both 8th Street and Florida Avenue, made some sense.
It was a sizable parcel and could have added to the project if it was at a fair price. I think it would have -- it could have made some sense.
But if you're purchasing the parcel at a elevated price and -- it makes it undoable, you couldn't do it.

Plus, WMATA really didn't like adding other parcels to their parcel, because they felt that if the deal goes south, then you've got an adjacent parcel there.
So it was a couple of different things that I'm pretty sure we considered when we were thinking about it. But it wasn't a home run, yes, this parcel, we've got to have it, let's pay for it.
It was Jim Graham wanted us to do this, so we considered it and began having conversations.
Q Did you contact someone at LaKritz Adler to tell them you did not want to go through with this sale?
A I don't recall what we did. Quite frankly, it wasn't -- our priority was to get this deal done. Even though Graham wanted us to get it done with Adler, maybe I was naive to think that we could just ignore whatever Jim Graham wanted and try to do this deal.
Q Did you notify Graham at your October 22

Page 90

meeting that you --
A 2009, a year and a half later, did I notify him?
Q Yeah. I guess, did you notify him at any point that you were not going to go forward with LaKritz?
A I knew -- he knew it, because he was a board member. He knew -- he knew everything. He knew who our development team was every single step of the way.
Q How did he know that?
A Because his staff report to him -- in fact, they gave him individual reports, as opposed to -- I bet they didn't give any other board member any reports like they gave Graham, just met with him, the staff meeting with the board member.
Which is probably very abnormal to me. So he knew what was happening every step of the way. And he was on the committee, then he became chair of the board, then he became chair of the committee. So, of course.
Q Did he bring it up with you at any point that he had heard you were in negotiations with LaKritz?

A I don't recall having -- remember, I think I mentioned to you, I didn't recall having any conversations with him individually on anything like that.
Q Jim Graham?
A Outside of those meetings that I indicated, yeah.
Q That you mentioned earlier?
A Yeah.
Q So in the October 22 meeting, it didn't come up?
A I mean, at that point, this was like a year and a half later. LaKritz was off the -- off the bandwagon. He knew they weren't there. He knew it was B of A, CDC.
Q In those -- that phone conversation between you and Josh Adler, where you said word is they're waiting until we work something out before they approved our deal. Where did you understand that he got that information from?

A From Jim Graham.
Q Did he say that he got that information from Jim Graham?
A I'm not sure. If I think back on that, I might recall it. But I'll let you know if I come up with that.
But he wasn't getting it from the staff, I know that.
Q How do you know?
A Because the staff wasn't talking to Adler. They weren't the selected developer. And the staff wouldn't have talked to a losing bidder, especially Rosalyn Doggett. Very fair, honorable woman. Tough negotiator, boy. You didn't want to be sitting across the table from her. She's tough, but very fair lady. Doesn't strike me as anybody that would do anything unethical like that.
Q Did you have any conversations with LaKritz after fall of 2008, when you were negotiating with them?
A I don't recall. I'm sure -- I mean, they're around and we're around. I'm pretty sure that there was an occasion for us to see one another. But I don't recall us having any meetings about this particular deal.

Q Did they ever call you to ask you how the deal was going?
A They might have, and I probably told them that we decided not to move forward with it, with them.
Q Did they ever tell you at any point that Graham wanted them to be a part of the deal? Did they ever bring -- mention his name?
A I know that's what I got out of our conversation --
Q Right.
A -- in June 2008. And it was -- I'm pretty sure I told him, hey, Graham told me to call you guys, you know, when we met in July, the next month.
Q But did they say --
A And they were ready. I mean, they were clearly ready. They had this dissertation put together. This is not something that was just ad hoc, just whip out such a detailed proposal like that.

They were ready for us and ready to get the terms negotiated at that time. It was clear.
Q What would the benefit have been to WMATA of having -- of you taking over their lease option?
A None. WMATA didn't care. WMATA -- WMATA staff, according to -- I want to be specific, the staff didn't care. In fact, they made it more difficult, and that's probably one of the reasons why they didn't get it selected. Moddie Turay had an adjacent parcel under control, and LaKritz Adler. Both of them lost to us, and we didn't have any adjacent parcel under control. Although we did have the support of Howard University on the CVS site.
Q You did at one point have an adjacent parcel that you were looking to bring into the transaction; is that right?
A Later. It was Moddie Turay's parcel.
Q So when did you gain control of that parcel?
A We never executed the document for that. But we were -- we were considering having that as part of the parcel, and WMATA didn't like it, again, for some of the same reasons.

Q Right.
A So we decided it wasn't in our best interests. We thought it would make -- you know, it could round out 9th Street, but it was a little small parcel. It wasn't a deal killer or anything like that.
Q I see. So when did you first raise this with WMATA?
A First raise what?
Q The adjacent parcel.
A I don't remember. It was -- again, it's a long, protracted discussion with them. A lot of things, you know, happened during that time.
Q And you eventually decided not to purchase that adjacent parcel?
A Yes.
Q Do you have any idea around when you finally made that decision?
A We thought we were going to try to do something around 2008 sometime, 2009, around fall 2009. Those were some of the conversations going on. And we weren't -- WMATA didn't approve our deal. We weren't going to do anything until we got WMATA's approval on our deal. So I think we just -- after December 31, 2009, we let it -- we let it go back.

Q I see. Let me show you one more document. And we'll call this Exhibit 3.
(Karim Exhibit 3 identified.)
BY MS. ROCKWOOD:
Q This is from December of 2007.
A Right. Sunday afternoon. Okay.
Q Do you recall this?
A I do.
Q Do you see that on the top two sections of the e-mail chain on December 16, you talk about placing Donatelli into the role of lead developer to address everyone's concern?
What do you -- what does that mean?
A That's Graham's concern. That's Jim Graham, of course it is.
Q So what did you understand his concern to be?

A He wasn't going to support anything -- we thought that he wasn't going to support anything with Banneker as the lead on it, on this Metro deal.
Unbeknownst to us, it didn't matter. That's why he called Chris, had Chris drop out, and there wasn't going to be any competition for it. He had rigged the thing.
When you reduce the amount of competitor to the transaction, then it's bid rigging. That's what he was doing. He was involved in bid rigging.
We didn't know that you would, quote, call that bid rigging at the time. But it was. When you reduce the amount of competitors to something, that's what it is.
Q And then you forward that to Warren Williams, and he asks whether Donatelli has confirmed that dropping out will get Graham's support.
A Yeah.
Q And did you -- did you ever respond to him?

Page 98

A I don't think so. I would have given that e-mail to you. If I did, it might have been a while. I don't know. But I tried to print out everything that I had.
Q Do you know the answer to his question?
A Have Chris confirm that us dropping out -- apparently, the answer is no, because he -- he promised the deal to Adler. So -- and that's why Chris dropped out. Yeah. I'm not sure. Have you spoken to Chris?
Q I can't say.
A Well, I would ask Chris that question, or Warren, because Warren posed the question.
Q Okay. I'll take that back.
A Hope I didn't take up too much of your time over the last couple of weeks with all these e-mails.
Q No, of course not.
A Hopefully they were helpful.
Q Yes. I'll just show you one more. This will be Exhibit 4.
(Karim Exhibit 4 identified.)

BY MS. ROCKWOOD:
Q I think this is what you were talking about earlier. This is your e-mail with Josh Kern about the U Street BID.
A U Street, yes.
Q How -- in that e-mail, you say that Graham -- actually, can I look at that?
A Sure.
Q He asked if you would be interested in joining the BID.
A Is that his quote? What did he say?
Q Yeah. Well, that's what you write here. "Graham mentioned it to me when we met a few weeks ago. He asked if we would be interested in joining the BID."
A Uh-huh.
Q Is that how you recall him phrasing that?
A I recall him phrasing it the way I mentioned it to you earlier.
Q And when you say -- you're talking about a price of a table at one of these events, is that -- is that like a literal event? Is that a campaign event?

A Yeah -- no, not a campaign event. At a corporate event, like a DCBIA event or something like that. Campaigns generally don't sell tables, by the way, but at -- I know, I'm just educating you.
(Laughter.)
But at a District of Columbia Building Industry Association or something like that event.
Q I see. So it's like a trade association event?
A Yeah, like trade association. Graham is active in all of those things, hence his shovels. He has a few hundred shovels just on the walls in his office, pretty interesting sight. Yes.
Q And so would you have to buy a table at one of these events to be on the BID, or is that just giving you an idea of an equivalent amount?
A He was giving me -- I don't know what Graham -- but I thought that he was saying that it's the cost of one of these tables at one of these events, like a BIA event, which I thought might have been, okay, $1000, $100 a head, whatever. Probably wouldn't have been a deal killer.

Q Is he actually saying you should buy a table or is he saying that's about what it would cost?
A He's saying that's about what it will cost.
Q I see, okay. Thank you.
BY MS. ROCKWOOD:
Q I'm going to show you one more document, this is Exhibit 5. This is an e-mail from Nat Bottigheimer to you and some others, and it's concerning an upcoming Metro meeting in early 2010.
A Uh-huh. This is November 6. This was 15 days after Graham and I met.
Q Okay.
A Okay. Go ahead.
Q So what was -- what was happening at that time?
A Graham was trying to find different ways to kill our deal, which I know now what I didn't know then, in that he told me that it was going to be a special board meeting and that it would go back to a lease, he would call the special board meeting, which he did, right, and then said he wouldn't approve our deal because the deal was too low now.

And that's -- I think he asked Nat Bottigheimer to -- or let's -- I know Bondi doesn't really like it, but I won't tell him that I'm going through these binders here. But it's pretty interesting.

He asked Nat Bottigheimer to -- so we got the JDA and lease, right, and pretty much negotiated at that point, really quickly. They did like a super -- spent a lot of money in it.

In fact, Graham agreed at that lunch that he would give us a credit of $100,000 in exchange for changing it back to a lease. You recall that?

Q What -- what was the credit for?

A Because I told him we spent a lot of time -- we had spent, like, basically super negotiating period about the month prior, our lawyer, everybody had negotiated. We went from a lease to a sale. And that got negotiated pretty -- it was a protracted -- it was a tight time frame.

Then I told him, hey, we just negotiated all these documents. He said, well, we'll give you the money back for what you spent.

Q Okay.

A And so we thought it was about -- I think we agreed at the table $100,000 or some -- sometime around there. And you will see that in some of the e-mails.

So you're asking me what was happening at the time; right? So that's what happened.

We went back from a sale to a lease. The documents were getting negotiated. Josh Montague, one of their assistant general managers, sent us the draft of the document. And -- these -- I thought I had these internal board memos.

Did you get the board memo, the attachment that went with that? Do you recall that?

Q I'm not sure. I guess my question is Nat Bottigheimer is asking you to address some questions about the value of the project?

A Attached to this memo -- that's not what happened.

Catoe sent this to the board, right, this memo that Nat Bottigheimer put together. Then I guess Nat sent it to us. This is material that went out to the board, right -- establishing expected revenue streams -- again, he's just making it up. Question of timing, question -- boom, boom -- the -- I can't even read this.

"There may also be local economic" -- so what's your question, I'm sorry?

Q My question is --

A Did you get the memo to this? I sent the memo.

Q I think so. I think probably I did.

A Well, it's critical, because, again, the memo, again, recommends that the board approve our deal, and that's what's important.

Q Right. I guess my question is Bottigheimer is asking, "the question that will most directly confront board members, in my view, is a question of timing. Why should the board approve this deal in this market when in a few years the value of the land may significantly increase relative to today's value?"

Why is he asking that?

A He's not asking anything. He's just -- he just gave his opinion on something.

Q But, I mean, it looks like --

A He didn't ask me to respond to it.

Q Okay. So you never responded to this?

A No, I'm sure I didn't. Markets go up and down, right.

Q Sure.

A So if you have a deal with somebody, whether you got in the deal when the market was A and then the market turned B or whatever the case might be, that's -- a deal is a deal.

And apparently, Metro felt that, because they tabled our deal illegally and then kept our money, right.

So this is -- this is not -- and then they sold the parcel, you know. They say, oh, lease, lease, lease, we only want to do a lease, change it to a sale, Graham said no. And then he's the chair of the committee, and then they went out and sold our parcel anyway.

So I don't -- I think what Nat -- Nat was -- in my opinion, Nat was attempting to try to get this deal done, as you see, through the myriad of e-mails that he sent to us, and that right after that memo was a confidential board memo that -- that Carol O'Keeffe wrote to the board, where the board members, really Jim Graham, asked her whether the board can go out and do a best and final offer on this deal.

And Carol O'Keeffe's summary was that no, you basically have to let the time run out, then you can take Banneker's deal.

And that's exactly what they did. They let the time ran out, and we never -- to go on record, not one single time did we ever ask Metro staff or the board to extend our negotiation period.

That's number one. B, number two, the staff never asked for the board to extend our negotiation period. And why is that important?

It's important because we always negotiated all of the terms and basically all of the material terms of the deal, and then the board, Jim Graham, continued to push the ball down the field, every single time.

We never asked, even though Graham would go in the newspaper and say, hey, Banneker can't get this deal done and we'll have to find somebody who can, meaning LaKritz Adler, or just all type of deals.

And I'm just raising my hand like what's happening here, why is this going on like this, unbeknownst that it was all these other things, the whole lottery deal where he told Warren and his wife and other folks that he would support them on the lottery contract that Warren had won in exchange for Warren dropping out of the Metro deal.

I didn't know any of these things at the time. All of these things came out, you know, subsequently to their killing our deal.

Q So did you have any contact with Council Member Graham after that October 22, 2009 meeting?

A One-on-one conversations or one-on-one meetings? I don't think so.

Q What about -- I mean, other than, I guess, public board meetings, any other meetings that you --

A I know we had a -- I'm not going to call it a -- we had a conversation in the hallway one time at -- at the Wilson Building. But other than that, and there was like -- he was 40 feet away and I was right here type conversation.

Q When was that?

A I wish I recalled that date. I don't recall.

Q Was it after that October 22?

A I -- I don't recall. It was like a bad dream or a nightmare.

Q What did you discuss in that conversation in the hall?

A I know Warren came up in the conversation, but I don't recall if it was in -- with respect to the lottery or with respect to the Metro. But I do recall that.

Q Kind of generally, was it after your negotiation period was not extended?

A No, it was before. It was prior. In fact, it was prior to that October 22 meeting, yeah. Because at that point, Warren was no longer with the firm.

Q I see. And you think that -- you mentioned Warren maybe came up?

A Yeah, Warren came up, because he asked about Warren. And I told him Warren wasn't a member of our firm, or Warren wasn't -- I don't know how I phrased it. Warren wasn't an owner of the firm or whatever.

I was trying to be cute with the guy, whatever. But apparently, that didn't work.

Q What did he ask you?

A I wish I remembered.

Q How did he react when you told him Warren wasn't with the firm anymore?

A It was like -- I'm not going to call it a screaming match, but, I mean, a council member and a developer, it's just the two of us in the hallway on the first floor, kind of in the Wilson Building, kind of threw me off.

You know, he tried to intimidate me again when he was there. And, you know -- yeah, I don't recall the specifics of the conversation, but I recall it being an emotional thing for me as a developer and a board member with the chair of WMATA and a chair of the transportation committee of council and/or one council member. He's a pretty intimidating guy.

Q Had you gone there to see him?

A No, I don't think so.

Q So it was just coincidence that you happened to see him?

A Yeah, I was in the Wilson Building. I have clients.

Q How long did that conversation last?

A It was a couple minutes, yeah. It wasn't 30 minutes, but it was three, four minutes, just he and I kind of going at it.

Q Anything else you can remember being discussed other than Warren Williams?

Page 111

A It had to do with the Metro deal, yeah, and probably the lottery.

Q But, I mean, were there any other kind of specific issues that you talked about?

A Not that I could recall.

Q I guess subsequent to your negotiating period not being extended in 2010 --

A What do you mean? You mean the tabling our deal? Let's be specific what they did, huh? Go ahead.

Q Did you have any further discussions with Jim Graham or any other board members?

A After?

Q Yeah.

A I talked with Neil, and he told me what happened. And I felt like they screwed us.

Q What did he tell you?

A Kind of what happened there, the convoluted they were going to support it and then they were going to kill it. At that point, I was so disgusted. I think it was my mom's birthday, and my mom passed in, like, '87, so every time around,

March 18 -- I'm not sure, what was the date of the meeting? It was around that time. And I was pretty -- I was just, you know, hurt, you know. It was -- it was a bad -- you know, they're trying to take everything.

They had canceled our parks and rec contract a couple of months earlier, and then they want to come take our Metro deal. It was a sad, sad point.

Q What did Neil Albert tell you about why they did what they did, why they tabled the deal?

A Graham, because Graham -- Graham was behind it. He blamed it on Graham, you know.

If I read the board minutes or stuff like that -- but --

Q Is there anything else that happened, I guess, after that March 2010 meeting that would be helpful for us to know or would be relevant to this?

A I mean, we sent that letter over, right. And this was before I had -- e-mails, all of these things that came about with the lottery and Warren and Graham telling them to drop out of the deal.

I mean, it -- they subsequently sold our parcel. They put it back out to a sale. I mean, my God; right? All along you're saying lease, lease, lease, and then you put it out and you sell the parcel. Man, I mean, you keep our money.

I call Steve Golden and said, look, if you're going to cancel my deal, at least give me my money back. And he said, well, send me a letter. And I was like, no way.

In fact, they sent 100,000 back and kept 100,000. I didn't cash the 100 they gave me for like four or five months, because I thought if you cash it in some way, WMATA would think that we would be accepting what they did to us.

And my lawyer at the time said that's not the case, you can go ahead and cash the check.

But it -- I mean, our reputation, all of these things, it just -- man, you know. And then to go sell our parcel. It's --

Q Did you think about bidding on it for the sale?

A We won the parcel. Why would I go and bid again? This is -- this is ridiculous.

You sound like Neil, right. You know, when I told Neil they put it back out, that's what Neil asked. This is ridiculous. Neil know what happened. Jim Graham knows what happened or whatever. We had the parcel.
I negotiated. Why would I go rebid again and they got $100,000 of mine? I didn't do anything wrong. Graham is the one who did all of those things wrong, and your clients, who not -- who you're not representing, the other members or whatever, who were on the board, they abrogated their responsibilities by -- by allowing Jim Graham, and whoever else was part of this, Carol O'Keeffe or John Catoe, whomever, to take this deal from us after we won it, after the staff time and time and time and time and time and time and time and time again recommended that the board approve our deal.
I bet they could never find anything like that. And I hope you got the documentation that shows they put out deals for sale time and time again afterwards.

So they telling us, oh, this has to be a lease, and then they put our deal out for sale, then they put all these other deals out for a sale.
It was -- I mean, we were -- we were ran through the coals. It's sad, and I hope you get to the bottom of this. I hope you talk to Bua Benitez. You got to talk to this guy, because he was the guy who called Warren the morning of the December 17 deal to tell us we weren't supposed to bid on it. And he's doing development now in Graham's ward.
Q What was his position at the time?
A He was -- so technically -- he worked for the deputy mayor's office, for Neil Albert's office, but he wasn't a W-2. He was an independent contractor, from my understanding.
But he had his hands in all type of things. But -- and he's friends with Warren, and he called Warren that morning and told him that.
And Graham -- and, what's his name, Chris's vice president, Chris Donatelli's vice president, called our counsel, Chip Glasgow, the morning of the deal to tell him -- or that infamous

December weekend to tell him that the deal isn't going forward. And those guys are honorable enough to call me the morning of the deal to say, hey, Omar, it's Chip Glasgow, partner at Holland and Knight, and hey, I just wanted to confirm our understanding that we aren't presenting today. And I said no, we are presenting.
And he said, Larry Clark from Donatelli called me and told me we weren't. And I said, no, please come. And he came, we did a great job. Everybody was happy, excited. We kicked butt, did a wonderful job, in fact, to the point that I bet when you go and look at the notes, WMATA right after they interviewed each other, they agreed to give us the parcel right after that.
Because we didn't get a call until, like, what was it, March sometime, right. And I bet you Graham was trying to kill it every step of the way, from -- go look at their e-mail from December to the time that Roz Doggett called me.
Because she told me, we got to negotiate this really quickly, Graham doesn't want you all to do this deal. And I hope you get a chance to depose Rosalyn Doggett. She will tell you the truth.

And every single time, regardless of if they say that we didn't have the development experience or didn't have anything, they -- they continued to say that. But we had all of this -- we had the best team, apparently, that the staff -- the professional staff, Jim Graham is not a professional developer, right, but that their professional real estate staff believed over and over and over and over and over and over again. And the price was fair to the point that they continued to recommend us. So --
Q I guess before we conclude, is there anything else that I haven't asked about that would be helpful to us?
A You asked about that confidential board memo in November 2009. I gave you that; right?
Q Right.
A You didn't ask about that. You don't want to talk about that, why they like --
Q What's important for me to know about

that?
A I don't know. What do you think is important? Graham wanted to take our deal. You don't think that -- he wanted to put it back out to the street. You don't think that was -- somebody was plotting to -- we're in the middle of negotiation with a company or whatever, right, you just had lunch with the guy and you tell them that we're going to have this special board meeting and all of these things. You don't think that's important? At the same time he's telling WMATA's general counsel to go out and put a best and final, where LaKritz Adler is one?
Or what about the fact that LaKritz Adler, right after they tabled our deal, he submitted an unsolicited proposal?
Q Oh, I didn't know that. Did that happen?
A Oh, yeah. Oh, yeah, you should write that down. That's critical.
Q Yeah.
A That's critical. Who did he write it to? Oh, we going to talk about that in our -- you know.

Page 119

But you didn't know that? They didn't tell you that.
See, look, they not giving you everything. You need to go to Carol O'Keeffe and get all of the documents. She didn't give you all of the documents, I promise you that. I bet you she's holding -- now, you got to tell Bondi this, I meant to tell him that.
I know this for a fact, I asked somebody whether Carol was giving all the documents up. And this person told me they don't think so. Okay. You got to -- you got to get them -- if you all are going to do a thorough investigation, I'm glad we putting this -- having this court reporter here. I don't think she gave those -- did you get that confidential board memo?
Q Yes.
A She gave you that?
Q I really can't say.
A Okay, good for you. Well, good. But I don't think she gave -- this is a reporter. You want me to take it? This is a reporter right here, talking about this -- I didn't even tell them I'm coming down here. But I'll ignore him.

Q So you're saying Adler submitted a bid for the property?
A Right after they tabled our deal.
Q Okay.
A And the staff apparently, you know, didn't think it was enough of Adler to allow it to go through. Because sometimes they do just negotiate with people from unsolicited proposal. Did you know that?
Q Did you know if Adler bid for the sale, WMATA -- eventually JBG eventually got the property.
A I doubt it. Because they would get killed on that adjacent parcel, so it would have been hard. And WMATA put that minimum $9 million or something up on it. Did you know that? They put a minimum amount in the solicitation. Yeah.
Oh, did you talk to Steve Golden?
Q I really can't say.
A Man, you got to talk to him. When he came in to close his deal, I think they paid him off.

Page 121

You got to tell Bondi I said that.
I think if you look at the January and February board meetings, after Washington Post exposed this, that's why you all get some billable hours now; right? Because I think they paid him off, like, for real.
Q Who? WMATA or who?
A Yes, yes, because he knows what happened. Guy ain't going to lie to nobody either. Honorable guy. Both him, Roz Doggett. I think -- and I asked somebody, they told me he went to go -- I said, where did he go? The guy told me, he wanted to be a photographer so he went to go take photographs. And I asked him around? He said, oh, yeah, I saw him at an ULI meeting. Do you know what ULI is? Urban Land Institute. That's where developers go. Of course I know he didn't want to be no photographer. Are you kidding me?
They paid him off. You all ought to go talk to Steve Golden. Honorable, young. Moved here. And then when the Washington Business Journal interviewed him saying, hey, where did you go?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013342

Right after, Washington Post exposed it, right, then you guys are getting hired or they say they are going to hire somebody.

Then they announced he's leaving. Or they didn't even announce it. The Washington Business Journal caught onto it. He said he didn't have a job. He's not going to leave no billion dollar organization, he heading all of the real estate deals, they just cut a deal with General Services Administration, all of this stuff just off on his own?

I'm telling you, you all go talk to Steve Golden. You go get them documents from Carol O'Keeffe. And I'd be surprised to learn whether the board members gave you copies of those documents that Carol and them been giving them.

These are attorney-client privilege, that's how they couch them, you know.

MS. ROCKWOOD: I think that's it, unless John, did you have anything?

MR. BAILYN: No, thank you.

(Whereupon, at 4:12 p.m., the deposition was concluded.)

PROCEEDINGS

Whereupon,

JAMES LINK

was called as a witness and, having first been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

EXAMINATION

BY MR. SISTO:

Q Jim, thanks for meeting with us today. I'm Brett Sisto, an attorney at Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft. With me is Brad Bondi, also an attorney at Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft, and we have Katie Vorhis, who's a summer associate with us.

MR. BONDI: Why don't we say for the record who else is here.

MR. LIU: Lloyd Liu with Coburn & Greenbaum, representing Jim Link.

MR. COBURN: I'm Barry Coburn with the same law firm.

BY MR. SISTO:

Q Great. Jim, as you may be aware, the audits and investigations committee of the Washington Metro Area Transit Authority has retained us to look into certain decisions by the board to develop a property on Florida Avenue near the Shaw Metro Station. We'll be acting as agents for WMATA, which is a quasi-governmental agency, in this matter.

We're representatives of WMATA, and we're not attorneys for you. At the end of our investigation we'll be submitting a report to WMATA. We may include information you may provide today in that report. The board may determine at its discretion to make that report or certain portions of it public.

We ask you, while the investigation is ongoing, to please keep the contents of this meeting confidential, and please don't discuss the contents of this meeting with anyone. We also want to let you know if during the course of this investigation we find any suspected criminal conduct, we are required to report this to the Metro board and the Metro board is required to report that to the proper authorities.

We appreciate your cooperation with the investigation. Please answer all questions honestly and truthfully and to the best of your ability. Because we represent WMATA, a quasi-governmental organization, providing false statements to us today could have criminal or other legal consequences. Do you understand?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED

A I do.

Q Do you have any questions?

A No.

Q Jim, because this is a disposition, we have three ground rules for the day. First one is to please answer all questions orally because we have a court reporter.

A No nod.

Q No nodding. Please answer yes or no. No uh-hums.

MR. BONDI: It never fails, you get one person who shakes his head.

BY MR. SISTO:

Q Because we have a court reporter, I also ask that you wait until any question that has been asked is finished before answering the question.

Page 7

Lastly, if you don't understand a question that I ask, please let me know at the time. Otherwise I will assume that you have understood the question.

A Okay.

Q Do you understand those rules?

A Yes.

(Link Exhibit 1 identified.)

BY MR. SISTO:

Q Jim, I'm presenting you with Exhibit 1. This is a subpoena that we issued.

MR. COBURN: Are you giving him the original and a copy?

MR. SISTO: Yes. There's a courtesy copy for you.

MR. COBURN: Great. Much appreciated.

BY MR. SISTO:

Q Jim, did you review any documents before this deposition today?

A Well, in meeting the requirements of this document, I went through e-mails to see if there was anything I could add or find, and to the best of my ability, I put together -- compiled e-mails that I handed over to Barry.

Q Okay. Great. So for number 1 of the subpoena, "All documents" "with anyone discussing, relating or referring to property development involving WMATA," you have produced to the best of your ability all of those documents?

A I have, yes.

Q "2, all documents discussing, relating, or referring to" "communications with Jim Graham or Neil Albert," you've produced all documents?

A Yes.

Q For number 3, "All documents or communications describing, relating, or referring to any meeting with Jim Graham or Neil Albert in which property development involving WMATA was mentioned or discussed, including, but not limited to, a meeting on May 28," you've produced all those documents?

A Yes.

Q Jim, what's your document retention policy?

A Well, it's my personal policy. I usually keep very undetailed notes. I usually take notes in one word, just to jar my memory, things like that.

So I'm not a copious notetaker. And in terms of a policy, I don't have an official policy for myself.

Q Is that the same for your e-mails?

A Pretty much, yes.

Q So Jim, Crystal Wright who brought you in to work with W2 I; is that correct?

A That's correct.

Q How and why did she bring you in?

A Crystal was a PR media person, and I've known Crystal for many years. We were colleagues at the National Association of Chain Drug Stores together. And when -- the lobby contract, we just came to the realization that there was going to have to be a vote on that, she brought me in to be an advocate, to be a lobbyist. And that was an area that she didn't have quite that expertise, so that's why I was brought in.

Q And you had meetings with multiple councilmembers and their staffs regarding the lottery?

Page 10

A Just one councilmember. The rest were staff meetings.
Q Do you remember which meetings you had?
A Well, obviously the Jim Graham meeting, and then there was a meeting in the offices of Catania. Was it Wells? We could never get a meeting with Vincent Gray's office.
And the rest, I think we met with just about every councilmember's office staff. Frankly, if you ask me to name them all right now, I probably couldn't, to be honest.
Q And so you had a meeting scheduled for May 29, 2008 with Jim Graham's office?
A Yes.
Q The day of the meeting, you got a call that morning from his office?
A From whose office?
Q From Jim Graham's office?
A Yeah, my office got a call, my assistant because she was the one that sent out the scheduling requests, yes.

Page 11

Q And they asked you to bring Warren Williams and Alaka Williams to the meeting?
A Yeah. I think that's my recollection, yeah. I believe it was them who asked and me who suggested they come. I think that's how it went down.
MR. BONDI: I'm sorry. We're using a lot of pronouns. Who asked that you bring Alaka and Warren Williams to the meeting with Councilman Graham?
THE WITNESS: I think it was Jim Graham's office. I'm not 100 percent positive about that because it could have been that I suggested he come, but I don't remember which was the case.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q So then there was something of a scramble to get Alaka and Warren into the meeting; correct?
A Yeah. I don't know if Warren was comfortable going to the meeting initially, but then decided well, we wanted to make the case for the lottery contract. I'm sorry. I should turn this off.

Page 12

I'm going to power out. I'm sorry.
Q That's fine.
MR. COBURN: We've all been there.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q Why wasn't Warren comfortable going to the meeting initially?
A I think that Jim Graham and Warren Williams haven't always gotten along.
Q Did he think that his presence was potentially problematic?
A Yeah, but in a case like this, if you want to win the support, if you want to win the vote of somebody, a D.C. councilmember, you sort of have to confront any issues that may be on the table, any personal issues or what have you. So I was supportive of Warren going there to help clear the air with Jim Graham so we could get a positive vote down the road on the lottery. At that point it seemed to be clear that Jim Graham was not a supporter of the lottery contract.
BY MR. BONDI:
Q What did you tell your staff to say in setting up the meeting with Councilman Graham? Did you give your staff instructions about what to say the meeting was for?

A Yes. This is sort of standard procedure in our office and we do this with meetings we set up on Capitol Hill.
I'm a federal lobbyist. So when we want to set up meetings on a healthcare issue with Energy and Commerce Committee members, we send their offices, their schedulers a scheduling request outlining the issue and who will be participating in the meeting.
And it was the same situation. We laid out the fact that we wanted to come in to talk about the lottery contract and the merits of the contract and how it's going to save D.C. money and we just wanted to come in and we created packets of information that showed how it's going to benefit the city, so that's how that communication happened. I think that's your question.
Q Was one of the agenda items, Jim, that you told your staff to present to Councilman Graham's office to clear the air between Warren Williams and Councilman Graham? Was that something that was explicitly stated setting up the meeting?

A It was not, no.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q When Councilman Graham or his office called that morning, was that one of the reasons they said they wanted Warren and Alaka to be there?
A No. I don't remember that.
Q When you said you wanted Warren there in order to clear the air, that was his understanding of the reason he was attending?
A Yeah. Again, it was either expressed by Jim Graham's office that we wanted him there. I don't remember.
It's a chicken-and-egg thing. I don't remember if it was actually Jim Graham's office or it was me suggesting he should come and clear the air. I don't remember which, but I remember that was one of the things that we knew if we were ever going to get his support, there had to be this meeting.

Q So you, Crystal Wright, Warren Williams and Alaka Williams attended this meeting?
A Correct.
Q This meeting took about an hour; is that correct?
A I don't think it was that long. I think it was probably under an hour.
Q 45 minutes, half an hour?
A Yeah, approximately 45 minutes. That might even be too long. I don't think it was a very long meeting.
Q So you came into his office. You sat down on the right side on chairs?
A I think it was a bench. I know I can't do a diagram, but it was Jim Graham sitting at one end, Warren and Alaka at the other end and Crystal and myself in the middle as spectators to a tennis match.
Q Calvin Woodland and Steve Hernandez were staffers who also attended the meeting?
A No, just Calvin. There was no other staffer in that meeting.

Page 16

Q Where was Calvin sitting?
A Sort of behind, between Jim Graham and where I was sitting, but behind.
Q And you're sure there's not another staffer?
A I'm pretty sure.
Q So the meeting began, pleasantries were exchanged and Jim Graham starts complaining about a set of posters?
A Yeah. He started going personal right away, and whether it started with the posters or something else, I know that he placed a folder, an accordion folder as if he had been doing all this research on Warren Williams.
Q What was in that folder?
A I have no idea. He said he has a lot of information and a lot of material based on things that he thought that Warren Williams had done. I have no idea what was actually in the folder.
Q So he never starts producing items from the folder?
A I don't think so. I don't remember that.

Page 17

Q He just uses that as prop of things he was concerned about?
A I think so, yes.
Q So he starts talking initially about Sinclair Skinner and these posters that say Grahamzilla, the black business killa, does he produce this poster?
A I've never seen that poster.
Q Graham was really upset when he was talking about these posters, wasn't he?
A I think so, yes.
Q How long did that conversation about the posters take?
A I don't know for sure. Maybe 10, 15 minutes.
Q The next thing you talked about was Warren Williams funding Chad Williams, one of his opponents?
A That's possible. I don't remember. I actually don't remember that being part of the conversation.
Q He also talked about something called Club

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013364

Page 18

U with Warren?
A Right, that's correct.
Q What did he say about Club U?
A I think it was sort of his conduct as a manager of somebody who was -- I think he tried to tie that into his competency. You ran Club U and you didn't run it very well, sort of to suggest that he had doubts about his ability to handle the lottery contract based on the way he handled that.
Q But you didn't have an opportunity to talk about his ability?
A Me personally?
Q Correct, to handle the lottery contract.
A I didn't say a word in this meeting other than hi, I'm Jim Link, nice to meet you at the meeting. I didn't say another word.
Q Graham didn't give you an opportunity to say anything?
A If he did, I didn't take it. I don't remember, but yeah, I wasn't really part of the conversation.
Q And Warren and Alaka didn't have an opportunity to talk about the lottery contract or their capabilities?

A No. We were sitting there with a folder of information, and we never used it.
In fact, I think we walked out with it. We didn't even hand it over, I don't think. To answer your question, I think that's right.
Q This entire time, did Calvin participate in the meeting?
A If he said anything, it was -- it certainly wasn't much. He was not an integral part of the conversation.
Q Crystal Wright was taking notes during this meeting; correct?
A Yes.
Q Did you get to see those notes after the meeting?
A No. I never read her notes.
Q Did you ask to see her notes?
A No.
Q Did you take notes during the meeting?
A No.

Page 20

Q How about Calvin Woodland?
A Was he taking notes? Was that the question?
Q Yes.
A I don't know. I don't remember.
Q So you have the Grahamzilla posters discussed. You remember Club U was discussed.
A Uh-huh.
Q And the conversation takes a turn when Graham says you've been winning too much; is that correct?
A That's correct.
Q He says that verbatim?
A I can't say if those were the exact words, but it was to that effect.
Q Then he follows it up and says I'm going to need something; is that correct?
A Again, whether that was stated or not -- I don't remember if those were the exact words or if he even said that, but that was certainly the understanding we got.
Q What do you recall him saying?

A I recall my knowing or having assurance in my own mind that he made an offer. Again, I'm paraphrasing. It's been four years and I don't remember the precise words, but in my mind, there was clearly a suggestion that if you walk away from WMATA, he would do the same on the lottery contract, but I don't remember the precise words, but I know what I heard and how my brain processed what I heard.
Q So at the time you said they walk away from WMATA, did he call it the Metro deal, Florida Avenue project? How did you know it was the WMATA deal?
A Because he said WMATA.
Q He did.
A He actually said WMATA. I think, he said WMATA. The term "WMATA" came up.
Q And then he conditioned that, Warren walking away from WMATA for his vote on the lottery?
A Well, it wasn't that explicit. He didn't say it that explicitly, but we all afterwards looked at each other like did he really say what he said, and we all understood him to say there would be some quid pro quo.

Q So he says this to Warren. Then what happens?
A Well, I think it made everybody sort of uncomfortable in the room, and there was a little nervous laughter. I don't think Warren addressed the issue directly at all. I think, as I recall the conversation, from there on out it was sort of a nervous conversation, and I think we were all sort of in our minds hoping it would end soon, so we could leave.
Q Is that why you didn't follow up with any sort of information on the lottery contract?
A Yeah. I think that was probably part of it. Clearly, this packet of information doesn't have a lot of value right now.
Q So there's some nervous conversation. And the meeting ends, there's pleasantries?
A Yeah, pretty much. Obviously, there was no agreement or anything agreed to with respect to his proposal during the course of that meeting.

We're sort of like bye, we'll get back to you, but we were looking at the door.
Q When you left, did he say anything additionally that there's some sort of get back to me on this or you need to get in contact with Calvin Woodland regarding this issue?
A I think so. I think so, but I don't remember specifically that was the case.
I know I did follow up with an e-mail, and that's sort of standard practice. If I meet with anybody on Capitol Hill, I always follow up a meeting with an e-mail thanking whoever I met with for the meeting.
Q But you can't remember if Calvin particularly was directed to be your contact person?
A I think so, but at the same time I felt like Graham was also sort of suggesting that he be part of the conversation. I don't think I followed up. I can't recall, but I don't think I followed up with Calvin. I think followed up directly with Jim Graham.
Q So you said he asked you to follow up with him on this?

A No, I'm not saying that. I'm not saying that. That could have been the case, but I can't tell you with 100 percent certainty that's exactly what he said. It would make sense that that probably was said, but I can't tell you that he said it for sure.
Q So then you walk out of the meeting, and I imagine everyone is stunned?
A Yeah.
Q What was discussed?
A We sort of looked at each other, sort of silence, and then a lot of head shaking, nervousness, amongst the four of us as we're walking out of the building, sort of like did that happen? Did that really just happen?
Q What was the next steps that happened? Did you or anyone else call Byron Boothe or Jay Lapine?
A I think there was probably a conversation to say here's what happened in the meeting.
BY MR. BONDI:

Q Who had that conversation and with whom?
A I don't know if it was Crystal or if it was me who called or talked to Byron directly about this. Just give me a moment. I'm actually trying to think about this.
I don't want to guess. I think there's probably a firm conversation, but I can't tell you if it was me or if it was Crystal because at the time I was relatively new to this, and Crystal was mainly the point of contact.
It could have been me that called them and said there was a meeting and you won't believe what happened kind of discussion. I'm sure that occurred, but I can't tell you -- I really don't know, and I don't want to put myself out there.
Q Jim, before we go on, I want to back up to the meeting and make sure we've got everything down that you remember about that meeting. I want to even take you back before the meeting even started. You were retained to work with W2 Tech and Intralot on the lottery; correct?
A Correct.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013366

Q Your client was W2 Tech or Intralot or both?
A Well, my client was Crystal initially because she was the one paying me, but I think we were paid by W2 I, which to me is sort of like saying we were paid by Intralot.
Q You weren't a lobbyist for Banneker, were you?
A No.
Q Have you ever heard of Banneker?
A Before this, before any of this ever happened?
Q Before the meeting with Councilman Graham and the meeting we're talking about. We believe it took place on May 29, 2008. Does that sound about right?
A I think I heard the term. I was unaware of what Banneker was.
Again, I was new to it. There was W2 I, W Tech, Intralot, Banneker. The only thing I cared about knowing about was the W2 I, Intralot and W Tech.

Page 27

Q Jim, as an experienced lobbyist in getting ready for meetings, you prepare for the issues that are facing your client; is that correct?
A Correct.
Q For this meeting that you had with Councilman Graham, you were getting prepared for the issues relating to the lottery; correct?
A Right, the merits and the benefits to D.C. for approving the contract.
Q You didn't prepare in any way to talk about a WMATA real estate development, did you?
A No. The issue of WMATA, I think I learned about it just before the meeting. I didn't know the dynamics, so I was very naive in this respect because I was totally focused on my task at hand was the lottery contract. So all this other stuff that came up was very new to me.
Q And the agenda that you and your colleague Crystal had mapped out for the meeting with Councilman Graham, did that include any discussion about the WMATA development?
A No. I knew before the meeting, based on what Warren Williams had said, that there were some personal issues between he and Jim Graham.

So the way I went into that meeting was that okay, we're going to show him why this is good for D.C. And if you've got a problem with Jim Graham, you need to clear the air, so whatever your issues are with Jim Graham -- I didn't know what they were exactly. But if you've got a problem, let's clear the air and let's talk about the contract. So this was my agenda.
Q Do you have, Jim, any e-mails or memos or anything that you would have sent to or given to your staff in instructing them to set up that meeting with Councilman Graham or would you have just said that orally to them, here's what you need to say when you're setting up the meeting?
A I would need to double-check that because usually I'll sit there and I'll dictate it. In some cases, if it's a technical issue, I'll write the scheduling request myself, but in this case I think I sat down.
I'm trying to remember who my assistant was at the time. We have interns that last essentially for three months and we pay them next to nothing.

So what we do with our interns is they answer phones, do scheduling requests, and get them jobs on Capitol Hill. I don't even know who might have been my assistant at the time to be honest.
Q It's fair to say, though, that none of your instructions to your staff in setting up the meeting would have been talk about the WMATA development?
A No. I was not focused on that at all.
Q And the meeting that we've been talking about, about Councilman Graham, we believe it took place May 29, 2008. Does that sound about right to you?
A It sounds right. That refreshed my memory when I read e-mails, that that was the date.
Q How long did the meeting last, roughly, in Councilman Graham's office?
A It was definitely less than an hour.
Q Less than half an hour, less than 45

Page 30

minutes? Can you give me a ballpark?
A I would say it was somewhere between a half hour and 45 minutes.
Q About how much of that meeting was you talking?
A Close to nil.
Q About how much of that meeting was Crystal Wright talking?
A Close to nil.
Q What about Alaka Williams? How much in the meeting was she talking?
A I would say 10 percent.
Q And Warren?
A The rest of the time was split between Jim Graham and, I would say, Warren.
Q 50/50 between Jim Graham and Warren?
A More like 60/40 for Jim Graham -- actually even 65, 70/30.
Q Was Graham really leading or dictating the discussion, or would you say Warren was?
A No. Graham was.
Q We've heard something about a big file that Graham had. Did he pull out that file during the meeting? Did he walk towards his desk and look at it?

A I think that's what I was referring to with the accordion -- looked like an accordion file.
Q You've mention to do Mr. Sisto here about some of the things Councilman Graham raised during that meeting in his office. Can you tell us if we've covered everything he raised? Do you remember him raising any other topics or issues during that meeting?
A No. I think that's the extent of what was discussed.
Q You remember that Banneker was discussed during the meeting and the abilities of Banneker to develop properties?
A I think the term "Banneker" came up during the course of the meeting.
Q How did it come up, do you remember?
A Again, it came up through the discussion that Jim Graham had when he was sort of going down his checklist of topics of conversation. I believe it came up when he was referring -- when he was talking to Warren about the WMATA issue.

But again, it was an issue during the course of the meeting that was sort of over my head. I didn't really know at that point what they were talking about.
Q Who raised WMATA and the development during that meeting?
A Who did?
Q Uh-huh.
A I can say it probably would have been Jim Graham because again, we were focused on the lottery contract. Nobody wanted to talk about anything other than the lottery contract, so my recollection would be -- again, I don't want to guess, but I would say it was probably Jim Graham who brought that up.
Q At some point in the meeting Councilman Graham tied the WMATA property development to the lottery somehow; is that right?
A Yeah. He certainly connected the dots.
Q And Jim, what exactly do you remember hearing him say? I know it's been a while, but to the best of your recollection, what do you remember Councilman Graham saying?

A I think there was this idea -- and again, the sense that Warren had been quite successful and he had been winning too much. I do remember that phrase. Again, to the extent that everything in Jim Graham's mind was focused on WMATA and in our mind it was focused on the lottery, I think Jim Graham took the opportunity, and knowing that he had leverage in the conversation, tried to connect the two.
Q How did he try to connect the two exactly?
A He came out and said even though -- I said it wasn't explicit, it was very understood that he was suggesting since WMATA was apparently of high value to him, that contract -- I think his main goal was to get Warren out of it. If you go away on this, then I'll be supportive -- I won't be a problem for you on the lottery contract. I don't know exactly how that was said.
Again, I'm completely paraphrasing, but to this day, that's how I recall that conversation going. I can't give you direct quotes. I just can't, but that was the understanding.

My understanding is clear. It's just the words and how they stack up.

Q Sure. You used the word, you said he implied something. What I'm trying to understand, Jim, is was it a wink, wink, nod, nod? Was it something that reasonable minds could not disagree over?

A Absolutely. That's the case, what you just said. Reasonable minds could not disagree. There was no winking and nodding. It was all verbal.

Q And the words that Councilman Graham used, which you don't remember exactly, but were to the effect that if you give up the WMATA development, I'll support you for the lottery?

A Yes. That is how I understood it.

Q Jim, you've worked on Capitol Hill, and you've been in a lot of meetings, I'm sure, with members of Congress. You're a very respected lobbyist. Is there any way that you could have been mistaken about what Councilman Graham was saying there?

A No. In prior -- I guess at that time I had been a lobbyist for 14 years and had been a Hill staffer for eight years previously.

I had never witnessed or seen anything like that at the federal level on Capitol Hill. So when this happened, it was shocking.

Again, this is my very first meeting ever with a D.C. councilmember. It was something -- I certainly wasn't familiar -- that's not how people I deal with deal with people so yeah, to answer your question.

Q You about fell out of your chair, didn't you?

A Yeah. I wasn't ready for it.

Q You were there with Crystal Wright, Alaka Williams and Warren Williams.

A Right.

Q It sounded like the four of you had an opportunity following the meeting to talk about what

Page 36

Councilman Graham had said to you. During your conversations with Mr. or Mrs. Williams or Crystal Wright, did it ever seem that they had a different impression than yours about what Councilman Graham had just asked of Warren Williams?

A No.

Q So it's fair to say, then, that everyone understood and had the same impression that you did following that meeting?

MR. COBURN: As far as he can tell.

MR. SISTO: As far as you can tell.

THE WITNESS: I would say yes, as far as I can tell.

BY MR. SISTO:

Q And what was the reaction of Crystal Wright following that meeting?

A I remember her going oh -- she was a little bit more verbal in her response. She was like whoa.

I was still sort of like this. Everybody reacted differently, but the reactions were typical, of surprise and shock.

Page 37

Q Disgust maybe?

A Yeah, I think so. There was a multitude of emotions wrapped into -- I remember her facial expression, like --

Q What do you remember her saying about Councilman Graham's comment?

A Right after?

Q Right after or any time after.

A I don't remember anything specific that was said, but I do remember the four of us standing outside afterwards, okay, what do we do now? I think I said well, I'll send him a note thanking him for the meeting. Again, somebody was going to obviously tell the client how the meeting went.

Again, I don't know if that was me or Crystal. When I checked my sent files and did my key words and things like that, I don't remember me sending an e-mail to Byron about that. It could have been a phone call.

Q Did you at any time have a conversation with Byron Boothe of Intralot about the meeting in Councilman Graham's office? Did you at any time personally have any conversations with Mr. Boothe?

A I would say I would have had to have, but I don't remember the conversation. I'm sure that had to have happened.
Q You don't ever recall saying anything differently to Mr. Boothe than what you've told us today about Councilman Graham's comment?
A No.
Q Regardless of who you remember calling -- strike that.
Do you recall ever being present for any conversations that Crystal had with Byron Boothe about the meeting in Councilman Graham's office?
A Do I vividly remember -- I'm assuming that that probably happened as well.
Q Do you remember Crystal Wright saying anything to Byron Boothe that was any different than your recollection of the events that took place in Councilman Graham's office?
A No, I don't remember that.
Q Did you, Jim, have any conversations with anyone else? In other words, you just heard this comment. Did you pick up the phone and call your wife that night and have conversations with anyone?

A Yeah. I talk to my wife about everything.
MR. COBURN: I do that, too.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q Who else do you remember talking to about what you just heard in Councilman Graham's office?
A Maybe my partners.
Q It's fair to say, Jim, you didn't tell them anything different than what you're telling us today; right?
A No.
Q Have you heard the name Scott Bolden?
A Yes.
Q Who is Scott Bolden?
A I think he's Warren's attorney.
Q Following the meeting with Councilman Graham on May 29, 2008, did you ever have a conversation with Scott Bolden about what happened during the meeting with Councilman Graham?
A No. Certainly not one-on-one. I never, ever was in solitary conversation with him ever.

Page 40

No. But he did weigh in via e-mail, which we've all read.
Q And we'll get to that in a moment.
A His interest -- he wasn't certainly representing me or my best interest. I knew that, so he was working for Warren.
Q Were you ever present for any meetings that Warren had with Scott Bolden where the meeting that had occurred on May 29 in Councilman Graham's office was discussed?
A There was a meeting at his law offices. I attended one meeting there, but it had to do more with strategy on the lottery contract.
I do not believe that there was any mention of the Jim Graham meeting. If there was, it wasn't the focal point of the conversation. It was more strategic, the meeting.
Q Is it fair to say, Jim, your recollection of the events that occurred on May 29th are your own recollections and are not recollections that were planted in your head by Scott Bolden?
A Oh, absolutely not -- yes, they're my recollections. In fact, I've tried to, beyond The Washington Post articles, I've tried to actually not -- I've tried to stay away and let my memory serve me rather than going back and trying to read things because I don't always trust what I read.

Q So your recollection today isn't shaped by anything you've read?
A No -- well, to the extent that I read Washington Post articles that may have jarred a couple things, but other than that, I'm trying to keep this pure.
Q Do you remember Councilman Graham saying you got to give me something or a phrase to that effect?
A Yeah. I remember a phrase to that effect. I do, yes.
Q And do you remember a phrase to the effect of you're winning too much?
A I do.
Q And Jim, I take it, in preparing for today's deposition, you didn't have any other conversations with anyone else who was present at that meeting about what you should say today or what was said or anything like that?

A No, no.
Q You had mentioned sending a follow-up e-mail to Councilman Graham. As you might expect, we want to ask you about that e-mail chain.
A Okay.
(Link Exhibit 2 identified.)
BY MR. SISTO:
Q This is Exhibit 2, Bates stamp WMATA-INQ 013503 to WMATA-INQ 013508. It's an e-mail sent from Jim Link on Wednesday, June 11, 2008 to Warren Williams, Alaka Williams, Byron Boothe, Jay Lapine, Scott Bolden and Crystal Wright. Jim, please review the e-mail, and let me know when you've read it.
A Yes.
Q I wanted to go through his e-mails chronologically, start with the last e-mail, sent by you on Friday May 30, 2008, 1:59 p.m. to Jim Graham, "Subject: Thank you." You say "Dear Councilmember Graham, I wanted to let I know that I greatly enjoyed and appreciated meeting you yesterday and for the opportunity you gave the Williams? to engage with you in reconciliation."

"I found the meeting productive and I look forward to discussing next steps." Did you find the meeting to be productive?
A Well, it certainly was productive in the sense that we understood where he was coming from, but in terms of me achieving the objective for my client, it was not productive.
Q Is that something that you'd say to most people after a meeting?
A Yeah. It's sort of a standard thank you. Obviously, most meetings I have, we don't have to deal with issues like reconciliation. Yes, I usually send a thank-you note.
Q And you said you thanked him for the opportunity he gave the Williams to engage in reconciliation. You said earlier that was not the purpose of this meeting?
A Right. That's correct.
Q But that ended up being what the meeting was about?

Page 44

A Correct.
Q You say you "look forward to discussing next steps." What were those next steps?
A I have no idea what those next steps -- when I wrote this and said that, I have no idea what next steps there would be, if any. Interestingly, I had no idea.
Q Why did you write it?
A Well, I wrote it because we needed the D.C. city council to approve the lottery contract. In all honesty, this note should have said sorry, no way can we accommodate you, which came later, but it's sort of like running out the clock. We're not running out the clock, but stalling because we didn't know when that vote was going to occur. It was one of those things where let's lengthen the rope of time here.
Q You expect there might be next steps?
A Yeah, but I didn't know what they would be. I didn't know where this was going.
Q Did anyone at this time when you sent this e-mail, this is Friday, the next day, was there any sense amongst the W2 I team that they may -- that there might be next steps with Graham on this issue?

A Nobody knew -- I don't think at that time anybody knew whether we would even follow up or what the follow-up would be.
Q So you were just keeping your options open perhaps?
A It was basically keeping the line of communication open. Essentially, it was, like I said, a stall because I had no idea what our next steps would be.
Q Did you write this because Graham requested certain next steps?
A No. It was just a thank-you note. It wasn't precipitated by any sort of need other than to say hey, thanks.
Q You say you understood that he made a quid pro quo offer in the meeting, but he didn't set any sort of time limit or get back to me on this date, something like that?
A No.
Q The next e-mail is from Jim Graham sent

Page 46

after the weekend on Monday, June 2, 2008 at 8:12 a.m. sent to you, Jim Link. Subject is "RE: Thank you."
A Yep.
Q Jim Graham writes back "Thanks. Do you think they will do anything?" What do you understand Jim Graham to mean when he wrote this to you?
A I thought he meant that they, being Warren and Alaka, will do anything which was would they accept my offer, my proposal.
Q And that offer was?
A What we discussed earlier, which was sort of a quid pro quo with regard to WMATA and the lottery contract.
Q And that's what you understood and that's what Alaka and Warren also understood?
A Yeah, I think so.
Q Is it possible there could have been anything else that Graham was asking about?
A No. I mean, it's possible, but that's not how we understood it.

Page 47

Q So he wasn't asking about the other things discussed like Club U or Sinclair Skinner?
A It's possible, but that's not the way we understood it.
Q So later that day there's another e-mail from you sent Monday, June 2, 2:56 p.m. "RE: Thank you" is the subject and you say "Yes. Wheels are in motion." What does that mean?
A It doesn't mean much of anything because I hadn't talked to anybody and it was essentially sort of an e-mail to placate him and get a response back to him. To be honest with you, there weren't any wheels in motion. Nobody had really talked about this. Maybe in my mind -- again, it's one of those things where I was trying to keep the rope of communication going.
Q Your next sentence is "Everyone took your concerns seriously." What did you understand his concerns to be?
A I think that's probably poorly worded. It's interesting. "Everyone took your concerns seriously." He expressed a lot of concerns with regard to the accordion file he displayed. Maybe that's what I was referring to, but it could also be the offer, too, that he presented, but that wouldn't be a concern so much. Perhaps it's the wrong word.

Q You say you'd like to discuss with you, meaning Jim Graham and/or Calvin at a time convenient for him. Do you know why you would have been speaking to Calvin about it?
A I think, in looking back at this now, "Everyone took your concerns seriously" and the second sentence, I think what I'm trying to do with this e-mail is to redirect because I wanted to get back in touch with Calvin, I think, as it's coming back to me and actually talk about the lottery contract. That was something that I was -- the conversation wasn't about the lottery contract. It was about Jim Graham wanting a deal. I don't know exactly. At the time I'm pretty sure the underlying message of this e-mail was to essentially keep the clock going and not -- I mean, it wasn't -- it was essentially to draw out the conversation.
Q Was Calvin the one handling the lottery contract for Jim Graham?

A I think so. He was in the meeting, so I'm assuming the staff person in the meeting is the one handling the lottery contract.
Q There was no explicit mention by Graham that Calvin was the one handling the lottery?
A I don't recall that.
Q So "Everyone took your concerns seriously," regarding the quid pro quo, everyone took that very seriously?
A Yeah. You could say we took it very seriously in that we reacted very seriously to it, and it certainly jolted us and I think you could tell that people were nervous.
Q When you say "Wheels are in motion," there was a lot of discussion between the members of W2 I as to how to handle this; correct?
A I think so, but I'm not sure if those discussions happened before this e-mail or after this e-mail.
MR. BONDI: Jim, keep that exhibit handy. We'll come back to it in a second. I think we have some communications internal that we want to ask you about that might be related to this that might refresh your recollection about the timing.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

(Link Exhibit 3 identified.)

BY MR. SISTO:

Q Jim, this is Exhibit 3, Bates stamp WMATA-INQ 013864. It's an e-mail sent from Crystal Wright on Monday, June 2 at 2:05 p.m. to Alaka Williams, Warren Williams, Jay Lapine, Byron Boothe, yourself and Scott Bolden. Subject is "Graham." Importance of the message is "High." Crystal writes "Jim said that Graham emailed him back thanking him also and say 'Do you think they will do anything?'"

"It is pretty clear he wants us to come back with something."

You got the e-mail from Graham. Why is Crystal sending this e-mail to the team?

A I don't know. Perhaps I forwarded it to her and she forwarded it to the rest. Again, I was relatively new and I think she was controlling communications to the client, but she may have just -- I don't think it was anything more than that.

Q It appears from this e-mail that Crystal understood Graham was asking for something when he sent you that e-mail?

A Yes.

Q And that was the WMATA contract?

A Yes. That was definitely our understanding.

Q And it was her understanding as well that it was the WMATA contract that Graham was asking for?

A Yes.

BY MR. BONDI:

Q Why do you believe that it was her understanding? Did she say that? Did you have conversations?

A We had probably sidewalk conversations. It was clear that we both knew what that meant.

(Link Exhibit 4 identified.)

BY MR. SISTO:

Q Jim, this is Exhibit 4. It's an e-mail chain. Top one is an e-mail from you to Crystal Wright sent Monday, June 2, 2008 at 6:53 p.m. If you could review the e-mail chain, let me know when you're done.

A Okay.

Q I want to run through these e-mails chronologically, starting on page 2. The first e-mail is from Crystal Wright. It was the e-mail she sent in the previous exhibit.

A Right.

Q Next e-mail is from Warren Williams sent Monday, June 2, 2008 to the W2 I team, subject "Re: Graham." Warren says "We should discuss with the councilmember, the fact that, even though I don't like it to prove to him that I'm 'onboard' and 'non-threatening' I would give him the wmata project."

So Warren understood that what Graham meant was he wanted Warren to drop the WMATA project?

A Uh-huh.

Q I'm sorry?

Page 53

A Yes.

Q And he says "The legal realities are that I can't do that. Banneker Ventures own 35% of the rights to develop the sites. Two other companies have much more to lose."

"If we tried to drop out they would sue us. We've got six figures of expenses as well as a six figure deposit being held by wmata."

Did the team have discussions about this statement by Warren that he was unable to -- that it was not his decision to make to drop out of the project?

A It's clear from the e-mail. Listen, whatever we're doing here doesn't matter because we can't do it.

Q He then asks, "Is this something Omar" -- I assume it's Omar Karim, the other principal at Banneker?

A I guess. I don't know Omar.

Q "And I go in with Jim and Crystal to discuss with the councilmember?" Were there ever any discussions about going in with Banneker to discussion the issue?

A I don't recall. I don't think so.
Q He says "Our wmata board meeting where this gets voted on is this thursday." It appears from this e-mail there's a certain amount of urgency to getting this resolved. There was urgency?
A I never got the sense that there was urgency because I never had the sense that we were ever really going to accommodate this request, so I never felt like we had to scramble to get back to Jim Graham by any date. I never felt that urgency.
Q Clearly Warren was concerned about the time line because the vote was coming up on Thursday?
A Right.
Q Did he express any concerns about that?
A Nothing that jars any sort of memory that that was the case, no. Other than what I've read in this e-mail, I don't get the sense that we were all looking at that as the deadline we all had to do what we had to do to get to some resolution with Jim Graham before that date. I never ever felt that

Q Page 1, the next e-mail is from Crystal Wright sent Monday, June 2, 6:53 p.m. to you where she forwards you this e-mail. She says "See below where the WMATA board will vote on this Thursday, so we may have to get back to Graham before that." It appears Crystal was concerned about the timing of your response to Graham?
A Yeah, that may be. If she was concerned, I wasn't concerned.
Q Crystal understood that you had to get back to Graham before the WMATA board meeting because what he was requesting was the WMATA contract; is that correct?
A Yeah, I think so, yes.
Q She continues and says "Also, they are trying to have a meeting with Jay and Byron late afternoon tomorrow at the Marriott say 5pm. Don't know yet." Do you know if that meeting happened?
A I don't know. I don't recall.
Q That would have been on June 3rd.
A It's possible, but I don't know.

Page 56

Q Did you attend that meeting?
A I don't even know if the meeting happened.
Q The last e-mail from you sent Monday, June 2, 2008, 6:53 p.m., exactly the same minute that Crystal wrote her e-mail, from you to Crystal Wright and you say "I think stuff needs to get done and move through the system before we talk to Graham." It appears from this e-mail that like you said, you didn't think there was any urgency?
A Yeah. I didn't care really about the deadline.
Q What was this stuff that needed to get done?
A I don't know. I think it was me satisfying -- I don't know what stuff needed to get done, but I think I'm trying to in this e-mail sort of slow it down. I don't remember exactly, but I don't think -- I think I was essentially there to -- let's put the brakes on here.
Q You didn't have any particular things in mind that you wanted to do before talking to Graham?
A No.

Page 57

MR. BONDI: Can we take a five-minute break.
(Recess.)
(Link Exhibit 5 identified.)
BY MR. SISTO:
Q Jim, this is Exhibit 5. It's an e-mail sent from Scott Bolden Monday June 2, 2008 to Warren Williams, Crystal Wright, Alaka Williams and yourself, Bates numbers WMATA-INQ 013509. It's part of a longer e-mail chain. We've seen the previous e-mails.
This is where Scott Bolden chimes in to the conversation and says "I have made my thoughts on this nonsense very clear to warren." He said "this is complete bs and we are getting very close to corruption, bid rigging and other inappropriate conduct." He was right, wasn't he?
A Yes. We knew where this conversation was going, and he decided that the conversation now ends. We knew we were getting to this point, but yes, he shut it down.
Q That's exactly what he says. He's not going to be a part of it. Suggests "perhaps the us atty should make the call on this by speaking with Mr. Graham about his request. Am I clear on this. To even consider it is placing each of us at risk." And you agreed you were being placed at risk by considering this request?

A Yeah. I would agree.
Q And the entire group agreed they were being placed at risk?
A Yeah.
Q Warren was concerned he consulted an attorney?
A Right.
Q Crystal Wright consulted an attorney as well. Did you suggest to her to consult an attorney?
A I didn't know that. I didn't know she had an attorney who she spoke to about this. I did not know that.
Q Did you consult an attorney?
A No. During this time?
Q Yes.

Page 59

A No, I did not.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q Jim, this is Exhibit 6, WMATA-INQ 013510, an e-mail sent from Jim Link sent Monday, June 2, 2008, 6:43 p.m. to Warren Williams, Crystal Wright, Alaka Williams and Scott Bolden. It's another follow-up meeting to the e-mails we've seen below. You say "Warren, I think we should be upfront with Graham about why this piece of his request cannot be accommodated." Here you're saying, like you said earlier, that you wanted to slow this down and you didn't want to be involved anymore; is that correct?
A Yes.
Q When you say the "piece of his request," you're speaking about the WMATA project?
A Correct, correct.
Q You then ask "Is there a possibility that this project could be expanded to include someone of his liking?" You say "This Metro project is only one project in a long list of upcoming projects and if we were to have some idea of that list and work with Graham proactively going forward and perhaps on something specific that he wants, that would be very useful and valuable to him." So you're trying to find a way to not be involved in this quid pro quo?

A Yes. And I was also thinking out loud, too. Yes.
MR. BONDI: We'll note for the record the e-mail is at 6:43 p.m., prior to Mr. Bolden's e-mail at 8:26.
THE WITNESS: I was thinking the same thing. When did I send this.
BY MR. BONDI:
Q Jim, have you ever heard of LaKritz Adler?
A I have now. I didn't know who he was.
Q And at the time or this time period we're talking about, 2008, 2009 time period, you didn't have any dealings with LaKritz Adler, did you?
A No.
Q Have you heard, Jim, of any dealings that LaKritz Adler may have had with Councilman Graham?
A It was described to me that he was a friend, an ally to Jim Graham, after the meeting. I don't believe his name came up during the meeting. I'm pretty sure it didn't. Maybe it did. But as it was described to me later, that's my understanding of who he is.

Q Just to be clear, LaKritz is one gentleman and Adler is a different person.
A Oh, see, I didn't know that. I thought that was one person.
Q But someone from that partnership had a relationship to Jim Graham, you had understood?
A Yes.
Q Who told you that?
A Oh, gosh. It might have been Warren.
Q Was there a discussion of Warren teaming up with LaKritz Adler for the WMATA development as a way to curry favor with Councilman Graham?
A I wasn't part of any of that type of conversation if it ever happened. I don't know.
(Link Exhibit 7 identified.)
BY MR. SISTO:
Q Jim, this is Exhibit 7. It's an e-mail sent from Scott Bolden Monday, June 2, 2008, 8:31

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013375

Page 62

p.m. sent to Warren Williams, Jim Link, Crystal Wright --
MR. BONDI: For the record, it's an e-mail chain.
MR. SISTO: It's an e-mail chain, yes. This is WMATA-INQ 013512. This e-mail chain is a continuance of Exhibit 6. The e-mail at the bottom of the page is from Warren Williams sent on Monday, June 2, 2008 at 7:05 to Jim Link, Crystal Wright, Alaka Williams, Scott Bolden and this is where Warren says, replying to you, he says "I think being honest with Graham is the right move as well. We have begun some preliminary talks with LaKritz, the developer he wants to see win the site." He says "If Graham wants to cut the deal with LaKritz for a 'better project' we could do that. But I can't just give the project to anyone."
MR. BONDI: Jim, do you --
THE WITNESS: This is apparently where I heard that name.
BY MR. BONDI:
Q I was going to ask, is this the first time, to your recollection, that you had heard LaKritz Adler?

A Yeah. It must have -- I believe so, yes.
Q Jim, do you have any basis to know why Mr. Williams believed that Graham wanted LaKritz to win the site?
A No. I think it became -- I don't know if it was this e-mail. No, I don't. Again, this is the whole piece to this that I'm completely blind to.
Q Do you recall Councilman Graham in that meeting on May 29, 2008 mentioning the same LaKritz Adler?
A I don't remember. I don't remember.
Q Do you remember if Councilman Graham made any suggestion to Mr. Williams that he needed to team up with another developer?
A I don't think that was part of the discussion. I don't think so.
Q Did anyone ever say to you that LaKritz Adler had any financial dealings with Councilman Graham?

Page 64

A Again, clearly I've learned something today. I thought the person LaKritz Adler was a political contributor and somewhere along the line I picked that up.
Q You don't remember who told you that?
A I don't remember honestly. Again, it could have been Warren.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q Jim, at this point everyone is in agreement that you can't respond to Graham in any way to accommodate his request; correct?
A That's correct. I think at this stage, that's clear.
Q At this point, all you're trying to do is formulate the right response to extricate yourselves from the situation?
A Essentially, yeah. Dear John letter.
BY MR. BONDI:
Q Jim, the prior exhibits we were talking about all seem to be dated on June 2, 2008 culminating in the e-mail by Scott Bolden at 8:26 p.m., which was Exhibit 5, where he says to even consider it is placing us at a risk.

If we go back, if we could, please, to Exhibit 2, which was the longer e-mail chain with Councilman Graham, do you have that exhibit in front of you?
A Uh-huh.
Q If you recall earlier, we were talking about the e-mail you sent to Councilman Graham dated June 2 at 2:56 in the afternoon where you said "yes. Wheels are in motion. Everyone took your concerns seriously." And then you see a reply from Councilman Graham the next day, if you flip the page, at June 3, 2008, 7:54 a.m., "I will be gone from the 6th to the 16th,....but I am sure nothing will happen during that time." What did you understand Councilman Graham to mean when he said nothing will happen during that time?
A I don't know. I remember reading that and thinking the same thing. I was asking myself what does he mean.
Q Do you believe he was referring to the WMATA project?

A Well, maybe that's why I was confused because I wasn't focused on the WMATA project. I didn't really know exactly what he meant by that anyway. I didn't know is there going to be a vote on the lottery contract? That was my -- again, my role and focus was all on the lottery.

Q In your world of focus, Jim, there wasn't anything that was going to happen on the lottery in June of 2008 anyway; right?

A No. I guess I got the sense that maybe there's not going to be a vote on the lottery contract during that time.

Again, I didn't really know what he meant. Okay. So he'll be gone. That's what I took away.

Q You didn't understand this e-mail in the context of the lottery? You didn't look at this and say he's talking about the lottery when you got this e-mail?

A No. I didn't know what he meant by that final statement. The only information I took from that e-mail is the fact that he'd be gone for 10 days.

Q Jim, you reply to Councilman Graham the next week on Wednesday, June 11, 2008 at 12:31 p.m.

A Is this the same one?

Q Yes, if you flip the page, where you go through several different issues with him in your e-mail, and I want you to focus on the third-from-the-last paragraph, which is on the page Bates number 13505 at the very top of that page. You say "As for Metro, there are a number of factors that make it impossible for us to even consider accommodating your request." You seem pretty definitive there.

A Yeah.

Q Why were you so definitive?

A It was a sense of relief to have it in there, just to know that we weren't going to have to deal with this issue any longer.

Q And what was --

A And frankly, you want to know -- I was thrilled to have this issue over with and it made me feel better.

Q Better that it was over?

Page 68

A Yeah.

Q Why?

A Just because I didn't want to entertain the subject anymore.

Q Jim, the issue that you were being so emphatic about here on 13505 when you say "there are a number of factors that make it impossible for us to even consider accommodating your request," what was "your request" referring to?

A It was referring to the quid pro quo, the Metro/lottery scenario that we've discussed.

Q That if Warren Williams gave up the WMATA development, that Graham would support him for the lottery?

A Yes, essentially, that is correct.

Q The next paragraph, you say "I wanted you to also be aware that our communications person, Crystal Wright, received a call from a reporter from the DC Examiner who was asking questions about our meeting and seemed to know a great deal about what was said." Did Ms. Wright receive a call from a reporter, to your knowledge?

A Yeah, or I probably wouldn't have said that.

Q Did Scott Bolden tell you to make up this idea that a reporter from the D.C. Examiner had called Crystal Wright?

A I don't remember Scott Bolden, talking to him at all about this.

Q Do you have any recollection of having communications with Crystal about the call she received from a reporter from the D.C. Examiner?

A I think it was discussed as sort of an FYI.

Q Do you remember that reporter being Bill Myer? Does that ring a bell?

A It rings a bell, but I don't know. It does ring a bell, though.

Q What was Ms. Wright's relationship with Mr. Myer?

A I would guess it was just a work -- she's a media relations consultant and he's a reporter, so I think it's purely that. I don't know if she had any other relationship with him.

Q Are you aware, Jim, of anyone providing any e-mails or documents or -- talking to a D.C. reporter about what happened at that meeting with Councilman Graham?
A No. I have no idea.
Q You have no idea who may have talked to --
A Who may have talked to a reporter. We can all theorize, but I couldn't tell you.
Q Do you have any reason to believe or suspect that Crystal Wright herself had initiated contact with a reporter?
A I would be highly doubtful of that.
Q Why is that?
A Because Crystal is pretty cautious. She's certainly got a lot of -- she's certainly very enthusiastic, but at the same time I don't think she'd do that. I just don't think she would do that. She would not be somebody I would guess would do something like that.
Q Jim, Councilman Graham responded to your June 11, 2008 e-mail on the same day, June 11, 2008. His e-mail is at 2:26 p.m., the first page of the document there. And he goes through several items. The last item he writes -- last item on the first page, 13503 that carries over onto 13504, "The rejection of your application at Metro (which has not been approved) is necessitated not by any of this but by other factors relating to the application."

Did you understand that his statement about the rejection of the application at Metro was in direct response to your prior statement in your e-mail relating to the Metro and how it was impossible to even consider accommodating his request?
A My first reaction in reading that line is that statement made him very nervous, and that this would be somebody who would write who is trying to cover their tracks.
Q What do you make of his other statement -- strike that.
How did you interpret his other statement of "I would rather not continue this on email"? Do you think that was a sense of nervousness?

Page 72

A Absolutely.
Q Jim, to be clear, as of June 11, 2008 while these e-mails were taking place with Councilman Graham, you weren't acting as a lobbyist for Banneker or Warren Williams in connection with the WMATA development, were you?
A No.
Q Did you give any reason or suggest in any way to Councilman Graham that you were a lobbyist relayed to the WMATA development?
A No, other than the fact that it was obviously a topic of conversation between us and e-mail, I never told him that I was or was not working on behalf of WMATA or Banneker or whatever.
Q In your view, Councilman Graham was raising the issue of WMATA in connection with the lottery in this e-mail communication?
A Yes.
Q Did you have any subsequent conversations with Councilman Graham either over the phone or in person or over e-mail relating to either the lottery or the Metro project?

Page 73

A Well, I did send him later that fall articles, newspaper articles pertaining to the lottery that were beneficial because at this point, part of me was like -- there was an anger factor that I actually had to deal with this issue. And then later in the fall when it was known that there was going to be a vote maybe in December on the lottery contract, I sent him a couple e-mails stating look at all this evidence to suggest how the District is going to -- I would send him -- I think I sent him the Jay Young memo, which is this is how much money the District is going to save.
I think we sent that to other offices as well before the vote, but I sent him that. And a Washington Post editorial saying that they should approve the contract, that kind of thing.
Q You didn't engage him on the merits of the lottery?
A Absolutely.
Q You didn't engage him on anything in connection with WMATA?
A No, not at all.

Page 74

Q We have not seen any conversations following this chain with Councilman Graham and you related to the WMATA development. Did it just sort of drop at this point?
A That discussion was over.
Q He didn't raise it again?
A No.
Q You didn't raise it again?
A No.
Q And to your knowledge, none of your colleagues, Crystal Wright or Warren Williams or Alaka Williams, to your knowledge, didn't raise WMATA with him in connection the lottery?
A There was no more conversation at all. Whether there were side conversations that I was not aware of, I don't know. As far as there -- me being involved in any conversation regarding WMATA, I never heard another thing of it.
Q We had mentioned Byron Boothe. Did you have any conversations with Jay Lapine about Councilman Graham's request that he made in the May 29th meeting?

A Not really. He sort of stayed on the side.
I think they knew -- obviously because Byron and Jay were copied on a lot of e-mails and Jay did chime in a couple of times. I think toward the end there, as I was going to craft my final letter to Jim Craft, he weighed in on that, but he was not an active participant. I think it was more FYI.
Q When did your work with the lottery cease, Jim?
A Well, we did some follow-up. Interestingly, nothing with the city council. Intralot, I began to represent Intralot on Capitol Hill and we were involved for a period of time going to members who had oversight over the District to tell them about what was going on with the contract, and we were trying to alert them to the fact we thought there were members of the D.C. city council who were being unfair and not being right when it came to an already approved lottery contract, and this is how this city works.

Continuing to spread doubt amongst some of our friends, and most of these meetings were Republican meetings and that's clearly a tuned-in audience when it comes to D.C. We did do that for a while.
I'm still to this day representing Intralot on the issue of Internet -- interstate online poker and representing the rights of the lotteries. Because it's a classic matchup. The casinos want this poker and the lotteries think the lotteries are going to die on the vine. I still, to this day, represent Intralot on the Hill.
Q When you had meetings with members of Congress and their staff subsequent to your meeting with Councilman Graham on May 29, 2008, did you ever tell them about what Councilman Graham said in that meeting with respect to give up the WMATA project?
A No. It was one of those things that we didn't really talk about.
Q Jim, to be complete, I take it you have no financial interest in the WMATA development?
A No.

Page 77

Q Do you have any financial interest in Banneker?
A No.
Q How about financial interest in W2 Tech?
A No.
Q Do you have any business relationships ongoing with Warren Williams?
A No.
Q With Alaka Williams?
A No.
Q With Scott Bolden?
A No.
Q Jim, is there anything about the meeting on May 29th that we haven't discussed today?
A I don't think so.
Q I know that's a broad question. I just want to make sure that we have covered everything that you remembered transpiring at that meeting?
A No. I don't recall anything that we haven't already discussed.
Q Another broad question. Is there any topic you thought we were going to cover today that we didn't cover today?

Page 78

A No. This is what I expected.
Q Is there any question you expected us to ask that we didn't ask?
A No, there's not. No.
Q Jim, are you involved in any way, shape or form in any campaigns or oppositions to Councilman Graham?
A No.
Q Are you a resident of the District of Columbia?
A No.
Q Do you have any financial ties to Councilman Graham?
A None, no.
Q Have you ever contributed to his campaign?
A No.
Q Have you ever contributed to any opponent's campaign of Councilman Graham?
A No.
Q Jim, did anyone today promise you anything or offer you anything for your testimony?

Page 79

A No.
Q Jim, I don't have any further questions. We appreciate your time today. There's one action item that we'll work with Barry for, but if you happen to have and can locate any internal documents that you would have given to your staff as their instruction in setting up the meeting, like here's what you say, whether it's an e-mail or memo or note, that would be very helpful to have that.
A Okay.
Q As we asked at the outset, we ask that you voluntarily don't discuss this testimony with anyone. I take it, by the way, you didn't have conversations with Crystal Wright about her testimony?
A No. No.
Q We ask similarly that you don't have any conversations with her about your testimony.
A In fact, there were a couple times -- we still work on a project together, but there were a couple of times when I picked up the phone and said nah, that's probably not a good idea until this is over.

MR. COBURN: Very good judgment.
BY MR. BONDI:
Q Very good judgment. There's nothing that obligates you legally to abide by our request, but we do ask as a request that you don't talk about anything we've talked about today with anyone other than your lawyers, of course, and that's to protect the integrity of the investigation and the information that we've elicited.
MR. COBURN: I'm sure he has every intention of abiding by it.
MR. BONDI: Wonderful. Barry and Lloyd, I offer you the floor if you have any questions or if there's anything that required clarification.
MR. COBURN: Not in the least. You all did a very thorough, very complete and a very fair interrogation here, and we have nothing to add, no questions, no concerns, nothing whatsoever.
MR. BONDI: Wonderful. Thank you for your time.
Thank you, Jim.

Page 81

THE WITNESS: I keep these? Or do you want them back?
MR. BONDI: No, we'll request them back.
And Barry, if you don't mind, if we could have the courtesy copies back.
MR. COBURN: I may have scribbled on a couple of them.
MR. BONDI: We won't look. We'll toss them.
MR. COBURN: It's no concern at all.
MR. BONDI: I think you may have all these exhibits anyway, or may have some of them. Thanks very much.
(Whereupon, at 12:42 p.m., the deposition was concluded.)

PROCEEDINGS

MR. BONDI: Again, Councilman Graham, we've met before, but I'm Brad Bondi, here at Cadwalader.

MR. SISTO: Brett Sisto, Cadwalader.

MR. JONES: Chris Jones, summer associate at Cadwalader.

MR. HOELLEN: John Hoellen, deputy general council at the Council of District of Columbia.

MR. ZVENYACH: David Zvenyach, general counsel at the Council for the District of Columbia.

THE WITNESS: Jim Graham, counsel member, Ward 1.

Whereupon,

JIM GRAHAM

was called as a witness and, having first been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

MR. BONDI: David, and I apologize, there is one housekeeping question that I just had a question about. Are you here on behalf of the witness or on behalf of the council? Sort of what is -- if you don't mind just explaining your role.

Page 5

MR. ZVENYACH: Sure. I'm here on behalf of the council member in his official capacity.

MR. BONDI: His official capacity, okay. Thank you. And I assume the same for you.

MR. HOELLEN: Correct.

MR. BONDI: Okay. Thank you. Thank you.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. BONDI:

Q Councilman Graham, thank you very much for being here. I know your time is very scarce and --

A Could I ask a question? How long do you think this is going to last? Do you have any idea of the time frame?

Q I wish I did. What I'm hoping is that we can get through with this in a couple of hours.

A Okay.

Q Do you have another commitment?

A I do. But if -- a couple of hours will be fine.

Q I don't want to -- please don't hold me to that, but I will strive to be as efficient as possible. If you don't hold me to that, I won't --

I will strive to be as efficient as possible. Is that fair?
A Good. Are you going to inform us as to the scope of this investigation?
Q I think we've had a lot of conversations about that. What, Councilman Graham, I -- do you have a copy of the minutes of the board?
MR. SISTO: Yes.
BY MR. BONDI:
Q Thank you. This is the board where we approved -- Councilman Graham, these are minutes, and they are available publicly, as I understand, too?
MR. SISTO: Yes.
BY MR. BONDI:
Q They are minutes of the board meeting. We'll go ahead and mark these as Exhibit 1, Graham Exhibit 1.
(Graham Exhibit 1 identified.)
MR. BONDI: I normally have multiple copies for you all, but I have just one of this one.
BY MR. BONDI:

Q Councilman Graham, this is a copy of the minutes of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority board of directors meeting. These minutes are publicly available on the Web site.
If you turn to the second page there, you will see actions arising out of executive session, where Mr. Downs moved, seconded by Mr. Dyke, to direct the audits and investigations committee to engage an independent consultant to investigate certain allegations that have been made concerning a WMATA joint development site, and that motion was unanimously approved.
And you will see that the ayes are recorded there. That was the board's decision following the executive session to conduct this investigation.
In terms of specific allegations and specifics of our investigation, just as any investigation doesn't get into sharing specifics with the witnesses, because at this point, you know, they're allegations. I don't want to get into a liberty of those allegations.

What I will say, though, sir, is that our investigation concerns the decision of the board and its board members concerning the joint development project on Florida Avenue. So we're evaluating the conduct of the board and its board members in that Florida Avenue development project.
As you know and you've been witness to and responded to publicly in your op ed, there have been a lot of allegations out there about that. And we're going to ask you about some of those allegations.
At this stage, though, they're allegations. And until we complete our work, they're just that.
But we want to give you an opportunity, sir, to address them. And we know, certainly, that you have been very outspoken as a member of the council on transparency of government and looking into allegations and the like.
A Uh-huh, uh-huh.
Q And that's what we want to do here. We want to shed some transparency on the board's decision and elicit the facts. We're a factfinding organization.

A Right.
Q We were retained, as the board minutes show, by the audits and investigations committee to do an investigation.
MR. ZVENYACH: If I might, Brad, I think part of the problem -- and I briefly had a conversation with maybe it was Samantha or Emily, I can't remember.
But what sort of suggested that there may be other scope somewhere is that there was a public statement, apparently, that was shown to Council Member Graham by a member of the press, describing in greater detail than this particular section what the investigation would involve.
It specifically mentioned, for instance, Florida Avenue.
MR. BONDI: That's right.
MR. ZVENYACH: It said that, you know, the time frame of the investigation said several months and that sort of thing.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013396

Page 10

MR. BONDI: Sure.
MR. ZVENYACH: So insofar as the members of the press were receiving information about the scope, we felt that there was a lack of -- that we're on a different footing from members of the press, I guess.
MR. BONDI: Oh, no. By no means do we want that to be the case.
WMATA issued a public statement that is probably what you're referring to, and it ran in the press, and it was issued out of their press office. That public statement in no way, we believe, contradicts or is anywhere different --
MR. ZVENYACH: I've never seen the public statement, is the problem.
MR. BONDI: We can get you that at a break. How about we do that.
MR. SISTO: Sure.
MR. BONDI: But that was issued out of their press office and I believe is even available on their Web site.
MR. ZVENYACH: I've looked and I couldn't find it.

Page 11

MR. BONDI: I'll check on that, David.
But just going back to the board minutes, when it says "WMATA joint development site," that's what it's referring to is the Florida Avenue project.
THE WITNESS: But I'm not mentioned by name in any of this?
MR. BONDI: You're not mentioned by name in --
THE WITNESS: In the motions or the press release.
BY MR. BONDI:
Q You're not mentioned in the press release, as far as I recall, and you're certainly not mentioned in these minutes.
What was discussed at the executive session, sir, I wasn't there.
A Right.
Q So, obviously, I can't say whether your name was mentioned or not. However, you as well as anyone else know that there have been a lot of allegations made against you personally. And we certainly want to allow you the opportunity to address those allegations and get to the bottom of them.

We are -- as I mentioned, we're retained by the audits and investigations committee to do an investigation and to prepare a report that will eventually go to the board. Whether that report is made public or not is up to the board. The board has not made a decision yet.
But I would expect that there will be quite a bit of pressure to make that report public, given the focus in the press of these issues.
As you probably know, we don't represent you individually, and we are conducting a confidential investigation here. So while we can't control what you say to the press, we're not putting a gag order on anything you say to the press or anything.
But we would request, as we've requested of all witnesses, that you keep confidential what we have talked about today.

We're not talking to the press. We haven't talked to the press, and we won't talk to the press, okay?
For the record, could you please state your full name.
A Jim Graham.
Q And what is your current occupation, Mr. Graham?
A I am the Ward 1 council member in the District of Columbia.
Q And at one point in time, you were a member of the board of directors of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority; is that correct?
A That's correct.
Q And when was your tenure there?
A From January 1, 1999 until December 31, 2010.
Q Council Member Graham, because we're under oath here today and asking questions for the record, there are just a few sort of administrative ground rules. You've probably heard these before.

Page 14

But please answer all questions orally, as opposed to a nod of the head.
A Uh-huh.
Q Secondly, if you could please wait until I finish questions before you answer. That way, the court reporter gets down my question and gets down your answer.
And the third point, which is very important, is if you don't understand a question, please tell me you don't understand a question.
A Okay.
Q Otherwise, I'm going to presume you understood the question and were able to answer the question.
A Okay.
Q Council Member Graham, we wanted to ask you about and focus on the Florida Avenue development. And that's within the scope of what we're doing.
A Uh-huh.
Q What was your involvement leading up to the board's motion to select a, quote, selected developer? What was your role leading up to the decision to select a developer?

A With this parcel?
Q Excuse me?
A With this parcel?
Q Yes, sir.
A Well, that's an excellent question which I want to answer, which is that this had been a parcel in the joint development portfolio of Metro that had been the subject of much delay, much controversy, litigation, concerning claims that had been made by others that were found to be spurious in a court action.
And I had been very much involved in all of that in prompting the development of this site, I think virtually from the year 2000. And so I was very engaged with the joint development staff, in terms of keeping their shoulders to the wheel in moving this, and so through a whole series of tormented legal actions that were necessary in order to free it up finally to be issued as a joint development solicitation.

So my involvement in this predated by a number of years, you know, the actual solicitation. The site is located in Ward 1. I had previously been extensively involved in other joint development sites which were located in Ward 1.
The Ellington Apartments was built on a joint development site. The -- the property at 14th and V, Langston Lofts, was developed on a joint development site. Union Row needed a particular strip of land that was joint development property.
And so in the -- in the Ward 1 joint development areas on U Street, I was extensively involved and had been extensively involved since becoming a board member.
I was also in that position -- I was also involved because I was chairman of the real estate committee through much of that period. And so that was --
Q The real estate committee of WMATA?
A Right. And also the property at Kenyon and 14th Street was another major Metro development site which I was also extensively involved in. And it was a complicated process there as well.

So pretty much all of the Ward 1 sites received attention from me.
Q Now, when you referred to joint development sites, do you mean joint development with the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, with WMATA or Metro?
A Well, WMATA owned the properties. They were used for typically some kind of work relating to the subway stations in those areas. And their program is called joint development, and so that's why I used the term.
Q Is that different from a business improvement district?
A Yes.
Q What is a business improvement district?
A A business improvement district is something peculiar to the District of Columbia and is set up entirely separate from WMATA.
Q And are you involved in the business improvement district on U Street?
A There is none. We tried to establish one, but for various reasons I'll be glad to explain to you -- this seems a little far afield from what we're talking about. We tried to establish one, but none was established.

Q When did you try to establish one, in 2008?

A Maybe a little earlier but about that time, yes.

Q So the business improvement district on U Street wouldn't have anything to do with the Florida Avenue joint development project of WMATA?

A Because it was never -- it was never established.

Q Never established.

A And to establish a business improvement district, you know, that is actually -- requires council action, because you have to have the ability to levy tax. And so -- but it never was introduced in the council.

Q And with the business improvement district, I have a few questions on that, and I'll get to how I believe they may be related here. The business improvement district. Did you host a dinner or were you involved in some sort of dinner that happened every year and there was developers who purchased a table at that dinner?

A No. I have never -- I have never hosted a developer dinner, to my -- to my recollection.

Q Okay. Was there a -- some sort of dinner or event that was held annually in connection with the U Street business improvement district?

A Not to my recollection.

Q Was anything being planned that just never was consummated?

A I don't remember any planning or any event such as that.

Q Were there any donations that were solicited in connection with the business improvement district on U Street?

A There were certainly discussions with the major landowners on U Street about their willingness to support a business improvement district. But, again, it didn't come to any fruition for various reasons.

There may have been -- there may have been some level of small seed money donation to, in effect, fund the consideration of a BID. There may have been, but I'm not sure I remember the specifics of that.

Q Did you ever solicit any donations from any representatives of Banneker in connection with the business improvement district?

A Well, they had no property on U Street, as I recall. I don't remember them ever being at a meeting.

There were a series of meetings held, but I don't remember Banneker being included.

And I have to refresh my memory on the calendar of all of that. That can be done, though. Because there were a series of meetings held in anticipation, but I don't remember -- since Banneker didn't have any property in the area, I don't remember them being involved.

Because the whole eastern side of U Street was something that was very uncertain in terms of who would be developing all of that. For example, what's now called Progression Place, Progression Place at 7th and T, was certainly -- you know, I think by that time, they may have broken ground, but there was no one really to talk to.

The Howard Town Center was the same. And so our efforts were concentrated really west of 12th and in that area. And so I don't recall -- I don't recall any conversation with them.

Q Okay. So just so I'm clear, because I know you said you don't recall them being involved --

A They may have not even been in the boundary that was developed.

Q So you don't recall -- you don't recall ever soliciting a donation from any representative from Banneker in connection with the business improvement district?

A I don't. And that's not to say it didn't happen, but I don't remember any.

Q Okay.

A Because I don't think they were even in the boundary. I think the boundary that we were looking at ended at 9th, and their prospective development was east of 9th.

And we didn't -- we didn't include east of 9th in what we were trying to put together.

Q And specifically, then, I take it from that answer that you don't recall ever soliciting any contribution or involvement of a gentleman named Omar Karim in the business improvement district on U Street?

A I mean, there may have been -- you know, again, the seed money, as such, was a small amount of money. I think it mainly came from Donatelli. And there may have been some preliminary discussions, you know, would you enter into -- would you agree to this.

Because, again, this is a council-imposed action. But in order to make it happen, we had to have buy-in from major landowners in the area, as well as retail establishments.

So there may have been discussions in anticipation of him having such property, but I don't think I -- I don't remember any -- so it would be a different -- it wouldn't be a solicitation of funds. It would be more a situation where, you know, we're going to levy a tax, and it would be good to have your support for that levy.

Q Did you ask for Omar Karim's support of the business improvement district on U Street?

A I don't recall any specific conversation.

Q Do you recall any general conversation?

A I do not.

Q Okay. Councilman Graham, I know that some of the things we're going to be talking about here happened several years ago, and so I -- to just put things in buckets, in terms of the time period, I thought I would give out on the record here some dates that I wanted to ask you around -- events around those dates.

The first date -- and I'll represent for the record that we have documents that establish these dates. But just to help our conversation today and streamline it and be as efficient as possible, I just wanted to put these dates out.

December 17, 2007 was when the developers presented presentations to the WMATA staff for the Florida Avenue development.

A Uh-huh.

Q December 17, 2007. April 24, 2008 was when the board of WMATA moved to defer approval of the selection of the, quote, selected developer. And, actually, that was a motion that you yourself moved April 24, 2008.

June 26, 2008 was when the board of directors moved to approve the selection of Banneker. That was a vote that you abstained on.

And then March 25 --

A No, that's not correct -- oh, 2008.

Q Yes, sir.

A Oh, I'm sorry, excuse me. June 2008 --

Q June 26, 2008.

And then, finally, the fourth date is March 25, 2010.

A I did not abstain. I'm recorded as yes on June 26.

Q In the PDRE meeting, you abstained.

A On the board -- on the board vote, I voted yes.

Q On the board vote, you voted yes. On the PDRE you abstained, that's correct.

A I don't have that record.

Q And on March -- the final date, March 25, 2010, which was a motion by Mr. Adler -- Albert, excuse me, Mr. Albert to table the extension of the negotiation period with Banneker.

So those are the dates I want to just focus our conversations around, and then that way, we can maybe bucket our questions in those dates.

A All right.

Q So what I'd like --

A Well, you need to be aware of the fact that as Carol O'Keeffe points out in her letter, and I want you to have this letter of May 28, 2010 --

Q I have it, thank you.

A -- which responds in detail to the Scott Bolden letter which was received prior to this but two years after his initial complaint.

I had moved to recommend the board grant the extension of the term sheet. That was my motion. Thereafter, board member Neil Albert moved to table.

But you have my motion, even in this late date, you know, as chair of the planning, development and real estate committee, to provide still another exception -- extension, excuse me, so another extension. And that was trumped by the vote of the board, which was unanimous, to table that motion and to table the project.

Q We appreciate that letter. We have that, thank you.

A All right.

Q Thank you. Are there other documents you have there that you are willing to produce today?

A You have all of these. You have all of these. But these were just papers -- you're welcome to them again. But these are just papers to remind me of the dates.

Q That would be great. If we could have copies of those --

A You have it, but you can have it again.

Q I don't recognize that document. Is that a new --

MR. ZVENYACH: That was just part of the one that we submitted yesterday.

MR. BONDI: Okay. Great. Thanks.

BY MR. BONDI:

Q Councilman Graham, going back to these dates, prior to the presentations to the staff by the developers on December 17, 2007, prior to that, did you have any contact with any of the developers that were submitting proposals regarding the Florida Avenue development?

A I don't believe I did. I don't believe -- it's hard for me to reconstruct that, but I don't believe I did. I don't believe I was even aware of that happening that particular date.

So I'm not sure I had conversations prior to that.

Q Were you aware that presentations were being made by developers to the staff to develop the Florida Avenue property?

A I may have had a general knowledge of it, but I don't think there was any specific knowledge of that.

Q Okay.

A I was aware of the joint solicitation being issued, because I had to vote on that. And that happened earlier in 2007.

Q Right.

A But I'm not sure I kept track of all of the various staff steps that followed.

Q Understood. Well, why don't we take that 2007 decision to go out for solicitations as the opening mark and then take the time period of the initial motion to defer approval as the second point there.

In that window there from 2007 to April 24, 2008, did you have any conversations with any of the developers that were making presentations to develop the joint development property?

A I don't recall any conversations prior to the presentation.

Q Okay. And prior to April 24, 2008, when the board decided to move to defer?

A I think -- I think I'd had a conversation with Donatelli after he withdrew.

Page 29

Q Okay.

A After he withdrew. And it came up in the context of a different subject altogether. But it came up, and he explained to me why he withdrew.

Q Okay. And I appreciate you bringing that up, because that was actually where I was going to go next is what communications did you have with Donatelli concerning the Florida Avenue development?

A Well, Donatelli was a proven achiever. It's very important to keep this in mind. Because he took the Ellington -- he built the Ellington Apartments at a time when that was really a financially courageous move.

Because it was -- U Street was nowhere near what it is today. And to build a large, expensive apartment building -- rental apartment building with high rents on that location at that time was -- was, you know, a major achievement.

And so he had proven himself capable of building a large project with -- a joint development project with Metro. And so, you know, there was a relationship between him and not just with me but with the entire agency, in terms of joint development. And so he had a strong track record.

Q What communications did you have with Mr. Donatelli or representatives of his company concerning the Florida Avenue development?

A I think it was principally, you know, him telling me why he did not go forward with it and he withdrew.

Q Why did he tell you he withdrew?

A He lacked confidence in Omar Karim and Banneker. He lacked confidence in their ability to do the project.

Q And why did he say he lacked confidence in their ability to do the project?

A Well, that's a question you should probably ask him. But he was very -- he was very uncertain about their experience and whether their background suggested their ability to pull off a project of this size.

And he indicated to me that that was the reason that he had pulled out. And at that time, I think, there was no experienced development partner in this proposal.

Q During the selection process prior to it being presented to the board for a motion, did you ask to see the proposals of each of the development groups that were submitting proposals?

A Prior to the presentation?

Q Prior to or after the presentation prior to the vote of the board.

A Well, I would have received those as a matter of course. Every board member would have received those.

Q Okay. Prior to the presentation --

A And I submitted them to you, by the way, yesterday. I thought you'd have them, but on the off chance that you didn't, I submitted them to you.

Q Appreciate that. And prior to the actual presentations to the staff, did you request to see the proposals of the developers?

A No, I don't believe I did. But I could have. You know, I mean, I was chairman of the real estate committee at that time. But I don't believe

I did.

I believe it was only after they came up with a recommendation that I asked to see them.

Q Prior to the staff making a recommendation to the board in the spring of 2008, did you have any conversations with the staff about what your concerns were about the development? Did you have any input to them about what -- who you would like to see selected?

A Not that I recall. With the staff?

Q With the staff, yes.

A And who would that be on the staff?

Q Anyone on the staff.

A I don't believe so. I don't believe I would have had that -- those conversations. Possibly, but I don't recall any specific conversations about this.

There were three proposals, two of which -- one of which, excuse me, was very strong, because it involved Clark Construction. And once I had the opportunity to review that, I thought that was a strong proposal.

Q Did you ever express -- prior to the staff's recommendation, did you ever express to any member of the staff any concern with Warren Williams?

A I may have, because of the experience that -- because of my concern about a doctrine called clean hands and about --

MR. ZVENYACH: I'm sorry, you're saying before the presentation in December of 2007?

THE WITNESS: No.

MR. BONDI: No, no, prior to presenting the issue to the board, correct.

MR. ZVENYACH: So between 1 and 2.

MR. BONDI: Correct.

THE WITNESS: I may have. Because I was very concerned about the clean hands doctrine regarding Warren Williams.

BY MR. BONDI:

Q Okay. Why? Why were you concerned?

A Because he had operated a business called Club U in the Reeves Center, and he operated it, in my opinion, recklessly, without concern for the public safety.

And he had a lease that was -- he was -- which was a very poor lease to begin with, but he was in violation of any number of provisions of the lease with the D.C. government.
And when -- the last night that he was in -- it had been a magnet for violence, and Chief Ramsey can -- his letters will document that, you don't have to listen to me.
And we -- Chief Ramsey and others, including myself, determined that this was not a liquor -- an alcohol license that we wanted to continue.
And so there were efforts made principally, again, by Chief Ramsey but which I supported, the advisory neighborhood commission was very involved, to revoke that license.
And after the license was revoked, there was a large outstanding debt, which I had never been assured had been paid, in excess of $100,000, to the D.C. government.
And it was only in the course of this consideration where I was informed that it had been paid, but I never received any proof of it being paid, or how it was paid.

But those issues were fresh on my mind in early 2008. And I was concerned about the ethics and the ethical responsibilities of a bidder for a joint -- an important joint development site.
And that was later reflected in -- as you know, I'm sure, in the committee action and the board action.
Q And putting aside the concerns that you had about Warren Williams, did you also have separate concerns about Banneker?
A Banneker was a company that I only knew through publicity that was then occurring, and this is all well documented, and concerns about the way in which they were being awarded contracts through the D.C. Housing Authority and others associated with Banneker.
And this was very much in the press at the time and was the subject of a lot of council consideration. There would ultimately be hearings held on it, and the Robert Trout report was issued.

Q Is it fair to say your concerns about Banneker were both about --
A But I didn't know them. I didn't know them except through the publicity in the newspapers.
Q I see. Is it fair to say, sir, that your concerns about Banneker as a proposed developer were both of Banneker as an entity and their experience and also with respect to one of their principals, Warren Williams? Is that fair?
A Yes, I think that's fair.
Q Okay. Now --
A In terms of their experience and ability.
Q Sure.
A And everybody -- by the way, everybody felt that. Everybody felt that, except maybe Banneker. But everybody had these concerns, quite honestly. Everybody had it.
And everybody realized that they could not go forward and successfully do this without a major construction partner.
Q Now, between the time period that WMATA went out to solicit proposals in 2007 and the time in June 26, 2008, when the vote -- when a selected developer was ultimately chosen by the board, did you have any conversations with any representatives of LaKritz Adler concerning Florida Avenue?

A Well, I want to refer you to the letter by Carol O'Keeffe, May 28, 2010, where she says, "in section 3" -- to Bolden, "in section 3, you have attempted to create the impression that improprieties occurred during your conversations with the WMATA board member. Quote, board members frequently discuss the progress of joint development negotiations with the parties involved. The nature of these discussions is dynamic and may include ways to strengthen the development team. But these discussions do not bind WMATA board of directors. And your allegations do not appear to constitute a violation of the board's standards of conduct."
Q Councilman Graham, I apologize --
A This is directly responsive to the question.
Q I don't believe that is. It's a letter that I believe she wrote, not you. If you wouldn't mind, Councilman, I know your time is limited, and we have that letter and we appreciate it. And we actually are going to ask you some questions about that letter later on.

But I want to get through some specific questions ahead of time, if you don't mind.

A I don't recall -- I don't -- on the subject -- if your question is regarding discussions --

Q Did you meet -- yeah, I'll repeat the question.

Prior to the -- prior to the selection of Banneker in June 26, 2008 by the board --

A Right.

Q -- did you have any meetings or conversations with any representatives of LaKritz Adler --

A Right.

Q -- concerning the Florida Avenue development?

A I don't recall any.

Q Did you have any view or preference about LaKritz Adler as a developer of that particular parcel on Florida Avenue?

A I was impressed by the Clark Construction proposal first. And I was unimpressed by -- and I don't have the details of it with me. I was very unimpressed with the financial statement submitted by Banneker in support of its application.

And if you review the financial statement with any amount of care, you will see how thin it was. You know, I think they had total assets of $90,000. They had Warren Williams taking out more than what he had put in.

There was just -- there was not -- there were not financial -- a financial statement that really inspired confidence in the substantiality of the business.

And so -- and I looked at all three of them, and I thought that way and away, Banneker was the weakest, standing alone.

Now, if you combine Banneker with somebody else, that does have a way of changing that.

Q On --

A And these are facts. These are facts. These are not surmises or opinions. I mean, you can look at the cold, hard numbers of what they had done and what they had achieved and what their bank balances were, and you can see how weak the company was.

Q Sure. April 24, 2008, the board has a meeting, and you move to defer the approval, and the board voted to defer the approval selection.

Why did you do that, Councilman Graham, at that time?

A I don't have that. The first action I have is June 26.

Q We'll get you a copy of those minutes, just one moment, please.

A No, I don't have --

(Graham Exhibit 2 identified.)

BY MR. BONDI:

Q We've marked this as Graham Exhibit 2. And this is minutes of the planning and development committee of Metro. And if you will note, sir, that this is -- it lists the committee members, and you are listed as a committee member being present there.

If you turn to the second page, which is Bates numbered WMATA-INQ 005633, action items B, Florida Avenue development selection, "Mr. Graham moved that this matter be deferred for a period of not less than 60 days. The motion was seconded by Ms. Hewlett, and the committee unanimously voted in favor of the motion."

Do you recall, Mr. Graham, why you moved to defer the matter for a period of not less than 60 days?

A No, I do not. I do not recall that.

Q Did this have anything to do with any concerns that you had about any of the developers being presented?

A I don't recall. I didn't recall that particular motion.

Q Are there any notes that you would have that would refresh your recollection about why you did that?

Page 42

A No, I don't. I notice that it was passed unanimously.
Q Going back to the chronology, prior -- between the motion there to defer the approval on April 24, 2008, and the meeting of the board that occurred on June 26, 2008, I understand you had a meeting in your office on May 29, 2008 with Warren Williams and others. Do you recall that meeting?
A I do.
Q Okay. I understand that the meeting was a meeting that was initiated to discuss the lottery contract with you. Do you recall that?
A That they requested? They requested the meeting?
Q They requested the meeting to discuss the lottery contract with you.
A I don't think that was the purpose of the meeting.
Q What was the purpose of the meeting then?
A I think the purpose of the meeting, as it was expressed to me, was to discuss relationships between the folks who had been involved in Club U and me, in an effort to clear the air, is the way that I recall them putting it, and to see if a better relationship couldn't be developed between them and me.

So I don't think I would have had necessarily a meeting over the lottery contract per se.
Now, the lottery contract was discussed but only -- only in passing. Only in passing. Only in passing.
Q Only in passing?
A Only in passing.
Q Okay. And, Councilman Graham, I don't want to ask about anything on discussions on lottery contracts, only unless they somehow related to the WMATA development here.
(Graham Exhibit 3 identified.)
BY MR. BONDI:
Q But I wanted to show you what's been marked as Exhibit 3, which is the meeting sign-in sheet, that says "purpose of the meeting, lottery contract" there.

Page 44

Do you see that?
A Uh-huh, uh-huh.
Q And it's dated 5/29/08?
A Uh-huh.
Q And the sign-in people are Alaka Williams, W2 Tech. What is W2 Tech?
A I think it was a company that was bidding on the lottery contract.
Q Okay. Warren Williams listed as W2 Tech. Crystal Wright, it says "Baker Wright, W2 Tech group." And then "Jim Link, American Capital Group."
Do you see that?
A Yes, I do.
Q And do you remember those persons being present at that meeting?
A I do.
Q And there are three initials following that. There's a J, maybe you can help me with that.
A JG, me, Calvin Woodland and Steve Hernandez.
Q And those were the people that attended this meeting?

Page 45

A That's correct.
Q And am I correct in saying this was a meeting that was initiated by W2 Tech with you, not the other way around?
A No, it was a meeting that was initiated by Warren Williams and me. It was -- this is my assistant's writing, "lottery contract."
And the purpose of the meeting was, again, an effort to kind of clear the air over -- over the issues relating to the relationships between us.
Q Now, you say that's the purpose of the meeting.
A That was the purpose. That was the stated purpose of the meeting.
Q Stated purpose by whom, though, sir?
A By them, when they called me. They said, "we'd like to get together. We want to come to your office. We want to see if we can't improve the relationship between us," is what they said.
Q Okay. And just so I'm clear, who is "when they called me"?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013405

Page 46

A Warren Williams.
Q Warren Williams specifically called your office?
A Or Alaka. I don't remember which one, but it was one or the other who requested the meeting.
Q So your recollection is either Warren Williams or Alaka requested the meeting?
A That's right.
Q And to whom did they make that request, to you personally?
A I think to Myra, my scheduler.
Q Okay. And -- and they said, you believe, to Myra that the purpose of the meeting is to clear the air on -- on what?
A Well, on what had been the preceding relationships, the previous relationships between -- because Warren Williams had been the -- I believe he was the managing -- the manager, if you will, or the general manager of Club U. His father was the owner, Warren C. Williams, Senior, and he was the one who actually ran the operation.
And there were a number of issues relating back to that. And he felt it would be good if we all sat down and talked about all of this.

Q And that's what he said to your scheduler?
A And that was the way it was understood. I mean, there was no -- I don't recall any -- I don't know how far we can go into this. I mean, is this -- what do we do?
I mean, I don't recall any substantive discussion about the content of the lottery contract.
On April 7, 2008, I was a member of the finance committee of the council. And I had two separate rounds of questioning at that time, where I laid out my concerns about the lottery contract publicly.
And so you can go and view that video, and you can see how I couldn't have been any clearer about what I thought were some of the infirmities in all of that.
And I think that following that, there was this effort about reaching out.
Q Now, Councilman Graham, there's been some misconception, it appears, on why Mr. Williams was present at the meeting on May 29, 2008. Do you recall that Mr. Williams showed up to that meeting on his own and initiated that meeting? Is that your recollection? Or is your recollection that you asked for Mr. Williams to be present at that meeting?

A I -- my recollection is that it was entirely their initiative.
Q For Mr. Williams to be present?
A Well, or the group, you know, Alaka. I don't know whether it was Williams or Alaka. But one or the other wanted the meeting.
Q There's been some testimony that on the morning of the meeting, a member of your staff called one of the lobbyists working with W2 Tech, Jim Link or Crystal Wright, and -- actually called Mr. Link and asked Mr. Link to make sure that Warren Williams was present for the meeting that day in your office.
Is that not your recollection, then?
A No, I don't -- I don't know of any contact -- such contact being made.

Q Did you ever express to any members of your staff that you wanted Mr. Williams to be present at this meeting on May 29?
A I don't -- I really don't recall.
Q Now, as I understand from when we last talked, when we were in the office and did the sign-up sheet, you pass around the sheet in your office and everyone signs up, signs in, and it gets to you last; right?
A Uh-huh. Yes, yes.
Q Now, it got to you last on this sign-up sheet on May 29, and it gets in your hands, and you look and you see W2 Tech, W2 Tech, Baker Wright for W2 Tech and a lobbyist, Jim Link, working with the lottery contract.
A Right.
Q And then the lottery contract, written at the top, is the purpose of the meeting.
A Right.
Q Okay. If your impression of the meeting was to clear the air with the Williamses about U

Street and issues relating to U Street, why didn't you just say, wait a second, here, why do we have these two lobbyists for W2 Tech? And why are you listing W2 Tech? And why does it say "lottery contract" on the top?

A Well, my -- what I have said is directly related to the content of the meeting. And the content of the meeting was all about the revocation of the alcohol license, it was all about signs which were put up on U Street which showed me as a kind of a plantation owner, standing, watching blacks being lynched, with the message that Graham wants to drive black bars off of U Street, signs that were put up not once but twice and three times after they were being taken down by residents, not by me, who found them offensive and racist.

That's what the discussion was about. It was also about the -- that's my recollection of the discussion.

It was also about their various violations of the lease agreement and the fact that they had a large amount of unpaid rent, which was my information at that time, and that they had been totally uncooperative with the ABC board and with the Metropolitan Police Department. And that's what we talked about.

Now, I don't remember Jim Link or Crystal Wright saying much of anything. This was a discussion principally between me and Warren Williams, and it was about those issues.

So that informs my recollection, you know, of just what the meeting was about. And that's why -- it wasn't a discussion of, you know, such-and-such in the lottery contract and, you know, here we're looking at your financial sheets and who are you and what, no.

Q So when -- when members who were present for that meeting of W2 Tech and the lobbyist for W2 Tech, when they say they initiated the meeting to talk to you about the lottery contract, do you believe that they were -- they were mistaken in the purpose of the meeting?

A Well, I think they -- I think -- you know, let me say, Mr. Bondi, that I think that there may be accuracy to that too. Because, again, it was an effort to kind of clear the air, is the best expression that I have, for them to come, and they did, and they forthrightly denied their lease violations. They denied having anything to do with the signs on U Street.

You know, it was just a general denial of everything that I believed.

But there was an exchange of views. And I could see how they could see this as -- I mean, that's the meeting that I had with them. I could see how they were coming into the meeting thinking it was going to be something different, but that's not the meeting that occurred.

Q Thinking that it was going to be about the lottery contract?

A Right, and talking about, you know, their -- you know, their prior experience with a lot of gaming and the District of Columbia and so forth. That was a very small amount of time that was spent on that.

Q Okay. So their agenda for the meeting may have been on the lottery contract --

A But it's not what happened.

Q It's not what you let happen; right?

A It's not the course of the conversation that had occurred.

Q It's not what you let happen; right?

A It's not the course of the conversation that occurred.

Q Okay. Well, as I understand, at the meeting, the lobbyist there on behalf of W2 Tech tried to initiate a conversation about the lottery, and you wanted to talk about Mr. Williams; is that correct?

A Yes, because I thought that -- I thought his behavior -- his prior behaviors with the license that we posed trust and confidence in him was so irresponsible and so reckless that it did not qualify him for another government entitlement or license.

And that's the connection. There is, under D.C. law, a clean hands doctrine that affects all of this. And I frankly thought that he was disqualified because of his prior actions and the prior actions of the company that he was associated with.

Q Including being disqualified to be involved in the joint development project on Florida Avenue?

A I think it raised ethical issues regarding that, and that was the subject of later action.

Q And, in fact, you raised the issue of their qualifications to develop the Florida Avenue project during this May 29 meeting, didn't you?

A You know, honestly, I don't recall much being said about joint development, because at the time, you know, I was very unclear about just what the role of Warren C. Williams was with Banneker. Do you know what I'm saying?

And they might have brought that up, but I don't have any recollection of that being a thrust of the meeting at all.

Q You talked about Warren Williams' other developments, though, in Washington; right?

A He didn't have any other developments in Washington. There was nothing to talk about.

Page 55

Q Banneker's developments in Washington?

A Banneker had renovated an elementary school.

Q And did that come up? Did that come up during the meeting?

A No, because I didn't -- I really wasn't -- I really wasn't -- this was not a meeting about Banneker. Banneker was not represented. Banneker, I don't recall there being much conversation -- believe me when I say that if this meeting lasted 60 minutes, and I don't remember how long it lasted, 50 minutes were spent on these other issues.

Q On these other issues.

A Which were still very emotional issues for me.

Q Like the poster; right?

A The poster was an emotional issue.

Q And the poster said something along the lines of "Grahamzilla, the black business killer," right?

A Something like that.

Page 56

Q And you actually had a copy of that poster at that meeting that you pulled out; right?

A I don't think I did. I haven't been able to find it. And I wish I had one, but I -- somehow, that has been lost to history.

Q But you did consult what you've described as your big fat file on Warren Williams?

A Big fat file? Well, there was a big fat file on Club U, Club U. Because there was a long history at Club U of irresponsibility relating to public safety.

Q Now, when Warren Williams --

A You should review the police record of Club U. You should review Chief Ramsey's reports. You know, don't go on what I'm saying.

But there was hardly a weekend that went by at that particular time where there weren't shots. And this Reeves Center is a government building, a government building.

Q There was a stabbing, too.

A Well, there was a stabbing and a death. A murder, actually, put more accurately. And there's a rendition of those facts that have the bouncers dragging the victim out and depositing him in the lobby, throwing everybody out of the club and then destroying evidence.

That's -- those were the allegations against Club U.

So this was not the type of business that I --

Q Sure.

A -- you know, felt, like, oh, we should award them more privileges, they should have more government licenses and entitlements.

Q So I assume that -- or can I assume that that was a topic you discussed with Mr. Williams?

A It was exhaustively discussed. It was exhaustively discussed. Because I had never met him.

Q You had never met him?

A I had never met him.

Q Now, you knew, though, that Mr. Williams was involved with Banneker and had applied to -- with Banneker for the joint development project on

Florida Avenue at this time?
A I don't -- there was a very -- I had very little awareness of that at the time. Because I remember having gone back to really check to see what his role was. And he was -- he was listed in, again, this rather skimpy proposal that Banneker submitted. He was listed as the real estate vice president, you know.
Q But --
A Without any real description of any capability in that regard.
Q Sure. But you did know at the time of this meeting, May 29, 2008, that Mr. Williams had some role with Banneker and that Banneker was a proposed developer for Florida Avenue?
A I don't -- oh, I knew Banneker was proposed -- Q Knew Florida Avenue was --
A But, you know, I honestly don't recall just how much information I had about the Warren C. Williams role at Banneker.
Q You knew he had a role with Banneker?

Page 59

A But I know that he had a very big role in terms of the lottery contract.
Q And you knew he had a role with Banneker?
A I may have known he had a role, but I'm not even sure about -- I'm sure I didn't have much in the way of detail about what his involvement was.
And he may have actually told me at the meeting what it was.
Q But you did know he had a role?
A He may have told me that he had a role at the meeting.
Q Okay. So just so I'm clear on this meeting that happened in your office on May 29, 2008, just so I'm clear all the topics you talked about with Mr. Williams.
Now, witnesses have described you walking to your desk and that there was a big file on your desk.
A On Club U.
Q Some Club U stuff?
A It was all Club U stuff.
Q So you talked about Club U. That was a topic you talked about with Warren Williams?

Page 60

A That was the topic.
Q You talked about the death at Club U with Warren Williams?
A Uh-huh, uh-huh.
Q You talked about the posters that were portraying you as racist with Warren Williams?
A Uh-huh, uh-huh. Yes, yes, yes, yes is the answers.
Q Okay. You talked about Mr. Warren Williams' relationship to Adrian Fenty, Mayor Fenty?
A That I don't remember.
Q You don't remember?
A I talked about his lease violations.
Q His lease violations.
A His lease violations and the unpaid amount of rent that he had long after the conclusion of the loss of his lease on the property, and all of what went into all of that. I talked about that, too.
I talked about the fact that he had been an irresponsible holder of an alcohol license and he had been irresponsible as a holder of a lease on a government property.

And those are the important things to keep in mind. Because under the clean hands doctrine, that would relate to the award of any particular new government privilege.
Q Including the Florida Avenue development?
A Including the Florida Avenue development.
Q Okay. Did you talk about the Florida Avenue development during that meeting on May 29?
A I don't believe we did.
Q You don't believe you did?
A I have no recollection of that being discussed.
Q Okay. If others have that recollection, then, would they be mistaken, or you just don't recall?
A I don't know. I can't -- I can't characterize what others say.
Q But the same concerns that you had expressed about Warren Williams to the staff of WMATA, the fact that he may have owed money to the District and the like, were the same concerns that you addressed face to face with him on May 29, 2008?

A That's right, that's right. Because my question was whether or not this disqualified him from a future benefit under the clean hands doctrine.
Q Disqualified him including --
A From a future award of a government privilege.
Q Including the WMATA?
A I don't think -- I don't think WMATA was -- this was barely about the lottery contract. This was about the ethical behavior and the business practices, you know, of Warren Williams and the company that operated Club U. And that's what -- that's what it was about. And that's all the discussion -- that's where all the discussion centered.
Q Did you say, Councilman Graham, to Warren Williams that you're winning too much?
A No, I don't recall that.
Q Okay. Did you say to Warren Williams, you have to give me something?

Page 63

A I don't recall that.
Q Did you say to Warren Williams that if you -- that you would feel differently about the lottery if he weren't involved in another deal?
MR. ZVENYACH: I'm going to interrupt at this point and invoke the legislative immunity. The decision-making about the lottery contract is covered by the legislative immunity.
MR. BONDI: I don't think Councilman Graham is going to hide on that question.
MR. ZVENYACH: It's not about hiding. It's about whether we waive it in this and future matters. And I'm going to instruct him that the legislative immunity applies.
BY MR. BONDI:
Q Councilman Graham, are you going to follow that instruction?
A Well, I have to. Counselor, you know. I have a lawyer here for a reason, and I'm going to --
MR. ZVENYACH: Yeah, I'm instructing you not to answer that question.
BY MR. BONDI:

Q Councilman Graham, did you give -- make any statement whatsoever during that meeting that could have been interpreted or misinterpreted as a quid pro quo, if you give me something, I will give you something?
A I don't recall.
Q You don't recall?
A That's what I said.
Q Now, I mean, that's a pretty serious allegation that people are making about you --
MR. ZVENYACH: Can I interrupt here? Because one thing I want to be clear about this. When you say "quid pro quo," you're not referring to what legally we think of as bribery; you're talking about the Latin interpretation of this for that; right?
MR. BONDI: That's -- that's correct. That's correct. Although my Latin is a bit -- is a bit rusty, as the good Judge John Bailey used to tell me when I used to appear before him.
MR. ZVENYACH: I could be wrong about it too, but at least that's my understanding.

Page 65

BY MR. BONDI:
Q Councilman Graham, making a statement of a constituent or a person in the District that if you give me this, I'll support you for this seems to me like a pretty serious thing. And I'm -- I'm just a bit surprised that you just don't recall that.
I mean, it would be like I don't recall what I ate for dinner yesterday, I don't recall what I ate for dinner last week, but I do recall that I didn't shoot my dog.
So it seems to me that asking you if you recall a "you give me this and I'll support you for this" is something pretty serious there.
Why don't you think you recall one way or another whether you said that?
A Because I -- my recollection of the meeting is entirely different than that, as I have expressed. And anything that would have been said along any of the lines that you're suggesting would have been said in passing.
It wasn't -- it wasn't a discussion that would have occurred in extenso, do you know what I'm saying?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013410

Because, again, the meeting was so -- and it was at points maybe a little theatrical, it was at points maybe a bit emotional, because the posters in particular were very offensive. And, you know, and I had very good reason to believe that they had funded it.
And, also, just the whole difficulties associated with Club U were -- were really problematic for the public safety on U Street. And that's where the meeting went, and that's what the meeting was about.
I'm telling you my most honest recollection.
Q Sure, sure.
A And so maybe at the very end of the meeting, there were things said, maybe -- you know, recognizing how thin their abilities were, and if you -- if you conduct this investigation without examining closely how able these parties were, you miss the point, in my opinion, you miss the point entirely of what my concerns were.

Page 67

Because what I was concerned about was what, in fact, happened. We lost three years because this company was awarded the Metro joint development site. Three years of blight continued on U Street when there could have been solid progress, had the right party been picked.
Q And it's still not developed?
A Well, but it's happening, finally, under JBG.
But that was my fear, and I was right. And it was the concern of -- and I don't want to lose track of this. It was the concern of everybody who was at that table at Metro, everybody who looked at this. And there was only one reason that they had -- that they even got the term sheet, and that was because they offered $3 million more than the closest, you know.
There was never any suggestion that Banneker per se was able to do this.
And, you know, this is reinforced, if you will be patient with me for a moment. Chair Hudgins, who is still on the Metro board, who was part of all of this, part of all of this, she said, "the decision not to proceed was based upon a dramatic change in the developer's proposed price and other factors adverse to WMATA's business interests, not in the views of Mr. Graham or any individual board member."

This is an eyewitness, a participant in all these deliberations, Kathy Hudgins. She was, in fact, the chairman of the relevant committee during a period of time.
So here, you know, this is what this is about, a company that should not have been awarded this in the first place and -- but they did -- they won the award because of the high real estate value that they offered.
Even though -- and I'll finish with this. Even though at the time, I and others said bank financing won't proceed on this high real estate value. And then you compare that with their balance sheet and their financial assets, and what they had actually accomplished heretofore, that's the issue.
And please examine those things closely, because all of the evidence that Metro has assembled on this indicate that the problem with Banneker was Banneker.

Q Sure. And, Councilman Graham, make no mistake whatsoever that we are looking into those issues. And the difficulty here is if you and I talked about all of those issues, we'd be here for a few days. And I know you don't have a few days worth of time.
A Well, I'd give you a few days for that.
Q Well, maybe we'll come back, then.
A Because that -- that is the issue. And it's being clouded, and it's being clouded intentionally by those who don't want that to be the issue. They want something else to be the issue.
So something that may -- if you just hear me out.
Q Yes.
A Something that may or may not -- may or may not have been said at the very end of a meeting, you know, is to be the focus, rather than the merits of the application.

And I don't -- I just don't want to lose track of this. Including, by the way, Warren C. Williams' real estate experiences, which we don't have that document, you have it. You can read the skimpy little paragraph that appears, pure rhetoric, as was the case with so much of that application.

Q At that meeting that you had on May 29, in fact, you had even a printout of Banneker's Web site, as I understand, isn't that right, and you went through some of the statements that they talked about and how you believed they were preposterous about their development experience.

Do you recall that?

A I don't. But -- I don't recall that. But I do recall the Banneker Web site, and I do recall the content of it being preposterous.

Q Okay.

A I mean, all of it was a sham.

Q And you do recall printing it out?

A No, I don't recall printing it out, honestly.

Q You don't recall putting it in --

Page 71

A I can check my Club U file.

Q You don't recall putting it in that big fat file that you had on them?

A Well, it was a big file, because it took years to get them -- to get that license revoked. It's not an easy thing to revoke an alcohol license.

Q Now, Councilman Graham, I do very much appreciate your pointing out what you think we should make sure doesn't get lost in the sight, and I can assure you that it doesn't get lost.

But I do want to ask you some more questions about that meeting, because some very, very serious allegations have been made about what may have been said at that meeting there.

Is it -- is it possible, sir, then, that in your anger, in your frustration over being called a racist in the posters that you believe Mr. Williams had some role in, is it possible that you may have said at the end of that meeting something to the effect of if you give up something, I'll support you for something else?

A I think we've already responded to that issue.

Q Is that no, not possible or is it possible?

A I don't have a recollection of ever saying anything like that.

Q Okay. Did you make any request of the persons in attendance at that meeting? Did you ask them to do anything?

A I don't believe I did.

Q You don't remember?

A I don't believe I did, no.

Q Did you ever suggest or imply to Mr. Williams that he should pull out of any project that was going on with the District?

A I don't have any recollection.

Q Or any project with WMATA?

A I really don't. And, again, I repeat, I am not altogether certain I had very much detail on that in my mind at that point in time.

Q Were you angry at that meeting?

A I think -- I think the way I would describe my behavior is more theatrical than anything else. You know, I mean, I have -- I have occasion to behave in that fashion so that my points are well understood.

And I don't know how much of that was genuine anger. I don't think very much of it at that point.

Q Sure.

A But I may have been a little bit expressive, to make the point.

MR. BONDI: David, I see you're looking at your watch. Do you want to take a five-minute break?

MR. ZVENYACH: I'm fine.

MR. BONDI: How are you, Councilman?

THE WITNESS: I'm fine.

MR. BONDI: How are you, Carmen?

COURT REPORTER: I'm fine, thank you.

BY MR. BONDI:

Q Just to be clear on that meeting on May 29, did Warren Williams' experience as a developer come up at all at that meeting?

A I don't believe so. I think the experience that came up at the meeting was his claim that his father had extensive development -- extensive gaming experience, and his father would be involved and that he himself had -- I don't know whether he said that he was directly involved with his father's lottery -- lottery engagement in the 1980s or not.

Q Okay. So just --

A That was the recollection that I have of the experience issues.

Q Now, folks have described that meeting as lasting 45 minutes or an hour. Is that your recollection?

A Probably.

Q Now, you mentioned that you talked about U Street club and the murder that happened there.

A Uh-huh. And the other shootings.

Q And the other shootings. You talked about the poster; right?

A I think the poster was mentioned.

Q You've mentioned that you talked about Mr. Williams' father and his gaming qualifications?

A Right.

Q You mentioned that only very, very, very briefly did the topic of the lottery come up.

A Yes, I think that -- you know, except insofar as the family experience, you know, there wasn't --

Q Help me fill out the rest of that hour there. What other topics did you talk about?

A I think that was it. And then there may have been some closing paragraphs. But I think that was it.

Q How did it end?

A I don't recall.

Q Was it -- did it end cordial? Did it end you'll get back to me? Did it end --

A I think it ended in the way that -- if you have an opportunity sometimes to express honestly a point of view, that in the course of that expression, there's a certain amount of relief, and you feel as though -- because, again, I'd never met him.

You feel as though you've had the opportunity to speak to the person directly. And so I remember a relative contentment at the end of the meeting.

Q And do you remember the lobbyist speaking up on a couple of occasions, saying, well, councilman, let us get back to talking about the lottery?

A I wouldn't be -- I don't remember that, but I wouldn't be surprised if that happened.

Q Do you remember at one point you looking at the lobbyist and saying, now, who the heck are you?

A No, I don't remember that.

Q How much of the meeting -- let's just say it was 60 minutes. How much of that time, then, would have been you talking versus other people talking?

A Oh, that I don't know. That I don't know.

Q Folks have described it as a meeting in which you talked most of the meeting. Is that your recollection?

A I don't recall.

Page 77

Q More than 50 percent?

A I don't recall.

(Graham Exhibit 4 identified.)

BY MR. BONDI:

Q Councilman Graham, I'm showing you what's been marked as Graham Exhibit 4. It's an e-mail chain that was produced to us, and I'll represent to you that the oldest e-mail is the last e-mail on the chain. So it goes reverse chronological order.

The very last page -- and the Bates number range on this is WMATA-INQ 013503 through 013508.

I'll direct your attention, sir, to the very last e-mail, the first in the chronology on the very last page. It's an e-mail from Jim Link of American Capital Group sent to you on May 30, 2008 at 1:59 p.m., subject, "thank you. Dear Councilman Graham, I wanted to let you know that I greatly enjoyed and appreciated meeting you yesterday and for the opportunity you gave the Williams to engage you in the reconciliation."

A See, there you go.

Q "I found the meeting to be productive, and

Page 78

I look forward to discussing next steps."
A Right.
Q "Feel free to contact me any time," and it gives his cellphone.
A Right.
Q What did you understand Mr. Link to mean when he says "look forward to discussing next steps"? Next steps for what?
A I don't know. I think -- I think it's important to note that he talks about reconciliation, because that confirms what my recollection of the meeting was.
Q Have you ever seen this e-mail prior to today?
A I think, didn't this come from us?
MR. ZVENYACH: No, this is the -- this did not come from us.
THE WITNESS: Didn't come from us?
BY MR. BONDI:
Q In preparation for our meeting today --
A I think Jo-Ann Armao has this e-mail.
Q Who is that?

Page 79

A Washington Post editorial writer. I think she has this e-mail.
Q Now, Mr. Graham, prior to meeting with us today, did you go back and look at any e-mails?
A Yes, I looked at -- I examined the contents of your subpoena request, yes.
Q And you reviewed the e-mails that you produced to us?
A Yes.
Q And was this one of the e-mails that you reviewed?
A I guess not.
Q Okay. But --
A Because I see now the period of time it's from.
Q When was the last time you recall seeing this e-mail? Was it this calendar year?
A Yes, I think so.
Q It was this calendar year?
A Yes, I think it was.
Q In what context?
A I think it was Jo-Ann Armao from The

Page 80

Washington Post.
Q She showed you a copy of this?
A She didn't show me copies, but I think she sent me the content.
Q And, Councilman Graham, you will see that you responded to Mr. Link's e-mail. He sends his e-mail on Friday, May 30 at 1:59 p.m., you respond the Monday, June 2, 2008 at 8:12 a.m.
And you say, "thanks," and you write one line. "Do you think they will do anything?"
A Right.
Q What did you mean when you said, "do you think they will do anything"?
A I really don't know. I really don't know what that refers to. That's the e-mail that Jo-Ann Armao showed me.
Q You have no recollection on what you meant there?
A No, I don't.
Q Do anything with respect to what?
A I don't know. I don't know what that is referring to.

Page 81

Q WMATA? WMATA?
A I don't know.
Q Could it have been WMATA?
A I don't know.
Q Who is they?
A I don't know.
Q You have no understanding what the context of your statement there would have meant?
A I don't know.
Q Okay. Now, Mr. Link responds back to you that same day, on Monday, June 2, 2008.
A Right, right.
Q And he says, "yes, wheels are in motion. Everyone took your concerns seriously. I would like to discuss with you and/or Calvin at a time convenient for you, thanks very much."
Now, he responds back, "wheels are in motion. Everyone took your concerns seriously."
What did you understand him to be meaning when he wrote to you in response to your inquiry of "do you think they will do anything" that "wheels are in motion"?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013414

Page 82

A I don't know.
Q Wheels for what?
A I don't know.
Q Now, Councilman Graham, in response to his wheels in motion, you write back to him, Tuesday, June 3, 2008, 7:54 a.m., from yourself to Mr. Link.
You say, "I will be gone from the 6th to the 16th, but I am sure nothing will happen during that time."
A Hmm. I have no idea what that --
Q What's the nothing will happen in that time?
A I don't know.
Q Nothing with respect to WMATA?
A I don't know.
Q Could you be referring to something that dealt with WMATA there?
A I don't know.
Q And where were you the 6th to the 16th?
A It could have been referring to the lottery contract, though.
Q Okay. What --

Page 83

A I don't know, but I can check that.
Q How would you check that?
A I don't know. I could check my calendar for that date to see where I was.
Q Would you do that for us?
A Sure, I will.
Q Okay. And, Councilman Graham, as we talked about earlier at the start, when we talked about the dates, you will notice that the motion to defer the approval of the selection of the developer occurred April 29 -- April 24, 2008.
A Right.
Q And then the approval happened June 26, 2008.
A Yes.
Q Does that refresh your recollection as to what you mean by "but I'm sure nothing will happen during that time period"?
A No.
Q It doesn't?
A No, it does not. But I do want the record to reflect on June 26, I voted in favor of the

Page 84

Banneker proposal.
Q And we're going to get to that in a moment there.
A Okay.
Q I'm glad you mentioned that. Now, Jim Link responds to your e-mail on June 11, 2008 at 12:31 p.m., and he says, "Councilman Graham, I know you're out of town." You were on vacation or traveling? Do you recall?
A I don't recall.
Q Okay. He says, "I know you're out of town, but hopefully you are checking e-mail." First paragraph he says, "we looked into the questions you asked."
Do you -- do you understand what he means by question you asked?
A I think this could very well be the follow-up. This could very well be the follow-up that he's talking about, what next steps.
And now that you show me this e-mail and refresh my memory, this could be the follow-up here, is that he had promised to look into this to determine whether or not, in fact, the allegation -- the thoughts that were in my mind were true.

And here he's giving me the information that he found. Because Jim Link had no involvement whatsoever with these earlier events.
So this is probably what's being referred to as the next steps and the follow-up.
Q Is that what you're surmising, or is that what you're recalling?
A I think that's what it appears to be right here.
Q Is that what you're recalling or surmising?
A This is refreshing my memory, and it appears to be just that.
Q And that's what you're recalling?
A Now that I see this e-mail again.
Q "As you know, Warren Williams spoke emphatically that he had absolutely no involvement in paying for, producing or promoting the racist posters that were painted of you." Right?
A Right.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013415

Page 86

Q And that was one topic you discussed at the meeting?
A That's true.
Q Second, he says, "Warren spoke of his father, who said he did not know about or pay for the posters."
A Right.
Q And you said you had spoken about Mr. Williams' father; right?
A Right.
Q And he says, "while he couldn't speak for his partner, Paul, who is deceased, no one believes he would have paid for them either."
Do you remember speaking about a gentleman named Paul who is deceased?
A No, I don't recall that.
Q And he says, "Warren also spoke to Sinclair Skinner, who denied putting the posters up or paying for them to be produced."
A Right.
Q Do you remember talking about those posters on the May 29 meeting in your office?

Page 87

A Uh-huh, uh-huh.
Q Do you remember mentioning Sinclair Skinner in that meeting?
A Uh-huh, uh-huh.
Q Is that a yes? I'm sorry.
A Yes, yes.
Q Sorry, I don't remember to -- remember the ground rules, you have to say yes.
A Got to say "yes" when it's yes.
Q And Mr. Link says, "he did not have a newspaper at" -- excuse me, "he did have a newspaper at one time that he was the editor of called The Georgia Avenue Defender and does remember his editorials that were critical of you and which spoke of gentrification. But that was the extent of his actions."
A Uh-huh.
Q Do you remember talking about Mr. Sinclair's newspaper?
A No, not about his newspaper. But I remember -- I'm sure Sinclair was mentioned in the discussion.

Q Okay. Next paragraph says, "the Williams family confirmed with me that no family member ever made a contribution to the campaign of Chad Williams, who challenged your seat."
Does that refresh your recollection that the campaign of Chad Williams was discussed in your office on May 29, 2008?
A It may. It may have refreshed my recollection. But it's not quite accurate.
Q What's not quite accurate?
A Because, in fact, the -- well, this gets into the lottery contract. I'm not going to answer. I'm not going to delve that deeply into the lottery contract at this point.
Q I think we were talking about Chad Williams and the statement of the Williams family.
A Right, but it refers -- the answer -- I'm just going to say for the record that there is a problem with this statement, and that's all I'm going to say about it right now.
Q Do you want to confer with David and --
A No, I'm just not going to say anything further. I don't need to confer.

Page 89

Q How does it have to do with the lottery contract?
A Because it -- the fuller answer to this would discuss situations regarding the lottery contract.
MR. ZVENYACH: If I could just take a minute. Actually, can we -- can we take a break?
MR. BONDI: Off the record for five minutes.
(Recess.)
BY MR. BONDI:
Q Back on the record. Just generally, Mr. Graham, do you remember talking about Chad Williams during the meeting on May 29 in your office?
A I don't think so. I don't think Chad Williams was ever mentioned.
Q Chad Williams was a challenger; correct?
A Oh, I know who Chad Williams is. I know who Chad Williams is.
Q I just wanted to make sure I knew who Chad

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013416

Page 90

Williams is.
A But I don't recall -- I don't recall his name being specifically mentioned.
Q Okay. Now, Mr. Link says, he goes on in his e-mail to you, "I realize that you have had doubts about these matters, but these are the answers I have received, and those who have been asked these questions stand by what they say emphatically."
And if you flip the page to the end of his e-mail, he says, "as for Metro, there are a number of factors that make it impossible for us to even consider accommodating your request."
A Uh-huh.
Q What did you understand Mr. Link to mean when he wrote that?
A I don't know what he meant by that. I do know that in my subsequent e-mail, I have a response to it.
Q And I want to get to your subsequent e-mail, but I don't want to leave off of this one.
A So I had a response to it, which, you know, I think answers whatever question that there is here.

Q Well, let me ask you, though, Mr. Graham. Did you have any communications or meetings with Mr. Link beside the meeting in your office on May 29?
A Not to --
Q Did you meet with him on other occasions?
A Not to my knowledge, no recollection.
Q And as I understand what you're communicating here in this e-mail chain concerns the meeting that you had in your office on May 29, 2008?
A I believe it does. I believe it does.
Q Now, Mr. Link was not involved, as I understand, in the Metro development contract?
A I don't know what Mr. Link's involvement was in anything.
Q Okay. Mr. Graham, why would Mr. Link raise this point, "as for Metro, there are a number of factors that make it impossible for us to even consider accommodating your request"?
A Maybe this is a misinterpretation of something that was said at the prior meeting.

Q Maybe something related to Metro?
A Maybe.
Q Okay.
A But I don't know. You'd have to ask Mr. Link.
Q And we will.
A Okay.
Q Does this -- does this, though, Mr. Graham, refresh your recollection that Metro was a topic that was discussed in your office on May 29, 2008?
A I don't have any specific recollection of any discussion of a Metro issue. If there was one, it was said in passing. It was not something to which there was any emphasis given whatsoever.
Q Do you recall something being said in passing?
A No, I do not.
Q Because you keep going back to saying it might have been said in passing, and I just wanted to see if there was a recollection of you saying something.

A I'm allowing for the possibility that I don't remember everything that happened in every meeting four-plus years ago. And so, you know, but whatever -- if something did occur, it was said in passing, it was not something on which there was any emphasis given.
Q Okay.
A And it may have been misinterpreted.
Q Misinterpreted by the audience?
A May have been misinterpreted by the audience.
Q Okay. And --
A And subsequent events suggest that to be the case, because a few days later, you have me voting in favor of the Banneker proposal at the board meeting.
So if I -- if this was -- if I was to follow from this, you know, the way you might think I would proceed from this, there would be -- there would be an abstention or a "no" vote on June 26. And, in fact, I voted in the affirmative.

Q Is it fair to say that while you don't recall what was being -- while Mr. Link wrote this, "as for Metro, there are a number of factors that make it impossible for us to even consider accommodating your request," is it fair to say, though, at the time you received this e-mail, you knew what he was talking about?

A Well, I think that my subsequent e-mail answers that question, I really do. I really do. And it's -- I address that issue that he raised.

Q But -- but that doesn't answer my question, Councilman Graham. My question is is it fair to say that at the time you received this e-mail from Mr. Link, you knew what he meant by "as for Metro, there are a number of factors that make it" --

A That, honestly, I don't recall. I don't know.

Q Let's talk about that subsequent e-mail, your response. You respond to his e-mail -- his e-mail was dated June 11, 2008 at 12:31 p.m.

You respond to his e-mail on Wednesday,

Page 95

June 11, 2008 at 2:26 p.m., saying -- taking the items it seems that he raised somewhat one by one.

First you say Sinclair was seen putting up the posters. Was that in response to his paragraph about Warren also spoke to Sinclair?

A It was in response to his factfinding, which was one of the, I think, next steps from the meeting. Mr. Link may have volunteered to do some factfinding to see what the truth of the matter was.

Q Okay. And then you say, "I would rather not continue this on e-mail."

A Right. Because I had said -- I was so frustrated and upset over the whole Sinclair Skinner -- and more importantly than Sinclair Skinner and the posters, which was directly related to Club U, by the way, it was the Club U situation which I found still very upsetting at that time.

And so, you know, that's -- you know, it's enough already, as far as I was concerned.

Q Well, is that what you said, Councilman Graham? I mean, you said, "I would rather not continue this on e-mail."

A Right, because it took too much time. It took too much time to write all of what I had said, you know, in terms of a meeting that had lasted many minutes on this very subject.

I wasn't going to regurgitate all of that.

Q Now, there are reporters that have -- I'm sure you've seen, that have made quite a bit of issue over this e-mail. And my question to you is is there anything nefarious to read into that statement of --

A Nefarious?

Q -- "I would rather not continue this on e-mail"?

A Nefarious?

Q Yes.

A Nefarious?

Q Yes. Is there anything?

A No, no. Because I never had any conversations with Jim Link.

Q Now, you continue your e-mail, "I will check on the Examiner. I know I didn't speak to them." And we didn't talk about that paragraph in

Mr. Link's original e-mail, but Mr. Link in his last paragraph had referred to his communications person, Crystal Wright, receiving a call from a reporter from the D.C. Examiner who was asking questions about the meeting and seemed to know a great deal about what was said. Right?

So you respond to that here by saying, "I will check on the Examiner." Is that fair to say that you're replying to that paragraph; right?

A Uh-huh.

Q Yes?

A Yeah, I think so.

Q And the last sentence you say is, "the rejection of your application at Metro (which has not been approved" --

A Which was true, it hadn't been acted on yet.

Q -- "is necessitated not by any of this but by other factors relating to the application."

A That's right.

Q What did you mean by that statement?

A I think I was referring at that point to the issue of qualifications of Banneker. And, again, I didn't know what relationship Jim Link had with any of that.

But he had raised the issue of Metro in his e-mail, and I was responding to what he said.

Q And Mr. Link's question -- or statement in his e-mail was, "as for Metro, there are a number of factors that make it impossible for us to even consider accommodating your request."

A Right.

Q Now, I'm curious, Councilman Graham, your response isn't "I don't know what you're talking about" or "what request do you mean" or "I never made a request." But your response is, "the rejection of your application at Metro, which has not been approved, is necessitated not by any of this but by other factors relating to your application."

A I think I'm referring to the qualifications issue.

Q Okay. Is it fair to say from your response, then, that at the time that you responded, you knew what he was talking about when he said "your request"?

A No, he -- he raised the issue of Metro in his e-mail, and I'm responding to the issue of Metro that's in his e-mail.

And, again, I repeat that if there was something said about Metro in this meeting on May 29, it was said in passing. It was not something to which there was emphasis given or any kind of real discussion accorded.

And I think it might very well -- had it occurred, it might very well have been subject to misinterpretation.

But my comment here was, again, raising the issue of the qualifications of the bidder. That's all I can say about this. If I had a -- you know, and there are others that do not recollect anything like this being said. There are those who definitely recollect something being said.

And so I don't know.

Q Who doesn't recall -- excuse me.

Who doesn't recollect things being said?

Page 100

A Well, Calvin Woodland has no recollection of that.

Q How do you know that?

A Because I've spoken to him.

Q Okay. Who else doesn't have any recollection?

A And you've interviewed him.

Q Who else doesn't have any recollection?

A And I believe Hernandez has no recollection.

Q How do you know that?

A Because he's spoken to me.

Q And you spoke to both of those gentlemen before or after their interview with us?

A Oh, I didn't know you had interviewed Hernandez. But he was -- in addition to that, and you don't have the version of that sign-in sheet that I meant for you to get. But there is also folks -- who was the lottery contract winner? Intralot. Intralot?

There is a notation which I will give you from the executive at Intralot saying nothing inappropriate happened at this meeting. And so I'll get you that.

So there are three -- three statements that I'm aware of where they say there was nothing like this occurred.

Q And, I'm sorry, there was a -- the sign-in sheet that's Exhibit 3 that we showed --

A I'll get you the other -- there's another version to the sign-in sheet.

Q Are you saying, sir, that there was another person at this meeting who is not reflected on this?

A No, I'm not. I'm saying I made a note of a person's name with his phone number, and the quote from him saying that nothing inappropriate happened at this meeting.

Q If he wasn't at the meeting --

A Intralot.

Q If he wasn't at the meeting, how would he know?

A I recall discussing this with him, and he may have spoken to people who were at the meeting who assured him that was the case. But I'll get that for you, and you can ask him.

Q I want to go --
A So there's three -- as far as I know, there are -- there are one, two, three, four persons who don't recall this happening, and there are several others who do recall it happening.
And that leads me to believe, quite honestly, that this was something that was said in passing, if it was said at all.
Q Okay.
A And it wasn't one of those things that, you know -- I do now remember that the next steps that I was interested in having were, you know, Jim Link's -- apparently, Jim Link's factfinding on what actually occurred.
Now, he does not address the lease issues at Club U. There is nothing in here about the unpaid rent in here. And I think that was part of what I was interested in finding out more about.
And I didn't find that out until later.
Q Councilman Graham, though, I'm still having a hard time, and you'll have to help me with this one, is that statement that Mr. Link says in his e-mail.

"As for Metro, there are a number of factors that make it impossible for us to even consider accommodating your request."
Q Now, if you had not made a request at that May 29 meeting that happened just a few days before this and he sent you this e-mail here, why do you respond to that statement with a statement that says, "the rejection of your application at Metro, which has not been approved, is necessitated not by any of this but by other factors relating to the application"?
Why didn't you say --
A It's hard --
Q -- I don't understand what you mean by request?
A Again, you know, sometimes -- and let me see if I can explain this a little bit more, if you don't mind, Mr. Bondi.

Page 104

Q Please.
A Is that there's -- I have learned -- I've been in office for 14 years. This is my 14th year. And I've had this experience previously, where something is said to which you don't attach any significance whatsoever but the people who are in the room attach great significance to.
And I wonder whether that's not the case here, that something that was said, again I use the phrase "in passing," that they glommed onto, and this is what we've got to do, we've got to run out here, and I see -- I've seen the energized e-mails of Scott Bolden and all of the bombastic statements that are contained in there.
And I think that's what may have happened here, honestly, is that something that I didn't consider to be serious, you know, but may have been said is then emphasized and reemphasized and discussed and things being drafted and everything else.
And I think, you know, this is a plausible explanation for what happened.

Another plausible explanation may be that I was referring to the fact -- and, again, I'm just -- this is conjecture on my part, is that I may have been -- with very much their thin qualifications in mind, which by any close examination certainly were, you know, I may have thought that this was just too much for them to handle, and that doing all of this would have been overwhelming and that it would have affected the quality of the work. You know, that may have been a possibility.
So -- but this is just conjecture on my part.
But I don't -- you know, to make this into something that, you know, a lot of time was spent, a lot of emphasis, and we want you to -- you know, this is going to only work if -- you know, nothing like that occurred, nothing.
So that's the best I can do on that series of questions, and I can certainly appreciate why you're emphasizing them, but I just -- I just don't have a better response than that.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013420

Page 106

Q Sure.
A It's not anything that has stuck in my mind from that meeting.
The other things that you mentioned have definitely stuck in my mind from that meeting, but not that.
Q Councilman Graham, this file that you kept on Williams and U Street and Club U --
A I wish you wouldn't put it that way. I kept no -- I had a file which was part of an -- a license revocation, a license revocation, you know. And I was a member of the alcohol oversight committee at that time, and I was the ward council member for this year.
I wasn't keeping a file like it was, you know, a -- a dossier, you know, in somebody's background. This was all part of an official record that pertained to a revocation of an alcohol license.
Q It was something you were --
A And you're trying to imply it was something else, which is just so off base.

Page 107

Q It was something, though, that you yourself referred to as having a big fat file on --
A But I do have a big fat --
Q On Williams?
A No, on Club U, not on Williams.
Q Not on Williams.
A On Club U. Because Club U was more than Williams. Club U was its employees. Club U was the bouncers. Club U was the bartenders, you know.
Q And did you have that file in the meeting with you on May 29?
A I may have.
Q Do you still have that file?
A I believe I do.
Q Could we get a copy of it?
A Well, I don't think that's pertinent, but I'll look at it.
Q Why don't we take a couple more seconds before we take a break here.
Councilman Graham, obviously, you understand why we're having to ask these questions and the sensitivity to them and the focus that has been made on this meeting and what may or may not have been said.

Is -- is there any documents or persons or evidence, aside from the documents that you've already produced and the persons who were at that meeting on May 29, that you think we should consult?
Are there persons we should talk to? Are there documents that you have? Are there talking points from that meeting that you might have that you can give us, anything at all, to help us understand really what really was said at that meeting on May 29?
A I think by this time, you should know what was really said, because I think you should know that this was not a subject that was discussed in any depth whatsoever, if it was discussed at all.
And there are no talking points. I took no notes during the meeting. I've provided you with all of the documents that I have, even to the point of giving you Metro documents, which, quite frankly, I had assumed you had, but I wanted to be sure that you had them.

Page 109

Q Uh-huh, uh-huh.
A And we have scoured the e-mails, not only of myself but my staff, and so we have been forthcoming in every regard.
Q And in that regard, have we been thorough in our request for information? Have we asked for all the information that you have that you believe is pertinent here?
A My God, I can't imagine a more thorough request than what you presented to me.
Q I can't imagine a better compliment, then.
A Right, no, we have done the very best we could.
Q Okay.
A Because there's nothing here to hide.
Q Sure.
A You know, I mean, the worst case here is a remark made in passing that people attached great significance to, you know, and proceeded to make more of than was ever intended, you know.
And that's -- I think that's the worst case. And then the fact that it was followed by an affirmative vote for the application on June 26, which is less than a month later, considering the fact, as you've reminded me, I'm out of town for 14 days, really tells you that I wasn't -- there was nothing here that was impactful in terms of my final decision on how to vote as a Metro board member.

Q Let me ask you this.

A You are aware of this vote on June 26?

Q And we're going to get into that.

A Oh, oh, you're going to get into the vote. Okay.

Q We've got a ways to go, and I -- but let me ask you this. If it were the case, Councilman Graham, that you had made a comment, however in passing, about "I'll support you for this" or "I'll consider supporting you for this" or "it would help my decision if you were to back out of the Metro project," if you had made a comment like that, do you think that that would have been an appropriate comment to make for a Metro board member?

A Well, you know, I don't -- I can't really say. I haven't -- I'm not that familiar with the standards of conduct that were in place at that time.

I don't -- I don't think that there was a suggestion that my support of Metro would be in any way influenced. And I think that that's confirmed in the e-mail.

This is not artful language. You know, by the time -- I write e-mails very hurriedly, so I wouldn't read into this too much.

I can see that I haven't read -- I haven't written this very well. But this is clearly a reference to the qualifications of Banneker and its partners. And so that's what that is.

And while I -- even when I had these reservations, though -- and I had them from the very beginning because of the nature of the application that was submitted, and, in fact, every member of the board had the reservations that I had -- I ended up supporting it.

Q Now, one thing that puzzles me. Going back to our chronology, you talked about April 24, 2008 was the committee's decision to defer the approval.

A Right.

Q And then the approval happens June 26, 2008.

A Uh-huh.

Q Your e-mail to Mr. Link was June 11, 2008, in between those two times. And I'm puzzled because you say, "the rejection of your application at Metro, which has not been approved, is necessitated not by any of this but by other factors relating to your application."

A Uh-huh, uh-huh, uh-huh.

Q Mr. Graham, the application hadn't been rejected by Metro?

A No, no, it hadn't.

Q Why are you --

A No, it hadn't.

Q Is this a prediction to Mr. Link that the application was going to be rejected?

A No, no, no, no, no, no. That's why I'm saying, this is not artfully written. This is not artfully written at all. And, you know, I can see that right now, as I read it.

You know, it should have been read -- it should have read differently than what I wrote. And so if you want to make a great deal of that, you can.

But the facts speak for themselves, and the facts indicate that on June 26, I voted in favor of the agreement, of the term sheet. And so --

Q Do you think it was appropriate prior to the Metro board vote on June 26, 2008 for you to say this to a developer who was before it?

A It should have read the possible -- or the rejection of your application, should it occur, although it hasn't been, there's been no action.

You know, as a lawyer, I would have -- you know, if I was thinking that this would be examined in a deposition in July of 2012, I think I would have written this differently. But this was dashed off, if you will.

I mean, the point of it was to say that if and when the application is rejected, it would be on other grounds, having nothing to do with what was discussed in this meeting. That's the point.

And I'd really prefer that you not read too much into a hurried e-mail response, you know. But that's up to you.
Q Last question and we'll take a break. Did you have any communications with any of your other board members at this time about your discussions with Mr. Link --
A No.
Q -- concerning the Metro project?
A No, no, no.
Q Why not?
A I don't recall any discussions with any board members about this, outside of the meetings.
The only one possibly would have been Neil Albert, and that was relating -- was it Neil Albert or was it Moneme? Let me see here. Moneme, Moneme. That would be relating to the mayor's interests in all of this.
But not this. I don't recall any discussions with any of them about this, nor any mention of it.

Page 115

MR. BONDI: Okay. Why don't we take a five-minute break.
(Recess.)
MR. BONDI: Back on the record. And I understand David has a stipulation.
MR. ZVENYACH: Sure. I'm going to stipulate for the record, for the purposes of this deposition, that the Williams campaign, the Chad Williams campaign, may have been involved in the decision-making process for the lottery contract.
MR. BONDI: And, David, I have no reason to come back to that topic, so I appreciate the stipulation.
MR. ZVENYACH: Okay.
BY MR. BONDI:
Q Mr. Graham, we had been talking about May 29, 2008 and the follow-up. And I wanted to get into the meeting that occurred of the Metro board on June 26, 2008, where the board unanimously moved to approve --
A Uh-huh, the term sheet.
Q -- the term sheet. Councilman Graham, why did you vote in favor of that?

Page 116

A Well, I was very much influenced by the -- and I don't -- I meant to get the dates on all of this, but I don't have this date with me.
But I was very much influenced by the addition of Metropolis to the transaction. And Metropolis, again, was -- like Donatelli, was an achiever, a proven achiever with Metro.
They had developed the Langston Lofts project at 14th and V. I knew Merrick Malone well from that -- those -- that transaction.
But more importantly, you know, it was about the construction expertise, something that everyone on the Metro board, as I recall, had questions about regarding Banneker.
So with the addition of Merrick Malone and Metropolis, I felt a pretty good level of comfort.
Also, there were -- there was language added, as you know, to the -- to the approval regarding ethical standards, and that gave me additional comfort. And affordable housing. And, you know, I continued to have issues regarding the financial viability, but I thought Metropolis was a good addition.

(Graham Exhibit 5 identified.)
BY MR. BONDI:
Q Councilman Graham, I'm showing you what's been marked as Graham Exhibit 5, which is a -- which is an e-mail chain beginning at the bottom by Nate Bottigheimer to --
A Nat.
Q Excuse me, Nat, sorry. Nat to two people, yourself, and who is that other name there on the "to"?
A Emeke Moneme, who was the other voting member.
Q From D.C. at the time; right?
A Right.
Q And he was ultimately replaced by Neil Albert?
A That's correct.
Q Cc Carol O'Keeffe, who is the general counsel of WMATA, and Jack, is that pronounced --
A Requa.

Q Requa. And in it, Nat discusses the proposed language for the Florida Avenue item, and he shows you the motion.

Is that -- was that the norm at the time that the proposed language for the motion prior to a meeting would be sent to the board members?

A Uh-huh, yes.

Q And I'm -- I didn't quite understand your response to that e-mail, dated 6/24 at 10:14 p.m. at night, about four minutes after he sent his e-mail.

You said, "one half unacceptable. I want language on the specific responsibility for construction of the building."

A Correct, right.

Q What did you mean by that?

A What I was referring to in that case, there was -- there was an effort made which I think was ultimately unsuccessful to grant the construction responsibility to Metropolis.

In other words, the concerns being so serious about Banneker's ability that the agreement would actually vest in them the power, if you will, to make construction decisions.

And this is something Metropolis wanted, as I recall, and something that Banneker didn't want.

Q Okay.

A I mean, Banneker was in a situation -- and this occurred over and over again, frankly, in this deal -- where they really didn't have the ability but they insisted on making the decisions.

And what they could have done would be to have taken an approach that recognized their limitations and provided the responsibility to others in those areas, and this all could have proceeded more successfully.

But that's what I was referring to.

Q And so you wanted that as part of the term sheet?

A I was trying to get that as part of the term sheet, yes, I was.

Q Okay. And just so I'm clear, though, in your response, you say, "one half unacceptable." That just -- that first sentence there, "one half unacceptable," what do you mean?

A That was referring to the fact that there was nothing on their responsibility for the construction decisions.

Q You mean one half of the motion was unacceptable or one half --

A No, it didn't cover the second sentence, the content of the second sentence. So, in other words, this was fine as it was, but it didn't go far enough. That's what I read it to be in hindsight.

Q I see, thank you. And so you asked for the specific responsibility for the construction to be vested in Metropolis; right?

A Uh-huh, right.

Q And then there's a response from Nat, "thanks very much for that feedback, councilman. I'll try to propose more specific language tomorrow morning with any suggestions."

Did he ultimately come back with language to your satisfaction?

A I don't -- I really don't recall. I really don't recall what happened to this issue.

Page 121

Q Okay.

A I don't remember it being successfully resolved.

Q Okay. Now, you had mentioned a little bit earlier about concerns and factors that you wanted reflected in the term sheet.

A That's right.

Q And I just want to make sure I got all of them. Guidelines for business ethics, was that -- that was one?

A Uh-huh.

Q Affordable housing, another one?

A Yes, yes.

Q And clarity of roles and responsibility of the development team; right?

A Right, right.

Q Anything else that I'm missing on --

A No, business ethics and integrity requirements was something else, apparently. All of that was incorporated into the -- into the motion, I believe.

Q Okay. And with those incorporated items in the motion, you felt like you could support it?

Page 122

A And with Metropolis --
Q And with Metropolis?
A -- in the deal, which was always the key issue, always.
Q Okay. Now, on the meeting of June 26, 2008, did you walk out to the audience and sit next to Omar Karim?
A My goodness, I don't remember. No, no.
Q Do you remember walking over to Omar Karim and saying, "you need to come see me"?
A No.
Q Do you remember having any conversations in and around that meeting on June 26 with Omar Karim saying --
A Before the vote?
Q Before or after the vote, where you asked Mr. Karim to come see you.
A I really don't. I'm not saying it didn't happen, but I really don't recall.
Q Is it -- at any point, do you remember asking Mr. Karim -- at any point in time asking

Page 123

Mr. Karim to come see you?
A The recollections that I have of the meetings, and there was really only one that I remember, there was only one meeting with Omar Karim, was at his request. And there is a documentation for him requesting it, which I've submitted to you.
Q Now, Mr. Karim recalls three meetings with you.
A Three meetings.
Q First meeting he said was in your office at the D.C. council.
A What was the date of that meeting?
Q He believes it was in and around this time period of June of 2008. He recalls a second meeting at LaHalles, the French restaurant.
A LaHalles.
Q You can see my French is even worse than my Latin.
MR. ZVENYACH: I always thought it was LaHalles.
BY MR. BONDI:

Q A second meeting. And then he recalls a third meeting with you and some members of your staff at Busboys and Poets. Do you recall any of those meetings?
A I don't recall meeting with him in my office, but maybe there's something that could refresh my memory about that.
I do remember the lunch at LaHalles, and I don't have -- I don't recall the Busboys and Poets, but maybe there's something you can ask me that will -- I've heard -- I've seen that referenced elsewhere, and I've tried to think about what that was about. But I don't know.
Q Have you ever been to Busboys and Poets?
A Oh, yes, indeed.
Q Your lunch at LaHalles, was that a lunch that you initiated or he initiated?
A Well, I don't have it with me, but I gave you the date of that. It was 2009, I think. And there was a memo requesting the meeting or the luncheon meeting. I think that refers to the LaHalles lunch.

Page 125

Q Or could it have referred to the Busboys and Poets?
A Or maybe that. I'd have to go back and figure that out.
Q Okay. The reason I ask is the chronology, as I understand it, may have been a meeting in your office, followed by a lunch at the French restaurant across the street a couple weeks later.
A A meeting in my office first and the same day go to lunch?
Q He recalls a couple weeks later. And then a meeting in September of 2009, which corresponds to that calendar entry at Busboys and Poets.
A That he requested?
Q That's correct. Your meetings with him in 2008, right around the same time that they were first selected as the "selected developer" for the Florida Avenue project and around the time of this June 2008 approval meeting, what did you discuss with Mr. Karim?
A I don't know, I don't know. If you've interviewed him, perhaps you can tell me what he says we discussed. I don't have a recollection offhand.

Q Okay. Would you have discussed the Florida Avenue property?
A I should think. I had no other relationship with him.
Q Do you recall ever asking Mr. Karim to consider getting LaKritz Adler involved?
A In 2008?
Q That's correct.
A I think that may have occurred -- I don't remember the exact date, but I think that may have occurred after Metropolis withdrew.
Q In 2009?
A Yeah. I wouldn't have had any discussion with him on that subject until after Metropolis pulled out. And Metropolis, of course, pulled out for the same reason as Donatelli had pulled out, that they had no confidence in Banneker's ability or experience for a project of this type.
Q Why would you opine or suggest to him to get LaKritz Adler involved?

A During this period of time, there were various messages to me from the Fenty administration that they wanted this deal to work and that it should be done.
And these messages came from various people, including the mayor himself, who I think on really several occasions said to me, work it out, make it happen, which was his general approach to this type of thing.
And I think there may have been a time when -- Metropolis had withdrawn, and I don't know whether Bank of America LLC, which was another hokey thing, because it sounds wonderful, Bank of America LLC, but, in fact, it was two people with no development experience. It was superficial, as the board itself realized later on.
And so I think there was a desire -- there was a terrific commitment to Banneker by the Fenty administration, which was well displayed in a number of ways, and that commitment was communicated to me very, very definitely.
And it was said in the sense of, you know, put together a deal here that has a possibility of working. And it was in that context, I'm sure, that I would have made a suggestion such as what you have indicated.

Q Now, just so I understand, you said that the Fenty administration had a commitment to Banneker that was displayed in a whole host of ways.
A Right.
Q Help me understand, what were those ways? How did the Fenty administration express their support for Banneker?
A Well, there was some $84 million worth of contracts that were shepherded through the D.C. Housing Authority, which was very unusual at the time, because the D.C. Housing Authority was not -- their contracts were not subject -- actually, it was not through the D.C. Housing Authority, it was through a for-profit subsidiary of the D.C. Housing Authority, which still exists.
And by using the for-profit subsidiary, the council was bypassed in terms of its approval of a contract in excess of a million dollars.

This -- this was the subject -- and I think didn't we submit a lot of articles on this? There was a lot of press right at this period of time on all of this, Nikita Stewart, Washington Post, and there was ultimately council hearings and the investigation into all of that.
So that's what I'm referring to is there was plenty of evidence of a determined interest by the Fenty administration to supporting Banneker, even though, if I may add --
Q Sure.
A Even though their experience and qualifications were thin.
Q Was there any commitment displayed by the Fenty administration with respect to Banneker developing the Florida Avenue project?
A Absolutely.
Q What was that?
A Well, I mean, there were direct communications from the mayor and from his -- from his members of his administration.
Q The mayor to you?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013426

Page 130

A To me.
Q What did Mayor Fenty say to you with respect to Banneker and the development of the Florida Avenue project?
A Make it happen, put it together.
Q When did he say that to you?
A I think it would have happened after Metropolis withdrew. And there was a hiatus when there was no experienced construction company involved in the deal. And it was, get together with Omar, figure it out. Figure it out.
Q And that's what you did, you got together with Omar?
A That's what I tried to do.
Q That's when you suggested to bring in LaKritz?
A Because there was nobody else. LaKritz had submitted a proposal, and I thought that they could have worked together and they would have gained the expertise. I think LaKritz ultimately said no for the very same reason that Metropolis said no and Donatelli said no.

And please don't overlook this, because you've got one, two -- and you've got a fourth. You've got Donatelli pulling out because he doesn't have confidence in Banneker. You have Metropolis pulling out because he doesn't have confidence in Banneker.
You have LaKritz saying no because they don't have confidence in Banneker, and you have Josh Kern, who was one of the original partners, pulling out because he didn't have confidence in Banneker.
So you don't have to listen to Jim Graham or pay any attention to the board votes on all of this to come to the conclusion that the problem with Banneker was Banneker.
Q Mr. Graham, you believe that Metropolis pulled out and that had nothing to do with the death of its CEO?
A No, because Merrick Malone -- I knew the CEO. Merrick Malone was the principal on this deal. He was still very alive at this point.
Q You didn't believe that the death of the CEO had nothing to do with --

Page 132

A He told me. He told me. I don't know whether it had nothing to do with it. But the fact of the matter is I was told at the time -- that's what this whole discussion of definition of responsibilities was about, was the request by Merrick Malone saying, yeah, I'll be in this deal if I have the authority to make it happen. If I don't, I don't have any confidence in working with Banneker.
Q Councilman Graham, did --
A I hope you're hearing what I'm saying.
Q I am, and I appreciate that.
Councilman Graham, did you ever at any point suggest to any of the partners that Banneker had -- including Metropolis or Donatelli or any of the proposed partners like LaKritz, did you ever suggest to any of them not to do business with Banneker?
A No. In fact, I was relieved to see Merrick Malone involved in the deal. That was my yes vote here in June of 2008.
And Donatelli had pulled out before the presentation. He had pulled out before there was anything -- before they went before the --

Q And you had no conversations with Donatelli prior to them pulling out?
A Not to my recollection. And I know from conversations with Donatelli at the time, after -- not before, but after he pulled out, that his -- I know what the basis was for his decision, and it's what I've expressed to you. And it was -- whatever they're saying to you, this is what the deal was.
In terms of Metropolis, it's apparent from all this discussion about delineation of responsibilities that I'm accurate in what I say here.
Keep in mind -- may I say one other thing? Please keep in mind one other thing.
This had been a parcel that I had been very involved in. And we haven't gone into all those details, and we don't need to. But from the time I was on the Metro board, you know, I zeroed in on three Metro parcels. This was one of them.
And there was a claim of ownership and there was a lawsuit, and I think it went to the D.C. Court of Appeals and back. And, you know, there was a huge amount of engagement with this, because I saw the development of this Florida Avenue site to be critical to the east side of U Street.

This is something I put an awful lot of effort into. And to see it awarded on the basis of just coming in and saying we'll give you $14 million for the land being the principal factor, what's -- you know, with a set of qualifications that hardly compared with Clark Construction.

Clark Construction, do you know what I'm saying? Forget LaKritz Adler, you know.

Q Uh-huh, uh-huh.

A It just didn't make sense to me.

Q And that's a topic I want to explore with you, if you would allow, and that is here you are, Councilman. You're on the D.C. council.

A Right.

Q I've seen from your e-mail signatures all the various committees you're on, all the various things you're involved in in the community. You're on the Metro board.

Here you are meeting with a developer on a WMATA contract, talking about terms with the staff and getting involved in negotiation on terms. Why were you doing that as a board member? Isn't that someone else's job?

A Well, don't know whether you remember what I read to you from Carol O'Keeffe's letter, but it's well worth remembering. Because this was written roughly contemporaneous to these events.

"Board members frequently discuss the progress of joint development negotiations with the parties involved."

And this wasn't just -- there wasn't just Jim Graham involved in this fashion. I mean, if you look at the Prince George's County representatives and the involvements that they had with development sites in Prince George's County, or the Maryland representatives, and you look conversely at the Virginia representatives, where they were blocking joint development because they were opposed to joint development.

And so a county board supervisor could say we're not having any development here, even though it might be in a regional interest to have it.

You know, so it's -- there's certainly a relationship here between being a council member and being a Metro board member.

Like today, Muriel Bowser, I'm sure, has a strong interest in moving the northern bus garage out of Ward 4, you know.

I mean, it's hard to distinguish not only for D.C. but Maryland and Virginia, you know, the parochial interests of the local area from -- from the -- but I think I worked hard on this. I don't think I was -- but I certainly wanted to see a responsible development of the Florida Avenue site. I was very committed to this.

I have no horse that I was riding. I was coming in and saying let's get this done. I'm happy JBG has it. I had nothing to do with that. That's what was at stake.

And hey, by the way, can I add something? I was right. My reservations proved to be accurate.

Page 137

Three years were lost, with all this fussing about. And if you review the actual details behind all of the extensions, it's because of had we really voted on the merits, the board would have rejected it, because they weren't ready to put together a deal.

Q And I would be grateful to have a copy of that at the end of the day.

A You've got this.

Q But you've got some talking points.

A No, you can have anything that you want. But the fact of the matter is extension after extension after extension occurred because they weren't ready to make a deal, they couldn't pull it together.

And we hadn't even reached -- forgive me for going on, but we hadn't even reached the issues of construction. They couldn't assemble a financial deal.

Q Councilman --

A I'm still a little agitated over all of this wasted time.

Q I appreciate that.

Page 138

A And now to have this political issue, as if it were the political issue that mattered. You know, it didn't. Forgive me, but an offhand remark that may have occurred in a meeting, you know, when all of this -- all of these facts marshal themselves to say there was a huge problem here, and my -- my prediction was correct. They were bad. They were a bad choice.

Q Let me back up and ask a 30,000 foot, more theoretical question. Should board members be as involved in transactions and in term sheets and the terms of those term sheets as you were involved here, or is that really the role of the staff members of WMATA?

A Well, it's an excellent question, and the answer to the question turns mainly on the personality of the individual and how they work. Because if you accord somebody a vote, what you're suggesting is shouldn't it always be just the rubber stamp of staff recommendations.

And I viewed my duties at Metro very seriously, very, very seriously. And I never saw myself as, you know, approaching these issues in that fashion.

And as long as you have -- if you want to say, well, these decisions ought to have been made by staff in a special tribunal relating to the award, you know, that would be different.

But as long as you have the board members accorded a vote, accorded a decision on this, then you will find that some will be more involved than others.

And I found this -- I have 12 years on this board, and not too many have 12 years on the Metro board.

And I saw it all over the place. And I can give you chapter and verse on what was happening in other jurisdictions. I mean, the commitment of Fairfax to the construction of the Silver Line is an -- you know, it's huge in terms of parochial interests asserting themselves.

Q And, Councilman Graham, fortunately, that is far outside of our scope, the Silver Line, thank goodness.

Page 140

A But you know the point I'm making.

Q I do, I do.

A I mean, it was rife. It was rife. And it depended -- and, I mean, I saw a general manager of -- a highly competent general manager, acting general manager, terminated because of regional interests, and that was Dan Tagliarini, who today is a superstar at the GSA. You know, he was a superstar at Metro, but Virginia couldn't become convinced of his commitment to the Silver Line, so they put him out. So there are these parochial interests that operate by definition.

Now, let me add one thing. We worked very hard to realize Metro as a regional success story, so I don't want you to think we were all there as kind of, you know, it's all about Ward 1, you know. I mean, but when we had a major development site that represented so much in terms of economic prosperity and progress, it was obviously something that would attract my attention.

Q Some may argue --

A I was always trying to work it out. I was always trying to hold it together and support it. It was always an effort to, let's make this work, let's make this work. That's maybe what I regret the most.

Q Some may argue, Councilman Graham, that the terms that you were insisting be included, like the guidelines for business ethics, like affordable housing, you know, clear roles and responsibility of the development team, that those are terms that the staff should have been insisting on being with development projects, that that should have already been the role of the staff to put that there.

A That's a good point. That's a good point. It wasn't. They weren't there.

Q Is that something that you think the staff dropped the ball?

A It's a good point. They should have been included. And today there would have been more of that than there was then. But the staff -- if you talked to the business interests in Washington, D.C. about the joint development process during this period of time. Part of our problem is that we didn't get people applying for joint development projects, and the reason we didn't is because of the lugubrious nature of what went on there.

Q So my question is this, Councilman, is were you as active in this project as you were because the staff was somehow neglecting the job that they had in a joint development project?

A I think I wouldn't have put it that way. But there were certainly things that interested me that didn't appear to be of much interest to them, starting with the fact that you come in and you have this, you know, rose colored glass, you know, land value.

And I remember sitting in the meeting and said, oh, my God, how could we walk away from $14 million? And this is going to be the principal reason for selecting them?

You know, you just come in and say whatever number that you want to make up when the appraised value of the land was 6 million and they offer $14 million?

By the way, something that was reduced within months of the award of the term sheet. And by the -- by 2010, it was down to 2.5 million, to the point where the Metro board said if we continue this deal, we're going to be sued by those who offered more if we let them have the land for 2.5.

It was a loss leader. It was a -- it was transparent on its face.

Q And at one point in time in that development, you actually wanted to open it up to the bidding, reopen the bidding; right?

A I did, I think. I think I do recall that.

Q Why did you want to do that?

A I think it -- that was very late in the process. Again, it was an effort to try to see if we couldn't attract some more expertise.

This was very frustrating, Mr. Bondi. You have no idea how frustrating this was. You can see. But look at the calendar of how long this took, from March of 2008 until the thing was finally put out of its misery. And when did that happen?

MR. ZVENYACH: March 2010.

THE WITNESS: Yeah, March -- two full years of back and forth, back and forth. Let's see, March of 2010. With at least three extensions. All in an effort -- by the way, the extensions were to save the project. That's why I abstained on one. I said, oh, my God, let's just vote and kill it.

BY MR. BONDI:

Q During this process where you were trying to find another developer or encourage -- excuse me, strike that.

During the time period after Metropolis had dropped out, when you were trying to encourage Mr. Karim to team up with LaKritz Adler, did you also have conversations with LaKritz Adler directly and say, you know, you should team up with the folks at Banneker?

A I may have had one.

Q Okay.

A I may have had one conversation.

Q When was that conversation?

A I don't know. It would have been contemporaneous with whenever that particular lunch happened. There may have been one.

Page 145

Q Okay. And what did you say? And who was that conversation with?

A You think it might have been with -- with -- I have to separate the two people. Josh Adler. I think it may have been with Josh Adler. It may have been a telephone call, just a telephone call.

Q And that was the only --

A Would he consider it. I think it was the only conversation that I had with him about this.

And my best recollection is that he said he had no interest whatsoever.

Q And I apologize, Councilman Graham, we've got to revert back to our rule of please don't interrupt me while I'm in the middle of a question.

A I'm sorry.

Q I just got a look from Carmen, meaning that I needed to remind you of that, remind all of ourselves.

A Okay. Okay. Okay.

Q So, Councilman Graham, the only conversation you recall relating to the Florida

Page 146

Avenue development that you had with any representative of LaKritz Adler was the one conversation you had with --

A I may have had, I may have had.

Q That you may have had with Josh Adler?

A I think I may have had it.

Q Okay. And --

A Before I spoke to -- I may have asked him before I spoke to Karim.

Q Did you at any time from 2007 all the way through March of 2010, during this whole saga that we've talked about on the development project, did you ever provide any information to any representatives of LaKritz Adler --

A Information?

Q -- concerning Banneker's proposal and deal?

A I don't recall ever doing anything like that.

Q Okay. Would you have shared any of the information that Banneker had provided to Metro with LaKritz Adler?

Page 147

A I don't recall anything like that.

Q Okay. Is that something that you would have recalled if it had occurred?

A I would think. I would think I would have.

Q Because that would be a pretty serious thing?

A Well, I don't know whether it would be a serious thing. But I don't think I did anything like that.

Q What recollection do you have of the conversation you may have had with Josh Adler?

A Well, I do say I may have had it. I think I do recall a conversation where, just what I said, I said, would you consider coming into this deal, because it's falling apart, and provide the construction expertise that is sadly lacking?

And my recollection is that he said he had no interest or had little interest.

Q In your discussions with Omar Karim, do you recall at any time asking Mr. Karim for his support in the U Street business improvement district?

A Well, I -- I think I answered that earlier. You know, I think there may have been the prospect of him being the landowner of a parcel where we could extend -- I don't think the boundary was east of 9th Street as it was envisioned.

But there may have been something in passing, saying that if this comes to fruition, would you help us with the BID. Because I was anxious to see the creation of a business improvement district.

Q What -- was there some sort of dinner being contemplated that was -- that they were selling seats at a table?

A I have never hosted any dinner like that.

Q Was there a dinner, though, related to the business improvement district that you were aware of where they were selling seats at a table?

A I don't think we ever had a fundraiser for the BID, I really don't.

Q Was there one being contemplated?

A I don't think so.

Page 149

(Graham Exhibit 6 identified.)

BY MR. BONDI:

Q My apologies, I only have one extra copy on this one, Graham Exhibit 6.

Councilman Graham, we spoke a few minutes ago about opening up a request for best and final offer from the proposals here. This was a document that was produced to us, it's WMATA-INQ 006585 through 86, and it is a memorandum for the chairman and members of the board at WMATA regarding the Florida Avenue project from the general counsel, answering the question about whether or not to request a best and final offer from the three final proposers to the project.

Was the concept of going out to a best and final offer, that was a concept that you came up with, right, an idea?

A No, that's standard procedure.

Q Okay.

A That's standard procedure at Metro.

Q To go out for a best and final offer to the three proposers?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013431

A No, that's -- I don't -- I don't -- I don't recall whether I came up with this idea, but it did occur at one of our meetings. And I don't know whether it was me who suggested it or someone else.

But this was, again, relating to the issue of the decline of the land value price and a feeling that if Banneker continued to reduce that $14 million offer down, down, down, down, that we were -- we were entering into a legal situation where if we continued to award it to Banneker, we would leave ourselves open to lawsuits by the others.

And so this was suggested. I don't recall whether it was suggested by me or someone else, that this was a way to avoid that legal consequence.

Q Was this something you were in favor of, going out to the three final proposers?

A Well, we were looking for -- and I don't have the details of how this was diminished, but within literally months of the award of the term sheet, Banneker wanted to renegotiate the price.

You know, it was -- it was extremely difficult at that point. I mean -- I mean, literally, we voted on the term sheet in June, and I think by September, they wanted a major reduction in the price.

Now, it's true, and I have to be very fair about this, that there was a downturn in the economy, and that's appreciated.

But it was reaching the levels by November -- I think by this time, it was down to 2.5 million. And, you know -- well, I'm not going to repeat myself. That was the concern, and this is where it was.

And you will keep in mind that I'm only one member of this board, you will keep that in mind, and there were other people who were not shy and not retiring and had no homage to me, no supervisory responsibility to me, and they were very capable of independent thinking? You will keep that in mind, won't you?

Q And, Councilman Graham, without divulging who we have talked to and who we haven't talked to,

I will tell you you're not the only board member who we've spent quite a bit of time with asking questions.

A Right. But you understand the point I'm making?

Q Very well.

A These are collegial decisions involving a multimember agency.

Q Understood. Understood.

A I love the power that's ascribed to me. Did you get that, "the power"?

It wasn't my experience at the time.

Q So ultimately, the board realizes that they can't do this?

A Cannot do it, right.

Q Now, I want to take you to -- so we talked about fall of 2009, conversations with Omar Karim about getting LaKritz Adler involved, discussions about whether to go out for a best and final offer for all three participants. So it gets into 2010 here, long time in the process here.

A Right. Still no construction, still no construction expertise.

Q You've been very emphatic about how you weren't the one who moved to table the extension.

A That's true.

Q You've been very emphatic about that.

A That's true.

Q But isn't it true, Mr. Graham, that you actually did ask the staff to try to take the Florida Avenue project off of the joint development agenda that would have effectively done the same thing?

A That I don't recall.

(Graham Exhibit 7 identified.)

BY MR. BONDI:

Q I'm showing you what's been marked as Graham 7, which is a -- is there a Bates number at the bottom of yours?

MR. ZVENYACH: It looks like it's cut off. It's a bunch of 1s and a zero, it looks like.

that, dated Thursday, March 18, 2010 at 7:05 p.m., to several individuals at WMATA. Subject, Florida Avenue item off the agenda. And she is the board secretary of Metro.

She says on March 18, 2010, "hello, everyone. I just received a call from Mr. Graham, who instructed me to take the Florida Avenue Shaw Howard off the joint development and real estate agenda. He has asked to be consulted before any public statements are made on this matter. I explained to him that the agenda has not been made public or distributed, other than internally, so it would be as it was never on it. Please let me know if there's any questions."

We understand from interviews that at least there was a feeling among the staff that this phone call on March 18, 2010 was an effort from you to take it off the agenda, thereby allowing the time to expire without an extension for the negotiation period.

What is -- do you remember making a call, Councilman?

A I don't remember this. You know, obviously, it happened, since she's memorialized it. But I don't remember this.

But I think we need to reconstruct the calendar here, because I don't know when -- the proposal -- the motion to table was made at the board meeting in March. Now, what was the date of that meeting in March?

Q March 25.

A March 25.

Q Immediately after this meeting here.

A Right, right. The Metro board meets on Thursdays, okay. This was on the agenda, and this is written at 7:05 p.m. on Thursday, March 18.

So I'm having a little difficulty understanding what this means, except that it might have gone directly to the board. It might have gone directly to the board, and so there was no need for the committee action.

The committee, I assume, would have met on March 25, but that this went directly to the board following executive session of the board. So there was no need for the committee to have -- have action.

Q And, for the record, this document, the Bates is WMATA-INQ 011110.

A But you understand the point I'm making, that this would have taken it directly -- there wouldn't have been any need for a committee involvement, since it was going to go directly to the board. It was on the board agenda, preceded by an executive session, which was typically held in joint development agreements.

Q Now, Councilman Graham, did you -- do we have the board minutes from that meeting? We'll go ahead and mark them.

A If you're attempting to establish that I was uncomfortable with this project, let me just certify that for you. I can -- as lawyers say, I can stipulate to that, that I really didn't think this was something that could be pulled off. And certainly by March of 2010, I felt that pretty much the case had been made.

Q Sure.

Page 157

A So let me be clear about that for you.

(Graham Exhibit 8 identified.)

BY MR. BONDI:

Q Okay. I want to ask you about what's going on here at the March 25, 2010 board meeting. Here's the minutes of that board meeting, Councilman.

A Okay.

Q And it's Graham Exhibit 8, WMATA-INQ 001236. You will see that you were present for that meeting, and there's an approval of an agenda.

And it says, "the agenda was approved as amended by unanimous consent with the addition of a new item, the Florida Avenue joint development proposal."

A Directly at the board, which conforms with what I've just said.

Q I see. And this is a two-page document. If you flip on the backside, it says, "Mr. Graham moved and seconded by Mr. Downy approval to provide staff additional time, to July 30, 2010, to negotiate a joint development agreement and lease for the Florida Avenue joint development site."

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013433

And then similarly, "Mr. Albert moved and seconded by Mr. Brown to table the action, and the motion to table the item was unanimously approved."
A Yes.
Q Meaning first you moved to give them additional time.
A Right.
Q Then you join a motion to table it, which thereby killed the negotiation period.
A Uh-huh, uh-huh.
Q Help me out here. You're a man that -- that's strong in your convictions.
A Right.
Q You move to give them extra time. You have Mr. Downy with you, and then suddenly, you join a motion right afterwards to table it and kill it.
A Uh-huh. I can explain that.
Q Did you just change your mind right at the last minute?
A No, I can explain that.
Q Okay. Please.

Page 159

A I mean, number one, it was very appropriate for me to make this motion in order to put it on the table, because at this time, I was chair of the relevant committee. And so I was bringing forward the motion from the relevant committee as chairman of that committee.
All of this had been discussed previously in the executive session. And it was agreed in the executive session -- since you're Metro investigators, I can say that.
Q You can tell me, sure.
A It was agreed in the executive session that Neil Albert would make the motion to kill it. Why? Why, you ask? Because Neil Albert was the mayor's man, and that Neil Albert by this time had also lost interest in this, lost confidence in the deal.
So there was a feeling that it was better for him to do it, because that was sending the message that this was finished.
Because Neil Albert and Moneme before him had been the ones that -- along with Marion Barry, who carried the water on this deal with great enthusiasm. And that was all worked out in the executive session.

So there was a bit of an adagio here that was put the motion on the table, but then by -- by tabling the motion to extend, the proposal would die, it would be nondebatable, so there would be no discussion, there would be no further --
Q I see. So this was all part of a unanimous --
A All part of an agreed-upon strategy.
Q -- decision to just kill it at that point?
A That's right.
Q You were on board with killing it, Mr. Albert was on board with killing it, and all of the other board members were on board with killing it?
A That's correct. And it was important for Neil Albert to make it for the reasons that I've stated.
Q I see. I see. So when you moved to provide the additional time there, it wasn't that you really thought that they were going to get additional time, but you knew from the executive session that there was going to be a motion to kill it?

A I was quite aware of that at the time. And it's been difficult for me to say that, because of the fact that it was in executive session, and I have a pledge of confidence to those discussions.
But I think I can say this to you.
Q You can.
A Yeah. But I couldn't -- I wouldn't be able to say this to -- you know. So anyone reading this would have the same questions enter their minds that entered yours.
Q Okay. I have a few more --
A But those sessions are confidential. And they're always held on joint development. They're always held on joint development discussions. That's always in confidential session.
Q Is it fair to say, Councilman Graham --
A At least it was.
Q Is it fair to say, Councilman Graham, that

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013434

by March of 2010, that from your understanding and from your impressions, that everyone was on board with killing this deal at that time?

A Absolutely. Absolutely. It had ran out of steam. They had more than demonstrated their inability to make it happen. They had received several extensions, which are well documented, and that they just couldn't do it.

And they had no construction partner who was even capable of pulling off the project.

Q Okay. Now, Councilman Graham, I want to ask some general questions. And I think we've covered this in specific detail, but I think it's important to cover also in general detail.

Councilman Graham, do you believe that you or any of the other board members did anything inappropriate to somehow hinder Banneker's ability to develop the Florida Avenue project?

A No. I think the problem with Banneker was Banneker, and that was well displayed over a period of two years.

Q Do you believe, Councilman Graham, that you and your colleagues on the board gave sufficient time to Banneker to try to develop the Florida Avenue project and come up with a plan to do so?

Page 163

A Absolutely. Poor, poor Banneker.

Q I have a couple more topics to cover with you.

A Is the end in sight, or am I prevented to ask that question?

Q It's in sight. It's always in sight.

A Okay. You are so very charming today, Mr. Bondi.

Q And as are you, Councilman Graham.

Councilman Graham, I'd like to ask you a bit about the letter that you keep referring us back to by Ms. O'Keeffe.

A Yes.

Q Did you review that letter prior to her sending it?

A She sent it to me. I think you have this information. She sent it to me, and I responded and said it's fine. But it was -- you know, it wasn't sent to me, like edit this. It was sent to me, here's what I'm going to send out.

And I do recall sending back, because I recently saw this, that's fine, it's a fine letter, something like that.

Q And do you remember having conversations with a gentleman named Bruce Heppen, is that his name, H-e-p-p-e-n?

A I don't know who that is.

Q The deputy general counsel of WMATA.

A I don't remember who that is, no.

Q Did you have any conversations with anyone else at WMATA on the staff concerning the response back to Mr. Bolden prior to the response being sent?

A I don't -- you know, I don't remember any consultation with me about the content. You know, Carol O'Keeffe, if you know Carol O'Keeffe, is a very independent person. And there was never any invitation to -- to discuss the content of the response.

I mean, I was obviously very concerned about the letter itself and the allegations that were made, coming, as it did, two years after he initially raised them.

And, you know, but he waited two years, for reasons that perhaps he can explain, and then he writes this blistering letter.

And so it was not a letter that was music to my ears, and so I was concerned about it. But I have no -- I had no role in drafting the letter, if that's what you're aiming at.

(Graham Exhibit 9 identified.)

BY MR. BONDI:

Q Councilman Graham, I want to show you what's been marked as Graham Exhibit 9.

Actually, I do have an extra copy. Here you go, David. And David and John, is it, I just request at the end that we get all the copies back, if you don't mind, just given the sensitivity of this.

A Yeah, I mean, that's -- I'm sure I would have said this is a horrible thing and, you know, I'm very concerned about it and et cetera, et cetera. But --

Q I haven't asked a question yet,

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013435

Page 166

Councilman.
A Oh.
Q I know you're eager to get out of here, as am I.
But I've shown you what's marked as Graham Exhibit 9, which is WMATA-INQ 005525.
A Yes, I'm sorry.
Q Which is a letter via courier to you from Bruce P. Heppen, deputy general counsel of WMATA, April 30, 2010.
First of all, do you recognize this letter?
A No, I do not.
Q Do you recall at all receiving a letter from Mr. Heppen?
A No, I do not.
Q Mr. Heppen says in the letter, "this is to follow up my conversation with you earlier today. I apologize for not having written separately to you, instead of copying you on the letter addressed to Mr. Benjamin, as a separate letter might have made clear that the general counsel and her staff will work closely with you in addressing your concerns raised by the letter from A. Scott Bolden."

He goes on to say, "as stated during our telephone call, WMATA staff and the general counsel's office and the real estate office will draft a response to Mr. Bolden's letter, and we will work closely with you and your staff in fashioning a response.
"I can assure you that your interests and the interests of the Authority will be addressed in the response."
Councilman Graham, does this refresh your recollection that you had conversations with Mr. Heppen concerning a response to Mr. Bolden's letter?
A No.
Q Do you --
A But I may have -- obviously, I did. You know, I don't recall any conversations. I thought I had spoken to Carol O'Keeffe when I -- you know, I was obviously concerned about the letter, and I was concerned about what would be said.

Page 168

But, again, I would say to you that in the specifics, I was not. I had -- I had no opportunity to effect the specifics of the letter, none.
Q Did the WMATA staff work closely with you in fashioning a response?
A Not to my recollection. And I don't have any -- we sent you e-mails on this, because this is 2010. We sent you our e-mails on this. And there was no -- there was no e-mail of, you know, change this paragraph, you know. Nothing like that occurred.
Q And the letter refers to a telephone call, though.
A Yeah.
Q Did you have telephone calls with the general counsel or her staff concerning how to respond to Mr. Bolden's letter?
A No. The only -- the only recollection I have there is an expression of -- I was -- I was upset that such a letter would have been written and that I was obviously concerned that Metro do respond to it.

Page 169

But Carol O'Keeffe -- and I don't know about Mr. Heppen. I don't really remember him too well, or at all. But Carol O'Keeffe does not invite, you know, involvement in her affairs, in her affairs as the general counsel, she really doesn't.
And I knew that that wasn't going to -- that I wasn't -- you know, I might be given the courtesy of saying here's what we're sending, but that would be it, that there would be no "you get back to me if you agree with what I've written."
Q Now, Councilman Graham, though, prior to that draft being written, though, did you express the concerns to Ms. O'Keeffe or members of her staff about the allegations that Mr. Bolden was making in a similar fashion that you've shared with us why Mr. Bolden's allegations, you believe, are not correct?
A I don't have his letter. I mean, I'm -- is this it?
MR. ZVENYACH: Scott Bolden's letter?
THE WITNESS: Yes.
I think it was -- I think most of my comments, you know, would have been along the lines of, you know, taking exception to what he wrote and, you know, stating what I believed then and what I believe today was the reason why this project ultimately failed.

It had nothing to do with the points that he was making. It had everything to do with the in -- the lack of qualifications and ability of the bidder. It was a bad choice.

And I think I would probably have said words to that effect, which Carol O'Keeffe would have been well affair of.

BY MR. BONDI:

Q I know you probably have very emotional responses to some of the allegations that Mr. Bolden has made in his letter. I don't mean to show you this letter to get you upset, sir, but I do want to ask you about some of the allegations he's made, just so you'll have an opportunity --

A This is his original letter?

Q Yes, sir. Just so you'll have an opportunity on some of the points to refute them. I have no doubt that you disagree with other points that we may not discuss today, and if I don't ask you about them, it's not because I believe you're in agreement with them.

A Uh-huh. But, Mr. Bondi, may I suggest that the response to Mr. Bolden's letter is here?

Q Yes, sir.

A This is the response to Mr. Bolden's letter.

Q And let the record reflect that --

A Whatever I have to say or not say about what he said is -- the real response is coming from Carol O'Keeffe on behalf of the agency, after reviewing this matter.

Q And on your behalf; right?

A Well, I don't think she wrote this on my behalf. I think she wrote it on behalf of WMATA.

Q Mr. Heppen says, "I can assure you that your interest and the interest of the Authority will be addressed in the response."

A Right, but I don't think -- I don't know about Mr. Heppen, but I think Carol O'Keeffe felt she was responding on behalf of WMATA.

Q And, Councilman Graham, just for the record, you were referring to the response that had been filed by Carol O'Keeffe. And just so we have that in the record with this letter, since, as you point out, you believe they go hand in hand --

A They do.

Q -- I would like to mark that as an exhibit. Can we mark that as an exhibit, please?

A You have a copy of it, I know.

Q Yes, sir, absolutely.

A You know, I just wonder -- may I say something? I just wonder, how can everybody be wrong and Omar Karim and Scott Bolden be right? How is it that this entire assembly of staff and board members and motion after motion, month after month, all of that is wrong and they're right?

I mean, I don't -- I really don't get it. You know, there's such a preponderance, if I can use that word, such a preponderance of evidence on this single point that I -- I feel like I've fallen down the rabbit hole, I really do. I don't -- I don't understand this. And I say that to you in total candor.

Because if you interviewed everybody who was voting on this issue over all those years of consideration, you would find every single person saying to you that there were problems with the qualifications of this bidder that were remedied by Donatelli, that were remedied by Malone, we thought they might be remedied by Bank of America LLC but nothing ever happened. That's what they would tell you. And you probably have heard that.

Am I wrong in saying this?

(Graham Exhibits 10 and 11 identified.)

BY MR. BONDI:

Q I'm marking, Councilman Graham, just so allegations are not in a set of exhibits that aren't refuted. So I'm marking both of those exhibits. And I hope you appreciate why I'm doing that, in fairness.

So I'm marking Exhibit 10, Graham Exhibit 10, which is Mr. Bolden's allegations in his letter dated April 27, 2010, WMATA-INQ 000005 through 14.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013437

And then I'm marking as Graham Exhibit 11 Ms. O'Keeffe's response, which was dated May 28, 2010, a letter that Ms. O'Keeffe writes to Mr. Bolden. And that is WMATA-INQ 000015 through 20.

I'll mark both of those in the record, but I want to ask you, though, about the allegations themselves, because some of them are levied directly to you. And as you point out, you believe Ms. O'Keeffe was responding on behalf of WMATA, the Authority, the agency, and I want to give you an opportunity -- I'm sorry.

I want to give you an opportunity, Mr. Graham, to respond back --

A Paragraph by paragraph?

Q -- on your own behalf.

No, sir, as I mentioned, we'll understand that just because we don't cover a paragraph doesn't mean you adopt it as being a fact. But I did want to ask you about some specific statements in this letter, if we could, from Mr. Bolden.

A All right.

Q On the page number of Graham Exhibit 10, on the page Bates number ending 7, the first full paragraph.

A Page 7?

MR. ZVENYACH: Page 3 of the letter.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

BY MR. BONDI:

Q First full paragraph, Mr. Bolden writes, "in early 2008, WMATA staff requested that the WMATA board approve the term sheet previously agreed to by the parties and the selection of Banneker to perform the project. Later that month, April 17, 2008, Rosalyn Doggett contacted Omar Karim to inform him that WMATA board member Jim Graham raised issues regarding the participation of then Banneker principal Warren Williams, Junior in the project."

I want to stop there. I want to ask, Councilman Graham, is there any basis in fact for Mr. Bolden to say that you had raised issues regarding the participation of then Banneker principal Warren Williams, Junior in the project at this time period?

A I -- I don't recall, is the answer. But it could very well be related to the clean hands doctrine, which I have previously mentioned, and which I raised as part of the board's consideration of the approval of the term sheet on June 26.

Q Okay. And in that paragraph, Ms. Doggett goes on -- or Mr. Bolden goes on to write, "Ms. Doggett recommend that Banneker respond to the issues raised by Jim Graham in a written submission to WMATA."

Do you recall ever asking for a written submission?

A No, I do not.

Q In the last paragraph on that page, I want to ask you about that. It says, "following the June 26, 2008 committee meeting, the WMATA board reconvened later that day to review and vote on matters that had been approved by various board committees. During the full meeting of the board, Mr. Graham approached and met briefly with Mr. Karim while he was in the audience. Mr. Graham informed Mr. Karim that he would vote for Banneker's selection to perform the project, but that Mr. Karim needed to meet with him to discuss the project."

We talked a bit earlier about whether you had approached Mr. Karim, and you didn't recall.

A I don't recall that.

Q Does this refresh your recollection at all?

A No, it does not.

Q Okay. Do you recall ever informing Mr. Karim that you would vote for the selection but that Mr. Karim needed to meet with you to discuss the project?

A No, I do not recall that.

Now, you do notice here, you're skipping several paragraphs? I don't know whether you -- I suppose you did that intentionally?

Q I did. And with the caveat upfront, Councilman, that I said just because I'm not covering a paragraph doesn't mean that I assume that you adopt it or agree with it.

A Okay.

Q But if there's something you wanted to point out earlier, I'd be more than happy to --

Page 178

A If you don't mind.
Q No, go ahead, please.
A Warren Williams was not dropped at this point. And, in fact, a letter came back. I remember the substance of the information saying that the debts had been met.
And prior to that, I had no idea whether that had happened. I knew there was $100,000 plus outstanding owed to the District from a lease that had been severed several years earlier, and so I did not know that that money had actually been paid.
But that was part of the whole clean hands concerns that I had.
Q Now, did you have a clean hands concern about Omar Karim?
A No, I had no idea who he was.
Q Did you ever ask Mr. Karim or say to Mr. Karim, "you know, I'll support you or I'd be more supportive of you if you didn't have Warren Williams"?
A No, I don't have any recollection of ever having said that.

Q Okay. If you flip to the next page, sir, it's Bates number 8, which is the fourth page of the letter, the first paragraph says, "on or about July 2, 2008, Mr. Graham and Mr. Karim met at Mr. Graham's council of the District of Columbia office and then again at a restaurant to discuss the project.
"During these meetings, Mr. Graham informed Mr. Karim that he wanted the project to set aside 20 percent of its residential units as affordable housing."
I'll stop there. Do you disagree with any of those two statements?
A No, but I would mention that Carol O'Keeffe wrote in her letter of May 28, 2010, "board members frequently discuss the progress of joint development negotiations with the parties involved. The nature of these discussions is dynamic and may include ways to strengthen the development team, but these discussions do not bind the WMATA board of directors."

Page 180

Q Now, the --
A So there's nothing, according to the general counsel of Metro WMATA at the time, you know, there was nothing -- nothing inappropriate about this.
Q It says here that you had informed Mr. Karim that you wanted the project to set aside 20 percent of the residential units as affordable housing. Is that correct? Did you?
A I had an interest in affordable housing on this site, and that may well have occurred.
Q Okay. And is that in keeping with Ms. O'Keeffe's statement in her response that that was to strengthen the board -- the development?
A Uh-huh, uh-huh, yes.
Q How does affordable housing -- forgive me for asking, but how does affordable housing strengthen the development?
A As a matter of public -- thank you, I'm sorry. I'm sorry.
As a matter of public policy. Advancing the needs of those who are less fortunate, maintaining the diversity of our neighborhoods, is an important issue.

And it wasn't one that the board was as conscious of then as it is today. But today, there's actually now, unless they have changed it since I left, actually a Metro WMATA policy to incorporate affordable housing set-asides.
Q The letter from Mr. Bolden goes on to say that "Mr. Graham also strongly suggested that Banneker add LaKritz Adler, a small local real estate firm, to its development team for the project or purchase their interest in an adjacent property that LaKritz Adler was controlling at the time."
Councilman Graham, is it a correct statement to say that you suggested to Mr. Karim that Banneker add LaKritz Adler to its development team for the project?
A I don't believe that is accurate. Because I think that suggestion was made, but it was made later, after Metropolis.
Q You believe it was made in 2009?
A I think he's got it confused there. I think that at this point in time, July 2008, I was very comfortable with the fact that Metropolis was the construction expertise on the deal.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013439

Q Okay. And he says, "or purchase their interest in an adjacent property that LaKritz Adler was controlling at the time."

Did you ever suggest to any representatives at Banneker that they purchase LaKritz Adler's interest in an adjoining -- in an adjacent property that LaKritz Adler was controlling at the time?

A I don't recall that. But -- but that was -- that was an obvious step, because in anticipation of their proposal, LaKritz Adler had an option on an adjacent parcel.

Obviously, incorporating that into the -- into the deal would have strengthened the development deal. And I don't know whether that option had monetary value or not or whether it would have expired. Because I don't think anybody would have developed that smaller site by itself.

But ultimately, it was incorporated into the Banneker deal.

Q Okay.

A Whether it involved any deal with LaKritz Adler or not, I don't know. But it was -- certainly the owner of the property gave some kind of an option to Banneker.

Q He goes on to say, "LaKritz Adler and its principals contributed significantly to Mr. Graham's District of Columbia reelection campaign."

A I had known LaKritz Adler from several projects they had done on Georgia Avenue. And I believe that they did make contributions. I don't know whether you'd consider it significant. I don't think it was much more than a couple thousand dollars.

Q Did you consider it significant?

A Well, every support that you get in an election is significant, you know, at the time. But, I mean, at this point, I was raising 300,000 per campaign, so I don't think -- in the context of that total amount, I don't think it's significant.

Q Is that generally what's spent on a campaign for the council, about 300,000? I'm just curious.

A Well, it's actually much higher now.

Q Really?

A But at the time, you know, I think I was -- it was about -- well, some of the -- some of the wards spend less than others, but I think that's what I was about spending.

Actually, though, that's not true. Because what I did in 2006 was I raised $300,000, but I transferred $160,000 to my constituent services fund, where I had $40,000 per year, which was the maximum, so I didn't have to raise anymore money.

So while I raised 300,000 in 2006, I only spent about 140.

Q Interesting.

A Yeah. So I didn't ask anybody for any money for four years.

Q Well, I don't want to get into any of your campaign fund-raising.

A I just thought you might be interested in knowing.

Page 185

Q I am interested, just merely -- merely as a citizen. So I'll move on and not let my curiosity as a citizen interfere with the questions here.

Councilman Graham, going on to page 5 of this letter that Mr. Bolden writes, and it's a WMATA-INQ 9 is the Bates number, top paragraph.

"On October 22, 2009, Mr. Graham met with Mr. Karim and Banneker's chief financial officer (CFO) to discuss the project. Mr. Graham told both Mr. Karim and Banneker's CFO that the firm should not have bid on the WMATA project and that he won't allow the sale of the WMATA-owned parcels located at Shaw Howard Florida Avenue."

Let me take those separately. First of all, do you remember meeting with Mr. Karim and Banneker's CFO on or about October 22, 2009?

A Is this the LaHalles meeting?

Q I believe this may be the Busboys and Poets meeting.

A Oh, no, that one I don't.

Q I don't know, Councilman Graham.

Page 186

A I only remember one lunch with this guy. But maybe we did. Maybe we did.
Q Okay.
A I don't remember either of these quotes.
Q Okay. So, Councilman Graham, I take it you don't remember ever suggesting or saying to Mr. Karim or Banneker's CFO that Banneker should not have bid on the WMATA project?
A I don't remember saying that. I don't remember saying that.
Q Is that something that you might have said?
A I certainly had a lot of doubts about this project by October of 2009, that's for sure.
Q So it's within the realm of possibility that you may have said this?
A Within the realm of possibility.
Q Okay. The second point is he said that you'd said in and around October 2009 that you wouldn't allow the sale of the WMATA-owned parcels located at Shaw Howard Florida Avenue.
Did you ever express in fall of 2009 to

Page 187

Mr. Karim or Banneker's CFO that you wouldn't allow the sale of WMATA-owned parcels?
A That I would not allow?
Q That's right.
A Well, I would now refer you again to Carol O'Keeffe's letter, which says, "your assertion that Mr. Graham advocated for the Florida Avenue project to be a lease transaction is consistent with a long-standing policy of the board to enter into leases rather than sales."
You know, I was generally against sales, and so, you know, they wanted the sale for obvious reasons, because in this desperate effort, this really last-ditch effort to put the deal together, it would have been a stronger deal for them if they could purchase it.
Q And, Councilman Graham, you were not in favor of a joint tenancy either, were you?
A What is that about?
Q Incorporating a -- another property.
A No. The board was against it. And Carol O'Keeffe particularly was against it, because of the -- because of the lack of accountability to Metro if you had another part owner.

And she will recall that very distinctly, I'm sure. She was very adamant in opposing that.
Q And, Councilman Graham, I --
A Did I mention the fact that there were other members of this board and that there were staff people that gave opinions?
Q A few times, I believe.
A And had thoughts?
Q Several times.
A Oh, okay. Just for the sake of the record.
Did I also mention the fact that this is -- that Scott Bolden waited two years to write this letter, and that the major complaint that he has was very much he's -- isn't Scott Bolden an officer of the bar, isn't he a former attorney in the U.S. Attorney's office, and yet he did nothing for two years on these serious things that he was aware of?
I don't know whether I said that or not.

Page 189

Let me say it for the record. That may be nonresponsive, Counselor, but -- Q Well, since I haven't asked a question, I don't think it's responsive to anything, but --
A Yes. I'm out of control at this point.
Q But I appreciate your --
A It's Friday afternoon.
Q I know. As much as you want to get out of here, I want to get out of here as well.
Councilman Graham, one thing that I was a little bit confused about is so why would buying the LaKritz property strengthen the bid if you sort of weren't in favor of having two properties there?
A Not buying it, but getting control over it. Because -- because if Banneker or anybody else controlled the larger parcel, it would be a stronger proposal because there would be more development.
And on the other hand, if you permitted the separate parcel to remain under other ownership and attempted to work out a joint tenancy, then there would be the problems that Carol O'Keeffe was very adamant about, saying that that would dilute and confuse the ownership responsibilities under the lease -- the lease responsibilities, rather, to Metro.

Do you understand what I'm saying?

Q I do.

A And that's -- so on both of those counts, it didn't -- it didn't succeed.

Q Okay. Thank you for clarifying that, I appreciate that. Hopefully, this will be the last document of the day, but don't hold me to it.

(Graham Exhibit 12 identified.)

BY MR. BONDI:

Q Councilman Graham, I'm showing you what's been marked as Graham Exhibit 12. And this was some back and forth that you had with -- an e-mail with Scott Butterworth of The Washington Post concerning your op ed.

A Yes, yes, I sent you this.

Q And it's Bates number 84 through -- through 89. I presume this was produced by you all, since David Z's name is at the top. Pronounce your last name for me.

Page 191

MR. ZVENYACH: Zvenyach.

MR. BONDI: I should be able to say that, so I will --

THE WITNESS: And my name.

BY MR. BONDI:

Q And your name, yes, sir. And you actually sent it to David.

A That's right, yeah.

Q I wanted to ask you just about one particular point in here, because there's back and forth with Scott Butterworth concerning your op ed, and he's asking you questions about it.

And so I just wanted to ask you about one thing here at the page 87, Bates number 87 at the bottom, and you say, "while I cannot recall every detail of the meeting, I remember repeatedly challenging the qualifications of Banneker."

And then you go on to say, "and the irresponsible actions of one of its principals with a prior D.C. government privilege." And then you say, "I have a big fat file on all of that."

Is that big fat file the U Street file that you're talking about?

Page 192

A Uh-huh, uh-huh. Yes.

Q We'll send over, Councilman, a subpoena, although I suspect you'll be cooperative to actually provide us that file.

A Why would you send me a subpoena?

Q In case you didn't want to give it to us.

A No, I mean, I -- don't send me a subpoena.

Q You will give it to us?

A Yeah.

Q Thank you.

A Don't send me a subpoena.

Q Okay. I won't send you a subpoena.

A That's really kind of inappropriate.

Q I don't want to --

A I thought your last subpoena was a little inappropriate, frankly, because we were ready to comply. We were trying to work out one legal issue.

Q And candidly, Councilman Graham, I appreciate and I'll let the record reflect that you've been cooperative with us.

A Good.

Page 193

Q And that your counsel, David Zvenyach, has been very responsive and very cooperative.

A Good.

Q And although we've disagreed and will agree to disagree about some legislative immunity, you've been cooperative with us, and I appreciate that.

A Thank you, because --

Q And the subpoena should not have been interpreted as a sign that we believed you were uncooperative, but rather in any investigation, it's always good to make sure you dot your Is and cross your Ts, and sometimes a subpoena helps with that.

But I wanted to ask you about this quote here, because you say, "while I can't remember" -- you wrote this in February 2012, just this year, you say, "I can't remember every detail of the meeting, I remember reportedly challenging the qualifications of Banneker."

What meeting were you talking about there?

A I don't know.

Q Was that the meeting on May 29 in your office?

A I don't know what was the reference here. Could have been. But that's a little bit different than what I remember. So I think -- I think this is actually misstated. It's repeatedly challenging the qualifications of Warren Williams, it should have been. That's what it should have been. Because that's who was at the meeting.
I don't think Banneker really ever came up. I think this might be inaccurate. "And the irresponsible actions of one of its principals," yes. So that's -- that's probably a mistake. I don't know how it was published, but that's probably a mistake.
Q And the next page on 88, toward the bottom, you write, "indeed, the Banneker executive lost out on the contract not because of me but because, as one person close to the deal put it, forces don't want you guys in the lead decision-making role."
I wanted to ask you about a couple of that. One is it looks like Mr. Butterworth says,

Page 195

"since Banneker had no role in the lottery contract, shouldn't this be reworded to focus just on Mr. Williams?"
A Yes, that was --
Q You meant Mr. Williams there?
A That was rewritten.
Q And you have a quote here, "forces don't want you guys in lead decision-making role."
A Right.
Q And he asked for the source for your quotation.
A And I think I gave that to him in a subsequent e-mail.
Q And maybe I missed that. What is -- what was your source for that?
A May I be permitted to research that? Because I think -- it was either edited out or we sent him the source. I just don't remember right now. But I can get that for you. But this paragraph, I think, was reworked.
Q Do you remember, as you sit here today?
A In fact, this is an early draft, come to think of it.

Q Do you remember this -- who your source was for that comment?
A No, I don't offhand. But I will research it for you.
Q Thank you.
A And I will get back to you. But I think the answer to this is I see now, this -- this was a very early draft of the column, and so I think it was significantly changed.
Q Now, going back to paragraph 87 or page 87, you had made the point earlier about Mr. Bolden not being in that meeting with you at the -- on May 29, 2008.
A He wasn't there.
Q And you make that point again here, too. You said, "we're also involved with Banneker, an engineering firm. A. Scott Bolden later cried foul amidst efforts to win a settlement from the city. Bolden was not at the meeting."
A Where are you in this? Excuse me.
Q You said Bolden was not at the meeting.

Page 197

A "Later cried foul" --
Q And you say, "Bolden was not at the meeting."
You've made the point to us that Bolden wasn't at your May 29 meeting.
A Right. This is the same meeting.
Q And that's the same meeting.
A Right.
Q But then you go on to say, "I remember repeatedly challenging the qualifications of Banneker."
Why is it that in February of 2012, you remembered repeatedly challenging the qualifications of Banneker at this May 29 meeting in your office but now you don't remember? Is it just you forgot? Is it just --
A No, I think that's a mistake. And if you let me research this, I'll go back, because I think that was changed in the final, before the final column was written.
I mean, this was a -- a work in progress in terms of me sketching out -- recreating events that had happened earlier.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013443

Page 198

Q Sure.
A And so I'll have to check on that for you, and I will. I will.
Bolden was attempting to work out a settlement at that time.
MR. BONDI: Can we take a five-minute break and I'll just check my notes to make sure we've covered all the points?
THE WITNESS: And we have a cross-examination, too?
MR. BONDI: You can.
THE WITNESS: We're entitled to that, aren't we?
MR. BONDI: Absolutely, if you want.
(Recess.)
MR. BONDI: Back on the record.
BY MR. BONDI:
Q Councilman Graham, we're back on the record. And in closing, I just wanted to ask you a few broader questions. You mentioned that you were on the WMATA board for 12 years?

Page 199

A Uh-huh.
Q And I'm sure that in your experience on the board and then now as a former board member, you've had an opportunity to reflect upon what might work and what might not work for board members.
As part of the work that we're doing, we're also advising the board about their own codes and procedures.
A Ah.
Q And some of the board members have expressed their opinion that it is just inappropriate to meet with developers during a development project. And I know, on the other hand, and we've heard today, that you've met with developers during the -- during the project itself and took an interest and expressed your concerns.
Is that something that you think as a rule -- should be a rule for board members, that they should not be allowed to meet with developers during the board -- during a development project?
A The rule in place during the events that we've discussed was that if you met with a developer -- no, I think that it was you were prohibited from meeting with a developer if you had a financial interest in the development. I think that was the rule. And so that was the standard in place at that time.

Since then, however -- and my recollection on this needs to be refreshed, frankly. But I believe that the board has a new set of standards in place which affect that, and they're different. And I just don't remember exactly how they're different.
But at the time, that happened -- as Carol O'Keeffe pointed out, it happened, what did she say, "frequently," was her word. So, you know.
Q Is that something, though -- the restriction on meeting with developers during a development project, is that something that as a procedure you think is a good practice? I'm just interested in your opinion on that.
A Well, I don't -- you know, I can understand both points of view on this, honestly. Because on the one hand, you know, if you're going to appoint elected officials to the Metro board -- and maybe this is the real question, whether or not elected officials should serve on the Metro board -- then they're going to obviously be of divided interests.

Because they have got their interests that they're duty bound to represent, and they have got their Metro interests.
And what I found over time was balancing that was something I worked very hard on, and I think generally I was pretty good at doing.
But there were certainly some situations where, you know, I had to keep in mind also that the people who had elected me to office had an interest as well.
For example, 25 percent of the people who live in Ward 1 live below the federal poverty level. That tells me that I have a particular sensitivity to bus riders, because I have a lot of people who are bus dependent and who, by the way -- and we had numbers showing that poor people tended to ride the bus more frequently than the subway.
And so that was one of the things that led me to be a strong advocate for bus riders.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013444

Now, you can say, well, you should maybe have had a different point of view on that, but I was certainly influenced by the ward demographics.
Q I see.
A And plus my own personal principles about it.
Q Are there any -- are there any changes or rules with respect to the development project, the joint development project or the approval project -- process at the board that you would recommend be put into place?
A Well, I think -- could I just add one other thing on the other question? And I'd be glad to answer that.
Q Sure.
A Is that I think that the advantage of having -- the two advantages of having elected officials on the board. Number one, they have access to money, and Metro has a great need of that.
And, number two, there's so much more accountability with elected officials. I saw so many people who were, you know, nonelected who pretty much came and went, you know, did what they pleased, when they wanted to please it, you know.

On the other hand, we had situations where we had to stop in the meeting, the meeting had to come to a halt as the Maryland representatives went out to get a phone call from Annapolis as to how they voted.
So, you know, it's -- and these were nonelected people. So you had it every which way.
You know, I think what you need is people who are going to work hard, be diligent and act in good faith. And I did all of that. I was a hard member -- hard working member of the board, I read things, I thought about things, I went to meetings, I had a great attendance record. You know what I'm saying? Which couldn't be said about everybody that served while I was on there.
Now, in terms of changes, I think all of that -- the new standards of conduct which were adopted either just before I left or just after I left reflect a different view of some of these things, and I was very supportive of doing that.

Q What about just issues that have not been addressed by the newer form of the code of conduct or standards of procedure? Anything with the development process that you think needs to be changed? You know, anything at the staff level, at the -- at the board level? Anything at all in terms of a viewpoint of that development process?
A Well, I think having people on the staff level who were more experienced in the realities of development would have helped.
Because I mentioned earlier, and it was really very true, we had development sites that were going begging because people just didn't want to be involved with Metro, and we were told this over and over and over again, because the staff moved too slowly, it moved -- and didn't really appreciate the realities of real estate development in the District of Columbia.
And so I think there were definitely improvements needed in the staff. And that was -- there's no better illustration than that, than them falling for the $14 million land offer, something that evaporated within literally weeks of agreeing to that term sheet.

And I would say again that Kathy Hudgins's statement, very brief statement, is so true, because she said, "the decision not to proceed was based on a dramatic change in the developer's proposed price," is what she wrote.
Q And you'd agree with that?
A Absolutely, absolutely. In addition to the fact of the questions of the qualifications. So all of the rest of this is kind of a heavy duty mist to get some money out of the system.
Q Sure.
A And I think that's what's happening here, is that people are looking for a way to settle some debts that they have associated with this whole project.
Q Councilman Graham, any parting ideas or message or advice that you would have for us or for the board as we try to move forward and help Metro move forward with the future and the development process and avoiding any sort of misunderstandings in the future with developers? Any advice about that? Any parting words? Anything you want me to take back to the board?

A Well, I think to some extent, there's going to be politics in all of this. You know, I mean, I saw it in spades in Prince George's County and in Maryland. I saw it the same in Virginia.

The priorities that were established there were enforced with great aggressive actions, let me tell you.

And in the District of Columbia, we had -- when I came into -- came on the Metro board, the Green Line hadn't been opened, we were feeling very much neglected. We had all these empty land parcels with chain link fences.

I mean, it was a very sad state of affairs. We had killed U Street -- Metro killed U Street after the riots. And so the revitalization of U Street, which you mentioned, occurred largely as a development of Metro sites. And I was very engaged in those, and I make no apology to anybody for that.

And the same is true of Columbia Heights but to a lesser extent, because there were city parcels there.

But that's what we -- that's what I entered into. And if you'd have been on U Street in 1999, you would have had the Club U with violence every other weekend, and you'd have several other bars that were the same way. I mean, it was a magnet for violence.

If you wanted to go into D.C., you would go to U Street and tear the place up, weekend after weekend.

And turning that around, which we did, and it wasn't just -- there were four licenses revoked on U Street -- has made a huge difference. And then the Ellington and then the other developments that came after it were critically important.

And this is what motivated me, you know, as we'll bring out in the cross-examination.

Q Any topics that you expected us to cover that we didn't?

Page 208

A No. I think you've -- you've warmed up this cold soup pretty well, which I've heard about in 12 separate editorials, five Colby King columns.

Q Any questions that you thought we were going to ask that we didn't ask?

A That's a Phil Mendelson question. That's what he asks, doesn't he? Is there something I ought to know?

(Laughter.)

No, I think -- you know, I just hope that you carefully examine all of the -- you know, not glom onto a couple of alleged statements but look at the full record of what's happening here, because I think if you -- I have faith in the outcome of this, that I'm going to be found not in violation of any law or committing any crime or having any financial interest or violating any standard of conduct.

And that's what's been found by the Inspector General, it's been found by the general counsel of Metro, and I hope you find the same.

Q And we didn't ask this question, but just to be complete, then, I take it, Councilman Graham, that you didn't have any direct or indirect financial interest in any of the developers or any of the development partners, including Banneker, LaKritz Adler, Donatelli, Metropolis, Clark Construction, Bank of America, any of those. Did you have any financial interest in any of those?

Page 209

A Nothing. Nothing, nothing.

MR. BONDI: I don't have any further questions, sir. I appreciate your time.

THE WITNESS: Well, thank you, Mr. Bondi.

MR. ZVENYACH: I have just a few questions, and I'm just going to focus largely on Exhibit 10, which is the Scott Bolden letter.

MR. BONDI: Sure.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZVENYACH:

Q I want to focus the attention on what's marked Bates number 7, it's page 3. We've obviously had a lot of conversations about the lottery contract, we have invoked legislative immunity, but I think it's important for the record to state, was -- at the time that this was going on, in April of 2008, was there any involvement with Warren Williams at the council?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013446

A Yes.
Q And was that related to the lottery contract?
A Yes.
Q And when -- and you expressed in public statements that you had concerns about the qualifications of Warren Williams, and I think we've stated this on the record, but I just want to make that clear. Right?
A Yes.
Q Okay. So do you recall contacting Roz Doggett about Warren Williams with respect to the Florida Avenue site?
A No.
Q When -- when there's the statements in here that says, "Ms. Doggett recommended that Banneker respond to the issues raised by Jim Graham in a written submission to WMATA," do you remember making that request?
A I do not, but obviously, I did. I mean, she's memorializing it.

Page 211

Q Did you ever receive a response from Banneker?
A No, I have not.
Q So let me go down a little bit because I want to make sure that this is clear. There's a letter of May 9, 2008 which says that Banneker wrote WMATA to respond to further questions raised by Jim Graham.
Have you ever seen that letter?
A Not to my knowledge.
Q Okay. And the letter apparently clarifies that Mr. Williams did not have any outstanding financial obligations due to the District in either his personal or corporate capacities.
At this point, in May 2008, did you know that Mr. Williams owed any money to the District of Columbia or not?
A I had been told that he owed money and -- by sources in the D.C. government. And that was the information I had until it was -- until I received this new information at that time, that the debt had been satisfied.

Q Well, I guess I want to make sure that I'm clear on this, because there is a glaring omission in this letter, which is May 29, 2008.
At that meeting, you're talking about Warren Williams and all these things. Do you recall whether a debt owed to the District of Columbia was discussed at that meeting?
A I'm quite sure it was.
Q And so it's fair to say that if it was discussed at that meeting and you were asking about it, you had not seen that May 9, 2008 letter?
A I don't believe I did.
Q Okay. So and we'll come back to the May 29, 2008 meeting. But is it -- sitting here today, is it odd to you that the May 29, 2008 meeting is not described at all in this letter?
A Yes, it is.
Q Okay. Do you know whether -- we know Metropolis withdrew. Do you know when that occurred?
A I do not.

Page 213

But you must know.
MR. ZVENYACH: Do you know when it occurred?
MR. BONDI: And Metropolis dropped out? We have that somewhere.
MR. ZVENYACH: It would be helpful to know, because actually, that's one of the issues that I think is also important here, because we know at least by March 6, 2009, that Bank of America had come in.
BY MR. ZVENYACH:
Q So it's fair to say between June of 2008 and March of 2009, Metropolis withdrew; right?
A I believe --
Q Is that fair?
A I believe they withdrew after there was no definition of responsibility. I think that's when they pulled out.
Q And one of the questions you were asked earlier today was whether it was significant, quote unquote, whether the CEO of Metropolis had died.
A Yes.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013447

Page 214

Q Is there any discussion in this letter about Metropolis with respect to why Metropolis left?
A No, not that I saw.
Q Is that an omission that strikes you as odd?
A It is. And nor is there -- there's no discussion of the withdrawal of Josh Kern or Donatelli or Metropolis.
Q Okay. So -- and do you recall -- your statements today are that -- A It's called District Development Corporation was the Josh Kern.
Q The testimony that you've given today is that when you spoke with Mr. Karim about LaKritz Adler, that would have been after Metropolis withdrew?
A Yes.
Q So would it be fair to say that it was sometime -- likely, if you'd met with Mr. Karim in July 2008, it would not have happened then if --
A Yes.

Page 215

Q -- Metropolis was still there?
A That's correct.
MR. BONDI: Sorry, I didn't follow that. If this were a real deposition, I would object to the form.
MR. ZVENYACH: Okay.
MR. BONDI: But since we're not objecting to the form, I got lost on the dates there, David. I'm sorry, you said then and now, and I apologize.
MR. ZVENYACH: So there are two dates that I'm working with. And it would be helpful to know exactly when Metropolis withdrew. But we know that at least between June 2008 and May 2009, Metropolis withdrew at some point. And there's this discussion of a meeting in July 2008 to discuss the project.
MR. BONDI: I see.
BY MR. ZVENYACH:
Q And so the question is whether that was before or after Metropolis. So if Metropolis had been there, would you have made that statement?
A No, I would not.
Q And if Metropolis had been out by then, would you have made the statement?

Page 216

A I could very well have done it at that time. But I wouldn't have disturbed Metropolis's involvement, because I was very comfortable with Metropolis.
MR. BONDI: I see.
BY MR. ZVENYACH:
Q Is it possible that your concerns about Warren Williams were relayed to Banneker Ventures or any of its principals before the May 29, 2008 meeting?
A Through Rosalyn Doggett.
Q Is that possible?
A That is possible.
Q And is it possible that the -- is it possible that your concerns were not satisfied by the May 29, 2008 meeting?
A Yes.
Q Okay. I think I have just one --
A May I add something to that? It's because of all the lease violations that were occurring with the Reeves Center property. It was not just simply the fact that there was a large amount of unpaid rent, but it was also the fact that they hadn't upheld their -- their lease obligations.

Q I want to turn your attention to what's page marked Bates number 12. It's page 8 of the Scott Bolden letter, and it's -- I don't think we discussed this in the deposition. I just want to clarify. "Banneker's allegations of inappropriate conduct by WMATA board member Jim Graham."
Before we get to the first paragraph, take a look at the second paragraph. It says, "specifically, Mr. Graham, in violation of WMATA board rules, has, A, in July of 2008, misused his official position."
Do you see that sentence?
A Uh-huh.
Q And there's the -- this statement, and I want to make sure that we have this right. "To improperly influence WMATA's selection of Banneker by offering to support a separate piece of legislation pending before the District of Columbia council that would benefit a former Banneker principal in exchange for Banneker resigning as the selected developer for the WMATA contract."

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013448

We've had a lot of conversations about Scott Bolden, the May 29 meeting. Would there be any reason, if you were meeting with Omar Karim in July of 2008, not May of 2008, but in July of 2008, where you would tell him if Warren Williams drops off of the lottery contract, I'll support you on the Florida Avenue site?

A No, none whatever.

Q So but you didn't -- did you meet with Warren Williams in July of 2008?

A No. I have had only one meeting with Warren Williams in my entire life.

Q And it's to the best of your knowledge, Scott Bolden -- sitting here today, do you believe that Scott Bolden would have known at the time that he was writing this letter in 2010, that he would know whether the meeting happened in May of 2008 or July of 2008?

A I would think so.

Q Now, the second specific allegation is that you "inappropriately offered Banneker a quid pro quo for a support of Banneker for the project on the condition that Banneker agreed to use a specific developer identified by Mr. Graham."

Page 219

Now, again, this is the conversation that we've talked to. I want to be very clear here.

Did you ever ask for money to support the Florida Avenue site?

A Never.

Q And to the extent that you -- the use of the term "quid pro quo" here, is it your testimony today that you did speak with Omar Karim about LaKritz Adler in the context of trying to, quote, make it work?

A That's right. And it wasn't -- it wasn't a quid pro quo of any kind. It was simply attempting to assemble a successful deal, which I had been encouraged to do by the mayor.

Q And the last is that "Mr. Graham has not acted impartially and has instead repeatedly demonstrated his bias against Banneker."

I think you've already testified to this, but at least by March of 2010, did you believe that Banneker was qualified to conduct this project?

Page 220

A No.

Q The last thing, and I want to just expand on this. The standards of conduct that were in place at the time do speak to financial interests. Did you have a financial interest in the Florida Avenue project?

A None whatever.

MR. ZVENYACH: I think that's all my questions, but let me just check.

THE WITNESS: Did you happen to see this paragraph in Roman IV where he's asking for $200,000? Did you see that?

BY MR. ZVENYACH:

Q Perhaps I should put that on the record.

So to your knowledge, in 2010, did Scott Bolden make a request that this be settled essentially?

A Well, it was the point of the letter, was -- and that's what Carol O'Keeffe responded to as well, that there would be no -- there would be no refund of any of the moneys paid.

MR. ZVENYACH: I think that's all I have. Thank you.

Hold on one minute.

THE WITNESS: Off the record? I don't know why he's doing it off the record. Can I ask myself a question? Is that ever done?

BY MR. ZVENYACH:

Q Is there anything else that you would like to add, Councilman Graham?

A I think I do want to add, in addition to the absence of any financial interest, there's no crime alleged here, you know. Did you get that down?

It just -- I know it seems a little simplistic to say that, but one wonders about all of this in that regard. No crime, no financial interests, no violation of standard of conduct.

MR. ZVENYACH: That's all I have.

MR. BONDI: Well, Councilman Graham, thank you for your time today.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013449

MR. BONDI: I appreciate your cooperation and time and sitting with us for the afternoon. I know we've taken up a lot of your time in your schedule, and I appreciate your flexibility.

We are -- because our investigation is ongoing, we are not going to have a read and sign or make a transcript available. We're not doing that with any of the witnesses.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

MR. BONDI: To protect the confidentiality of our -- our work here. We thank you for your time. As I mentioned at the start, there is no gag order or anything like that, although to protect the integrity of the investigation, we would request that you voluntarily refrain from talking with anyone else about what we talked about today until the conclusion of our investigation.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

MR. ZVENYACH: Can I make a request? And perhaps we can do this off the record, but I do have a request to make.

MR. BONDI: Okay. We're ending.

(Whereupon, at 5:43 p.m., the deposition was concluded.)

CRYSTAL WRIGHT

EXAMINATION

BY MR. BONDI:

Q Ms. Wright, we appreciate you being here today.

A Absolutely.

Q As I mentioned, we're with the law firm of Cadwalader, Wickersham and Taft. We were retained by the audit and investigations committee of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority.

A Okay.

Q Otherwise known as WMATA or Metro.

A Right, long word.

Q It's the folks that run the Metro, or the train.

A Okay.

Q We were retained by the audits and investigations committee to do an investigation into a development project that WMATA had on Florida Avenue, somewhat near Howard University.

A Okay.

Q We'll refer to that sometimes today as the Florida Avenue property.

A Okay.

Q And there were several developers that were involved in that. The main developer was a group called the Banneker Group. There are two principals there, Mr. Warren Williams and Mr. Omar Karim.

We wanted to ask you some questions about -- in particular about some meetings that -- or meeting that you may have attended where one of the WMATA board members was present.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013477

The WMATA board at the time included one of the D.C. councilmen, James Graham, who was on the WMATA board at the time.

Our work is looking at the role of the board in that transaction and, encompassed in that, it's looking at the role of board members and individual board members and whether the board or any individual board members violated any of WMATA's own internal codes of conduct or procedures.

A Okay.

Q We're not a criminal investigative party. We don't charge people with anything. We are a factfinding group, looking to see and evaluate that transaction and the role of the board members in that transaction.

We are not investigating the lottery. That, as I understand, has been investigated and is investigated by other groups.

Our role is focused purely on the development of that Florida Avenue and the transaction that led into that.

Nonetheless, there may be overlapping issues with the lottery that we may have to ask you about. But we are not, like I said, investigating the lottery.

A Okay.

Q Because we are a government entity, we hope and expect, and as your testimony is under oath, that you will be truthful to us today. And I have no reason to doubt that.

We are not, you know, a criminal investigative body. Nonetheless, the WMATA code -- WMATA codes provide that if the board is brought aware of suspected criminal conduct, that the board shall report that suspected criminal conduct to the appropriate prosecutor.

If we could start off just for the record, Ms. Wright, stating your full name, please.

A Yes. It's Crystal Simone Wright.

Q And what is your current occupation?

A I'm a public relations consultant. I own my own business.

Page 8

Q And what is the name of that business?

A The Baker Wright Group.

Q And was that a business that you were involved in or owned in May of 2008?

A Yes.

Q And I have an address for the Baker Wright Group of 5853 Nebraska Avenue, Washington, D.C., 20015. Is that the correct address?

A Yes.

Q Okay. I understand, Ms. Wright, that at one point in time, you were retained to represent a group that was affiliated with the lottery or trying to receive the lottery contract. Can you explain your relationship with that group?

A I entered into a public relations contractual agreement as an independent contractor with Intralot and W2 Tech.

Q So you were an independent contractor with them?

A Correct.

Q With whom did you interact at those groups, what persons? Who?

Page 9

A I'm sorry, can you be more specific? I mean, I'm --

Q Did you have a particular point of contact at Intralot and W2?

A Primarily, it was Intralot I dealt with. Byron Boothe was the one who I felt was the primary contact. There were times when I dealt with Alaka Williams, who W2 Tech was the minority partner that Intralot had to hire in order to be considered in the District. And I'm not an expert because I've only dealt with this one.

So to the best of my knowledge, in the District of Columbia, when there's a government contract over a million dollars, I think you have to have a minority participation. I don't know the exact quota of it, but it was my understanding that's why Intralot partnered with W2 Tech, which was technically headed by Alaka Williams.

So I would say Byron Boothe was my primary point of contact with getting facts, factual informations about lottery and such. Dealt with

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013478

Page 10

Alaka and Warren occasionally, but Byron Boothe and his team Intralot were the primary contact.

Q Okay. And did you have a written engagement letter?

A I did.

Q And did it spell out the scope of your engagement?

A Yes, it did.

Q And what was that scope?

A The initial scope of the contract with W2 Tech, because there were two agreements. One was with W2 Tech initially, and then I think -- and, again, I'm not quite sure when the other one started.

But I think it was a couple months later, Intralot wanted to assume the contract directly because they were paying for it. I'm not sure, but I assume they were paying for it anyway.

So in the contract, when I met with him initially, it was public relations work and then to do some local lobbying of D.C. council members, which I brought in a partner of mine who I have known for over 10 years, a good friend.

Q And was that Mr. Link?

A His name is James Link.

Q James Link, okay. And was Mr. Link a subcontractor to you, then, or did he separately enter into an agreement?

A He was a subcontractor in the May contract. And then he directly contracted with Intralot. You have to ask him when he did that, but I know that that happened at some point.

Q Okay. And can you explain just what your role was with respect to the D.C. council?

A I was, again, hired as a public relations consultant. I'm not a lobbyist by trade. So my work -- that's why I brought James in.

And my work was just to sit in on meetings with Jim. So he registered me one time only as a lobbyist in the District of Columbia, to be compliant with the D.C. lobbying laws.

And, again, he did all that, because that's not my area of expertise. But primarily, my job was to educate reporters and just be in the meeting to talk about the factual issues around the lottery. That was it.

And just -- you know, it was just we would literally go in and say this is why we won, and this is why you should support us.

Q Okay. And did you set up or participate in a series of meetings with the D.C. council in the spring of 2008?

A You know, I cannot be certain of the time frame of that. I know I had an agreement with Intralot, W2 Tech, however you want to call it, with the lottery team, let's just -- I think that's easier for me to refer to that.

In May, I believe that's when it started. I'm not positively sure, but to the best of my knowledge, my contract said it started in May.

And one of our first tasks was me talking to the press, introducing them to me as the spokesperson. And then Jim Link was to schedule visits -- try to schedule visits with each of the council members.

Q Okay. What visits with whom on the council did you attend?

A You know, I really -- it's four years ago. I really -- I probably -- I could tell you -- let's see. I might remember two, to the best of my knowledge.

I think we met with Kwame Brown's staff. We did meet with Jim Graham. He was the only council member that we met with. And I want to say maybe Cheh's staff, but again, don't hold me to that to the best of my knowledge.

Because we tried to schedule meetings with everybody, but I just don't remember.

Q Were there other meetings that representatives of Intralot and W2 -- you said it was W2?

A Yeah. I know, it's confusing to me too. I believe it -- I haven't thought about this account for over four years, but I think it was W2 Tech was the independent, okay. And then Intralot was Intralot.

When you combine the two, they call themselves, I think, I'm not certain, W2-I. But I'm not the best person to probably ask, because I haven't thought about this in a while.

Q Do you know if representatives of Intralot or W2 Tech had meetings with D.C. councilmen that you did not attend, that you personally did not attend?

A I have no idea. You'd have to ask them.

Q And you only recall yourself attending two, maybe three meetings?

A Like I said, there could very well be more. I'm not remembering because Jim was handling the scheduling on that.

And sometimes, you know, he would call me and ask me if I could go to a meeting. But I really can't -- I don't want to be held to that count of three, because I really don't have -- and I'm not sure about Cheh and Kwame Brown.

I believe that they included -- you know, they were part of the meetings I attended with Jim. But, again, there could be more, there could -- you know, I just -- I know that Jim Graham was the only council member that met with us in person.

Q What was the purpose of these meetings?

A Just like any -- you know, I participated in lobbying efforts with trade associations as part of my business on Capitol Hill. And so maybe -- I'm assuming that everybody knows what lobbying is, but you go in and you just try to make your case, whether it's a vote or an issue you're concerned about.

That's what it was here. We were just trying to educate -- we felt many of the council members didn't understand what the lottery contract was all about, that it had actually been -- there was an RFP, and Intralot and W2 Tech won fair and square. That's all we were there to talk about.

Q The meeting with Kwame Brown's staff, did that occur before or after the meeting you had with Jim Graham?

A I could not tell you. I really don't remember.

Q Okay. Do you remember who from W2 Tech attended the meeting with Kwame Brown's staff?

A The meetings that I just outlined to you were just with Jim Link and I. We were tasked with seeing council members.

I'm not aware, you know, of any other meetings that, you know, he and I attended. I don't know what the other parties might have done.

Q So the Kwame Brown staff meeting, that was not attended by Mr. or Mrs. Williams?

A Yeah, it was -- I think it was one of his staffers. For all I know, it could have been another member of the council.

But to the best of my knowledge, I think Kwame Brown's staff was one of the people that agreed to meet with us.

Q When you say "us," that didn't include --

A Jim Link and I.

Q Just the two of you?

A Yeah, again -- yeah, sorry. Yes.

Q And did you have talking points? Did you have a presentation that you did?

A No. We had a fact sheet. It literally was like a Q and A. When did -- when did Intralot apply for the lottery? You know, it was a standard

Q and A. That was it.

Q Did any of the meetings with Kwame Brown or -- you said Cheh?

A I think. But I'm speculating at this point, so I don't want to be held -- I mean, I think Jim would probably have a better record or memory of what the schedule was, because he just said -- he would literally call me or e-mail me and say, hey, can you join me at this meeting. Just because I've lived in D.C., you know, I read The Post.

Q Putting aside, Ms. Wright, the meeting that we'll go to in a moment with Jim Graham, did the other meetings that you attended, either with staff or perhaps even councilmen, did they ever include any discussion or mention of the Florida Avenue development project that WMATA was doing?

A Not that I remember.

Q Okay. And I take it, Ms. Wright, that as part of your presentations on the lottery, you were not raising or discussing the Florida Avenue development project that was a project that Banneker was involved in?

Page 18

A I did not know about that project, so I don't know, no.
Q Okay. Now, I understand you met with Councilman Graham in or around May 29, 2008. Does that sound familiar?
A We met with him in May. I couldn't tell you the date, but yeah.
Q Okay. Can you tell me who set that meeting up?
A I believe it was Jim Link, because, again, he was the lobbyist I subcontracted to handle scheduling. And I think it was his office and maybe an intern, just doing the scheduling.
And, again, making the rounds to all 13 members of council, I think. I don't know the exact number, but I think that's what it is, 13, 12. I don't know.
Q And would the meeting with Councilman Graham, was it a request to meet with him personally, as opposed to his staff?
A No. We made the request through staff offices, just like we -- Jim did on the Congressional side, with, you know, federal.

Page 19

Staff went -- all the requests went through staffers. And I don't know who he -- their scheduler? I don't know. You'd have to ask him about that.
But they were requests, generally. We were assuming we would meet with staff because that's generally who were at the meetings that I remember attending, it was just staff.
Q Who did you plan to attend the meeting with Councilman Graham when you were setting it up?
A Again, Jim Link, my colleague, handled all -- he was the lead on all of this. So he -- it was always the assumption that it would be only he and I, and sometimes it would just be him because it wasn't convenient for me to go.
Q You wouldn't bring any principals of W2 Tech with you?
A That was never a request -- that was never -- you know, we were never asked to do that by either company, to make a request to have any of the council members meet with them. Our job was to have them meet with us.

Q I see. And what happened, to your understanding, when Mr. Link tried to set up the meeting with Councilman Graham or his staff?
A They scheduled the meeting.
Q Okay. And who attended that meeting with Councilman Graham?
A It was myself, James Link, my lobbyist friend who I subcontracted with. It was Jim Graham, Alaka Williams and Warren Williams. And I think there may have been a staffer of Graham's. I can't -- I know there was at least one in the meeting. There could have been another one, I'm not exactly sure. Couldn't be positive on that.
But that's to the best of my memory who was at the meeting.
Q And why was Alaka and Warren Williams present for that meeting, as opposed to the other meetings?
A The morning of the meeting, Jim -- my colleague, James Link, said that he was going to pick me up because we live close to each other and we were going to go to the meeting together. And I said great.

He comes to my house. And to the best of my knowledge and memory, he was at my house, we were getting ready to leave, and he got a call on his cellphone, I think. I'm not remembering, like, the communication, but I'm pretty sure it was a call on the cellphone.
And he looked at me and said, Council Member Graham is insisting that Alaka and Warren be there. I believe he said both of them.
So I said, okay, well, let me try to contact Alaka, because this had never occurred before in the meetings, like I told you, from my memory and Jim -- you know.
So I scramble that morning, finally got hold of her. And I think -- I believe Jim told me that Graham would not -- he didn't want to meet with us unless Alaka and Warren were going to be present.
So we were like, okay, fine. I mean, you know, he gets -- he's a lobbyist, and he didn't think it was -- he said he wants to meet with them,

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013481

let's meet with them.
So I called her. We somehow got it scheduled, and we -- I don't know if the meeting was changed or what, but they ended up coming.
Q Did that strike you as unusual in any way?
A You know, not really.
Q Not at the time?
A Not at the time. I mean, like I said, Jim is the lead on this. He lobbies Congress every day. He didn't think it was unusual. He said, you know, he gets -- but you would have to ask him about this.
But no, I didn't think it was weird. I was like, he wants to meet with Alaka and Warren. Okay. We've got to get them there.
Q And was there any discussion with Alaka and Warren about what they would say during the meeting?
A No, not that I remember.
Q Did you plan for -- did you or Mr. Graham, to your -- excuse me.
Did you or Mr. Link, to your knowledge, plan to have a speaking role for Alaka or Warren in that meeting with Councilman Graham?

A Again, this was on the fly, so there wasn't -- we were just focused on getting to the meeting and our original goal, which was to just educate Council Member Graham, just like all the other offices, about the merits of Intralot winning the contract.
Q What time of the day was that meeting?
A I don't really remember, but I'm thinking it was in the afternoon. I can't be positive.
Q Okay. And I'm going to ask you quite a few questions about --
A Sure.
Q -- what happened in that meeting.
A Right.
Q And I know it was several years ago, but to the best of your recollection --
A Absolutely.
Q -- could you try to give us as much details as you can about that meeting?
So when you walked in the meeting, where was everyone seated? Do you remember who was sitting where?

A Let's see. I was -- I just remember being on maybe this side of the room, like I am now. And I think Graham was near his desk, which was this area (indicating).
And to the best of my knowledge, maybe Alaka and Warren were, like -- you know, it was a room about this size. They were, like, over here somewhere (indicating). And then his staffer was there, but I think he may have been on that side of the room.
Q Okay. And, Ms. Wright, can you tell us everything you remember being said at the meeting and the chronology that was said? And I'll ask you to just tell me everything you remember, and then we'll break it down in a moment.
But how did -- I'll start off, how did the meeting begin?
A You know, I really don't remember how the meeting began, to be honest with you. It was about -- like I said, it was four years ago. I haven't thought about the meeting in quite a while.

Page 25

But the only thing I really remember is at some point -- you know, Graham was affable. You know, he reminded me of like an old southern guy or something in a weird way.
He was affable. Maybe I'm -- maybe pleasantries were exchanged. I just remember him, you know, kind of affable.
And then I don't remember him talking to Jim or I at all. At one point in the meeting, in fact, he looked at us, and he said, after directing the entire conversation, I would say mostly to Warren Williams, he said, "who are you?" And he looked at me and my colleague, Jim Link, and asked us who we were.
And I said -- you know, I introduced who I was, Jim introduced himself, and that was it.
Q Did you or Mr. Link get into your fact sheet and what you were there to present?
A Not at all. Not at all.
Q Okay. Did you or Mr. Link do any talking at all?
A I -- to the best of my recollection and memory, I don't -- I think besides introducing who we were, I don't really remember saying much more than that.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013482

Q Okay. So what do you recall happening at the meeting? If you were there to meet on the lottery --

A Right.

Q -- did you talk about the lottery?

A I mean, we -- I would say not me personally or Jim. I don't remember us having vocal roles, as I indicated earlier.

I do remember at one point the council member just turned to Warren Williams and was fixated on him. You know, he just kept asking him a lot of questions about -- I don't -- you know, he went back -- it was strange.

It was just like he was just -- it was almost just like stream of consciousness, you know. He said to Warren Williams that he felt like Warren had been behind a campaign to fund his enemies, I believe. And I don't really know beyond that what he meant by that.

Page 27

But Warren -- then they had an exchange about Warren saying, "I didn't fund your enemies," and they went on about, you know, all this stuff. I don't remember all the details. But that kind of kicked it off.

I mean, that's one thing that stands out in my mind, the conversation.

And then the only time he mentioned the lottery contract was he said, you know, I get -- and I'm really not remembering. I'm trying to paraphrase because there's been a lot of stuff.

I read a recent article by Colbert King, and I was actually on vacation in New York, so some of that I might be remembering from that, rather than -- so I'm just giving you paraphrase here. It's not --

Q Okay. And I want you to remember what you remember, not necessarily what was reported.

A I'm just clarifying, some of that has been clouded by the news article three weeks ago that Colbert King wrote.

But what I remember, to the best of my knowledge, is that after saying this -- going on about this funding of enemies, he looked at him, and he said -- you know, I do remember at one point, he said he thought Alaka Williams was a charming woman, Jim Graham did.

And then he said, you know, this one phrase, you know, he said, well, I might feel differently about the lottery contract, that's when he brought it up, if you weren't involved in these other deals and if -- you know, he felt like he was a good friend of Adrian Fenty's, and basically the paraphrasing of what he said. So --

Q Let me back up a bit. Did -- did Councilman Graham show any documents at that meeting? Did he pull out any --

A Not that I recall.

Q -- posters or anything like that?

A I mean, I do recall him at one point reaching over to his --

Q Desk?

A Yeah. But I can't tell you -- I can't be definitively sure whether or not he pulled something out.

Q Okay.

A I don't remember. I mean, that's not standing out. You asked me about what I remember from it, and that's kind of what I remember.

Q Now, did Councilman Graham mention Banneker? Does the name Banneker --

A Not that I recall.

Q Okay. And did Councilman Graham mention the Florida Avenue development project?

A I don't recall him using that name, Florida Avenue.

Q Did he mention anything about Metro or WMATA?

A The only thing I remember is him mentioning -- looking at Warren and saying, I would feel a lot better if you weren't involved in these other deals.

And I can't be sure if -- he could have referred to it as Metro, but I just remember the word "deal."

Q Deal or deals? I'm sorry.

Page 30

A I don't know. It was deal or deals. I'm paraphrasing because, you know, I'm not -- but he -- what I -- again, what I remember is that he kept saying, I feel like you're friends with Adrian Fenty and you're getting a lot of deals -- maybe that's what he said, deals -- with respect to the lottery.

And then he referred to this other deal, which could have been Metro, I'm not -- he didn't necessarily use that by name, but it seemed like that was what he was referencing.

Q And why did it seem like that was what he was referencing?

A Because he talked about -- it was something about, like, a parcel of land or something like that. I'm not remembering that he necessarily referred to it as Metro per se, because, again, I -- I was in there to meet for the lottery.

And I -- you know, there was no other reason for me to be there, so this was all news to me. I had no idea, really, what they were talking about.

Q And did Councilman Graham mention Warren

Williams' involvement in land development? Is that what you understood?

A That's -- you know, again, when I read the Colbert King story, a lot of that was kind of like, oh, is that what that was about? And this was four years ago, so I'm trying to remember what I remembered. And that's a little hard.

I'm trying to give you things that stuck out in my head at the time about the conversation.

Q Okay. Did Councilman Graham say something to the extent that Warren Williams had won too much?

A He only said -- when we -- when there was discussion about the lottery contract, and maybe, you know -- I don't know if Warren was talking about the lottery or Alaka, because he did direct some conversation to Alaka.

He just said at one point he would feel a lot better -- this was a paraphrase quote that I remember him saying, I can't be held to being quoted on it, but something to the effect of he would feel a lot better about whatever this other deal he was referencing in the meeting if Warren wasn't involved in the -- I'm sorry, let me rephrase that, because now I'm getting confused.

He would feel a lot better about the lottery contract if Warren wasn't involved in another deal or deals in the city, because he felt like because he was friends with Adrian Fenty, he was getting -- his friendship was allowing him to maybe have access to deals that others wouldn't.

That's the impression I -- you know, that's what he said, I would feel a lot better about the lottery contract if you weren't involved in other -- I don't know if he said deal or deals. I can't be sure.

Q And did you interpret that, Ms. Wright, as Mr. Graham suggesting that Warren Williams pull out of another deal in order to get the lottery contract?

A You know, I don't remember. I don't really remember what -- I would hate to try to speculate on what I thought about something 4-1/2 years ago. I didn't really have an opinion about it.

Page 33

Q Well, as I understand, Ms. Wright, you'd expressed to other folks that you thought Mr. Graham's comment during that meeting was inappropriate.

A I really don't remember saying that.

Q Okay. Did you think his comment was inappropriate?

A I don't remember having an opinion on it at the time.

Q Do you have an opinion now? Was his comment inappropriate?

A I can't -- I just remember thinking, gosh, I wish we could talk about the lottery. That's really what I remember thinking at the time.

Q Do you have -- do you believe his comment, though, was inappropriate?

A I don't have an opinion on whether it was inappropriate or appropriate.

Q Were you --

A I felt like -- what I felt was that he -- what he said. I took him at his literal comment. He felt that, according to him, that Warren was getting deals because he was friends with Adrian Fenty. That's what he said; that's how I took it.

Q Did Councilman Graham say something to the effect of you have to give me something or you have to give up something?
A I don't -- I don't remember him saying that.
Q Did you interpret Councilman Graham's statement about the other deals as being a quid pro quo? In other words, I'll support you for the lottery if you pull out of another development deal?
A No, I interpreted -- or rather I took it, because I don't really have an interpretation, but I took it as him -- what he literally said, that he was not happy -- he felt, in his mind, that Warren Williams was getting deals because of his friendship with Adrian Fenty. That's how I took it.
Q So you did not take it as a quid pro quo?
A I took it as, again, the councilman's words, that he did not like the fact that Warren Williams was friends with Adrian Fenty.
Q Was the councilman raising his voice at all during the meeting?

A Not that I remember. I mean, I know that he talked a lot. I remember him talking a lot, almost stream of consciousness, like I said. It just -- it was somewhat to the effect of rambling is how I kind of -- you know, I was sitting there thinking, it would be nice to talk about the lottery contract.
And I remember Jim and I laughing at some point during the meeting, like why are we here? You know, when are we going to talk about the lottery? So --
Q Did he seem angry?
A No, I -- I don't know if I could say that. I don't have enough recollection about the nuances of it to say whether he was, you know, emotional -- to give you a read on his emotional state.
Q Was he accusatory?
A He just -- again, he directed his conversation to Warren Williams and just kept going over -- he almost seemed paranoid, in a way, about this funding enemies stuff. I remember him repeating that several times.

Q Do you remember the name "Skinner" being brought up in the meeting?
A I've heard of Skinner's name, but I don't know if he was brought up during that meeting.
Q Do you remember a reference to a poster that said something to the effect of Graham -- "Grahamzilla, the black business killa"? Do you remember --
A I don't remember all that, but I do remember there was talk of some poster.
Q Did Mr. Graham pull out that poster at all during the meeting?
A Not that I remember, but I couldn't -- you know.
Q Okay. Was there reference during that meeting, do you recall, to a Web site of a business that Mr. Williams was involved in?
A I don't remember that.
Q Do you remember Mr. Graham talking about Mr. Williams' qualifications as a developer?
A No, not really. I don't remember that.

Page 37

Q Were you surprised or shocked by anything that Mr. Graham said in the meeting?
A I was just surprised we weren't talking about the lottery, because that's why the request was initially made.
Q How did the meeting end?
A I don't really remember. I just know that we were there, I would estimate, like 45 minutes or an hour, and then at some point it ended and we left.
Q Did it end on the point of Mr. Williams getting too many projects or deals or --
A You know, again, I don't remember how it ended. I just remember I was glad it ended, because I thought we were going to be there to do the business of the day that I was hired to do, which is talk about the lottery contract.
But other than that, I really don't remember how it ended. I mean, I just felt like we walked out, and that was it. I don't remember -- you know, nothing stands out in particular about that.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013485

Page 38

Q What were you doing during the meeting?
A I was sitting there listening and --
Q Taking notes?
A Yeah. I mean, I take notes.
Q I understand you may have been taking notes in a notebook with green flowers or some sort of designs on the cover. Does that ring a bell?
A Well, no, the design doesn't, because I've been doing this work for probably almost 20 years.
So if you tried to ask me what color is every notebook I've had over 20 years, there's no way I'd be able to tell you that. But I keep notebooks. It's a practice I've done since my days working at Fleishman-Hillard and when I was a reporter.
Q Were you taking notes during that meeting?
A Yes, I was.
Q What did you do with those notes?
A I don't know. I've got rid of them, like I do most of my client notes.
Q How did you get rid of them?
A I don't really remember. I just -- I don't have them anymore.

Page 39

Q You don't remember how you got rid of them? Did you throw them away? Did you dispose of them?
A Most of the time, I throw stuff in the trash.
Q Did you provide them to anyone?
A No.
Q Did you make copies?
A No.
Q Did you allow anyone to read those notebooks?
A Not that I remember.
Q Did you allow a Washington Examiner reporter to look at that notebook?
A Not that I recall.
Q Did you ever meet in person with a Washington Examiner reporter where this meeting was mentioned or discussed?
A Not that I remember. But at the time, I -- when I was a spokesperson for Intralot, I talked to reporters a lot, on the phone, sometimes I would meet with them in person, about the lottery contract.

Q Do you know a Washington Examiner reporter named Myer? Does that name ring a bell?
A He sounds familiar. He's probably one of the people that I talked to during that time. I think his first name is Bill, maybe.
Q Bill Myers?
A Yeah.
Q What was your relationship with Mr. Myers?
A He was a source for the lottery contract.
Q I'm sorry, he was a source?
A A source in that -- I'm sorry, let me rephrase that.
He was one of the reporters that I was a source to for the lottery contract. And he would also sometimes tell me things about what he was hearing from the different agencies. Like Marc Fisher as well with The Washington Post.
Q Did you have a personal friendship with Mr. Myers?
A I had a friendship with him. I wouldn't characterize it -- you know. I have friendships with lots of reporters.

Q Where -- do you recall ever meeting with Mr. Myers in person where you had a notebook with you, the notebook with you from that meeting?
A I don't recall. You know, I don't recall. But, I mean -- yeah, I don't recall exactly if I had a notebook or the time -- like I said, I met with him. I don't know how many times I met with him about the lottery contract. I also met with Marc Fisher. I met with a lot of reporters at the time and talked to them frequently on the phone and e-mailed them.
Q Did you meet with Mr. Fisher in person?
A You know, I don't remember.
Q Did you meet with Mr. Myers in person?
A Yes, I believe I did.
Q Where are all the places you recall meeting with Mr. Myers?
A I couldn't begin to tell you. I have no idea.
Q You have no idea where you met with him?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013486

Page 42

A I mean, we could have met at coffee shops. I don't know. I mean, I meet with reporters at a variety of places, restaurants, coffee shops. You know, I don't remember exactly where I met with him. It could have been a coffee shop.
Q Did you provide Mr. Myers or Mr. Fisher with any information relating to the meeting with Councilman Graham?
A Not that I remember.
Q Did you discuss with either of them the meeting with Councilman Graham?
A Not that I remember.
Q Did you discuss with any reporter the meeting that you had with Councilman Graham?
A Not that I remember.
Q Going back to the meeting itself, did Councilman Graham ask for anything or request anything from Mr. Williams or Alaka Williams?
A Not that I remember.
Q Did he -- did he imply or suggest, in your understanding, that he would be more supportive of the lottery contract if Mr. Williams or Ms. Williams did anything?

A Not -- not to my memory, no.
Q And you have no recollection of ever saying to anyone that you thought Councilman Graham made an inappropriate statement?
A I don't recall saying that. This was -- you know, again, it was 4-1/2 years ago. And us talking about it now is probably the first time I've thought about it in that time.
Q Okay. You mentioned you read The Washington Post, you've read some articles about this, including Mr. King's article.
A I read Mr. King's article, I think it was like three weeks ago, I remember, because I was in New York on vacation.
Q When you read the article, was there anything that was -- that you thought was misreported, based on your personal knowledge?
A I hadn't thought about the topic in a while, so I just was reading it, going, oh, okay, this is interesting. That was the only thing I -- you know.

Page 44

Q There was nothing that struck you as this isn't right, this is wrong?
A Well, I don't even know if I remember the blow-by-blow of the article now. It was a couple weeks ago. But I just read it, kind of laughed and thought, okay.
Q Was there anything, though, that you read that struck you as being incorrect?
A I don't really remember all the details of the article. So, again, I read it. I was having coffee. I read it once. You know, that was it.
Q So I take it that's no, nothing struck you as being incorrect?
A Well, I'm not remembering -- you know, I don't remember at the time when I was at the Gramercy Park Hotel on the rooftop having coffee what I felt at the time about it.
So I read it. I was reading The Post with a lot of other things, and I thought, this is interesting, hmm.
Q There are persons who have described what happened at the meeting with Councilman Graham as being a quid pro quo, that Councilman Graham was suggesting or implying that he would support the lottery if Mr. Williams pulled out of the Florida Avenue development project. We've heard that from witnesses.

Do I understand that you did not have that impression?
A I don't really remember what impression I had back then. I do remember that Jim Graham seemed to be frustrated, in his words, that he thought Warren Williams was getting a lot of deals because of his relationship with Adrian Fenty, and he said, quote, he would feel differently about the lottery contract if he wasn't involved in this other deal, or deals. That's what I remember.
Q And by -- what did you take it to mean when he said he would feel differently?
A Well, that he would feel differently. I mean, I can't speak for Mr. Graham about what he was thinking at the time. That he would feel differently.
Q But did he say how he felt about the lottery contract? I mean, if he was saying he'd feel differently --

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013487

A He didn't really have an opinion one way or another. That wasn't my takeaway. He did look at Alaka Williams, who was going to be CEO of the lottery at that time, and said, I think you're a delightful young woman.

I take that to mean -- maybe he said at one point -- again, I'm trying to remember something from 4-1/2 years ago. He may have said at one point, hey, lottery contract sounds good. I'm paraphrasing here. He didn't seem to express a lot of concern with the lottery contract.

And I really don't remember Jim and I having an opportunity to give kind of our spiel about here -- we won the RFP fair and square and all that.

So I don't remember him having a negative opinion on the lottery, I would say. That would be my takeaway, to the best of my memory.

MS. WAHL: If you're going to pause, could I have a water?

Page 47

THE WITNESS: I feel like I have sandpaper in my mouth.

MS. WAHL: That's what happens when you talk a lot. Everybody take a drink.

(Laughter.)

THE WITNESS: Thanks.

BY MR. BONDI:

Q How long did the meeting last?

A I don't really remember. I'm thinking it was maybe 45 minutes to an hour. I don't know. I can't be held -- I can't tell you that for sure. That's how it -- at the time, I would say if I was guesstimating, that seemed to be what it was.

Q So what happened after the meeting ended? Did you congregate with the group somewhere else?

A We all walked out together.

Q And then what?

A I really -- I don't -- you know, I think we all went our separate ways. And there was, I think, maybe Warren had -- he was saying something about -- I don't remember exactly what his thoughts were about it.

Page 48

And I remember us, you know, leaving.

Q What do you remember Mr. Williams saying?

A I don't -- you know, I don't -- I remember we talked about it. I can't tell you, I don't remember the specifics about what we talked about.

We walked out of the meeting. I actually was late to another meeting because this meeting had been rescheduled. So I remember I had to drive all the way to, like, Ward 7 to meet with a client of mine, and I was late for that meeting.

So I got -- you know, I was focused on going to that.

Q Did you make any phone calls after the meeting to anyone?

A I don't remember making phone calls. I may have made a phone call to my client at the time, telling him I was late, my friend David -- I mean, my client friend David.

Q Different client, unrelated to the lottery?

A Correct. Because I was late to another meeting, and I had to go all the way up Benning

Page 49

Road.

Q Did Mr. Williams in your presence make a phone call to Mr. Boothe?

A Not that I remember. He could have, but I don't remember.

Q Were you privy to any conversations with Mr. Boothe about the meeting in Councilman Graham's office?

A Conversations with who? I don't understand your --

Q Mr. Boothe.

A Okay.

Q As I understand, Mr. Boothe is with Intralot?

A Correct.

Q Okay. Were you present for any conversations that you or any members of the group that was in with Councilman Graham had with Mr. Boothe concerning that meeting?

A I don't remember having phone calls after that meeting with anyone, because I was late going to another meeting. That doesn't mean other people didn't. I mean, you'd have to ask them. But I don't remember having any phone calls.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013488

Page 50

Q Who is A. Scott Bolden?
A He was counsel to Warren and Alaka, I believe, Warren Williams. I'm not sure what his relationship was. But he was their counsel.
Q Did you have any conversations with Mr. Bolden following the meeting with Councilman Graham?
A I think we all had a meeting over at Reed, Smith. I don't remember if it was before or after the meeting with Jim Graham.
Q And Mr. Bolden, was he your attorney?
A He was not my attorney. Again, I -- to the best of my knowledge, I think he was the attorney for Warren Williams. And that was just -- and, again, I'm speculating here.
But what I assumed at the time was that he helped Warren and Alaka with their business affairs and whatever else, because he was definitely representing -- I had no agreement with him.
Q And was he representing W2 Tech?

Page 51

A I believe so at the time, yes.
Q And why was there a meeting at Mr. Bolden's office?
A You know, I don't know. You'd have to ask him. But I just remember us being over there sometime in May.
Q And following the meeting with Councilman Graham?
A I'm not sure. I just remember there was a meeting with -- over at Reed, Smith offices with Scott Bolden, Jay Lapine, which was Intralot's attorney, myself, James Link, and I think Warren and Alaka were in that as well.
Q At that meeting, did Mr. Bolden ask you about your notes that you took?
A Not that I can remember, no.
Q Did you --
A I remember we were talking about a meeting -- all of us following the meeting at Reed, Smith were supposed to go meet with Bill Myers at -- he's with the Washington Examiner. We had a group meeting with him, I don't think -- Jim Link was not there, but it was me, Alaka and Warren were supposed to meet with Mr. Myers and talk about just lottery stuff.

And I think the meeting that I'm thinking of, Scott Bolden, I just remember him saying, oh, be careful before you guys talk to the reporter. And we were like, okay.
That's what I remember from that meeting.
Q Did you have any communications with Mr. Bolden about your notebook at any time?
A He e-mailed me.
Q Okay. And what did he say?
A At some point after the Graham meeting, he e-mailed me and asked me for my notebook.
Q And what did you say?
A I told him no.
Q Okay. Why?
A Because I found it to be a weird request. And I don't have a document retention policy. And I've never had a client -- and he's not my client -- ask me for any of my documents.
Q Did you have the notebook at the time, or had you thrown it away?

A Not that I can remember.
Q Not that you remember, you didn't have it?
A Again, not that I -- I don't remember having it at the time that he asked me for it. But I can't be sure. You know, this was 4-1/2 years ago, and you're asking me to remember, you know, things that I haven't thought about in probably 4-1/2 years, four years, I don't know.
Q He asked you for a notebook; right?
A Uh-huh, right.
Q And you say no?
A That's what I said.
Q If you didn't have it, why didn't you just say, "I threw it away"?
A I don't know. I don't know. I really don't remember. I just said no.
I mean, I -- people usually accept yes-or-no answers from me. I didn't know I was required to give him an explanation.
Q Did Mr. Bolden ask you to maintain that notebook and not throw it away?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013489

Page 54

A I don't really remember. I do remember him asking me for the notebook.
Q You don't remember him instructing you to maintain the notebook?
A I don't remember that, no. I remember him asking me for the notebook.
Q Approximately how long after the meeting of May 29 did you dispose of the notebook?
A I do not remember exactly when I got rid of the notebook.
Q Was it a year later?
A You know, I really don't remember.
Q Less than a year later?
A I really don't remember.
Q More than a year later?
A I really don't remember. I haven't had it for quite a long time.
Q And you don't have any idea even what year you disposed of that notebook?
A You know, to the best of my knowledge, I would say it could have been four years ago. But I can't -- I just -- I can't give you a definitive -- you want a definitive answer, and I really don't remember.

Q No, I want a year. Was it 2008? 2009? 2010?
A I really -- I don't remember. You know, I haven't had it in a long time, so -- I could speculate, but --
MS. WAHL: But your lawyer will tell you not to, please.
BY MR. BONDI:
Q And when you disposed of the notebook, do you remember throwing it in the trash? Do you remember --
A I usually throw -- I have a trash can in my office. I have an office in my house, so usually everything ends up going into the big green can.
Q Would you have disposed of the notebook while the lottery contract was pending?
A Yeah. I mean, I could have. I mean, I don't -- I don't have a document retention policy, and I dispose of stuff daily. So --
Q You throw out notebooks daily?

Page 56

A I throw out notebooks. I throw out -- you know, I'll print off memos from clients, I'll print them out -- I print them out so I can read them better, rather than on the computer screen, and then I throw them out and delete the e-mail.
Q Why did you take notes at the meeting?
A I don't really know. Because I -- I think I explained earlier, I've been in the habit of taking notes since my days I would say primarily at Fleishman-Hillard. When I started work for them in 1999, I saw all the other public relations personnel carrying around notebooks, so I decided to follow their practice.
It's more of a habit than anything, I would say.
MR. BONDI: We'll take a one-minute break, please.
THE WITNESS: Sure.
(Recess.)
BY MR. BONDI:
Q Ms. Wright, thank you. You mentioned that there may have been one or two staffers from Councilman Graham in the office. Did they participate in the meeting?

Page 57

A I recall there being one staffer of Graham's, and yes -- you asked me who was in the room at the beginning of the deposition, and I think I indicated that to my recollection, he had one staffer there on maybe this side of the room, where you're sitting.
Q And what did he say?
A I could not tell you. I have no idea. I don't remember. I just remember him being there.
Q Do you recall him saying anything?
A Again, I don't remember. He could have, but I don't remember.
Q You mentioned the meeting taking about 45 minutes. Is that what you recall?
A You know, I really don't know. It felt like, as I think back on it, maybe 45 minutes to an hour. I don't know.
Q Approximately how much of that meeting was Councilman Graham doing the talking?
A That's hard to say. But I can -- from what I remember, I felt like he talked a lot.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013490

Page 58

Q More than 75 percent?
A I couldn't say that, but maybe I could say to the best of my knowledge, maybe more -- about 50 percent, more than 50.
Q More than 50?
A Yeah.
Q And then the other person talking the other part of that meeting was?
A I felt like Warren was talking the most. If you had to give me the -- if I had to rank who got more mouth time. You know, you're asking me -- I mean, I'm trying to do it more in -- I would say Warren and then maybe Alaka. And then I don't remember Jim and I -- I mean, I think if you wanted to do percentages, I would say we got maybe less than 5 percent, 1 percent.
Q Did the meeting end in a cordial way?
A I don't really remember how it ended. I just remember, you know, we got up and we walked out of the meeting.
Q Did Councilman Graham's demeanor change at all during the meeting?

A I mean, I don't know if I -- if I -- my impression, as I think back on this, which was four years ago now, is that I don't know if I can characterize his emotion per se. But I think that he seemed -- I don't remember him raising his voice or anything like that.
But I do remember him just constantly asking -- directing conversation to Warren.
Q And you mentioned about the topic of enemies or funding the enemies; is that right?
A He brought that up. I'm sorry, he, as in Jim Graham, brought that up.
Q Okay. What other topics do you remember Councilman Graham bringing up?
A I remember him bringing up the enemies, like I told you, funding my enemies, kind of paranoia it struck me as. But, again, not -- just him kind of saying it -- directing conversation to Warren.
He mentioned the lottery contract. I don't remember specifics about, you know, him saying a lot about it, except that, oh, you know, he really didn't seem to be opposed to it, was how I struck it.

And then he said something about -- the third thing I remember him saying and talking about was he felt like Warren was close friends with Mayor Fenty and he was getting, quote, a lot of deals because of that friendship. And quote -- and, again, I'm paraphrasing, he would feel a lot better if Warren wasn't -- he would feel a lot better about the lottery contract if Warren wasn't involved in these other -- I thought he said deals but I could be wrong. Deal, deals. I can't remember exactly if there was an S on it, but that's what I remember.
Those are the three things that stuck out to me about the meeting.
Q Anything else that you recall as a topic?
A No, not to the best of my knowledge, no. Those are the three things that I recall.
Q Did Mr. Williams discuss in the meeting the merits of the lottery contract?
A You know, I really don't remember him -- I don't remember specifics being talked about the lottery. I mean --

Page 61

Q In general.
A I mean, I remember the lottery contract coming up. And I think --
Q In what context?
A I don't -- I don't know. I just remember the topic did come up, the lottery contract.
Q And who raised that topic?
A I don't know. It could have been -- you know, I don't want to speculate, but as I indicated before, Jim and I were there. He knew we wanted to talk about the lottery contract. That's why the meeting was scheduled.
So any number of people could have tried to interject and talk about the lottery contract and brought it up first, you know.
So I can't tell you, like -- you know, I don't -- I just don't have a good memory of that.
Q I'd like to start showing you some documents, and my colleague, Mr. Sisto, is going to go through a few documents that occurred following that meeting.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013491

Page 62

(Wright Exhibit 1 identified.)
BY MR. BONDI:
Q But I'll start with the subpoena that we'll mark as Exhibit 1, which is the subpoena we sent to you to appear today.
A Uh-huh.
Q Initially, Ms. Wright, when my colleague called you, she hung up -- or you hung up on her; is that right?
A Yep, that would be correct.
Q Why did you hang up on her?
A Because I didn't have a need to talk to her.
Q Do you normally hang up on people?
A Yeah, actually, I do a lot. I hang up on a lot of people.
Q Was she cordial to you, my colleague?
A I don't really remember. I remember her calling me incessantly on a Friday afternoon after I got bad news from a doctor's office.
Q And did you understand that she wanted to talk to you about the meeting that you were a part of on May 29?

A No. The only thing that she asked me in my limited contact with her was that she wanted to talk about something relating to WMATA, and I told her I didn't have any clients that worked with WMATA, so I didn't know why she was calling me.
Q You're here today pursuant to a subpoena which is marked as Exhibit 1.
A Yes.
Q In the subpoena, we've asked for three categories of documents. First of all, have you seen this subpoena before?
A Yes, I have.
Q Okay. Could you do me a favor and take a look at the three categories of documents?
A Yes.
Q Okay. And have you produced all -- have you done a diligent search yourself for documents responsive to this subpoena?
A Yes, I have.
Q Okay. And have you produced all documents that are responsive to the subpoena to your lawyer?

Page 64

A I didn't have any documents to produce to the lawyer.
Q And if you note, the third document asked for any notes --
A Right.
Q -- relating to any meetings, including that meeting on May 29, 2008.
A Correct, uh-huh.
Q And you looked for your notebook, and you weren't able to find it?
A I did indeed. And I don't have anything related to number 3.
Q Did you ever make any photocopies of your notes from that meeting on May 29?
A Not that I recall, no.
Q Do you know if anyone else may have made photocopies of your notes from that meeting?
A Not that I recall. I don't know how they would. I don't give my notebooks to people.
Q Okay. And you have no recollection of ever showing that notebook to anyone?

Page 65

A No, I don't remember showing it to anyone.
MS. WAHL: So are we switching questioners?
MR. BONDI: We are, yes.
MS. WAHL: Okay. That's rather unorthodox.
MR. BONDI: We like unorthodox.
MS. WAHL: Well, just so our two law students know, this is extremely unusual. Usually, you're only allowed to have one questioner.
(Wright Exhibit 2 identified.)
EXAMINATION
BY MR. SISTO:
Q All right. Crystal, we've marked this as Exhibit 2.
A Okay.
Q This is an e-mail from you, sent to Alaka Williams, Warren Williams, Jay Lapine, Byron Boothe. You copied Jim Link and Scott Bolden. This is sent Monday, June 2, 2008, at 2:05 p.m.
Subject of the e-mail is Graham, and you have marked this as --

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013492

Page 66

A Am I looking at the right e-mail? Because I have -- Q The top is the --
A -- something that says October 6, 2011.
Q Right. That's the top e-mail. That's how it was provided to us.
A I'm sorry. I was looking at the wrong thing.
Q It's the bottom e-mail.
A Okay. Got it.
Q You marked this e-mail as high importance.
A Okay.
Q Could you please read the e-mail?
A "Jim said that Graham e-mailed back thanking him also and say do you think they will do anything. It is pretty clear he wants us to come back with something."
Q What does that mean?
A I couldn't tell you. I don't remember.
Q You sent an e-mail to the entire team, in the sense of -- this is the Monday after this meeting, May 29, happened on Thursday. This is Monday.

A Uh-huh. You're asking me to go back how many -- okay. So let's do the math.
This is what year -- we're in 2012. The month we're in is July. You're asking me to remember what I put in an e-mail over four years ago. And I'm telling you I don't remember.
Q I understand that it's been a while. But you marked this e-mail as high importance.
A Uh-huh.
Q You have --
A I mark a lot of e-mails as high importance. I don't remember what I meant by this.
Q Do you recall why Graham would expect them to do anything as a result of this meeting?
A Well, I can't speculate about what Jim Graham thought or whatever. I don't remember sending this e-mail, and I don't remember, you know, why I would send it.
Q I mean, I'm not asking you to speculate. The second sentence says, "it's pretty clear he wants us to come back with something."

Page 68

So you at this time thought it was clear that Graham wanted something?
A I don't remember what I thought. I don't remember about the e-mail. I don't remember why I would say "pretty clear."
Q Nothing at all?
A Nope.
(Wright Exhibit 3 identified.)
BY MR. SISTO:
Q I've just provided you with Exhibit 3. This is an e-mail from Jim Link, sent Monday, June 2, 2008 to Warren Williams, yourself, Crystal Wright, Alaka Williams and Scott Bolden. This is Bates labeled WMATA-INQ 013510.
The e-mail chain starts at the bottom. If I could just ask you to review the e-mail and let me know when you've read it.
A Yeah, I'm trying to figure out where it starts. The only thing I see is at the top.
MS. WAHL: So if you want to help her figure it out, I don't think she's --
BY MR. SISTO:

Page 69

Q Sure. It starts -- the first one starts at the bottom.
A What am I reading? Who is that from?
Q About five lines up from the bottom, it says "original message." That was the e-mail that we just reviewed prior, Exhibit 2.
A Okay.
Q And then there are about three more e-mails. It's an e-mail chain. Unfortunately, the formatting is not great as we've been provided it.
MS. WAHL: So is the way that you read this that --
MR. SISTO: It's chronological. It starts from the bottom to move upwards.
MS. WAHL: You start here. Is each e-mail separated by somebody having highlighted this?
MR. SISTO: Yeah. It says -- as we were provided, it says "original message," then there's two highlights. And the third e-mail is on top from Jim Link.
The original message is from you, the previous one that we saw. The second message is from Warren Williams sent June 2, 2008. And the third e-mail is the e-mail from Jim Link.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013493

MS. WAHL: Well, then there's the fourth at the top; right?

MR. SISTO: And the fourth one is, correct, when the e-mail was provided to us.

(Witness reviewed the document.)

THE WITNESS: Okay.

BY MR. SISTO:

Q So in the second e-mail from Warren Williams, he says, "even though I don't like it, to prove that I'm on board and nonthreatening, I would give him the WMATA project."

Now, he says that in direct reply to your e-mail that says Graham, you know, asked if you will do anything. Why would he say that?

A You have to ask him. I don't know why he said it, because I don't really understand -- I haven't seen this. I don't remember seeing this. This is the first time I've seen it.

Q You were sent this e-mail. You're on this e-mail.

Page 71

A No. I wasn't sent this e-mail --

Q Go ahead.

A It's very confusing the way you have it presented. I don't know why Warren responded. That's the way Warren responded.

Q Okay. Then Jim says, "should be upfront with Graham about why this piece of his request cannot be accommodated." Link seems to understand what the request was.

A I don't know what --

MS. WAHL: He's got to ask you a question.

THE WITNESS: Oh, I'm sorry.

BY MR. SISTO:

Q Warren Williams seems to understand what that request was. You're saying you don't understand Graham to have made any sort of request at the meeting?

A No. As I told you, when we were in the meeting, what I understood Graham to say is that, quote, he would feel a lot better if Warren -- about the lottery contract if Warren Williams wasn't in all these, quote, deals.

Page 72

Q Does this e-mail refresh your recollection of the meeting?

A No. As I indicated at the beginning of the deposition, what I remember is what I've told you a couple times about the encounter at the meeting, about Graham's comments.

Q And do you remember seeing these e-mails?

A Vaguely. But I -- you know, again, I haven't dealt with this project in over four years so -- I mean, we e-mailed each other tons of e-mails every day, from my memory, about the course of the project, the Intralot project.

Q And were all of them e-mails of high importance?

A Generally, I would say 95 percent of them were, yeah. Because we were in a battle to get the council to ratify and approve the contract, which was, as you may or may not know, over $40 million.

Q Link says, "is there a possibility that this project could be expanded to include someone of his liking?"

Do you remember discussing the Florida

Page 73

Avenue project at all with Link, Warren Williams, the thing with Intralot?

A Not really. I remember there was -- I have a vague recollection that there was, like, some discussion around Warren being involved in the project that's mentioned in this e-mail.

Q Was that discussed at the meeting with Scott Bolden at Reed, Smith?

A Not that I recall. I couldn't be sure of that.

Q What was that meeting about?

A As I told your colleague when he asked me about it earlier, we met over there. I couldn't be certain if that meeting occurred before or after the Jim Graham meeting.

And what I do remember from that meeting at Reed, Smith with Scott Bolden is that Alaka, Warren and myself were supposed to go to a hotel to meet with the reporter from the Washington Examiner, Bill Myers, just to talk generally about the lottery.

Q This e-mail, Exhibit 3, what you're discussing, does this discussion have anything to do with Graham's statement that he would feel better about the lottery contract if Warren wasn't involved in other deal or deals?

A I mean, it could have been. I do -- what I do remember is after we had that meeting with Graham, Scott Bolden was very insistent that he wanted Jim -- my colleague, Jim Link, or me to send a follow-up e-mail to Mr. Graham.

Q Why did he want that?

A I don't know exactly, but he was very insistent that we send -- he wanted us to send a follow-up e-mail to Jim Graham.

I don't want to speculate, but from what I remember, he just wanted to see what Jim Graham would say about the meeting.

Q Did you send that e-mail?

A No, I did not. I'm sorry, let me rephrase that.

To the best of my knowledge, I do not remember sending any e-mail to Jim Graham.

Q Did Jim Link send that e-mail?

Page 75

A I don't remember. He may have, but I know that Scott Bolden was trying to pressure him to do so.

Q So you're saying Link didn't want to send this e-mail?

A I don't know. You'd have to ask him. I just -- I just remember there -- Scott Bolden being very -- wanting either myself or Jim Link to send an e-mail to Mr. Graham.

Q Did he pressure you to send the e-mail?

A Again, I remember that Scott Bolden wanted Jim Link or I to send the e-mail, an e-mail, to Jim Graham as a follow-up to the meeting.

Q And you don't remember sending one?

A I don't remember sending one to Jim Graham, no.

Q Why didn't you send the e-mail?

A I don't remember sending an e-mail to Jim Graham.

Q Correct. If he wanted you to send the e-mail and you didn't, why did you decide not to?

A I don't remember, really. I just, you know, didn't feel like I had a need to send an e-mail to Jim Graham, because I wasn't the lobbying lead -- I'm sorry, I wasn't the lobbying lead contact on it. Jim Link was the one, as I mentioned earlier, who was responsible for scheduling all the meetings with Jim Graham.

Q Okay. But you said you hired Jim Link to work for you in this matter?

A He didn't work for me. He was a subcontractor. He was an independent contractor in my agreement. And then he subsequently entered into his own agreement with Intralot.

(Wright Exhibit 4 identified.)

BY MR. SISTO:

Q This is Exhibit 4. This is an e-mail sent from Scott Bolden on Monday, June 2, 2008 to Warren Williams, yourself, Crystal Wright, Alaka Williams and Jim Link.

Could you review that e-mail and let me know when you're finished.

(Witness reviewed the document.)

A This looks like the same e-mail that you gave me in 3, part of it is.

Page 77

Q It's a different -- it's a different e-mail chain.

A Oh, okay. It looks like the same.

MS. WAHL: Just to be clear, the bottom one we've seen before.

MR. SISTO: We've seen the bottom e-mail before, the middle e-mail before. The top e-mail is different.

THE WITNESS: Okay. I didn't know that's where you wanted me to look.

BY MR. SISTO:

Q Yes, I'm sorry.

A That's all right.

(Witness reviewed the document.)

Q This e-mail is Bates numbered WMATA-INQ 015309.

A Okay. I've read it.

Q Mr. Bolden states that this discussion is very close to corruption, bid rigging and other inappropriate conduct. Why would he think that?

A I can't speculate on what -- why --

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013495

Page 78

Mr. Bolden is a lawyer; I'm not.
Q Mr. Bolden is tremendously upset when he hears the contents of the meeting. You didn't think that there was anything wrong that happened at the meeting when Graham said what he said previously? You thought there was nothing inappropriate with that statement?
MS. WAHL: Do you mind rephrasing the question?
MR. SISTO: Sure.
MS. WAHL: Thank you.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q Does this e-mail refresh your recollection of the conversation about the lottery contract and other deals at the meeting with Graham?
A The only thing this e-mail does is tell me what Scott Bolden -- his impression, as I read the e-mail, of our meeting which he was not present at.
Q He says to even consider, I'm paraphrasing, the request is placing each of us at risk.
A In what -- where is --

Page 79

MS. WAHL: Let him ask you a question.
THE WITNESS: I was trying to read it. I'm sorry, I was just trying to read.
MS. WAHL: It would be helpful, actually, if you don't mind, when you're reading from it, let her know where you're reading from.
MR. SISTO: Sure, absolutely.
THE WITNESS: It's just confusing to me.
(Witness reviewed the document.)
What was the question?
BY MR. SISTO:
Q In the e-mail, Scott Bolden says to even consider this is placing each of us at risk.
Did you feel you were at risk?
A No, I didn't. There was nothing -- you know, to the best of my knowledge at the time, I didn't feel I was at risk. You know, that's an awful broad statement.
But I didn't feel at risk for any of the way I had behaved in scheduling -- you know, in participating in that meeting with Jim Graham.
Q Did you think after the meeting with Jim Graham that anyone else in the meeting was at risk?

Page 80

A I can only speak with how I felt at the time, as an independent consultant.
Q Correct, yes.
A Because the conversation was not directed to me during that meeting, I didn't feel that I was at risk during that meeting or subsequent from it.
Q Right. From observing the meeting, did you think that due to the conduct in the meeting, that anyone else in the meeting was at risk?
A Not particularly, I wouldn't say that. To the best of my knowledge, I really didn't have an opinion about that, no.
Q Does it seem shocking to you in this e-mail that Scott Bolden suggested that the U.S. Attorney should be involved?
A No, because my interaction with Mr. Bolden during the time of dealing with him on the lottery contract, I did not have a lot of respect for Mr. Bolden. He just struck me as bombastic, saying a lot of things. And I believed maybe 25 percent of what he said, in my in-person contacts with him, as well as contacts with him via e-mail and such.

Q Did you correct Mr. Bolden's concern?
A I'm sorry, I don't know what you mean.
Q Mr. Bolden's concern that everyone was at risk. You didn't think anyone was at risk. Did you correct his concern?
A That's not what I said. You asked me that question; I told you I did not think I was at risk.
Q And you don't have an opinion as to if anyone else was at risk?
A Trying to remember e-mails that you're putting forward to me from 4-1/2 years ago, I really don't recall.
MS. WAHL: Do you need a break or are you okay?
THE WITNESS: I guess in another 10 minutes, I'll need a break.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q Did you review any notes or e-mails when you were getting ready for this deposition?
A No.
(Wright Exhibit 5 identified.)

Page 82

BY MR. SISTO:
Q All right. This is Exhibit 5. This is an e-mail sent by Scott Bolden to you, Crystal Wright, Alaka Williams, Byron Boothe and Jim Link on Sunday, June 8, 2008.
There are two e-mails on this e-mail chain. Bottom one is sent by you, starts about 10 lines up from the bottom, also sent Sunday, June 8, 2008.
Could you read that bottom e-mail?
A I'll try to read it, decipher it, where it begins. Okay. I think it begins where -- subject, "communications with Graham. Neither Jim or I are not comfortable with e-mailing Graham. I spoke with the lawyer who counsels me on business matters, and she strongly advises us against putting anything in writing, acknowledging this meeting and its contents, as it would have far-reaching implications, even though we did nothing wrong. I think any e-mail making Graham aware of the reporter's call should come from Scott. We can discuss this in a conference call on Monday, but we can't be the ones sending an e-mail. I hope you understand our concerns."

Q Great. You said that acknowledging this meeting would have far-reaching implications. What did you mean?
A I actually have no idea what I meant. I'm looking at it now trying to figure it out.
Q You spoke to a lawyer about this meeting because of your concerns. Then you said you had far-reaching -- you had concerns and you thought that the meeting had far-reaching implications. And you have no recollection?
MS. WAHL: Actually, I'm sorry, but I don't believe that's a correct --
MR. SISTO: Okay.
MS. WAHL: I think that she says that the lawyer says that it would have far-reaching implications. I mean, I don't know. I'm just reading this. I've never seen this before.
MR. SISTO: Okay.
MS. WAHL: But maybe you should ask the witness if it was her understanding or --

Page 84

MR. SISTO: Sure.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q Was it your understanding that the meeting would have far-reaching implications?
A No, that was not my understanding.
Q You then follow that up and say, "even though we did nothing wrong."
A Okay.
Q Why would you note if you thought there were no far-reaching implications that you did nothing wrong?
A You know, at the time, I don't know why I would write that. I don't remember. I mean, I -- this is the first time I'm seeing this e-mail. So, like I said, I send a lot of e-mails to clients on a daily basis.
Q Do you normally contact a lawyer for -- due to the lobbying meetings that you have?
A Again, I'm not a lobbyist, so I only -- this is the first time I participated in a lobbying meeting. And I talk to lawyers about a host of things involving my business periodically during the course of the year so --

Q About how many times a year do you think that you would contact a lawyer?
A I have no idea. I couldn't begin to tell you. I'm a small business owner. I don't keep track of that stuff.
Q Okay. Why did you contact a lawyer after the meeting with Graham?
A I remember that, as I told you earlier, Scott Bolden was very insistent that he wanted Jim Link and I to follow up with an e-mail to Graham based on the meeting. And I -- there's no reason for me to follow up on the meeting, when he didn't direct any conversation toward me.
Now, Jim Link was the lobbying contact there, and, you know, it was just he kept persisting that I should follow up with an e-mail. And maybe that was why I contacted an attorney about it, because I didn't understand it.
Q Who did you contact?
A At the time, a woman named Michelle Thomas was helping me with different independent contractor agreements and things like that. So I believe it was her that I contacted.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013497

Page 86

Q Do you know what firm she's with?
A I don't. I know she works for herself.
Q Okay. You could have just told Scott Bolden no, that you weren't going to send the e-mail. Why did you feel it was necessary for you to contact an attorney?
A I did tell him that. I told him that in person and I told him that many times, that I wasn't going to send any e-mail to Graham.
Q Why did you think you needed to contact an attorney in order to not send an e-mail?
A Because I thought it was an odd thing that he was asking me, you know, to follow up. I don't -- I don't really remember, but I contacted her. I don't remember all the nuance of our conversation about it.
Q Did you think you were at risk for some reason and, therefore, you contacted an attorney?
A I did not think I was at risk. Again, I don't know -- I can't remember the particulars of the conversation I had with her.

I do -- I think, to the best of my knowledge, I contacted her about his persistence on that topic.
Q It was his persistence that led you to --
A Again, he kept saying -- well, I should rephrase this.
To the best of my knowledge, I remember him asking me more than once to send a follow-up e-mail to Jim Graham.
Q Do you remember if your contact with the lawyer was about sending the e-mail to Graham or was it about Scott Bolden's persistence --
A Again, I don't --
MS. WAHL: Let him finish.
THE WITNESS: Okay, sorry.
MS. WAHL: She's going to shoot us.
THE WITNESS: I don't remember.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q You don't remember?
A The specifics.
Q So just to get this straight, Scott Bolden asked you to send an e-mail, you don't want to send the e-mail, you're concerned about this enough that you contact a lawyer about sending the e-mail, and you can't remember why you did?

Page 88

A No, I can't. I told Scott Bolden I wasn't going to send an e-mail to Jim Graham.
Q And it was because you thought it was not your role, you said?
A No -- could you repeat the question? I don't understand what you're asking me about my role.
Q You said you -- correct me if I'm wrong. You said you didn't want to send the e-mail because you didn't think it was your role to send an e-mail?
A There was no reason for me to send a follow-up e-mail to Jim Graham when I wasn't the daily contact with him. I didn't call his office to schedule the meeting.
Jim Link called the office. He was the lobbying lead. So there was no reason for me to send a subsequent e-mail to Jim Graham.
Scott Bolden could have sent an e-mail to

Page 89

Jim Graham.
Q Okay. At any point, did you think that sending an e-mail to Jim Graham could put him at any legal risk?
A I have no opinion on that. I didn't -- I don't even remember -- I mean -- I don't really understand what you're asking, I guess. I mean, risk how? I don't -- how -- putting -- could you be more specific?
Q Sure. Do you think that by sending him an e-mail memorializing your conversation or the meeting that you had in that e-mail, it could potentially put Councilman Graham at criminal risk?
A No.
MS. WAHL: Did she think this at the time?
MR. SISTO: Yes.
THE WITNESS: Not that I remember. I remember Scott Bolden being very insistent that he wanted somebody -- and I was curious why he wouldn't want Warren and Alaka to send a follow-up e-mail to Jim Graham, because he spent the bulk of the time, the council member, talking to Warren Williams.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013498

Page 90

But I remember Bolden being fixated on getting Jim Link or I to send an e-mail, because the best of my knowledge and memory, Scott Bolden was very interested in what Jim Graham might say.

BY MR. SISTO:

Q Did he --

A That's what I remember.

Q Did he say why he was interested?

A Not that I recall. I just remember him being very interested in saying -- in seeing what Jim Graham would -- what he would say in writing as far as the meeting.

(Wright Exhibit 6 identified.)

BY MR. SISTO:

Q This is Exhibit 6. It's an e-mail sent from Scott Bolden, Sunday, June 8, 2008 to Warren Williams. Below that is an e-mail from Warren Williams sent to Scott Bolden, yourself, Crystal Wright, Alaka Williams, Jim Link, Byron Boothe, Sinclair Skinner.

A I'm sorry, what did you say about Sinclair Skinner? I don't understand why we're talking about him.

Q He's one of the recipients of this e-mail. WMATA-INQ 013514.

MS. WAHL: There is obviously an e-mail on the bottom.

MR. SISTO: Yes, sent from Scott Bolden, 7 of June 2008 to yourself, Crystal Wright, asking if you could please review the e-mail from the bottom.

MS. WAHL: So you want her to read all of them?

BY MR. SISTO:

Q Yes. Please read the entire page, thank you.

A Okay. What am I reading?

MS. WAHL: Everything. Start on the bottom here, because that's the first e-mail in this chain, and then move up the page.

THE WITNESS: Okay. "Jim wanted to let you know and give you" --

BY MR. SISTO:

Q You don't have to read it out loud. You can read it to yourself.

Page 92

A Oh, I'm sorry.

Q It's quite all right.

A Sorry.

(Witness reviewed the document.)

Okay.

Q So the bottom e-mail is a draft e-mail by Scott Bolden?

A Yeah, this one, because I didn't write this. I don't remember any such e-mail.

Q Correct. Warren Williams sends another e-mail, asking Scott Bolden who he thought should send this.

A Yeah, and I'm curious as to why -- can I ask a question?

MS. WAHL: No. He asks the questions.

THE WITNESS: Oh, I'm sorry. I'm sorry.

BY MR. SISTO:

Q Quite all right.

A I'm sorry.

Q Then the last e-mail is just from Scott Bolden to Warren Williams, and you're not copied.

A Right.

Page 93

Q But from earlier, you said it was your understanding that Scott Bolden was asking you to send an e-mail to Jim Graham.

A Well, something I'm --

MS. WAHL: He's got to ask you a question. That's his job.

THE WITNESS: I know. I'm just confused.

MS. WAHL: All right. Well, wait until you find out the question.

THE WITNESS: Sorry. Okay.

BY MR. SISTO:

Q This bottom e-mail, was this the e-mail he was asking you to send to Councilman Graham?

A It seems so. I can't be sure, but I didn't create the e-mail. So it looks like it.

Q But you've seen this e-mail before?

A Yeah, it -- I haven't seen it. It appears as though it was part of a communication chain that we were in four years ago, so apparently if I'm copied on it or if it was sent to me, I did get it at some point.

Q Great. In the e-mail, he says that -- and he's drafting this for you. In the first line, he says that, reading from the e-mail now, "Bill Myers at the D.C. Examiner contacted me."

Page 94

Did Bill Myers contact you?

A To the best of my knowledge, I don't remember Bill Myers contacting me.

Q It says that he recounted the entire conversation from our meeting.

A What I remember --

MS. WAHL: Hold on. He's got to ask a question.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

BY MR. SISTO:

Q What do you remember from being contacted -- from this e-mail and being contacted by Bill Myers?

A What I remember is that A. Scott Bolden seemed to have an agenda, and he wanted to get more information about the meeting that we were present at with Jim Graham. And he, according to this e-mail, you know, was doing a lot of speculation, it seems to me, in reading it in hindsight. And he wanted myself to send it, looking at the top, as I told you earlier, or James Link.

And I remember there being discussion that -- you know, and again, I can't be certain of this, but there was some discussion of whether or not we should suggest or -- again, I'm not -- to the best of my knowledge, perhaps I felt Scott Bolden was -- there was conversation with whether or not we should make up -- should we pretend that a reporter called and see what Jim Graham would say about it.

Because I don't remember this reporter contacting me about our meeting with Jim Graham, and I didn't draft this e-mail.

Q To get this straight, what Bolden was suggesting was that you sent -- to tell Graham that you had been contacted but instead --

A He was -- sorry.

MS. WAHL: We're going to need to break soon.

BY MR. SISTO:

Q Instead, contact the reporter yourselves?

A Could you repeat the question?

Page 96

Q Was Bolden suggesting that you contact the reporter yourselves?

A Not that I remember.

Q So he was suggesting that you fabricate that you --

A Again, I can't be certain, but to the best of my knowledge, and I'm trying to remember something that happened four years ago now, I felt like there was conversation on his part of whether or not, you know, do we -- do we say that perhaps the reporter called when he really didn't.

I mean, I'm not remembering exactly. But for me, something around that stands out that -- because I don't remember getting a call from the Washington Examiner reporter, and I don't remember talking to the Washington Examiner reporter about this.

Q Did anyone else have anything to say about his suggestion?

A I can't -- I don't remember.

Q When did he make this suggestion?

A I don't remember.

Page 97

Q Did he make it at the meeting with everyone at Reed, Smith?

A I really -- I really don't remember.

MS. WAHL: Do you need a break?

THE WITNESS: Yeah, that would be great.

MR. SISTO: We'll take a break.

(Recess.)

BY MR. SISTO:

Q So we're still speaking about Exhibit 6.

A Okay.

Q So in the original e-mail from Scott Bolden, I'll read after the two asterisks, and he said, "despite our legal and general concerns regarding your request that the Williams' withdraw from the WMATA contract."

MS. WAHL: I'm sorry, where are you reading?

MR. SISTO: In the bottom e-mail, about four lines down, there are --

MS. WAHL: Oh, "despite our legal and general" --

MR. SISTO: Yes.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013500

Page 98

MS. WAHL: All right. We're with you.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q Do you agree with that statement that Bolden made?
MS. WAHL: I'm sorry, just so I'm clear --
BY MR. SISTO:
Q Sure. Do you also share legal and general concerns about Graham's request?
A I didn't have a lot of opinions about that meeting, as I told you earlier. In reading this e-mail, it looks like Scott Bolden had a lot of opinions.
Q Sure. Did Graham request that the Williamses withdraw from the WMATA development contract?
A Not that I'm aware of in the meeting I had with Jim Graham. He said he would feel -- as I've said before, but I'll repeat it again, what I remember from the meeting with Jim Graham and my colleague, James Link, was that he said he would, quote, feel a lot better if Warren Williams wasn't getting all these deals around town, or deals, he would feel a lot better, I'm sorry, about the lottery contract.

Q We've looked at a couple of e-mails. The WMATA contract is consistently discussed. Why are you not correcting people on these e-mail chains?
A I'm sorry, I don't understand your question.
Q For instance, Warren Williams says in one of the previous exhibits that he'd be happy to give up the WMATA contract.
A Uh-huh. What would I correct in e-mails? What are you asking that I would correct?
Q You did not send an e-mail saying, "I don't believe Graham asked for that at the meeting."
A I'm only looking at e-mails that you're showing me today, and I don't remember, you know, the, gosh, probably barrage of e-mails that were -- that I sent or responded to with respect to the Intralot contract.
Q Correct.
A So I don't understand what you think I should be correcting.

Page 100

Q If there was no discussion of the WMATA -- of Warren Williams withdrawing from the WMATA development contract, and we've seen multiple e-mails from -- that have the entire Intralot and W2-I and lobbying team on them, you never correct anyone in any of these meetings -- in any of these e-mails that that didn't happen at the meeting.
MS. WAHL: I'm sorry, you lost me. Could you rephrase it, please?
THE WITNESS: I'm lost too.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q Sure. In all of the e-mails we've looked at, you have never contradicted any of the statements that -- made by other people on these e-mails that Graham asked Warren Williams to withdraw from the WMATA contract.
A The e-mail I'm looking at now is one that was created by Scott Bolden.
Q Correct.
A Who was not at the meeting.
Q Yes.
A But he seems to have a lot of opinions for a person who was not at the meeting. I can only tell you what I remember from the meeting.

Page 101

Q Right. And I'm saying --
A And you're asking --
Q -- he has lots of opinions from the meeting. And there are no e-mails from you that correct those opinions. Why is that?
A I don't know. I don't -- I don't have an opinion of this e-mail. Clients send me e-mails all the time, and I don't -- I either don't respond to them or I do respond to them.
And you're asking me about correcting somebody. I'm still unclear about what you think I should be correcting.
Q You told us that Graham didn't ask Warren Williams to withdraw from the WMATA contract.
A That's not what I said. I said that -- you asked me what I recall from one meeting with Jim Graham four years ago. And what I have repeatedly said is what I'll say again.
He did most of the talking in the meeting. He looked at Warren Williams, and he said, you know,

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013501

Page 102

Warren, I -- I'm paraphrasing here. He said, I would feel a lot better about the lottery contract if you weren't getting all these other deals around town and you weren't such close friends with Adrian Fenty.

That is what I told you, and that is what I remember.

Q That's what you remember.

A And I don't see anything on these e-mails asking my opinion for anything.

Q Right. So I'll ask you now, did Jim Graham ask Warren Williams to withdraw from the WMATA --

A To the best of my knowledge, in the one meeting I had with Jim Graham and others present, I do not recall him saying that.

Q Is it possible that Jim Graham asked Warren Williams to withdraw from the WMATA development contract?

A I don't know. I can't -- I can't speak for what Jim Graham may or may not have done. I can only speak to my personal encounter at a meeting, the one-time meeting that I had with him, which lasted about 45 minutes or an hour.

Q What's your basis for that belief?

A I don't understand --

Q I'm sorry, I'm sorry.

A Is that a question?

Q No, I'm sorry. Did you believe in 2008 that Graham would have been more supportive of W2-I in the lottery if Warren Williams withdrew from the WMATA real estate development project?

A I don't really know what I believed four years ago. The only thing I can be certain of is what I heard in that meeting.

I do know that subsequent to the one meeting that I had with Jim Graham in person with my colleagues, Scott Bolden seemed to be very fixated on this one meeting.

And reading this e-mail now, it seems like he was trying to draw a lot of conclusions and he wasn't even present at the meeting. I mean, I'm just reading this, and I had forgotten -- I mean, this is the first time I've seen this. I didn't even know this was -- I don't really remember this being sent.

I'm looking at it, and it's like, gosh, how many paragraphs is it?

Q He says later in the e-mail, and this is Bolden's e-mail to you, he writes, "you and your communications person may want to strategize on your response to Bill."

A Where is this?

Q I'm sorry, this is about two-thirds of the way down in the large block of text.

A Got it, uh-huh.

Q It says, "you and your communications person may want to strategize on your response to Bill, as he expresses serious political and legal concerns, as our lawyers have, regarding the linking of the subject projects, as well as your vote."

Did Graham in the meeting link his vote to any projects?

A Not that I can remember.

Q Did he -- do you recall him discussing his voting -- how he was going to vote on any issue?

Page 105

A No, I don't.

Q Based on your recollection of what Graham said at the meeting on May 29, 2008 that you attended, do you believe W2-I would increase its chance of getting support for the lottery if Warren Williams had given up the WMATA project?

A I don't remember. Not necessarily, no.

Q What about a real estate project?

A No --

MS. WAHL: What about a real estate project?

BY MR. SISTO:

Q The same question if -- based on your recollection of that meeting, do you believe W2-I would increase its chances of getting the lottery contract if Warren Williams gave up something to Councilman Graham?

A Not necessarily, no.

Q You told me earlier that Graham said that he thought Warren Williams was getting contracts because of his contacts with Fenty. Why do you think he made that statement?

Page 106

A I don't know. You'd have to ask him.
Q What was your impression of the statement?
A That was the first time I had heard, in that meeting, that Warren Williams had other business with the city or was trying to get other business.
Q Right. That's not exactly what I'm asking, though. It's whether or not you knew that he had other business, what was your impression of Graham speaking about his other business in connection with your conversation about the lottery?
A I don't remember having an impression about that. What I remember is why we couldn't talk about the lottery. And what I remember was that Jim Graham said that he would feel a lot better about Warren's bid with Intralot to do the D.C. lottery if he wasn't involved in another project with the city.
That's what he said: he would feel a lot better.
Q Did he explain what that meant?
A No, not that I can recall. That's what I remember him saying. I don't remember him saying anything else, that he would do X, Y or Z. That's what he said. I don't remember there being any discussion about any vote.

Q Did he say anything about or ask -- did he ask for anything else in consideration for his support of the lottery contract?
A Not that I recall.
Q Okay. Let's go back to Exhibit 5. I want to talk about the line in your original message sent to the W2-I team on June 8, 2008. I'm going to read a line, it's about seven lines up from the bottom.
"I spoke with a lawyer who counsels me on business matters, and she strongly advises us against putting anything in writing acknowledging this meeting, its contents, as it would have far-reaching implications, even though we did nothing wrong."
When you wrote this e-mail, were you telling the truth?
A I have no idea. I can't tell you what I was thinking about an e-mail that you're alleging I wrote four years ago, over four years ago.

Page 108

Q Do you generally tell the truth? When you write e-mails to your clients, do you usually lie to them?
A I respond to clients when they ask me a question.
Q That's not what I asked. Do you usually --
A I like to think that I generally tell the truth, I'm a truthful person.
Q Okay. And when the client sends you an e-mail and you respond to them, do you usually tell them the truth?
A Was this in response to an e-mail? I don't -- I don't know, because you have it all jumbled up. I mean, usually when I -- if clients ask me questions, I try to be truthful, to the best of my knowledge.
Q This is an e-mail, the first line of it is, "neither Jim or I are comfortable with e-mailing Graham." This is an e-mail sent to Scott Bolden in response to his request --
A Correct.

Page 109

Q -- for you to e-mail Jim Graham, and we just read in Exhibit 6 his draft e-mail to you, what he would like you to send to Graham. You responded that you spoke with your lawyer, this would have far-reaching implications.
And I'll ask you again, was that statement truthful? Did you speak to your lawyer?
A I can't be certain at the time what I wrote and the circumstances around it, when I'm just seeing this e-mail for the first time, apparently, since June 8, 2008, when you're saying -- because this is not an original, this is a copy of something -- that I sent this.
So I try to be truthful when I'm sending clients e-mails.
Q By your previous statement, are you saying that this e-mail from you that's purportedly from you you may not have sent at all?
A You know, I don't have any e-mails left from that time period, so I don't -- you know, you're telling me I sent this. It says it's from me. So I've got to go with what I have in front of me; right?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013503

And now you're asking me about whether I'm truthful or not. I think of myself as a truthful person, and when I respond to things, I don't remember the details of a conversation with apparently an attorney I talked to.
Q Would you have had any reason to lie to Scott Bolden about that conversation?
A No, I guess not. I don't know. I don't really remember. I don't remember the conversation I had with this attorney.
Q Okay. And you said it was Michelle Thompson, I believe?
A I believe her name was Michelle Thomas.
Q Thomas, okay.
A She was helping me with lots of things for my business during that time.
Q Okay. Your lawyer gave you -- or you write in this e-mail that your lawyer gave an opinion as to the legal implications of the meeting. Did your lawyer speak to anybody else about that meeting before forming that opinion?

Page 111

A I have no idea.
Q Did you ask your lawyer to speak to anybody else?
A Not that I can recall.
Q Did you provide documents to your lawyer?
A Not that I can recall.
Q Okay. You seem unable to recall much about your conversation with the lawyer. May we contact your lawyer about what you told her?
MS. WAHL: No, we're not waiving the privilege.
THE WITNESS: Absolutely not.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q You felt you might have also had meetings with Kwame Brown's staff and maybe Cheh's staff. Did you contact your lawyer after those meetings?
A I don't remember. I contacted -- sometimes I contact lawyers about contracts, periodically issues with clients, indemnity clauses, lots of things. I couldn't begin to tell you if I talked to her at the time about other meetings with other members of council. Possibly.

Q Did you contact this lawyer about any other issues related to the lottery?
A I don't remember.
Q You don't remember. Okay.
(Wright Exhibit 7 identified.)
BY MR. SISTO:
Q This is Exhibit 7. It's an e-mail from Jim Link sent Wednesday, June 11, 2008 to Byron Boothe, Jay Lapine, yourself, Crystal Wright, Warren Williams, Alaka Williams and Scott Bolden. Bates number of this document is WMATA-INQ 013515 to 013517.
MS. WAHL: I'm sorry, I'm --
MR. SISTO: Yes, this e-mail is very difficult to read, I'm sorry. There is highlighting every single time there's a --
THE WITNESS: This is ridiculous. I mean --
MR. SISTO: -- different e-mail.
MS. WAHL: Let him ask you a question.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q I'll ask you if you can please review the document. And I've actually placed myself the colored highlighting to help separate the different e-mails. So it starts on page 3, or really page 2 is the --

Page 113

MS. WAHL: Let's see. I guess this is the first one, and it goes to there. You've got the sequence?
(Witness reviewed the document.)
THE WITNESS: Okay.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q I apologize, it's difficult to read. This is the only copy we have. The e-mail starts, an e-mail sent from Jim Link on Wednesday, June 11, 2008 in which then he creates a different draft that's similar to the draft e-mail that Scott Bolden had created, with similar content.
The second-to-last line of his e-mail, and this is on page 3, Link then writes, "as for Metro, there are a number of factors that make it impossible for us to even consider accommodating your request."
What did Jim Link mean by that?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013504

Page 114

A I don't know. You'd have to ask Jim, because it's not my e-mail.
Q You said you and Jim discussed this meeting and that you said Jim had the same recollection that you did.
A I don't remember saying that.
Q I thought you said that earlier. I'm sorry if that's incorrect.
A I did not say that, so don't put words in my mouth.
Q I was just --
A I don't recall saying that, sorry.
Q That's fine, that's fine.
Link attended that meeting, and Link seemed to believe that Graham made a request in regards to the Metro contract. Did you have any discussions with him as to why he thought that?
MS. WAHL: I think we have to object to your predicate, because I don't believe that we have any basis to say that. So I'm going to object to the form of the question.
MR. SISTO: Okay. Sure.

Page 115

MR. BONDI: One moment, please.
MS. WAHL: Getting hungry?
THE WITNESS: Yes.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q Did you talk with Mr. Link at all about the drafting of this e-mail?
A I don't remember exactly. I do remember that Scott Bolden did a lot of writing and suggesting and trying to interpret our meeting with Jim Graham.
And looking back on this now, that seems to be the case. He was -- from the earlier e-mail you showed me and from what little I remember about four years ago, he was doing a lot of writing, speculating about a meeting that he did not attend, and then sending e-mails to Jim and I that he wanted us to send.
Q Right. But --
A That he was drafting.
Q Okay. This is an e-mail that Jim Link sent out to the team.
A Uh-huh.

Page 116

Q Did you assist Jim Link at all in the drafting of this e-mail?
A Not that I can recall. I could have, but I don't recall.
Q Did you assist him in drafting any other e-mails?
A I don't recall. He and I worked together on numerous projects over 10 years, so, you know, we collaborated on different things. But I don't recall assisting him in drafting e-mails, this e-mail.
Q Did you have any discussions about this e-mail with Jim Link?
A I believe we did have discussions about sending a follow-up e-mail to Graham, which I think I mentioned before.
Q And what were those discussions?
A I really don't remember all the details and all the discussions, but I do remember being asked by Scott Bolden -- you know, discussions around whether or not we should, you know, send an e-mail to him.

Page 117

And I said I wasn't -- that I didn't feel like it was necessary.
Q When you spoke with Jim Link about this issue, did you ever discuss the Metro or WMATA contract with him?
A Possibly, we could have, because it came up in -- this other deal that Graham was talking about was referenced in the meeting that we had with him.
Q And what did you say about it to him?
A I don't remember. I had numerous conversations with Jim about the lottery contract during that time.
Q And do you recall what he said about it?
A I really don't.
Q This e-mail chain continues in which Scott Bolden says the e-mail looks fine to him. The next e-mail comes from Jay Lapine in which he also agrees with the content of the e-mail.
Jim Link at the top of the page sends an e-mail to the team, talking about how Graham is a conspiracy theorist, suggests incorporating discussions between you and the D.C. Examiner reporter.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013505

Page 118

On the first page, then, Jay Lapine agrees, thinks the e-mail is well written, agrees with the contents of it.

Second-to-last e-mail at the top is from Byron Boothe, sent Wednesday, June 11. Byron says, "I do not like the last line. It empowers Graham too much to suggest that whatever we discussed we realize the subject matter may be dirty and thus that we became a part of it in that we considered it."

Did you have conversations about the subject matter of your meeting with Graham being dirty?

A Not that I remember. I don't remember using that word.

Q What word would you use?

MS. WAHL: What word did she use?

THE WITNESS: I said I don't remember using that word that you just said, quote, dirty.

BY MR. SISTO:

Page 119

Q What word would you say? I don't have --

A What? What are you asking me again? I'm sorry, I don't understand the question.

Q I said what word would you use to describe --

A Describe what?

Q -- the meeting that you had with Graham?

A A lobbying meeting, like we had with all the other members.

Q You worked for Byron Boothe. He retained you to assist Intralot with the lottery?

A I was an independent contractor for public relations.

Q Did Byron Boothe retain you?

A Intralot retained me. He signed the contract.

Q Okay. He was your contact person at Intralot?

A Correct.

Q Did you discuss with Byron Boothe the WMATA issue?

A I don't remember discussing a WMATA issue with Byron. I would have -- as a client, you know, he would have asked me probably about how our meetings were going. Periodically he would ask about the meetings with members of council. He would ask about media.

A lot of times, I would call -- I mean, I talked to him pretty often in the course of the lottery contract, you know, the whole process, getting the council to vote on it.

Q Okay. Byron says, "we realize the subject matter may be dirty."

Do you know how he came to that realization?

A I don't really remember.

Q Were you a part of phone conversations or meetings with Byron Boothe in which he was told about the conversation and he thought that it could be, as he says, dirty?

A I don't remember all the specific conversations I had with Byron Boothe over the time I worked for Intralot. I don't really remember him using that word, "dirty," in the course of conversations that I've had with him.

Q Okay. He didn't necessarily have to say "dirty." Did he ever express that he thought that the contents of the meeting with Councilman Graham were inappropriate or something along those lines?

A You know, I -- I don't really remember. We had a lot of conversations about a lot of meetings so --

Q First line from Jim Link, the top e-mail, reading through the e-mail, he says, "the reason I said it this way is I want it to be clear that we could not consider the request. I think it would be worse if we said we considered your request and could not accommodate it."

Do you know why he thought it would be worse to have considered the request?

A I really don't. You'd have to ask Jim.

Q Were there discussions about that issue?

A About what issue?

Q About it being worse to say that you considered the request, as opposed to you saying that you could not consider it?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013506

A Reading this e-mail now, I really -- it's confusing to me, so I don't really understand what's being said here.
Q As I read the e-mail, the request he's talking about is the last line of this e-mail chain, where he says, "as for Metro, there are a number of factors that make it impossible for us to even consider accommodating your request."
A But, again, what request? I'm not seeing what you're wanting me to look at here in this confusing e-mail chain.
Q That's exactly what I'm asking you about. Every single person on the e-mail chain seems to understand what this request is.
A Well, I think you're making a lot of assumptions, so you maybe should ask the people on the e-mail chain.
Q All right.
A Okay?
Q Was there any discussions with the Intralot team about your liability or your exposure if you considered or did not consider a request by

Page 123

Jim Graham?
A I don't remember, no, any discussions about my liability.
(Wright Exhibit 8 identified.)
BY MR. SISTO:
Q This is Exhibit 8. Formatting is much better on this one. This is an e-mail sent from Jim Link on Wednesday, June 11, 2008 to Warren Williams, Byron Boothe, Jay Lapine, Scott Bolden and yourself in which he then towards an e-mail chain that he has with Jim Graham. This document is WMATA-INQ 013503 through 013508.
Please review the document.
A Which document? You gave me, like, six pages. Do you want me to read the whole thing?
Q Start on 013507 and work back chronologically.
(Witness reviewed the document.)
A Okay.
Q We'll start with the last e-mail in the chain.
MS. WAHL: The one from Mr. Warren

Page 124

Williams?
MR. SISTO: The one from Link, 013507. Starts "Dear Council Member Graham," greatly enjoyed/appreciate the meeting yesterday." This was sent on Friday, the day after the meeting.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q He said, "I found the meeting to be productive, and I look forward to discussing next steps."
You said you and Jim didn't do any talking during the meeting, didn't discuss the lottery. What was productive about the meeting?
A I'm confused. Can you -- because you're saying things that I don't recall saying. What -- I guess --
Q Did you think the meeting was productive?
A Which meeting?
Q The meeting with Councilman Graham on May 29, 2008 at his offices.
A We didn't get a chance to talk about the lottery contract, so from that perspective, I didn't feel it was productive.

Page 125

Q So you disagree with Jim Link's e-mail?
A I can only speak about my impression on the meeting.
Q Right. I'm asking do you disagree, then, with his characterization of the meeting?
A Where is that that he's characterizing?
Q Third line, "I found the meeting to be productive."
A I don't really have an opinion on it. I think -- you know --
Q Do you not have an opinion as to your business meetings?
A I just gave you my opinion, and you're looking at me pursing your eyebrows. I just told you my opinion is it wasn't productive because we didn't get a chance to talk about the lottery contract.
Many lobbyists -- and I don't want to speculate here. I can only talk about my encounters on Capitol Hill, which is generally what I deal with.
Whether a meeting is productive or not, as a courtesy to a member of Congress, which is really all I can speak to, because that's primarily my experience, you include a pleasantry out of courtesy to the member of Congress or the elected official.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013507

Q Okay. So he could have been saying this, whether or not he felt it was productive?

A I think you'd have to ask him. But my general interactions with Jim is that this is probably a pleasantry. But I can't -- you have to ask him that question.

Q That's all I'm asking. It says he looks forward to discussing next steps. What were the next steps that were to be discussed after the meeting?

A I really don't remember. You're asking me to look at e-mails I haven't seen in over four years. I don't remember.

Q You don't recall if there were follow-up items --

A There could have been.

Q -- at the conclusion of the meeting?

A I don't recall.

Page 127

Q There could have been. Do you know what these items could have been?

A No, I don't.

Q Okay. The next e-mail is from Jim Graham. He sends this on Monday. One-line replay. He says, "thanks. Do you think they will do anything?"

When you originally read this in 2008, what did you understand this to mean?

A I don't remember. And looking at it now, I don't know. I couldn't tell you. I think it's probably worth asking Jim Graham. He sent the e-mail.

Q Right. Does this e-mail, in the context of the meeting as you're describing it, does it make sense to you that he would reply this way?

A You know, I really don't remember. The best recollection I have is when I was sitting in that -- in his office in 2008 in May. That's the best recollection of, you know, the meeting.

Q Okay. The next e-mail is from Jim Link. It's sent that same day, Monday, June 2, back to Jim Graham.

Page 128

It says, "yes, wheels are in motion. Everyone took your concerns seriously. I would like to discuss with you and/or Calvin at a time convenient for you."

What were Jim Graham's concerns?

A Where are we again? I'm sorry, I didn't -- I wasn't reading with you when you were just reading. I think you said it was that second e-mail from Jim?

MS. WAHL: Right here.

BY MR. SISTO:

Q Third e-mail from the bottom.

A Okay. Could you ask the question again?

Q Link says that everyone took Graham's concerns seriously. What were Graham's concerns?

A I don't know what, you know, Jim -- how Jim is defining concerns. But all I know, at the meeting, as I told you before, he looked at Warren Williams, and he said he would feel a lot differently about the Intralot project if he wasn't involved in these other deals, the Metro deal, which is what seems to be, you know, what he was alluding to.

Q And how would the --

A Because he felt like -- I'm sorry.

Q Go ahead.

A Just to add to that, he felt like Warren Williams was getting a lot of deals around town because of his friendship with Adrian Fenty.

And at the time, you may or may not know this, the D.C. council, which was chaired by Chairman Gray, had a very acrimonious relationship with Mayor Fenty. And he was -- in my opinion, in reading The Washington Post about the baseball tickets and all this other stuff, there was a lot of jockeying to battle Fenty on behalf -- you know, with respect to the council.

I'm sorry, you had another question?

Q No, absolutely.

A So during that time, I felt that unfortunately, the lottery contract became a part of this battle, if you will, people jockeying for power and the council not really liking the mayor and trying to exert power one way or another, by not voting the contract. Because we had to submit the contract a couple times to the council for vote.

Q Why was Jim Graham concerned about that?
A I'm sorry, concerned about what?
Q Concerned about Warren Williams having too many contracts.
A I don't know. All I know is what he said in the meeting, that he felt like, quote, paraphrasing here, that Warren was getting a lot of deals based on his friendship with Adrian Fenty.
Q He didn't say why that concerned him?
A Well, I thought I answered that. He said that -- he didn't use the word "concerned." I never heard him use that word in the course of our conversation.
What he did say is he looked at Warren, and sometimes he was smiling when he was talking to Warren, and he just said, you know, you just seem to be getting a lot of deals around town because of your relationship with the mayor.
Q What was the next thing that he said?
A And then he said, I would feel differently if -- and I think I said this before. Paraphrasing here, he said he would feel differently about the lottery contract if he didn't have these other deals in play -- if he wasn't, I'm sorry, getting these other deals.

Page 131

Q Did it seem to you at the time that he was conditioning?
A No, it seemed that -- what I took away from that was he was saying what he was saying. He didn't like the fact that his perception was Warren Williams was not getting deals based on merit but on his friendship with Adrian Fenty. That was my takeaway, and that was the perception.
I felt Scott Bolden wanted to turn that meeting into something more than it was.
And by looking at these e-mails now that I'm seeing for the first time in four years, Scott Bolden had a lot of thoughts about this, speculating a lot of things, and he wasn't even in the meeting.
Q Do you think Warren Williams won the lottery RFP on merit?
A Yes, I do, because that's what we talked about. And that was the conclusion of the OFC's office when they did a report, so it wasn't just me.

It doesn't really matter what I think, does it? It matters what independent authorities thought. And they won the bid fair and square. A subsequent report came out I believe like maybe almost eight months or a year.
It was either sometime in '08, or there was an independent report that came out, somebody who was on the bidding committee, and they said, look, this is the best deal for the city, it needs to go forward. And I remember fanning it out to a lot of reporters at the time.
And that was our task. Jim and I were tasked to convince the media and members of council that Intralot and their partner, W2, won the contract fair and square. It was nothing about -- you know, and that's what I thought we were going to talk to Jim Graham about that day.
Q Why didn't you end up talking to Jim Graham about that?
A We weren't in control of the meeting;

Page 133

Mr. Graham was.
Q So he ended the meeting?
A I think I told your colleague when you asked me this earlier, I don't remember how the meeting ended.
Q Did you try to talk about the reasons why --
A I think maybe when we first came in, we introduced ourselves, because we didn't know what the agenda was. So we introduced ourselves, and we may have tried. I really don't remember how the meeting started or ended, but I do remember not being able to talk about the lottery contract.
Q And the way you recount Graham's statement that he'd be -- that he had, you know, concerns about the lottery contract related to Warren Williams' other deal, and I'm paraphrasing what you said. That sounds like it would be an opportunity to talk about the merits of the lottery contract.
Did you have an opportunity to talk about it then?
A Well, first of all, I think we need to correct the record, that I don't recall Council Member Graham ever using the word "concern" during our meeting.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013509

Page 134

Q Understood.

A He could have. I mean, you know, but that's not my recollection of the meeting.

I'm sorry, and what was the other part of the question? I just lost my train of thought.

Q Right. I'm not trying to put words in your mouth, just saying that, you know, you said very consistently that the statement that Graham made about the lottery contract and that he'd be more comfortable with the contract in relation to other deals that Warren Williams had.

And, again, it sounds to me that that would be an opportunity to talk about the merits of the lottery contract.

A I think -- I'm sure --

MS. WAHL: Let him ask a question.

THE WITNESS: Sorry.

BY MR. SISTO:

Q It's okay. Did you talk about the merits of the lottery contract at that point?

A To the best of my knowledge, I believe Jim and I at one point during that meeting tried to talk about the merits of the lottery contract, and we weren't able to do so. Now, I don't remember if it was because we were cut off.

But, you know, my takeaway from that meeting is, as I said, we didn't talk at all, besides him looking at us at one point and saying, who are you, and we chuckled and we introduced ourselves, because we may as well have been wallpaper. Because he then directed the conversation, I would say the bulk of the meeting, to Warren and Alaka.

Q So Graham was not interested in the merits of the lottery contract --

A I don't --

Q -- in that meeting?

A Yeah, I don't know if I would -- if I could say that. I think that's a -- I wouldn't want to speculate on that.

Q Okay. Did he express -- sorry, go ahead.

Page 136

A Because he did say -- yes, I'm sorry. At one point during the meeting, he did say -- of course, this is me trying to remember. You're asking me to remember a lot four years ago.

But I do think I remember him saying at one point that he didn't necessarily have a problem with the lottery contract and maybe talking about, you know -- I'm using that phrase. I think he said that. That's the only thing I remember really. I don't remember us being able to talk in detail about it. I do remember that coming out.

Q So that's the only recollection you have of his interest in the merits of the lottery contract?

A I wouldn't say -- I think we have to define somebody being interested in something and talking about something are two different things. You can be interested in something and not have -- and maybe be distracted and for some reason you're not going to talk about it.

But I wouldn't necessarily -- I couldn't -- from the best of my memory, I couldn't sit here and tell you that I -- my impression was that he wasn't interested.

I think he was interested in the lottery contract, because he was one of the first -- the reason why we got involved is that -- I'm trying to remember here, but he was one of the first -- during the first public hearing, when the lottery -- and I wasn't working on the account then.

But I think it was in April, when the contract came before the council for an initial vote, it was Jim Graham who was the first one to try to vote it down, I believe, or raise concerns about it.

So that's why we ended up in this long saga of the mayor having to submit it and resubmit it for, I think, three or four different times.

So I think that should be noted that, you know -- so that, to me, indicates he was interested in the lottery contract, very much so.

And from what I remember looking at video from that council hearing, he had a lot to say about it, that it's $40 million, we don't know the participants.

And that, you know, then led to the Intralot hiring us to educate members of -- I keep saying "Congress," I'm sorry, because I'm used to national stuff, but educate the council members on the contract.
And really what happened, it was an RFP, it was done fairly and squarely. A lot of them didn't know that. That was the takeaway that I got.
Q Okay. We'll turn to two e-mails prior. The next e-mail is just Graham e-mailing back, saying that he's going to be out for a certain period of time.
Then on Wednesday, June 11, 2008, this is on the second page of the exhibit if we start from the first page.
MS. WAHL: I'm sorry, what are you directing us to?
MR. SISTO: It's on the second page. It's the e-mail from Jim Link sent Wednesday, June 11, 2008.
MS. WAHL: At 12:31?

Page 139

MR. SISTO: That's correct.
MS. WAHL: All right. Have you got that in front of you?
THE WITNESS: Yes.
MS. WAHL: No, you don't, actually.
MR. SISTO: Yeah, flip it over there. That's it.
THE WITNESS: Okay.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q Okay. This is an e-mail that's rather similar to all of the draft e-mails sent back and forth by Jim Link and Scott Bolden, eventually answering Council Member Graham.
And the last paragraph --
MS. WAHL: I don't think we'd agree with that. I'm not sure we'd agree with that at all. So maybe you should just ask the question.
MR. SISTO: No, I can just ask the question, then. That's fine. Just trying to provide context.
MS. WAHL: She can read.
MR. SISTO: Sure.

Page 140

BY MR. SISTO:
Q On the next page, last two paragraphs of Link's e-mail, saying, "as for Metro, there are a number of factors that make it impossible for us to even consider accommodating your request."
A Am I looking at the right --
MS. WAHL: This is a little mixed up here. There you go.
THE WITNESS: We're straight now, yep. Got it.
MS. WAHL: It says 3 of 6. We're with you.
MR. SISTO: Great, perfect.
BY MR. SISTO:
Q The last paragraph says, "I also want you to be aware that our communications person, Crystal Wright, received a call from a reporter from the D.C. Examiner who was asking questions about our meeting and seemed to know a great deal about what was said." He suggests that Graham contact Crystal directly if he'd like to know more about this.
A Uh-huh.

Page 141

Q Did Graham ever contact you about the --
A No, not that I remember.
Q Does this help refresh your recollection as to whether you spoke to a D.C. Examiner reporter about the meeting or not?
A I really don't remember speaking to the D.C. Examiner reporter about the meeting.
Q So you didn't speak to -- you do not recall speaking to Bill Myers?
A I don't remember speaking to him about it, but, again, it was four years ago. I don't remember.
Q Sorry, I wanted to go back to the previous e-mail I was talking about, sent on Monday from Jim Link, June 2. It says, "yes, wheels are in motion. Everyone took your concerns seriously. I would like to discuss with you and/or Calvin at a time convenient for you."
Do you know who Calvin was?
A I'm not sure, but he could have been -- I think he was a staffer. I'm not 100 percent sure, but I think he could be a staffer for Graham.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013511

Page 142

Q Why would Link have discussions with Calvin?
A I -- I really don't remember. I don't know.
Q Was he a participant at the meeting?
A He may have been. As I think I indicated to your colleague at the beginning of the deposition, there was another staffer there. I can't -- Calvin rings a bell. I can't be 100 percent sure Calvin was at that meeting, but he could very well have been the person that I described to you, you know, that there was one staffer there.
Q Okay. But that staffer didn't say anything in the meeting?
A Again, you're asking -- I really -- there was probably six people in the room. Calvin or whoever it was could have very well spoken, but I don't have a photographic memory, so I don't remember.
But the person could have spoken. Somebody greeted us when we came in the office, like most people would.

Q Do you remember if Graham at any point in the meeting or particularly at the conclusion said that your team should follow up with him or Calvin about the meeting?
A That could quite be possible. It's -- I remember in some of the meetings we had with staffers of the council, the meetings that we set up, often they had question -- you know, we had people -- it wasn't unusual if people had further questions or they wanted us to send -- you know, get answers about something.
So that could very well be that there was more questions. That's possible. I can't tell you definitively yes or no. I don't remember exactly, but it's possible.
Q You don't recall.
A It wouldn't be unusual, is what I'm saying.
Q Okay. On the first page, the reply from Jim Graham sent Wednesday, June 11, 2008 to Jim Link.

Page 144

A Okay.
Q It says on the last line, it says, "the rejection of your application at Metro (which has not been approved) necessitated, not by any of this but by other factors relating to the application."
When you read this, what did you understand Graham to mean?
A Well, I don't really remember reading this e-mail. Now that, you know, you have it before me, I have no idea. Because I wasn't -- I didn't have any clients involved with Metro.
Q Well, Warren Williams was involved with Metro.
A He was not -- I was not retained by Warren Williams or Alaka Williams to work on any of his other projects or business. I was retained, as I told you, by W2 Tech and Intralot to work specifically and narrowly on the lottery contract.
So I have no idea what this means. Jim Graham would probably know. He wrote it.
Q Once this e-mail was sent by Jim Link to the team on June 11, was there any discussion or did you have any communications with anyone about this response from Graham, particularly his discussion of the rejection of the Metro contract?

A I don't remember.
Q Besides the members of the W2-I team, Graham and his staffers, did you speak to anyone else about the May 29, 2008 meeting?
A Not that I can remember.
Q Is there anything else we should know about the May 29, 2008 meeting that you'd like to tell us or that I haven't asked about?
A Yeah. The only thing I want to add is looking back through these e-mails and seeing that -- who was generating a lot of them and which jogged some of my memory, Scott Bolden seemed to have an agenda at play. I don't know what it was, but he seemed very interested in interpreting the meeting in a way that -- in his mind, he seems to want an interpretation of the meeting, even though he wasn't present.
And that made me very uncomfortable. And in hindsight, it's my opinion that Scott Bolden wanted it to be something that it was not.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013512

I have told you many times what the council member said. He had a personal opinion about -- he seemed to be frustrated that -- in his words, that Warren Williams was -- and in his impression, getting a lot of deals around town because of his friendship with Adrian Fenty.
That's what I remember from the meeting, and that's what he said. He said he would feel differently toward the lottery contract if he wasn't involved in other -- all these other deals, and he felt like he was getting deals because he was friends with Adrian Fenty. That's what he said.
Q Okay. And you said what Bolden was doing made you uncomfortable. Why did it make you uncomfortable?
A Because he was -- he kept -- he kept, in my opinion, looking back on these e-mails, trying to turn something -- trying to turn a meeting into something that I didn't have that impression of, very aggressively.
And you see that he generated a lot of e-mails, pushing me and Jim to get into some -- to send an e-mail to Graham. He should have sent it, because I -- I mean, that's not something that I felt I should do.

I have no reason to follow up with Graham. He should have had his client, Warren Williams, send the e-mail, because the bulk of the conversation, as I've told you many times, I would say 75 percent, more than 50 percent, was -- or the entire conversation was directed to Warren Williams, and Warren was doing most of the talking along with Jim Graham, about something we weren't there to talk about.
So that's all I have to add.
Q Do you know why Jim Link then sent the e-mail?
A I think you'd have to ask Jim. I don't remember. I remember we had discussion about sending an e-mail, and ultimately, I don't know why Jim chose to -- I don't remember, I should say, why he chose to send it.
Q Okay. When did your business relationship with W2-I or W2 Tech end?

A I'm not -- I'm not positive, but I think it was I want to say maybe a month or two I worked for them, and then I had the contract -- Intralot drew up a contract to pay me directly, because they were funding -- I can't be certain of this, but it was my impression that they were pretty much funding the PR and lobbying activities anyway, and that W2 Tech, while they entered into the contract with me in May, with the Baker Wright Group specifically for the lottery contract, it was my impression that the money, you know, was really coming from Intralot.
So, I mean, I don't know. You know, they decided to terminate the contract with me, and then I worked with Byron directly. I had a contract directly with him.
Q Okay. When you were working directly for Byron, were you still interacting with Warren Williams or Intralot?
A Yeah, I think that they still attended -- we had some meetings together and we may have talked on the phone. But I couldn't tell you how extensively that was.

I just remember most of my interacting coming -- I'm sorry, involving Byron Boothe and the team at Intralot. But yeah, they were still the team. You know, the contract hadn't been ratified -- I'm sorry.
The vote -- the final vote on the contract didn't happen until I want to say maybe the fall of 2008.
So, yeah, we still all had to -- you know, I'm sure there was some communication. I don't remember it being -- you know, I can't give you like a hard and fast how often I talked to them.

Alaka and I socialized a little bit. She came to a Christmas party I had, and we found out that our mother -- her mother-in-law, Warren Williams' father and mother, went to school with my mother at Virginia Union University. So it's a small world. But we didn't find that out until, I think, two years after we stopped working together. So --

Q Okay. And they never hired you on any other matter?

A No, no. Never.

Q Since 2009, have you been working for Intralot?

A No.

MR. SISTO: Do you have anything else?

MS. MICHAELS: I don't think so.

MR. SISTO: All right. That's all I have.

MS. WAHL: We will read and sign.

(Whereupon, at 1:28 p.m., the deposition was concluded.)

I HEREBY CERTIFY that I have read this transcript of my deposition and that this transcript accurately states the testimony given by me, with the changes or corrections, if any, as noted.

PROCEEDINGS

Whereupon,

OMAR KARIM

was recalled as a witness and, having first been duly sworn, was examined and testified further as follows:

EXAMINATION (Continued)

BY MS. ROCKWOOD:

Q So just to go over kind of what Brad told you last time, because this is a deposition, your answers will be on the record. So you need to say yes or no instead of nodding or saying something not clear. Let me finish my questions, and I will let you finish your answers so there is a clear dialogue on the record. If you don't understand something, let me know. And if you would like to refer to a document, maybe we will wait until the end and go through documents at that point.

Any questions for me?

A No.

Q Okay. Like I said, hopefully, this will be brief. I just want to follow up on a few things that we talked about in your earlier testimony, specifically having to do with your interactions with some of your development partners.

So first of all, one of your original development partners was Donatelli, as we discussed. What did you anticipate their role would be on the development team versus the role of you and the rest of Banneker?

A We had not memorialized, you know, the hundred or so or, you know, major key things that they would be working with us on. We asked them to come on board because we thought they had a really good relationship with Council Member Graham. Of course, they had experience negotiating with Metro and ultimately completing at that time probably the Ellington or maybe one or two other projects.

So Banneker was the lead partner on it. We made all of the major decisions, what type of financing, who was our general contractor going to be, how were we going to stack all of the funds, what the program was going to be. And they were, I would say, somewhat of a advisor, a key partner, but we did -- we were doing the lion's share of the work and saw ourselves doing the lion's share of the work and depending on them for their experience in terms of negotiating, are there some key elements we want to be aware of, that type of thing.

They told us they were busy on other stuff. They had just been awarded the chiller site at that time, and they thought being kind of a minority partner on our project, while they just got awarded the chiller site, might be kind of a win-win for them, and this would be like dessert when you're eating a good meal type of thing.

Q As we discussed last time, there were some e-mails --

A I'm sorry. Not to cut you off. And even when they dropped out, right, in December 2007 and it was the remaining members of the development team, MacFarlane Partners, us, District Development Group, our financiers, all of those folks, WMATA staff still felt we were the better team and our proposal was better and immediately recommended that we become the selected developer for that project, because they knew who was the lead, you know. They looked at us, and the professional real estate staff felt confident that we could move forward with the project.

Q What was the role of District Development Group? You mentioned them just now.

A They led some of our community efforts. We had one of the principals lived in the neighborhood, had a good relationship with the ANCs, other members of the community, really helped do some ground support work for us. They had some experience doing some development as well. They did a really successful school over in Southeast, really bright folks. One of the principals had a lot of construction experience, 20-something years. So they were a good partner.

But this was clearly, you know, a Banneker led. We were the key people. MacFarlane, multi-billion development and finance organization, all of our bank financing, you know. It was a -- when you have a development team, that's why you call it a development team. You have a major lead developer oftentimes or sometimes major developers or a number of developers if you're working with a major project, and then you have kind of small or less key members of your team.

And, you know, a development project might last -- before you complete it, might go 10 years. I would say the average project of a $40, $50 million size might go six, seven years. And in that time, you're probably going to have a couple people come in and out, and it's a normal thing, and the staff, you know, understood that.

Q What was MacFarlane Partners' role? Were they primarily financiers?

A They were going to be whatever we needed them to be. Did you see their letter?

Q I think so.

A So their letter spelled out more than kind of the financing. Victor MacFarlane, the principal of that firm, he wanted to be involved in the project personally. They sent their folks there to attend the pitch with us. Clearly, they had all of the financing, you know, that we needed to get the project completed and any and all other support that we needed, whether it was development support, whether it was retail, residential, construction. I mean, they were a very, very good partner.

And throughout the process, we tried to, you know, continue to have that caliber, whether it was Bank of America CDC or Goldman, Sachs or JPMorgan, their real estate arm who was interested in partnering with us.

Q Did MacFarlane stay in the project, stay involved in the project all the way up until March of 2010?

A No.

Q When did they stop being involved?

A I don't recall the date or the time period.

Q The year?

A I mean, it was like four years, right, almost four different calendar years. But I do know that one of the things that caused some of our partners to change is the lengthy delay. Rosalyn Doggett and the rest of the WMATA staff assured us that the deal would be done in September/October 2008. That's why we agreed to a 10-day period. It got pushed back initially. Graham forced it to be no less than 60-day approval. And then once we were about to get everything done in December, you know, or November, once the JDA and lease and all of those things, I think he again stalled it in his attempt -- because he was about to become the chairman of the board. Once he became the chair, of course, it just went downhill after that.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013534

But as I recall, the not having that definitive agreement in place was, you know, one of the major reasons and not knowing, because it was at the next board meeting we're going to get it approved, at the next board meeting we're going to get it approved, really caused some of our partners a lot of angst, because when they read the term sheet, it was hey, it's not done yet.

Q Going back to Donatelli, last time we discussed an e-mail where you all talked about having them take the lead in the project.

A Uh-huh.

Q What -- did you anticipate that there would be a corresponding change in their role with the project, that they would become more involved in the management of it?

A When they were going to take the lead, yes. We weren't going to take the lead; we were going to be more of a silent partner. And the only reason we did it or would have even considered it is because we thought Graham was going to kill the deal.

At that point we had invested, you know, nine months or, you know, almost a year since the solicitation initially came out. We had at least $100,000 tied up in it -- I mean WMATA had $100,000. We had a lot more expenses and time in it and that sort of stuff. Our arms were twisted behind our back, and we just wanted to at that point -- I would say get it done not knowing that three years later, in 2010, it still wouldn't be done.

Q How --

A But even with that, even with them taking the lead, it was just -- if you looked at our slide show or any of those type things, we still had, you know -- it was just a small window when we thought they were going to take the lead.

Q How far did you get in defining how your roles would change?

A We had one meeting about it. I think it was like a Friday evening in December 2007. And we were going to step back, and they were going to be the lead, and we were going to be kind of a partner and split our interests between DDG and Banneker.

Q Okay. And then obviously, Donatelli left the team in December of 2008?

A Yeah, that same weekend.

Q Or 2007. I'm sorry.

A The same weekend. We think they talked to Graham and Graham told them don't do it and that this still wasn't for them, like he told us on several occasions. They dropped out Sunday, and we had to scramble and get stuff together.

Fortunately, the interview wasn't until 10:30. We did it. We went back to the office that Monday morning, just took them off because they weren't a big part of our initial PowerPoint presentation. I mean, they had a couple of projects, but we were able to make a couple of changes, you know.

Unbeknownst to us, they called our teaming partners. They called Chip Glasgow over at Holland & Knight and told Him don't come. Donatelli's vice-president did that. And Chip is an honorable guy. He's been our land use counsel for many years. He called us the morning of the presentation and said hey, Omar, I just want to confirm that we're not going to come to the interview, Larry Clark, you know, Donatelli's vice-president, called me this weekend and told me not to come. I mean, it was just so -- it threw me back, and I said no, please come, I'm on my way down to Metro right now. He came, which was great. He's the premier land use guy, I think, or one of the top 5 in the city. And it was a great asset.

It was sad to learn that Donatelli had, you know, called around and told our partners. It appeared like the fix was on. Okay? If they drop out, okay, you drop out, but don't call all of the people that we hired. Donatelli didn't hire them. I hired them. We hired the architect firm, the engineering firm. We had the financing lined up, all of that. So then to call our team members on the weekend that you're going to drop out and say hey, don't come to the interview that Monday morning, it just smelled very, very bad to us.

But thank God, you know, it was our best pitch ever, and I've pitched a lot in my life, and it went great, I mean well enough where WMATA staff immediately recommended us that we be their partner on the deal.

Q Did Donatelli or Larry Clark call anyone other than Holland & Knight?

A I don't know.

Q But nobody went to you and said that they had received a call from Donatelli about them dropping out?

A I don't recall that being the case.

Q So after Donatelli dropped out in December of 2007, when did you all approach Metropolis about joining the development team after that?

A Metropolis came up because I think they had a nice relationship with Howard. Howard owned one of the adjacent parcels where the CVS sits. And when we were interviewing with Howard to get their support to sell or joint venture or develop the CVS parcel, they mentioned Metropolis as a good partner.

And we knew Metropolis. We knew they had done a project on top of a Metro at 14th and V. It seemed like a good idea. I didn't personally know their principals and that type of stuff, but we kind of knew of them, and Howard recommended them. I think that's how the discussions began to occur.

Q Do you recall when that was specifically?

A I don't, but I think we got the letter from Howard either in January or February. So the discussions with Metropolis was probably somewhere -- or the initial conversation somewhere around then.

Q Is that January of 2007 or 2008?

A '8, yeah.

Q Okay. So Metropolis sent you all a letter, I think it is January 27th, 28th, 29th, around then, of 2008? No?

Page 154

A Okay.

Q So would it have been some time prior to that?

A It wasn't January 2007. We had a partner up until, what's that, the first, second week of December. So it was, you know, some time during that period. And I don't recall when we began having conversations with Howard, but I could imagine we had some early conversations with Howard. But when the conversations really got, you know, to the point where they were prepared to give us a letter of support saying that they would do our deal, I think Metropolis came up during one of those conversations. So that seems reasonable, January some time 2008.

Q Did you approach them, or did they approach you?

A I don't recall how like our initial conversation came up, but --

Q Did anyone recommend to you that you get them involved?

A Yeah, I think the Howard folks mentioned them to us.

Q And you were -- what were you discussing with Howard at that point?

A Developing a hotel or something on their site, the CVS. It was a nice sized, it was right at the corner of 7th Street and Florida Avenue, and we thought it would be a good addition to this -- to the project.

Q Were you actively --

A And -- I'm sorry. And WMATA asked about it, as you recall in some of the e-mails, to say hey, what's the status of your negotiations with Howard. I think one of the last e-mails, hey, you know, we think we're going to get something very soon from them. Shortly thereafter, we got the letter, and we sent it to Roz Doggett or some of the staff.

Q Were you actively seeking another development partner after Donatelli dropped out?

A I don't recall that aspect being a major thing for us. Again, we hadn't done a deal with Metro before. I don't recall them raising it during our interview hey, where's Donatelli, okay, you all are gone, you don't have Donatelli, Donatelli this, Donatelli. I don't think we probably had, you know, more than one question, if that. It might have been. It was a long interview, but I certainly don't recall that being kind of a driver, Donatelli not on your deal, you won't have the deal.

Q Did you think that it was important to Metro that you have another development partner?

A It was a lie by Jim Graham to make this up to say Donatelli was the support. Even Metro staff didn't feel it was appropriate when Graham tried to put language into the motion to approve our term sheet that there be -- certain people be named as the lead for different reasons. And WMATA staff said no, that's inappropriate, you know, they want to be able to -- basically, the developers should be able to, you know, mix and match what they deem, you know, appropriate.

And Graham was pushing LaKritz Adler at the same time and then pushing LaKritz Adler on us. LaKritz Adler didn't have any of the experience we had. We had just completed or was in the ground with the Walter Jones School. We had the Deanwood project going. We had other projects. I had a lot of experience, including a project I built right here on 809 Sixth Street. The Sixth Street Flats, I did that. I led that effort when I was at another development company, ran it from a parking lot to where it is today, and that building, that size building was a nice size, you know, development project to give us our experience.

And LaKritz Adler didn't have that experience at the time. And so for him to be raising some, okay, you need this, really he wanted -- it was a red herring. He wanted LaKritz Adler on that team and would have done anything to get them on it, including telling me that before he votes for us, I need to meet with him at the meeting, at the subsequent meeting going out and telling me I need to have LaKritz Adler on the team.

So I didn't think that Metro -- well, clearly, Metro never, throughout our entire three-year relationship with them, believed that Banneker and my staff and our team, our entire team didn't have the necessary, whether it's construction experience, development experience, or any of those things, to not recommend us. A dozen different times, they recommended to the staff that they approve our term sheet, joint development agreement, move forward with us, all of those times, and not once did they say hey, we're not going to do that because you don't have Donatelli or Chris Penick with -- or Penick with Metropolis got brain cancer, he had to drop out.

All type of stuff happened, but they knew all along that we had the sufficient wherewithal, teaming arrangements, financing to move on.

Q When Metropolis initially joined your team in January of 2008, what did you anticipate their role would be in the project?

A Similar to what Donatelli was going to do. Clearly, they had -- Howard was kind of pushing them on the Howard parcel. So it made sense that -- it became a bigger project. It might have been a $80 million project at that time. There was enough room for a whole lot of people at the time. They had built over Metro sites and said they could provide some insight. They weren't a big company by far, but just like -- and Donatelli wasn't large as well, but having that type of insight and experience we thought we would get from them. We never did. Likewise, we never got it from Chris. We didn't get -- wound up not getting it from Metropolis, unfortunately, because -- did Penick die?

Q I don't know.

A Okay. You know, he got very ill, and the company went through some stuff. So yeah.

Q I guess if you could just be as specific as possible for me since I'm not in the construction industry --

A Sure.

Q -- sort of what -- specific examples of what you would do versus what a development partner would do.

A I'm sorry. Can you repeat your question?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013537

Q If you could give me some specific examples of what you and Banneker would have done on the project versus what, I guess, Metropolis at this time would have done.

A We had three partners. For a long time, it was going to be three partners. At that time it was us, District Development Group, and Metropolis.

Q Okay.

A And we would have, I think the majority of the line items in our discussions of a development, you know, teaming arrangement or joint venture agreement had Banneker leading all of the major components, leading the construction, leading the finance, leading the design, blah, blah, blah, blah, blah, blah, blah.

And then for other partners, it was mostly supporting Banneker on the construction, supporting Banneker on the development, supporting Banneker on the negotiations with Metro, supporting Banneker on the financing, you know, those type of things.

It might have been -- DDG might have been leading the community efforts, because they clearly had relationships in the community. It might have been if Donatelli was involved, it would have been, you know, managing Graham or that type of thing, yes.

But all along, you know, we saw ourselves -- it was our deal. We saw ourselves as the lead on the partner. And even when we had Bank of America CDC, it got a little bit more, I would say, even in terms of what the roles and responsibilities were going to be because they was going to be providing some level of guaranty, financial guaranty on the project and providing some equity.

But for the majority part -- and that probably -- bringing them on board probably was -- one time, it might have been almost equal. I mean, it was clearly our deal. We were running the show. But they had a lot of affordable housing experience, and they would bring in the equity. We just had a good relationship, and they had more capacity or seemingly wanted to be more engaged than Donatelli at that time, and there was more room because it was just two of us than three partners.

Q We talked about the June resolution, selecting you all as the developer, and one of the conditions was describing roles and responsibilities for members of the development team.

Do you remember that?

A I do.

Q Okay. What was your response to that? Did you submit anything in writing to Metro?

A No. Did that get approved, or did they not include it in the resolution?

Q I will just show you this. Let I mark this as Exhibit 6.

A And do you have the motion that was made by Graham?

Q Yeah. I'm just going to show you the minutes of the Board of Directors meeting from June 26th, 2008.

A Okay.

(Exhibit Karim 6 identified.)

BY MS. ROCKWOOD:

Q Do you see in there that there's a motion to, I believe, specify roles and responsibilities for members of the development team?

A I see what's shown as meeting minutes, but I would -- it would be -- I don't recall the language being exactly this. This is kind of a summary of the meeting minutes.

Q Right.

A I think there was two or three motions, a couple of different motions that Graham made, some of them which were rejected by the committee and some of them which was ultimately approved by the committee.

I think they have the meeting tape-recorded, and it might even be on the Board Web site. I would probably encourage you to either get the exact dissertation as to what occurred at the meeting, but I don't think this fully grasped what happened.

But I think I did forward you internal communication between the members of the Board and the staff the week leading up to it where Board Member and Council Member Graham wanted to spell out the roles and responsibility. And who was that, Nat Bottigheimer, as I recall, told him he didn't think that they could do that and attempted to come up with some other language that would appease him. And --

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013538

Q Right. I'm familiar with that e-mail. I guess my question is, what was your reaction to this motion?

A I was -- in April 2008, to give you kind of how I felt, I felt like a man or woman left at the altar. We all go down there. Our attorney, Chip Glasgow, and other folks were sitting in the room. The Board members go away in executive session for a couple of hours and then come back, and then Graham makes a motion to extend our approval, not select us, for no less than 60 days.

So I was devastated then, right. So anything other than extending -- any type of selection, it was like -- almost like a relief. So do I recall like exactly how I felt? Even though there was some other emotions going, I felt like okay, wow, we got our term sheet approved.

The one thing that was -- that raised a flag, as I recall it, that might have a financial impact -- the roles and responsibilities are fine, you know. I didn't see that -- as I recall, it didn't raise a major flag. But the one flag was the housing component, the affordable housing, because that attempts to change the material terms of our term sheet that we had negotiated with WMATA, the financial things, that we have to do affordable housing. Therefore, the offer that we made automatically gets reduced by the thing that Graham certainly included in that motion, which materially changed our deal with them.

But I can't recall the staff maybe ever asking us for at least anything in writing, probably not even orally, hey, can you give us a list of 10 things that's going to happen on this site and who, you know -- and if they did, it was so early that it became a nonissue for the duration of our time with WMATA.

Q Did you have any discussions with Metropolis about -- following this motion?

Page 166

A When you say "following," it wasn't -- we didn't have to do anything. The minutes say, which wasn't in -- this is not the motion, as I recall it. It said that the staff will provide documentation to the Board.

Q I see.

A It didn't say Banneker should do anything, the development team should do anything. There was no direction on our part in terms of us doing anything, requiring us to do anything in terms of responsibilities.

Q I see. So you never took any action in response to that, and the staff never asked you anything, to the best of your recollection?

A To the best of my recollection, this motion didn't require us to do anything. It asked the staff to clarify some things for them. There was a lot of things going on. I don't recall that being a big thing.

Q And then Metropolis was a member of your development team at the time that this -- that your term sheet was approved in June of 2008 or, I guess, at the time you were selected as the developer in June of 2008?

A Is that a question?

Q It's a -- I'm getting to my question.

A Okay.

Q When did they drop out?

A I don't recall.

Q Do you recall a month?

A If you allow me to look at --

Q Well, the last communication that I see in your production is from August of 2008.

A That says what?

Q I think it's a meeting with you all and Deputy Mayor Albert.

A Okay.

Q But there's nothing after that. Were they still involved in the fall of 2008?

A I don't recall. I do recall Scott getting, you know, brain cancer and that being like one of the, you know -- he's the president of their company or principal of their company. There's another guy, Merrick Malone, who was like their vice-president, and I don't think Merrick could make a lot of decisions, who was like our main contact on it, without Scott being involved, and I think Scott went away or to the hospital, he got brain cancer, you know. That was a major thing. So I'm not sure.

It might have been around that time that -- but again, they weren't actively involved in the day-to-day negotiations with WMATA at the time, selecting any of the team members. We were the lead on it. So they were a minor partner. So as a minor partner, it wasn't a -- we didn't consider either -- you know, their leaving a major thing or -- yeah.

Q Were they still involved in the project when Bank of America became involved?

A I don't think so.

Q Okay. And do you remember when you started discussions with Bank of America?

A Do you --

Q Well, their letter of intent to join is in March of 2009.

A Okay. So it was probably a few months prior to that, you know. To get the letter of intent took some time. So it might have been some time in the fall of '08 some time.

Q Do you recall when you -- did you notify Metro that Metropolis had left the project?

A I'm not sure. We had pretty regular meetings with Metro. So I'm pretty sure we kept them abreast somewhat real-time of who the parties were, what we were doing, and that type of thing. I think even prior to getting a letter of intent from Bank of America, they were involved in meetings with Metro, probably months, you know, leading up to that possibly.

Q But you don't recall when you would have notified Metro that Metropolis was leaving the team?

A Well, I was the lead partner on it. Everybody else was minor development partners on the deal. And whenever I thought it was appropriate, we probably let them know. But it never was an issue to WMATA's professional staff. It never became a issue. It never was an issue. Not one -- as I recall, I don't think the negotiations ever stopped, got stalled, delayed, or any of that stuff because either Donatelli wasn't there or Metropolis wasn't there, you know.

We had one of the strongest development teams that I can imagine, the top mixed use, a Metro architect/engineering firm in the region, the top land use person in this area in Chip Glasgow at Holland & Knight. We had the top, you know, other construction firms that wanted to build the thing, Clark and Tompkins Builders Group. We had, you know, a very seasoned construction management staff in our staff and development staff. We had all the financing lined up over and over again. We had 9 percent tax credits. We had a tax increment financing, which we wanted. We had the 220(d) loan that was going to provide all the debt. DCHFA wanted to provide the debt as well. Goldman, Sachs, JPMorgan.

Even with the economy going the way it was south, everybody was just so excited to do this deal because it was in Washington, D.C., as opposed to Las Vegas or Arizona where the economy was really tanking. It was at Main and Main, right, Georgia

Avenue and Florida Avenue. It was a block from the Metro. We had a killer deal from WMATA in terms of a really nice financial structure with them. We were a reputable company.

We had all of the pieces, all of the stars were really lined up on this project, and Metro staff, their professional, nonpolitical, apolitical staff, even with a top negotiator with Rosalyn Doggett. If you've ever talked to this lady, she is one of the toughest -- like straight-shooter, fair but tough. Like a parent sometimes, she was a fair but tough.

But every single time, her and the rest of the staff recommended to the board that they approve our deal, and every single time, Graham was thwarting it. Even to the extent where he asked -- what's the lady's name, our friend, the general counsel?

Q Carol O'Keeffe.

A Carol O'Keeffe to look at issuing a best and final offer on our deal and hey, can you reput that out there to the last three people, including

LaKritz Adler, they were one of the last three, can you put it back out there so he can get the deal. And Carol told him no, that Metro staff, the solicitation doesn't allow that, you've got to let the time clock run out.

And clearly, immediately within six months, they let the time clock run out or five months or four months, and they tabled our deal. Immediately after they tabled our deal, LaKritz Adler goes and puts in an unsolicited proposal.

I mean, this is criminal. What Graham did and those actions were criminal, even though the staff was attempting to -- I mean, the guy was chairman of the board. He was the king. He was the leader of this group. He told the general manager what to do, and the general manager was like whatever you want to do.

And then when he didn't become the chair, when he wasn't the chair anymore, he became the committee chair, which then goes and continues to have power and authority over what happens with our deal and to say that -- to write the op-ed in the Post was ridiculous. Graham attempting to say, you know, that your project was going to be under a lease and they weren't ever going to sell the deal and Metro doesn't sell it. As soon as they tabled our deal, they put the solicitation out as a sale.

This is -- I hope you've all seen what we saw here. It is absolutely ridiculous. And they old it to one of the bidders who wasn't even a finalist. They wind up selling it, raising the bar, keeping our money, and -- that's it.

Q So you're saying that Metro staff never encouraged you to take on a more -- another development partner?

A I didn't say that. You said that.

Q Okay. Is that true?

A What I said was it never became a big deal to WMATA staff that Donatelli left or Metropolis left. And we wound up, you know, at different points having different partners, Donatelli for a small period, Metropolis for a small period, and Bank of America for a longer period. They were much more engaged. WMATA staff was fine with them, comfortable with them. They had a lot of experience in the area.

So I'm not sure what your question --

Q Well, did Metro staff ever tell you that it was important for you to partner with another development company?

A I don't recall what the language was, but we didn't feel it was a deal killer enough, like every day that we moved along to, you know, not have them. But clearly, we brought on Bank of America CDC for a reason, and I think, you know, they were -- WMATA staff was comfortable. They vetted them. They called their references and did all of that.

Q But did WMATA staff ever tell you that you should take on a development partner or --

A Graham told me I should, and he told me we should select LaKritz Adler.

Q Right. But WMATA staff?

A Did WMATA staff ever tell us that we should? I don't recall.

Q Did they ever tell you that you should take on a development partner to help you receive approval from the Board?

A I don't recall. If you allow me to look through some of the e-mails and stuff like that I gave you or maybe you have e-mails, if you could refresh, right, my recollection. It's been a while. There was a lot going on there.

Q Right. No, I don't have a particular document to show you.

A Okay.

Q When Metropolis left your team, who informed you or how did you learn about that?

A I don't know. I don't think it was a -- I don't think we got a letter or anything like that. I think it was a conversation, kind of a feeling in the discussion, hey, you know, they weren't actively involved every single day of what was going on, and we would probably have appreciated more insight as we were going through our negotiations with WMATA and learning that Scott got sick.

They were going through their own thing. This was like a minor -- or certainly it appeared to be kind of a minor deal to them, thing to them. The head of the company gets brain cancer. They were probably just trying to figure out if they were going to stay a concern. That's kind of the feeling I got. And so we just kind of, you know, moved on and got another partner at the time.

Q You mentioned they were kind of -- their involvement was kind of minor. How many times would you say you met with them to talk about the project?

A Less than a dozen, if I can recall. It might have been way less than that. It was hard to reach Merrick.

Q Did they, as far as you know, intend to stay in the project all the way through its completion?

A Versus what?

Q I don't know, versus staying in until you received approvals and then dropping out at some point.

A I don't recall that.

Q You don't recall what?

MR. MC DANIEL: Are you asking him did they as a partner intend to stay in the project until the completion of the project or --

Page 177

MS. ROCKWOOD: Right.

MR. MC DANIEL: -- if they were involved just so he could get approval?

MS. ROCKWOOD: Right, that's my question.

THE WITNESS: I don't recall the latter. I don't recall -- I know that Howard liked them, and that's why we even had a conversation with them. And it so happened they've got experience working on Metro things. So I thought it was a nice deal.

WMATA staff clearly was comfortable with anybody who we, you know, wanted to bring on. So if they were on at one point and then not on at another point, which they were, right, WMATA staff still never had an issue with it. Like even if we had a conversation like that, which I don't recall us having a conversation, but I'm not, you know --

BY MS. ROCKWOOD:

Q We talked last week -- not last week, last month a little bit about Deputy Mayor Albert and that you had some discussions with him about the project.

Did he ever provide advice about development partners?

A We used to talk to Neil all the time about the project. As Deputy Mayor, you know, for certain issues and when he became a board member, as a D.C. principal Board member, not every day, right, but if we got stuck, if we felt that something was happening, if he could help out, something like that, yeah, we would talk to him a lot.

Q Did he suggest that you partner with Metropolis at any point?

A I think Howard recommended Metropolis, but we probably talked with him about it, like after we spoke with Howard. But I think -- I might be wrong, but we had a whole list, right -- not right, but I'm informing you. We had a whole list of different partners when we were looking at going after this deal who would help us out. I don't recall Metropolis being on that initial list, but they might have been on the list we put on the board, hey, who do we think could do it. We probably started off looking at who had Metro experience, who we knew, that type of thing. There was a dozen or so different companies.

And when Howard brought up Metropolis, it was fine with us, you know. Howard liked them. I don't think it would have been a deal killer, but if somebody recommends somebody and they own an adjacent parcel and they've got a relationship with them, it seemed like a win-win for us.

Q Did anyone from Howard contact Metropolis on your behalf?

A I don't know.

Q To recommend you or anything like that?

A You have to ask the people from Howard.

Q Who is your contact there?

A It was a lady who was like an associate vice-president. I don't think she's there any longer, but I can tell you. I think the letter came from Dr. Hassan Minor, like a senior vice-president over there at the time. I think he might still be there.

Let's see. Howard University, Diane

Page 180

Branch. She was like their associate vice-president of real estate or something.
Q But as far as you know, you don't know of any conversations that she would have had with Metropolis?
A She might have. Clearly, they knew them and recommended them. So she might have had a conversation with them --
Q Did --
A -- or Dr. Minor or somebody else at the institution. I'm a graduate of Howard, was on the Board of Trustees at Howard. I could have thought it was my good looks or something that had them do it, but clearly, it wasn't.
Q Did Deputy Mayor Albert ever have a conversation with Metropolis to recommend you all?
A I don't know, but I do know -- I mean, we had a meeting at Neil's office, I think, once or multiple times about the project.
Q Would that have been -- I saw you had a few meetings after your approval by the Metro Board in the summer of 2008.

Page 181

Did you have any meetings with them prior to that, prior to June of 2008?
A I don't recall. Again, I think I mentioned to you we probably had less than a dozen or so meetings. I remember one, possibly two meetings with Metropolis at their office and, I think, with Scott, and I don't recall kind of what time period.
Again, they were like -- their involvement in the project was somewhat minimal because of -- which I later found out they were going through the financial stuff. They had a big hit on the project across from their main office. They were trying to sell these condos, and I think they were a little under water. And Scott was ill.
Q Okay. Did they ever express any concern to you that they wanted to become more involved in the project?
A More involved than what?
Q In the day-to-day responsibilities, more management of the construction process, anything like that.

A We probably had some conversations on -- all development deals, you're going to talk about what people are going to do and what their roles and responsibilities are and that type of thing. I'm pretty certain that -- we could have had some conversations like that, and I don't think at that time, once Donatelli dropped out, we were probably willing to have somebody, you know, do something on our deal to kill it like Donatelli did and drop off at the last minute. So we might have had some conversations.
It happens all the time. All types of memories kind of pop into my head at this time, but we've had conversations with some firms. They're not used to dealing with, quite frankly, I will say black developers in the city who have got any capacity, who have got any experience, who know what they're doing, and who didn't want to ride in the back seat, you know. We weren't a back-seat-type outfit, or at least I'm not.
And therefore, if that did come up, I'm pretty sure I told them that, you know, we would stay in the lead role, that we wanted their support and their help and that type of thing. Some of these guys kind of want to take control of it.

But I don't recall that being a big deal. If it was, it wasn't a big enough deal to WMATA or anybody who counted. I mean, you're going to have negotiations with development partners of roles, responsibilities, guarantees, money, who you want to retail, who you want to residential. Maybe somebody owns a property management division; they want to manage it. You can imagine; right? They've got a relationship with a general contractor. They've got a relationship with a bank. It's a million different issues that comes up on a day-to-day basis. You try to negotiate them and get them resolved and that type of stuff.
And I think for a quasi government organization like WMATA and all of the bells and whistles and things, we did a good job at negotiating, or we thought we did with our team, even though some of the team members came and went in the worst financial history of America in almost a hundred years.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013543

Q Did either Donatelli or Metropolis ever tell you that they wouldn't remain involved with the deal unless they could take a more lead role?
A Okay. So first with respect to Donatelli, we gave them the lead, as you recall, right, and they dropped out like the weekend before and then told our teaming partners not to come to the interview. Everything, all the e-mails, all of that, they were going to be the lead; even though we did 95 percent of the work, right, they were going to be the lead.
So that addresses that issue.
Q Right.
A In terms of Metropolis, yeah, as I indicated, we probably had some conversations. Again, I don't -- you know, it's been so long ago, that particular piece, and they weren't involved. We didn't have that many meetings with them.
But I don't see how any of that stuff is really as important as, you know, Graham's actions and what he did and what the Board did or failed to do in terms of voting on our deal. Like not once did they raise these issues up in a committee meeting. Three years later, they can come up with all types of excuses as to why they did or did not do something, or two years later.

But the Board wasn't concerned about it. They didn't bring it up. Graham, you know, attempts to bring it up at this point or whatever because he's caught, you know, red-handed. And staff wasn't making a big deal of it, and the Board never -- it didn't come up in any Board meeting. And if it did, where are the meeting minutes of those or whatever.
So whether it was Metropolis or Donatelli, we have Bank of America CDC for a very, very long time actively involved. If you ask me some questions about them, I can tell you, because they were actively involved, participating in the meetings. Clearly, we were the lead, though, but they were going to all of these meetings with Metro staff for a year.
It was only until Graham forced us to change the terms of the deal, to go back to a lease, that after we kind of went down the sale direction, that it was our understanding that Bank of America didn't want to do that. And I let Graham know, and he said don't worry about it, you can replace them. I said do you got any recommendations. I didn't want to bring up LaKritz Adler again but asked about Donatelli again. And, you know --

Q I have one completely unrelated question, and then I think that will be it.
A That's it?
Q I told you it would be short.
A All right.
Q You mentioned a meeting in the fall of 2009 at Busboys & Poets on 14th Street.
A Uh-huh.
Q You met with Graham and his chief of staff. You said it wasn't Ted Loza.
A I wish it was. God, I wish it was Ted Loza. That would have been just like -- the only reason I thought it was -- a reporter asked me whether it was Ted. That's the only reason I had it in my head. I think I looked up in that period.

Page 187

Q Was it Calvin Woodland?
A I don't recall. I wish --
Q He's the Council Member's chief of staff now.
A I don't know. I wish I -- I can call our former CFO to see if he remembers whether it was a black guy or not black guy basically.
Q But you don't remember whether it was or not?
A I don't know.
Q Okay. That's fine.
A Did Graham tell you who it was?
Q I couldn't say.
MR. MC DANIEL: You can say if you met with Graham.
MS. ROCKWOOD: It will be clear in our report. That's all I have.
MR. MC DANIEL: I have a couple of questions.
EXAMINATION
BY MR. MC DANIEL:
Q Mr. Karim, there were some questions about communications that you had with WMATA staff regarding particularly Exhibit Number 6. Just to put it in context, you were approved by the staff and the Board in June of 2008 as the developer for the project; was that your understanding?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013544

Page 188

A Yes.

Q And you were informed by way of letter that your consideration or deconsideration of the term sheet and the JDA had been tabled in March or April of 2010?

A I think April of 2010.

Q Okay. Now, during that time, did you continue to maintain dialogue with the WMATA staff regarding negotiation of the term sheet?

A During which time?

Q Between 2008, June, and April 2010.

A Yes. We had thousands and thousands of hours of discussions and probably hundreds of meetings with their staff and binders and binders full of documents. Maybe you could fill up hundreds of boxes worth of e-mails and stuff.

Q And were there occasions when the WMATA staff did ask you to address concerns that had been raised by the Board in writing?

Page 189

A Yes.

Q And when -- for instance, by way of example, was there a question regarding Mr. Warren Williams, Jr., his involvement in the development deal and some interaction that he had in the business community, with the business community of the District of Columbia that you responded to by way of a letter?

A Yes. I think there was two, three letters that we responded to at the behest of, I think it was, Jim Graham, according to the staff who told us it was Jim Graham who was asking these things.

Q If I was just to show you -- I don't have an extra copy.

MS. ROCKWOOD: No, that's fine. Can you tell me the date of that letter?

MR. MC DANIEL: April 23rd, 2008.

MS. ROCKWOOD: Okay. I will have her mark my copy.

(Exhibit Karim 7 identified.)

Page 190

BY MR. MC DANIEL:

Q Mr. Karim, let me show you what's been marked as Exhibit Number 7. Can you tell me what that is?

A This is a letter that I penned to Rosalyn Doggett on April 23rd, 2008.

Q And why did you write that letter?

A Because Rosalyn Doggett either called or e-mailed me on or about that date, telling me that Jim Graham, D.C. council member for Ward 1 and a member of WMATA's Board, brought some concerns to her, and she asked me to respond to these concerns.

Q Now, before or after this, were you ever asked to respond in writing to any concern about the particular roles that members of your development team might play in response to some Board concern?

A I don't recall that ever being the case.

Q And you said that Donatelli, in essence, dropped out in 2007?

A Yes, sir.

Q And this was prior to your presentation to the WMATA staff, prior to your selection?

Page 191

A That's correct, the weekend prior to us going to our interview with WMATA staff.

Q So obviously, nobody from Donatelli appeared at the presentation?

A They did not.

Q And you said that you recall some questions about why they might not have been there at the presentation?

A I don't recall -- there might not have been any questions about them. I might have raised it because they were initially -- they weren't initially in our group, and then we added them to our group. And at the interview, we might have brought it up and told them hey, you know, they're no longer with our group. But I know there wasn't any extensive conversation or dialogue with any of them not being on our team anymore.

Q And at some point in time after that but before your selection, Metropolis got involved; is that right?

A Yes.

Q Now -- and you can educate me about this.

Page 192

It seemed to me to be a bit of an odd question. Are there scenarios where an organization might become a part of a development team only for the purpose of approval of a term sheet or a development agreement by a Board without any intent to be involved beyond that to the completion of the project?

A In my experience, I haven't experienced anything like that before. Some people might, but I can't recall a deal that we've had a conversation like that.

Q And if that was the agreement, if that was the understanding between Banneker and Metropolis, would that have been something that needed to be communicated, then, to the staff and the Board prior to their consideration?

A I don't think that when you have a development team you discuss or it's a requirement, you know -- WMATA was basically just leasing us some dirt for 60 years or 99 years or whatever the case, and whether X, Y, and Z person is building it or designing it or whatever the case might be, I don't think that warrants kind of a day-to-day, you know, real-time action from our part to inform WMATA.

But we tried to do our best at keeping them informed as to what was going on. Particularly, we had on average a meeting probably once a week once things got going.

Q And who was Nat Bottigheimer?

A He was and probably still is the associate general manager for WMATA over all of real estate and development projects.

Q And Carol O'Keeffe, who is Carol O'Keeffe?

A She was and currently is, to my understanding, general counsel at WMATA.

Q And have you seen any e-mail traffic or exchange between Mr. Bottigheimer and Mr. Graham as it relates to the question of specification of roles for development team partners? Have you seen any e-mails?

A I have.

Q Okay.

MR. MC DANIEL: I'm going to ask that we mark as Exhibit 8 --

MS. ROCKWOOD: If you could just give me the date.

Page 194

MR. MC DANIEL: Wednesday, June 25th, 2008, which is attached to a Tuesday, June 24th, 2008, e-mail from --

MS. ROCKWOOD: Okay.

(Exhibit Karim 8 identified.)

BY MR. MC DANIEL:

Q Mr. Karim, I'm showing you what's been marked as Exhibit Number 8. Have you seen this document before?

A Yes, sir, I have.

Q And at the bottom of the first page of Exhibit 8, do you see a e-mail from Mr. Nat Bottigheimer to Emeka Moneme?

A Yes.

Q Who is Emeka Moneme?

A Emeka Moneme was one of the two principal directors at WMATA's Board at that time along with Jim Graham.

Q Okay. And attached to that also is the name of Jim Graham?

A Yes, sir.

Q And if you could just read into the record what it is that Mr. Bottigheimer had to say about the issue of the role identification?

A Sure. "Thank you very much for that feedback, Councilman. I will try to propose more specific language tomorrow and, of course, would welcome any suggestions that you or others on this e-mail might have on wording. Thinking out loud about how to accommodate your request, I don't think we can go as far as to specify roles for team members in the resolution language by team member name. Should a team member with required expertise elect to resign its role on the winning team, I would imagine we want to have the flexibility to substitute a new team member with equal expertise. If I'm thinking correctly, the resolution language should anticipate that possibility. As I understand it this morning, the desired language would emphasize that the firm doing the construction would have to have a well demonstrated capability for a project of this type and would have to be in control of the construction process. That is the sense that I am hopefully correctly trying to capture. If I am incorrect, please do advise."

Q And in the negotiation of the original term sheet that was ultimately approved in June of 2008, was there contemplation of the possibility of a change of team members during the negotiation of the final development agreement?

A I'm not sure what the -- can you maybe be more specific?

Q Well, I guess I could ask a different question. In the original term sheet negotiation and after the exchange between Mr. Bottigheimer and Mr. Graham, at that point in time on that date, you had not been selected; is that right?

A That's correct.

Q So at any point in time subsequent to the date of that e-mail and your approval by the staff and with the submission and the Board, was there any other written request that you identified specific roles of team members?

A I don't recall ever submitting that to WMATA staff.

Q And at least based upon the chronological order of events, it was the staff's understanding, as well as the Board's understanding, that Donatelli wasn't involved when you were initially approved?

A That's correct.

Q And between June of 2008 and April of 2010, did you ever receive anything in writing asking for you to identify specifically or particularly the roles of members of the development team?

A I don't recall that ever happening.

Q Do you recall ever receiving anything in writing from either members of the staff or the Board directly or from the Board through the staff to identify and include particular developers as a part of your team?

A No. There was the -- I think our deal was Banneker set up an LLC called The Jazz at Florida Avenue, LLC, which would be the entity that would be developing this site. And from the time -- for 99 percent of the time except that one weekend that Donatelli was going to be the lead, Banneker was going to be the managing member, and we could switch in and switch out folks as we deemed appropriate.

Q Well, your consideration of Donatelli or considering putting Donatelli in the lead role, as you sit here today, was there any commentary on your ability in terms of Banneker's ability to act as a lead in the development project?

A According to the staff, we never had -- the staff never expressed any concerns to us in the years that we were working on the project about our ability, even when Donatelli wasn't. I mean, there was, I think, about 17 or 18 different teams that initially submitted in the spring of 2007, and then it got reduced down to 12, and then it got reduced down to six. All of those times, as I recall -- I don't recall the exact numbers or whatever, but Donatelli wasn't on our team. They were a separate team at that time. And for a short period, they were on our team, and we were the lead all but that weekend.

Q The question might be, though, that if you were considering placing Donatelli in the lead role, that that may have -- or there may be some comment on your belief or confidence about Banneker being able to act as a lead in the project.

A Oh, most certainly not.

Q So why would you have considered putting Donatelli in that position?

A Because we felt Graham was going to kill the deal, you know, if they weren't involved or if they weren't the lead. That's what the word we were getting. And so we felt desperate at the time and was willing to give up all the work that we had -- or not all the work, but some ownership interest and lead interest in it just to get this deal done in December 2007.

Q And why did you feel that way? What had been communicated to you that made you feel like you needed to put somebody in that position to act as a liaison between Banneker and your development team and --

A I think the word we were getting on the street was that Graham was going to try to kill our deal, and so we were trying to -- if Donatelli or --

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013547

I don't think we got all of the specifics, but not knowing to us, I think it was really they were going to kill our deal because he wanted LaKritz Adler to be the lead or to win that project versus us, and that's what he told me on several occasions. We just thought that he might have had a bone to pick with Banneker, but I think we later found out that that wasn't the case.

Q Was there ever any request by Metro staff for you all to address concerns of the Board that you did not respond to?

A I couldn't imagine that that was the case. I think we did a pretty good job every time WMATA staff raised an issue, that we responded pretty quickly to them. If we didn't have an answer to it at that time, we said okay, that's not an important issue, and we will get that done at some other time.

Q And ultimately, based upon the procedural posture of the agreement, did ultimately you believe that you had negotiated a term sheet with the staff that addressed all of the issues that were outstanding at the time the matter was forwarded to the Board before it was tabled?

A Yes. Not only that, but we were -- at several different times, we were negotiating both the term sheet, revised term sheet and a JDA lease and all of the other exhibits along with it. And our understanding, they were going to approve both documents.

And I think Graham came up with, in the fall of 2009, hey, you can't approve the JDA and lease and all the exhibits; you then have to go back to the starting point and approve a revised term sheet, which would start the clock over and not allow us to have a definitive agreement. Because once we had the definitive agreement, Graham couldn't do anything to it at that point; we had our deal.

MR. MC DANIEL: Okay. I don't have any other questions.

MS. ROCKWOOD: Okay. Thank you.

(Whereupon, at 12:02 p.m., the deposition was concluded.)

Good Afternoon,

My name is Tahirah Hairston and I am a reporter for The Hilltop Newspaper, Howard University's daily student newspaper. I would like to request an interview with Jim Graham to discuss the an article I am writing about the land Omar Karim, founder of Banneker Ventures, is awaiting approval for building. I would like to interview him as soon as possible - tomorrow would be great. This can be either in-person or over the phone, which ever is best. The best way to contact me would be thairston16@yahoo.com or 248.705.4427.

Thanks,
Tahirah Hairston

WMATA Board Members and Director Klein:

Please find attached a report providing an overview of the WMATA Board of Directors Meetings for Thursday, April 23, 2009 at 9:00 a.m. This report provides agenda items that significantly impact the District of Columbia. It includes an overview of the agenda item and potential impacts it may have on the District.

I have also attached the agenda for the Jurisdictional Coordinating Committee (JCC) meeting this Friday. DDOT-MTA will begin to send out summary minutes and any relevant materials after the monthly JCC meeting to this distribution list. At any time, JCC members can request addition of an item to an upcoming agenda and WMATA staff will present an update. Please let DDOT staff know if you wish to request a future JCC agenda item.

Lastly, I am including a spreadsheet showing each jurisdiction's share of the proposed regional bus cuts for the FY10 budget. This will allow us to determine the impact on the District if another jurisdiction chooses to buy back any of the proposed service cuts as a result of public input received at last week's hearings.

Please feel free to contact me at 202-673-1736 if you have any questions or comments.

The article has many, many flaws. Of course my main concern is that the broader interests of Columbia Heights not continue to be lost in this saga. First the article leaves out CM Graham who is at the center of much of this especially in Ward 1. It's interesting that he is left out of this article entirely, yet one of his formal political rivals which is not directly involved is mentioned in the article. As well Banneker Ventures is mentioned several times, the same firm he attempted to block from getting the Ward 1 Metro Project on U St. Clearly, this story was sourced from Graham's PR guy. It is also interesting that DPR/DDCHA arrangements may pre-date the Fenty Admin. Well guess who had oversight of DCHA immediately pre-Fenty, CM Graham.

With Vincent Gray's son working on the project at 14th and Girard, I just find it difficult to see why Council would be surprised by this type of funding. The article does not seem comprehensive enough and appears to gloss over details/evidence.

This is a hatchet article. Without the mayor, we would still be looking at broken concrete at 14th and Girard.

D.C. parks contracts bypassed council PROJECTS MOVED VIA HOUSING AUTHORITY Jobs went to companies with connections to Fenty

By Nikita Stewart
Washington Post Staff Writer

Friday, October 23, 2009

D.C. Mayor Adrian M. Fenty's administration has funneled at least $72 million to the D.C. Housing Authority to build a dozen parks, ballfields and recreation centers, a process that has circumvented D.C. Council oversight and awarded contracts to firms with ties to the mayor.

By law, the council must approve contracts that exceed $1 million. Last month, contracts for as much as $16 million went to various construction companies as part of the mayor's effort to improve the city's parks system.

Banneker Ventures, a firm owned by a Fenty fraternity brother, Omar Karim, is the construction manager on every project, according to a list of the projects compiled by the council. The general contractor on two of the projects is RBK Landscaping and Construction, which is owned by Keith Lomax, a friend of Fenty's who drew attention this year for illegally driving the mayor's city-owned sport-utility vehicle.

Four council members are requesting that City Administrator Neil O. Albert and other members of the administration who had oversight of the projects appear at a round-table meeting Oct. 30 to discuss the matter. Late Thursday, they sent the mayor a letter raising concerns about the process for awarding the contracts.

"It defeats transparency. Let me put it more strongly. It looks sneaky," council member Mary M. Cheh (D-Ward 3) said Thursday in an interview.

Fenty, a triathlete, has made recreation a priority for his administration, holding groundbreaking ceremonies for playgrounds, pools and dog parks nearly every other weekday during the summer. But the mayor's announcements, which some critics have described as little more than campaign events, did not correspond with the recreation capital budget, said council member Harry Thomas Jr. (D-Ward 5), chairman of the Committee on Libraries, Parks and Recreation.

"I asked my staff, 'Why aren't these contracts matching up with the scope of work that was going through the committee?' " Thomas said.

Some talks with housing authority and parks officials this week led to the discovery of millions of dollars in projects that the council never approved. Thomas said it appears the money was taken from the Department of Parks and Recreation, given to the Office of the Deputy Mayor for Planning and Economic Development and then passed through the quasi-government agency that operate the city's public housing system.

Thomas said he wanted to know how Banneker received the 12 contracts last month. "There are some real concerns that one contractor could win competitive contracts 100 percent of the time," he said.

Herndon-based Regan Associates is teamed with Banneker in all the projects. Sean M. and Thomas J. Regan, who head the real estate advisory firm, have contributed heavily to Fenty's 2010 campaign.

Dena Michaelson, a spokeswoman for the housing authority, said Thursday that she did not have information about the projects. She also said she did not know whether the contracts had been competitively bid.

But she said it is not unusual for city officials to route money through the housing authority for construction work. "They tap into us . . . to get the projects off the ground," Michaelson said. "We get projects going fast, and we keep costs low."

The mayor's office did not answer questions about why it went through the housing authority to build the facilities. Late Thursday, spokeswoman Mafara Hobson said in an e-mail: "The District of Columbia Housing Authority (DCHA) is an independent entity with autonomous procurement authority. The Administration values its long standing partnership with the Authority, and defers to DCHA with respect to any statement about its procurement process."
The questioned contracts mark another controversy for the parks department.

The council, led by Thomas, recently rejected Ximena Hartsock as the mayor's pick to be the agency's director. She was the first Fenty Cabinet pick to not be confirmed.

Council members Marion Barry (D-Ward 8) and Kwame R. Brown (D-At Large) joined Thomas and Cheh in sending the mayor the letter about the recreation spending and calling for the round table.

The dozen projects stretch across the city. The largest contracts were $16 million for the Rosedale Recreation Center in Northeast, $15 million for the Barry Farm Recreation Center in Southeast and $12 million each for the Fort Stanton Recreation Center in Southeast and Kenilworth Recreation Center in Northwest.

Karim, whose firm managed the projects, did not return a call seeking comment. At one time, Sinclair Skinner, a campaign coordinator in Fenty's 2006 mayoral bid and also a fraternity brother, did community outreach work for Banneker.

Skinner has come under fire for his involvement in donating a firetruck and ambulance to a town in the Dominican Republic, and his role is being investigated by the Inspector General's Office and the council.

Under the Fenty administration, Banneker Ventures has become a major player in development. It is part of a partnership selected to build the long-awaited $700 million Northwest One New Communities project, which will replace the low-income Sursum Corda cooperative and Temple Courts housing complex.

Ms. Logan,

I am writing to request a meeting with Councilman Graham to discuss the project that our firm was awarded by WMATA on the 700 and 800 blocks of Florida Avenue, NW. Would like to discuss our jobs plan with him for Ward 1 residents for the project and get his counsel on whether he knows anyone in the neighborhood whom we could hire for the project. I would like to meet with the Councilmember before next Wednesday.

Good Evening Councilman Graham,

I am currently working on a story about the land and Omar Karim and I would like your side of the issue and also to clarify fact from fiction before I publish my story - my question are below. If you could answer these question by 8:15 tonight that would be great.

1. According to Omar Karim he has been awaiting approval to build on the land contracted with WMATA since April 2008 due to waiting on the board to vote. Why has the process been so long for him to be approved? Is this the normal process for developers or are there other stipulations? If so, what are they?

Mr. Karim and six other firms submitted Request for Qualifications (RFQ). The proposals were to develop two parcels of land, one parcel owned by Metro and a second parcel owned by a private citizen. This is the normal process; Metro Real Estate has to review the proposals and submit recommendations, development partners and financing must be attained before the board can approve it.

2. When the term sheet ends on March 31st for Karim, what will happen? Will the land be given to someone else?

I believe the process will start anew with a new RFQ. The land owned by Metro was never to be sold but leased.

3. When looking for builders what are some of the qualifications the WMATA looks for as far as experience, economic stability, etc.?

That is a question better answered by the real estate arm of WMATA. Certainly, a resume containing past projects, financing and a competent builder are necessary. I do not have the expertise beyond that.

4. Have Karim and you spoken directly about the issue? If so, what was the response?

5. According to Karim, his building project keeps getting taken off of the agenda. If so, why is this? Are there plans to put it back on the agenda?

There are not sufficient votes on the board for this project to pass. So it has been pulled each time.

6. Please explain the process that developers must go through when developing through WMATA. Does the whole board have to vote to approve or one person? What role do you play in this?

The entire board has to vote on these projects. I am one board member with one vote.

If you need any clarification, please let me know. Thanks again.
- Thank You,

Friends share in D.C. Mayor Adrian M. Fenty's good fortune

By Nikita Stewart and Paul Schwartzman
Washington Post Staff Writer
Sunday, March 7, 2010; 10:09 AM

Before Adrian M. Fenty was elected D.C. mayor in 2006, Sinclair Skinner lived in a worn, two-story brick home on Georgia Avenue NW above his dry cleaning business, a venture that collapsed in financial ruin.

But Skinner had one valuable asset: his relationship with Fenty (D), then a D.C. Council member. They had known each other since they attended Howard University in the 1990s and belonged to the same fraternity.

As field director of Fenty's mayoral campaign, Skinner spent hundreds of hours with the candidate knocking on doors across the city. After Fenty's victory, Skinner started an engineering firm that soon landed work on at least three city projects, according to public records.

In addition, the records show, Skinner's firm was a subcontractor on the rebuilding of city parks and recreation centers -- work that paid about $700,000. Skinner, 40, bought a Porsche and a handsome $654,000 brick house a few blocks from the mayor's house in the Crestwood neighborhood in Northwest Washington.

Skinner and Omar Karim, another Howard graduate and fraternity brother, are at the center of a coterie of Fenty friends who since the mayor's election have traveled from the political margins to the center of power and influence, often helping one another along the way.

On Friday, the D.C. Council appointed a special counsel to investigate the Fenty administration's awarding of $86 million in construction projects at city parks and recreation centers without the council's approval, which is required on contracts exceeding $1 million. The investigator is expected to examine whether the city showed favoritism to the mayor's friends in awarding the deals.

The mayor's friends were relatively unknown before Fenty's rise: engaged in neighborhood activism, working for a developer or running a nightclub or a landscaping business. After Fenty became mayor, the men prospered, starting or expanding companies that have repeatedly landed development and construction projects awarded by the D.C. government.

Karim's roster includes a $4.2 million contract to oversee renovation of at least 16 parks and recreation centers. The Fenty administration did not seek council approval for that contract but now says it should have done so.

Politicians have long cultivated circles of lawyers, developers and lobbyists who, in turn, thrive on access to government's highest levels. But Fenty's friends have risen from obscurity at a pace that has captured the attention of the political and business establishments and fostered an image that is seemingly at odds with Fenty's campaign themes of reform and transparency.

"They're suddenly doing so well at the trough of government," said D.C. Council member Mary M. Cheh (D-Ward 3). "There's this network where they all help each other. They all get rich together. It makes you wonder what's going on. What we know is they're friends of Fenty."

Karim and Skinner declined to comment through their attorney, A. Scott Bolden. Karim recently testified at a council hearing on the parks contracts that he had done nothing wrong. Skinner has not responded to a subpoena from the council, contending that he was improperly served. Last week, a D.C. Superior Court judge ordered Skinner to testify this month or face $1,000-a-day fines for each day he does not appear.

After Fenty's election, Skinner and Karim were not shy about mentioning their mayoral ties as they tried to attract business partners or obtain consulting work, according to five developers and consultants who spoke to the men about possible deals. The sources spoke on the condition of anonymity because they said they fear retribution from the Fenty administration.

R. Donahue Peebles, a developer who has considered challenging Fenty in the 2010 mayoral race, has spoken openly about how political networking during Marion Barry's reign as mayor helped him land his first major real estate deal. After critics accused Peebles of benefiting from cronyism in the mid-1990s, the developer became infuriated and relocated to Miami for a decade before turning his attention back to the District, where the Fenty administration has twice rejected his company's bids for city projects.

Since his return to Washington, Peebles said, at least two of Skinner's associates suggested that he hire Skinner, who they said could help him win District projects and gain access to the mayor and his top aides. Peebles said the associates told him that Skinner's fee was $10,000 to $20,000 a month.

Peebles said Karim approached him after an appearance on the Howard campus in 2007 and told him that Fenty was seeking to empower a new group of minority builders, including Karim. As African Americans, Karim and Skinner could benefit from city requirements that developers partner with minority-owned companies.

Karim, Peebles said, told him that "if I wanted to get to do a development deal with the District of Columbia government under Fenty, I'd have to do business with them and their circle, this new inner circle. He gave me this whole spiel about how it was a new day and how the old guys' day was up. Essentially, the message was I was going to need him."

Peebles said he was angered by what he considered a "flagrant pay-to-play overture." He rejected Karim's offer, he said, and refused to hire Skinner.

Another developer, who renovates commercial and residential properties in the city, said Skinner told him that he represented Liberty Law, owned by Karim, which could provide lobbying services for $25,000 a month even though it is not a registered lobbyist. "They wanted a big part of it up front: $200,000," said the developer, who spoke on condition of anonymity because he does not want to antagonize the Fenty administration.

The developer said that when he asked Skinner what services he would provide, Skinner told him, "You need some stuff, don't you?"

'Because of their expertise'

Fenty declined to talk in detail about his relationships with Skinner and Karim. In a brief interview as he left a news conference last month, he said his administration has awarded contracts properly.

Bolden, speaking for Karim and Skinner, acknowledged that his clients have been real estate consultants, but he said: "They're consultants because of their expertise. It has nothing to do with access to the mayor. [To imply otherwise] devalues their educational background, their entrepreneurship, their love of this city."

He added: "They're Howard graduates. They're fraternity brothers. They're friends with the mayor. Maybe they like doing business together. Anything illegal, inappropriate about that?"

Karim's rise as a developer has been swift, and his portfolio consists mostly of projects awarded by the Fenty administration. Karim, 35, worked for a small developer before starting Banneker Ventures LLC during Fenty's campaign for mayor. Since 2005, Karim, his wife and his firm, which has offices two blocks from the White House, have contributed $10,000 to Fenty campaigns.

In addition to holding parks contracts now under investigation by the special counsel, Karim's company was on the team the Fenty administration chose for the $700 million redevelopment of the area around the Sursum Corda housing complex near North Capitol Street.

Banneker Ventures has played various roles in city projects, sometimes joining with other developers to win a contract and sometimes being hired to manage construction projects, a role that allowed Banneker to hire subcontractors who are also the mayor's friends.

On one project, after Banneker Ventures was hired as a planning consultant, the city later awarded the contract for the project to one of Karim's partners. Karim also worked for the city reviewing developers' proposals on two other projects.

Peter Nickles, the D.C. attorney general and a longtime Fenty adviser, said he sees nothing unusual in the frequency with which Fenty's friends have obtained city work. "They're young, African American guys trying to get involved . . . in the business of the city," he said. "You got a prime contractor, and the prime contractor shows it can get things done. . . . The prime has people it trusts."

Another Fenty friend who has prospered is Keith Lomax, a substitute teacher at Mackin High School in the 1980s, when Fenty was a student there. Lomax's construction company has received nearly $16 million in D.C. contracts since Fenty took office, records show. Bolden, also Lomax's attorney, said the contractor would not comment for this article.

Skinner's ascent

Within Fenty's circle, no one else has risen as dramatically as Skinner, who was broke and drove a dented sedan when he went to work for the campaign.

At Skinner's dry cleaning shop on Georgia Avenue, he put up a poster of himself shaking hands with Sherman Hemsley, the actor who played dry cleaner George Jefferson in "The Jeffersons," the TV sitcom known for its "Movin' On Up" theme song. But dry cleaning was not Skinner's way up.

In 2003, about the time his Georgia Avenue property was foreclosed on, Skinner closed a second location, on Rockville Pike, leaving behind a pile of clothing that Montgomery County officials had to return to its owners, said Ralph L. Vines, an administrator in the county's Consumer Protection Office. By 2006, Skinner owed the District $17,238 in rent for a spot he had leased at Judiciary Square, according to a settlement in which Skinner agreed to pay the city the back rent.

Skinner's finances improved during Fenty's campaign, which paid him nearly $70,000, according to city records. Sixteen months after the election, Skinner formed Liberty Engineering and Design, which Karim's company hired as a subcontractor on the parks renovations. Invoices show that Liberty has charged Banneker Ventures about $700,000. The council investigated Banneker's contract after discovering that the administration had awarded it without the required legislative approval.

Skinner has courted controversy throughout Fenty's time in office.

Although he has no job in the administration, Skinner, working with a Fenty aide, orchestrated the donation of a city-owned firetruck and ambulance to a town in the Dominican Republic without the knowledge or approval of the D.C. Council, according to a council investigation. The probe described Skinner as "well-connected" and concluded that "inside connections and access . . . resulted in a loss of value to the District government."

Kappa Alpha Psi, the fraternity to which Skinner, Karim and Fenty belong, publicly thanked Skinner for organizing a $37,000, taxpayer-funded reception last August celebrating the fraternity. Nickles declared the use of city funds improper and told the fraternity to reimburse the District.

Despite such incidents, Skinner and Fenty have remained close. At a birthday bash for Skinner atop Macy's downtown rooftop in 2008, hundreds of well-wishers danced to live go-go music as the mayor took out his cellphone to snap photos of the birthday boy.

Against gentrification

Fenty met Skinner at Howard when the future mayor was a law student and Skinner was studying engineering. At the time, Skinner later told campaign colleagues, he would deliver meals to Fenty, who would hole up in his room for marathon study sessions.

From his earliest years in Washington, Skinner demonstrated a penchant for activism, winning election in 1998 to Petworth's Advisory Neighborhood Commission.

Lenwood Johnson, a commissioner and friend, said Skinner opposed white professionals migrating to the Northwest Washington neighborhood, if only because they could raise property values and drive out longtime residents and businesses. "He'd say, 'Why are they moving over here?' "

Joe Englert, who owns taverns in the District, was planning to open another in Petworth in 2006. Skinner confronted him, asking, "Why would a white man open a business on Georgia Avenue?" said Englert, who is white. "It was hard to respond, it was so outrageous."

As president of a business association, Skinner published the Georgia Avenue Defender, which in 2005 lampooned council member Jim Graham (D-Ward 1) as "Gramzilla," slayer of black-owned businesses. During his campaign, Fenty rebuffed demands by Graham and others to disavow or fire Skinner.

After the election, Fenty's aides tried to find Skinner a government post, said two former administration officials and a former campaign volunteer. Fenty, meanwhile, on several occasions promised that his friend would not get a job. Asked last month about the administration's efforts on Skinner's behalf, the mayor said only that "he doesn't have a role in my administration."

Skinner started his engineering firm and another company, renting space downtown and in an unmarked house with bars on the windows on Martin Luther King Jr. Avenue SE.

By then, Skinner was close to Warren Williams Jr., who owned Club U, a nightclub on U Street that was shut down in 2005, during the administration of Mayor Anthony A. Williams (D), after a patron was fatally stabbed. Warren Williams also owned an apartment building where tenants complained of rat infestation and no heat. In 2008, council members cited the stabbing and the building when they criticized Fenty's choice of a team that included Warren Williams to manage the D.C. Lottery.

During Fenty's campaign, Warren Williams, at Skinner's suggestion, joined Karim at Banneker Ventures, Williams said. After the election, the developers won several D.C. projects, including managing reconstruction of Walker-Jones Educational Complex and work on redeveloping a theater in the Deanwood neighborhood in Northeast.

The administration and the D.C. Housing Authority picked Banneker Ventures as "master planning consultant" for the redevelopment of the Park Morton housing project in Petworth. After Karim and Warren Williams split up in 2008, the District chose Williams's company, the Warrenton Group, as co-developer of Park Morton. Williams, in an interview, said his company was chosen because of its competence, not its political connections.

Ben Soto, Fenty's campaign treasurer, said the mayor's ties to Skinner and Karim are rooted in a common commitment to improve the city. "He likes people who have a sense of urgency," Soto said. "Omar and Sinclair have that." Their bond, Soto said, trumps any political embarrassment. "When Adrian knows you have his back, it's a hiccup."

Although the friends have benefited from minority contracting rules, access to the mayor does not ensure winning bids, Soto said. The District twice rejected proposals from Karim's company, said Sean Madigan, a city spokesman.

Former mayor Barry (D), now the Ward 8 council member, said Fenty's friends have turned up in D.C.-sponsored projects often enough to raise questions.

"There's nobody in this government more Afro-centric than I am, but you can't hide behind that," said Barry, a longtime advocate of minority set-asides. "The problem I have is the circle is so small. The same ones over and over again. It's not fair."

Lomax is among the Fenty friends helped by Banneker Ventures. Banneker hired Lomax's RBK Construction for at least $3.5 million of the $16 million in D.C. contracts that RBK has received since Fenty took office. That's up from $1 million in city work that RBK got during Anthony Williams's administration.

The D.C. inspector general and the city auditor in May began investigating whether Lomax, a Prince George's resident, falsely used a house in Northeast Washington as a business address to improve his chances of winning city business. Lomax declined to comment.

The investigation, which is continuing, apparently has not dampened Fenty's friendship with Lomax. On a recent Saturday, the pair attended a Georgetown-Duke basketball game, where they posed for photos with President Obama.

Nor have Skinner's troubles made the mayor rethink their relationship. One night last month, as Fenty trolled for votes in the Northeast neighborhood of Burrville, there, following the mayor as he knocked on doors, was Sinclair Skinner.

D.C. parks contracts bypassed council
PROJECTS MOVED VIA HOUSING AUTHORITY
Jobs went to companies with connections to Fenty

D.C. Mayor Adrian M. Fenty's administration has funneled at least $72 million to the D.C. Housing Authority to build a dozen parks, ballfields and recreation centers, a process that has circumvented D.C. Council oversight and awarded contracts to firms with ties to the mayor.

By law, the council must approve contracts that exceed $1 million. Last month, contracts for as much as $16 million went to various construction companies as part of the mayor's effort to improve the city's parks system.

Banneker Ventures, a firm owned by a Fenty fraternity brother, Omar Karim, is the construction manager on every project, according to a list of the projects compiled by the council. The general contractor on two of the projects is RBK Landscaping and Construction, which is owned by Keith Lomax, a friend of Fenty's who drew attention this year for illegally driving the mayor's city-owned sport-utility vehicle.

Four council members are requesting that City Administrator Neil O. Albert and other members of the administration who had oversight of the projects appear at a round-table meeting Oct. 30 to discuss the matter. Late Thursday, they sent the mayor a letter raising concerns about the process for awarding the contracts.

"It defeats transparency. Let me put it more strongly. It looks sneaky," council member Mary M. Cheh (D-Ward 3) said Thursday in an interview.

Fenty, a triathlete, has made recreation a priority for his administration, holding groundbreaking ceremonies for playgrounds, pools and dog parks nearly every other weekday during the summer. But the mayor's announcements, which some critics have described as little more than campaign events, did not correspond with the recreation capital budget, said council member Harry Thomas Jr. (D-Ward 5), chairman of the Committee on Libraries, Parks and Recreation.

"I asked my staff, 'Why aren't these contracts matching up with the scope of work that was going through the committee?' " Thomas said.

Some talks with housing authority and parks officials this week led to the discovery of millions of dollars in projects that the council never approved. Thomas said it appears the money was taken from the Department of Parks and Recreation, given to the Office of the Deputy Mayor for Planning and Economic Development and then passed through the quasi-government agency that operate the city's public housing system.

Thomas said he wanted to know how Banneker received the 12 contracts last month. "There are some real concerns that one contractor could win competitive contracts 100 percent of the time," he said.

Herndon-based Regan Associates is teamed with Banneker in all the projects. Sean M. and Thomas J. Regan, who head the real estate advisory firm, have contributed heavily to Fenty's 2010 campaign.

Dena Michaelson, a spokeswoman for the housing authority, said Thursday that she did not have information about the projects. She also said she did not know whether the contracts had been competitively bid.

But she said it is not unusual for city officials to route money through the housing authority for construction work. "They tap into us . . . to get the projects off the ground," Michaelson said. "We get projects going fast, and we keep costs low."

The mayor's office did not answer questions about why it went through the housing authority to build the facilities. Late Thursday, spokeswoman Mafara Hobson said in an e-mail: "The District of Columbia Housing Authority (DCHA) is an independent entity with autonomous procurement authority. The Administration values its long standing partnership with the Authority, and defers to DCHA with respect to any statement about its procurement process."

The questioned contracts mark another controversy for the parks department.

The council, led by Thomas, recently rejected Ximena Hartsock as the mayor's pick to be the agency's director. She was the first Fenty Cabinet pick to not be confirmed.

Council members Marion Barry (D-Ward 8) and Kwame R. Brown (D-At Large) joined Thomas and Cheh in sending the mayor the letter about the recreation spending and calling for the round table.

The dozen projects stretch across the city. The largest contracts were $16 million for the Rosedale Recreation Center in Northeast, $15 million for the Barry Farm Recreation Center in Southeast and $12 million each for the Fort Stanton Recreation Center in Southeast and Kenilworth Recreation Center in Northwest.

Karim, whose firm managed the projects, did not return a call seeking comment. At one time, Sinclair Skinner, a campaign coordinator in Fenty's 2006 mayoral bid and also a fraternity brother, did community outreach work for Banneker.

Skinner has come under fire for his involvement in donating a firetruck and ambulance to a town in the Dominican Republic, and his role is being investigated by the Inspector General's Office and the council.

Under the Fenty administration, Banneker Ventures has become a major player in development. It is part of a partnership selected to build the long-awaited $700 million Northwest One New Communities project, which will replace the low-income Sursum Corda cooperative and Temple Courts housing complex.

Good Evening Councilman Graham,

I am currently working on a story about the land and Omar Karim and I would like your side of the issue and also to clarify fact from fiction before I publish my story - my question are below. If you could answer these question by 8:15 tonight that would be great.

1. According to Omar Karim he has been awaiting approval to build on the land contracted with WMATA since April 2008 due to waiting on the board to vote. Why has the process been so long for him to be approved? Is this the normal process for developers or are there other stipulations? If so, what are they?

2. When the term sheet ends on March 31st for Karim, what will happen? Will the land be given to someone else?

3. When looking for builders what are some of the qualifications the WMATA looks for as far as experience, economic stability, etc.?

4. Have Karim and you spoken directly about the issue? If so, what was the response?

5. According to Karim, his building project keeps getting taken off of the agenda. If so, why is this? Are there plans to put it back on the agenda?

6. Please explain the process that developers must go through when developing through WMATA. Does the whole board have to vote to approve or one person? What role do you play in this?

If you need any clarification, please let me know. Thanks again.

Thank you.

I have two more questions, if you could answer them by 8 p.m. that would be great.

1. What are the reasons the some of the board members has not voted for the Banneker Ventures Project?

2. In question #2 you said, "the process will start anew" when the term sheet ends, does this mean more developers are allowed to give their proposals?

3. Why is choosing the right developer for this project so important? How will it affect the area?

The article has many, many flaws. Of course my main concern is that the broader interests of Columbia Heights not continue to be lost in this saga. First the article leaves out CM Graham who is at the center of much of this especially in Ward 1. It's interesting that he is left out of this article entirely, yet one of his formal political rivals which is not directly involved is mentioned in the article. As well Banneker Ventures is mentioned several times, the same firm he attempted to block from getting the Ward 1 Metro Project on U St. Clearly, this story was sourced from Graham's PR guy. It is also interesting that DPR/DDCHA arrangements may pre-date the Fenty Admin. Well guess who had oversight of DCHA immediately pre-Fenty, CM Graham.

With Vincent Gray's son working on the project at 14th and Girard, I just find it difficult to see why Council would be surprised by this type of funding. The article does not seem comprehensive enough and appears to gloss over details/evidence.

D.C. Mayor Adrian M. Fenty's administration has funneled at least $72 million to the D.C. Housing Authority to build a dozen parks, ballfields and recreation centers, a process that has circumvented D.C. Council oversight and awarded contracts to firms with ties to the mayor.

By law, the council must approve contracts that exceed $1 million. Last month, contracts for as much as $16 million went to various construction companies as part of the mayor's effort to improve the city's parks system.

Banneker Ventures, a firm owned by a Fenty fraternity brother, Omar Karim, is the construction manager on every project, according to a list of the projects compiled by the council. The general contractor on two of the projects is RBK Landscaping and Construction, which is owned by Keith Lomax, a friend of Fenty's who drew attention this year for illegally driving the mayor's city-owned sport-utility vehicle.

Four council members are requesting that City Administrator Neil O. Albert and other members of the administration who had oversight of the projects appear at a round-table meeting Oct. 30 to discuss the matter. Late Thursday, they sent the mayor a letter raising concerns about the process for awarding the contracts.

"It defeats transparency. Let me put it more strongly. It looks sneaky," council member Mary M. Cheh (D-Ward 3) said Thursday in an interview.

Fenty, a triathlete, has made recreation a priority for his administration, holding groundbreaking ceremonies for playgrounds, pools and dog parks nearly every other weekday during the summer. But the mayor's announcements, which some critics have described as little more than campaign events, did not correspond with the recreation capital budget, said council member Harry Thomas Jr. (D-Ward 5), chairman of the Committee on Libraries, Parks and Recreation.

"I asked my staff, 'Why aren't these contracts matching up with the scope of work that was going through the committee?' " Thomas said.

Some talks with housing authority and parks officials this week led to the discovery of millions of dollars in projects that the council never approved. Thomas said it appears the money was taken from the Department of Parks and Recreation, given to the Office of the Deputy Mayor for Planning and Economic Development and then passed through the quasi-government agency that operate the city's public housing system.

Thomas said he wanted to know how Banneker received the 12 contracts last month. "There are some real concerns that one contractor could win competitive contracts 100 percent of the time," he said.

Herndon-based Regan Associates is teamed with Banneker in all the projects. Sean M. and Thomas J. Regan, who head the real estate advisory firm, have contributed heavily to Fenty's 2010 campaign.

Dena Michaelson, a spokeswoman for the housing authority, said Thursday that she did not have information about the projects. She also said she did not know whether the contracts had been competitively bid.

But she said it is not unusual for city officials to route money through the housing authority for construction work. "They tap into us . . . to get the projects off the ground," Michaelson said. "We get projects going fast, and we keep costs low."

The mayor's office did not answer questions about why it went through the housing authority to build the facilities. Late Thursday, spokeswoman Mafara Hobson said in an e-mail: "The District of Columbia Housing Authority (DCHA) is an independent entity with autonomous procurement authority. The Administration values its long standing partnership with the Authority, and defers to DCHA with respect to any statement about its procurement process." The questioned contracts mark another controversy for the parks department.

The council, led by Thomas, recently rejected Ximena Hartsock as the mayor's pick to be the agency's director. She was the first Fenty Cabinet pick to not be confirmed.

Council members Marion Barry (D-Ward 8) and Kwame R. Brown (D-At Large) joined Thomas and Cheh in sending the mayor the letter about the recreation spending and calling for the round table.

The dozen projects stretch across the city. The largest contracts were $16 million for the Rosedale Recreation Center in Northeast, $15 million for the Barry Farm Recreation Center in Southeast and $12 million each for the Fort Stanton Recreation Center in Southeast and Kenilworth Recreation Center in Northwest.

Karim, whose firm managed the projects, did not return a call seeking comment. At one time, Sinclair Skinner, a campaign coordinator in Fenty's 2006 mayoral bid and also a fraternity brother, did community outreach work for Banneker.

Skinner has come under fire for his involvement in donating a firetruck and ambulance to a town in the Dominican Republic, and his role is being investigated by the Inspector General's Office and the council.

Under the Fenty administration, Banneker Ventures has become a major player in development. It is part of a partnership selected to build the long-awaited $700 million Northwest One New Communities project, which will replace the low-income Sursum Corda cooperative and Temple Courts housing complex.

Good Evening Councilman Graham,

I am currently working on a story about the land and Omar Karim and I would like your side of the issue and also to clarify fact from fiction before I publish my story - my question are below. If you could answer these question by 8:15 tonight that would be great.

1. According to Omar Karim he has been awaiting approval to build on the land contracted with WMATA since April 2008 due to waiting on the board to vote. Why has the process been so long for him to be approved? Is this the normal process for developers or are there other stipulations? If so, what are they?

2. When the term sheet ends on March 31st for Karim, what will happen? Will the land be given to someone else?

3. When looking for builders what are some of the qualifications the WMATA looks for as far as experience, economic stability, etc.?

4. Have Karim and you spoken directly about the issue? If so, what was the response?

5. According to Karim, his building project keeps getting taken off of the agenda. If so, why is this? Are there plans to put it back on the agenda?

6. Please explain the process that developers must go through when developing through WMATA. Does the whole board have to vote to approve or one person? What role do you play in this?

If you need any clarification, please let me know. Thanks again.
- Thank You,

Miss Hairston,

I am aware of the parcels of land you reference in your email. I listened to Mr. Karim's interview on WAMU last week. What is it you would like to know about the parcels along 8th and Florida Avenue?

During construction DDOT will work with those concerned to maintain access to the adjacent residences and businesses. Letters regarding both projects have been sent to affected residents and businesses in the area.

Parcel 42 petition

ONE DC is currently organizing a resident-driven campaign around Parcel 42 which is a plot of vacant public land at 7th and Rhode Island Ave. , NW. Parcel 42, was set aside to be developed as 96 units of affordable rental housing for households who earn up to $42,000 per year. Parcel 42 is one of the many community benefits ANC Alex Padro and I along with residents negotiated with the Broadcast Center Partners as a need resulting from the new development known as the Broadcast Center One Project with Radio and TV One.

The petition is one strategy residents identified to get the City to devote the necessary time, attention, and resources to support the residents of the District.

I am forwarding this petition to my constituency in hopes you will support the development of new affordable housing for LeDroit Park/Shaw and the District. Please consider signing the attached petition. Please forward the sign petition via fax to the attention of Jessica Rucker

To the Chairman and Members of the Metro Board:

Future Board/Committee Meetings
The next meeting of the Board will be tomorrow. We will begin at 9 a.m. with a Planning, Development and Real Estate Committee meeting where we will immediately go into Executive Session of the Committee, at which we will discuss the selection of the Florida Avenue developer. This will be followed by a meeting of the Customer Service, Operations and Safety Committee, and then at 11 a.m. we will hold the June Board Meeting, which will also follow with an Executive Session.

There are a number of action items for the Board. The most notable item for action is the approval of the FY2009 budget.

MTPD arrests two employees for solicitation of prostitution
The media may be reporting that Metro Transit Police recently arrested two Metro employees for solicitation of prostitution. The employees, a custodian and a station manager were arrested on June 19 and June 24, respectively, as a result of an undercover investigation by MTPD. We have terminated the custodian's employment and the station manager is on administrative leave while the investigation continues.

Last month, MTPD had received a tip that the station manager, an employee since 1990, was running a sex-oriented travel service out of her kiosk. Subsequent investigation found that she was also sending prostitution customers to the custodian. This will be a sensational story in the news, but our focus will be on the fine work MTPD did in breaking up the operation.

Outreach to Internal Stakeholders
On Friday, June 27, we will see the graduation of our newest class of Metro Transit Police officers. The graduation ceremony will be in the Meeting Room of the Jackson Graham Building at 10 a.m. If your schedules allow it, please feel free to attend.

On Tuesday, July 1, I will be meeting with employees at our Brentwood Rail Facility to discuss Metro policies and goals face-to-face.

30s Lines restructure takes effect Sunday
This Sunday, June 29, we will begin to operate the restructured 30s Lines. After a great deal of customer involvement, during which we asked them what they needed from the 30s Lines, we are ready to implement this service and a new level of bus supervision.

This restructure gives customers the choice of limited-stop, regular Metrobus or convenient local shuttle services. A new work station in Bus Central Control will allow the control center to coordinate with the supervisors and drivers to recover from the inevitable traffic incidents that will occur, and to ensure the most efficient, reliable service possible.

MetroAccess Door-to-Door Service
Another important service enhancement begins on June 30th. This Monday, we will begin our door-to-door MetroAccess service. A great deal has been done to prepare for this enhanced service, to include driver training and extensive customer outreach. We're providing a new level of service with this program, and expect it to be very well received by our MetroAccess customers. We will be holding an on-line chat with the public this Friday June 27 to discuss how door-to-door service will be implemented.

Assaults on Bus Operators
For the week of June 15-21, there were two incidents involving Metrobus operators. One was in Montgomery County, MD, and the other was in Prince George's County, MD.

- A parked van was blocking the way of a Metrobus, so the operator got off the bus to ask the driver of the van to move. The driver threw coffee on the operator, cursed at her, and hit her with the van's door. Metro Transit Police and Montgomery County Police responded. No charges were filed.

- A woman tried to board a bus without the proper fare. When the operator quoted the fare to her, she made a threat, got off the bus, got a transfer from another customer and got back on the bus. When she got back on the bus she displayed the transfer close to the operator's face and showed a knife to the operator. Metro Transit Police and Prince George's County Police responded. The woman was searched but the knife was not recovered. No arrest was made.

Subject: ANC1B01 LeDRoit Prk Update

Date: Friday, October 05, 2007 4:09:49 PM

Greetings,

Proposals for the WMATA parcels located on 8th & Florida Avenue due today. In early spring after 15 years of litigation the District Court ruled in favor of WMATA and awarded them full ownership of parcels located at 8th & Florida Ave. Soon after the courts ruling WMATA issued an RFP and held a meeting with developers regarding the site. WMATA accepted letters of intent and received approximately 20 letters. During the summer WMATA developed a short list of approximately five develpopers, and asked for more detailed and specific proposals. As mentioned proposals are due today October 5, 2007. On September 18, 2007 I hosted a public Town Hall meeting allowing developers to inform the commmunity and recieve input from residents. An internal WMATA Committee will review the final proposals and make a recommendation to the WMATA Board. The WMATA Board will make the final decision. The Board is expected to make a decision in 6 - 8 weeks. Most proposals involve mixed use retail/apartments/condos-both market and affordable rates.

Public Safety

Chief Lanier is implementing a citywide program to augment the bike/scooter and business beat patrol by initiating Operation Walking Tall-community style – Commander Mccoy and his 3d team has been tasked to designate mandatory footbeat areas in his District - this operation will be kicking off in the next week

According to statistics from MPD3 staff 3D has an overall reduction of crime this year as well thus adding these footbeats will enhance the efforts that the Third District has in place. We in LeDroit Park are most apprectiative of the increased police visibility.

For residents interested in driving the work of DC RJP

In 2005 a group of committed Shaw residents had a vision about creating greater living wage employment opportunities. These residents organized themselves around various income-related issues and began teaming up with other residents throughout the District. Through their efforts they began a job training and hiring campaign now known as the DC Residents' Jobs Program.
Today, the DC RJP leadership core is composed of residents who live all over the District, representing three out of four of the city's quadrants. The DC RJP is pleased to announce the first annual "Job Trainers' Community Partnership Forum." The forum on Saturday, October 6th, 2007 will be an opportunity to get residents connected with agencies/organizations that provide skills based training and services and are willing to work within the framework and vision as set forth by the DC RJP.

Good Evening Councilman Graham,

I am currently working on a story about the land and Omar Karim and I would like your side of the issue and also to clarify fact from fiction before I publish my story - my question are below. If you could answer these question by 8:15 tonight that would be great.

1. According to Omar Karim he has been awaiting approval to build on the land contracted with WMATA since April 2008 due to waiting on the board to vote. Why has the process been so long for him to be approved? Is this the normal process for developers or are there other stipulations? If so, what are they?

2. When the term sheet ends on March 31st for Karim, what will happen? Will the land be given to someone else?

3. When looking for builders what are some of the qualifications the WMATA looks for as far as experience, economic stability, etc.?

4. Have Karim and you spoken directly about the issue? If so, what was the response?

5. According to Karim, his building project keeps getting taken off of the agenda. If so, why is this? Are there plans to put it back on the agenda?

6. Please explain the process that developers must go through when developing through WMATA. Does the whole board have to vote to approve or one person? What role do you play in this?

If you need any clarification, please let me know. Thanks again.

Friends share in D.C. Mayor Adrian M. Fenty's good fortune

By Nikita Stewart and Paul Schwartzman
Washington Post Staff Writer
Sunday, March 7, 2010; 10:09 AM

Before Adrian M. Fenty was elected D.C. mayor in 2006, Sinclair Skinner lived in a worn, two-story brick home on Georgia Avenue NW above his dry cleaning business, a venture that collapsed in financial ruin.

But Skinner had one valuable asset: his relationship with Fenty (D), then a D.C. Council member. They had known each other since they attended Howard University in the 1990s and belonged to the same fraternity.

As field director of Fenty's mayoral campaign, Skinner spent hundreds of hours with the candidate knocking on doors across the city. After Fenty's victory, Skinner started an engineering firm that soon landed work on at least three city projects, according to public records.

In addition, the records show, Skinner's firm was a subcontractor on the rebuilding of city parks and recreation centers -- work that paid about $700,000. Skinner, 40, bought a Porsche and a handsome $654,000 brick house a few blocks from the mayor's house in the Crestwood neighborhood in Northwest Washington.

Skinner and Omar Karim, another Howard graduate and fraternity brother, are at the center of a coterie of Fenty friends who since the mayor's election have traveled from the political margins to the center of power and influence, often helping one another along the way.

On Friday, the D.C. Council appointed a special counsel to investigate the Fenty administration's awarding of $86 million in construction projects at city parks and recreation centers without the council's approval, which is required on contracts exceeding $1 million. The investigator is expected to examine whether the city showed favoritism to the mayor's friends in awarding the deals.

The mayor's friends were relatively unknown before Fenty's rise: engaged in neighborhood activism, working for a developer or running a nightclub or a landscaping business. After Fenty became mayor, the men prospered, starting or expanding companies that have repeatedly landed development and construction projects awarded by the D.C. government. Karim's roster includes a $4.2 million contract to oversee renovation of at least 16 parks and recreation centers. The Fenty administration did not seek council approval for that contract but now says it should have done so.

Politicians have long cultivated circles of lawyers, developers and lobbyists who, in turn, thrive on access to government's highest levels. But Fenty's friends have risen from obscurity at a pace that has captured the attention of the political and business establishments and fostered an image that is seemingly at odds with Fenty's campaign themes of reform and transparency.

"They're suddenly doing so well at the trough of government," said D.C. Council member Mary M. Cheh (D-Ward 3). "There's this network where they all help each other. They all get rich together. It makes you wonder what's going on. What we know is they're friends of Fenty."

Karim and Skinner declined to comment through their attorney, A. Scott Bolden. Karim recently testified at a council hearing on the parks contracts that he had done nothing wrong. Skinner has not responded to a subpoena from the council, contending that he was improperly served. Last week, a D.C. Superior Court judge ordered Skinner to testify this month or face $1,000-a-day fines for each day he does not appear.

After Fenty's election, Skinner and Karim were not shy about mentioning their mayoral ties as they tried to attract business partners or obtain consulting work, according to five developers and consultants who spoke to the men about possible deals. The sources spoke on the condition of anonymity because they said they fear retribution from the Fenty administration.

R. Donahue Peebles, a developer who has considered challenging Fenty in the 2010 mayoral race, has spoken openly about how political networking during Marion Barry's reign as mayor helped him land his first major real estate deal. After critics accused Peebles of benefiting from cronyism in the mid-1990s, the developer became infuriated and relocated to Miami for a decade before turning his attention back to the District, where the Fenty administration has twice rejected his company's bids for city projects.

Since his return to Washington, Peebles said, at least two of Skinner's associates suggested that he hire Skinner, who they said could help him win District projects and gain access to the mayor and his top aides. Peebles said the associates told him that Skinner's fee was $10,000 to $20,000 a month.

Peebles said Karim approached him after an appearance on the Howard campus in 2007 and told him that Fenty was seeking to empower a new group of minority builders, including Karim. As African Americans, Karim and Skinner could benefit from city requirements that developers partner with minority-owned companies.

Karim, Peebles said, told him that "if I wanted to get to do a development deal with the District of Columbia government under Fenty, I'd have to do business with them and their circle, this new inner circle. He gave me this whole spiel about how it was a new day and how the old guys' day was up. Essentially, the message was I was going to need him."

Peebles said he was angered by what he considered a "flagrant pay-to-play overture." He rejected Karim's offer, he said, and refused to hire Skinner.

Another developer, who renovates commercial and residential properties in the city, said Skinner told him that he represented Liberty Law, owned by Karim, which could provide lobbying services for $25,000 a month even though it is not a registered lobbyist. "They wanted a big part of it up front: $200,000," said the developer, who spoke on condition of anonymity because he does not want to antagonize the Fenty administration.

The developer said that when he asked Skinner what services he would provide, Skinner told him, "You need some stuff, don't you?"

'Because of their expertise'

Fenty declined to talk in detail about his relationships with Skinner and Karim. In a brief interview as he left a news conference last month, he said his administration has awarded contracts properly.

Bolden, speaking for Karim and Skinner, acknowledged that his clients have been real estate consultants, but he said: "They're consultants because of their expertise. It has nothing to do with access to the mayor. [To imply otherwise] devalues their educational background, their entrepreneurship, their love of this city."

He added: "They're Howard graduates. They're fraternity brothers. They're friends with the mayor. Maybe they like doing business together. Anything illegal, inappropriate about that?"

Karim's rise as a developer has been swift, and his portfolio consists mostly of projects awarded by the Fenty administration. Karim, 35, worked for a small developer before starting Banneker Ventures LLC during Fenty's campaign for mayor. Since 2005, Karim, his wife and his firm, which has offices two blocks from the White House, have contributed $10,000 to Fenty campaigns.

In addition to holding parks contracts now under investigation by the special counsel, Karim's company was on the team the Fenty administration chose for the $700 million redevelopment of the area around the Sursum Corda housing complex near North Capitol Street.

Banneker Ventures has played various roles in city projects, sometimes joining with other developers to win a contract and sometimes being hired to manage construction projects, a role that allowed Banneker to hire subcontractors who are also the mayor's friends.

On one project, after Banneker Ventures was hired as a planning consultant, the city later awarded the contract for the project to one of Karim's partners. Karim also worked for the city reviewing developers' proposals on two other projects.

Peter Nickles, the D.C. attorney general and a longtime Fenty adviser, said he sees nothing unusual in the frequency with which Fenty's friends have obtained city work. "They're young, African American guys trying to get involved . . . in the business of the city," he said. "You got a prime contractor, and the prime contractor shows it can get things done. . . . The prime has people it trusts."

Another Fenty friend who has prospered is Keith Lomax, a substitute teacher at Mackin High School in the 1980s, when Fenty was a student there. Lomax's construction company has received nearly $16 million in D.C. contracts since Fenty took office, records show. Bolden, also Lomax's attorney, said the contractor would not comment for this article.

Skinner's ascent

Within Fenty's circle, no one else has risen as dramatically as Skinner, who was broke and drove a dented sedan when he went to work for the campaign.

At Skinner's dry cleaning shop on Georgia Avenue, he put up a poster of himself shaking hands with Sherman Hemsley, the actor who played dry cleaner George Jefferson in "The Jeffersons," the TV sitcom known for its "Movin' On Up" theme song. But dry cleaning was not Skinner's way up.

In 2003, about the time his Georgia Avenue property was foreclosed on, Skinner closed a second location, on Rockville Pike, leaving behind a pile of clothing that Montgomery County officials had to return to its owners, said Ralph L. Vines, an administrator in the county's Consumer Protection Office. By 2006, Skinner owed the District $17,238 in rent for a spot he had leased at Judiciary Square, according to a settlement in which Skinner agreed to pay the city the back rent.

Skinner's finances improved during Fenty's campaign, which paid him nearly $70,000, according to city records. Sixteen months after the election, Skinner formed Liberty Engineering and Design, which Karim's company hired as a subcontractor on the parks renovations. Invoices show that Liberty has charged Banneker Ventures about $700,000. The council investigated Banneker's contract after discovering that the administration had awarded it without the required legislative approval.

Skinner has courted controversy throughout Fenty's time in office.

Although he has no job in the administration, Skinner, working with a Fenty aide, orchestrated the donation of a city-owned firetruck and ambulance to a town in the Dominican Republic without the knowledge or approval of the D.C. Council, according to a council investigation. The probe described Skinner as "well-connected" and concluded that "inside connections and access . . . resulted in a loss of value to the District government."

Kappa Alpha Psi, the fraternity to which Skinner, Karim and Fenty belong, publicly thanked Skinner for organizing a $37,000, taxpayer-funded reception last August celebrating the fraternity. Nickles declared the use of city funds improper and told the fraternity to reimburse the District.

Despite such incidents, Skinner and Fenty have remained close. At a birthday bash for Skinner atop Macy's downtown rooftop in 2008, hundreds of well-wishers danced to live go-go music as the mayor took out his cellphone to snap photos of the birthday boy.

Against gentrification

Fenty met Skinner at Howard when the future mayor was a law student and Skinner was studying engineering. At the time, Skinner later told campaign colleagues, he would deliver meals to Fenty, who would hole up in his room for marathon study sessions.

From his earliest years in Washington, Skinner demonstrated a penchant for activism, winning election in 1998 to Petworth's Advisory Neighborhood Commission.

Lenwood Johnson, a commissioner and friend, said Skinner opposed white professionals migrating to the Northwest Washington neighborhood, if only because they could raise property values and drive out longtime residents and businesses. "He'd say, 'Why are they moving over here?' "

Joe Englert, who owns taverns in the District, was planning to open another in Petworth in 2006. Skinner confronted him, asking, "Why would a white man open a business on Georgia Avenue?" said Englert, who is white. "It was hard to respond, it was so outrageous."

As president of a business association, Skinner published the Georgia Avenue Defender, which in 2005 lampooned council member Jim Graham (D-Ward 1) as "Gramzilla," slayer of black-owned businesses. During his campaign, Fenty rebuffed demands by Graham and others to disavow or fire Skinner.

After the election, Fenty's aides tried to find Skinner a government post, said two former administration officials and a former campaign volunteer. Fenty, meanwhile, on several occasions promised that his friend would not get a job. Asked last month about the administration's efforts on Skinner's behalf, the mayor said only that "he doesn't have a role in my administration."

Skinner started his engineering firm and another company, renting space downtown and in an unmarked house with bars on the windows on Martin Luther King Jr. Avenue SE.

By then, Skinner was close to Warren Williams Jr., who owned Club U, a nightclub on U Street that was shut down in 2005, during the administration of Mayor Anthony A. Williams

(D), after a patron was fatally stabbed. Warren Williams also owned an apartment building where tenants complained of rat infestation and no heat. In 2008, council members cited the stabbing and the building when they criticized Fenty's choice of a team that included Warren Williams to manage the D.C. Lottery.

During Fenty's campaign, Warren Williams, at Skinner's suggestion, joined Karim at Banneker Ventures, Williams said. After the election, the developers won several D.C. projects, including managing reconstruction of Walker-Jones Educational Complex and work on redeveloping a theater in the Deanwood neighborhood in Northeast.

The administration and the D.C. Housing Authority picked Banneker Ventures as "master planning consultant" for the redevelopment of the Park Morton housing project in Petworth. After Karim and Warren Williams split up in 2008, the District chose Williams's company, the Warrenton Group, as co-developer of Park Morton. Williams, in an interview, said his company was chosen because of its competence, not its political connections.

Ben Soto, Fenty's campaign treasurer, said the mayor's ties to Skinner and Karim are rooted in a common commitment to improve the city. "He likes people who have a sense of urgency," Soto said. "Omar and Sinclair have that." Their bond, Soto said, trumps any political embarrassment. "When Adrian knows you have his back, it's a hiccup."

Although the friends have benefited from minority contracting rules, access to the mayor does not ensure winning bids, Soto said. The District twice rejected proposals from Karim's company, said Sean Madigan, a city spokesman.

Former mayor Barry (D), now the Ward 8 council member, said Fenty's friends have turned up in D.C.-sponsored projects often enough to raise questions.

"There's nobody in this government more Afro-centric than I am, but you can't hide behind that," said Barry, a longtime advocate of minority set-asides. "The problem I have is the circle is so small. The same ones over and over again. It's not fair."

Lomax is among the Fenty friends helped by Banneker Ventures. Banneker hired Lomax's RBK Construction for at least $3.5 million of the $16 million in D.C. contracts that RBK has received since Fenty took office. That's up from $1 million in city work that RBK got during Anthony Williams's administration.

The D.C. inspector general and the city auditor in May began investigating whether Lomax, a Prince George's resident, falsely used a house in Northeast Washington as a business address to improve his chances of winning city business. Lomax declined to comment.

The investigation, which is continuing, apparently has not dampened Fenty's friendship with Lomax. On a recent Saturday, the pair attended a Georgetown-Duke basketball game, where they posed for photos with President Obama.

Nor have Skinner's troubles made the mayor rethink their relationship. One night last month, as Fenty trolled for votes in the Northeast neighborhood of Burrville, there, following the mayor as he knocked on doors, was Sinclair Skinner.

Miss Hairston,

I am aware of the parcels of land you reference in your email. I listened to Mr. Karim's interview on WAMU last week. What is it you would like to know about the parcels along 8th and Florida Avenue?

Good Afternoon,

My name is Tahirah Hairston and I am a reporter for The Hilltop Newspaper, Howard University's daily student newspaper. I would like to request an interview with Jim Graham to discuss the an article I am writing about the land Omar Karim, founder of Banneker Ventures, is awaiting approval for building. I would like to interview him as soon as possible - tomorrow would be great. This can be either in-person or over the phone, which ever is best. The best way to contact me would be thairston16@yahoo.com or 248.705.4427.

Thanks,
Tahirah Hairston

The article has many, many flaws. Of course my main concern is that the broader interests of Columbia Heights not continue to be lost in this saga. First the article leaves out CM Graham who is at the center of much of this especially in Ward 1. It's interesting that he is left out of this article entirely, yet one of his formal political rivals which is not directly involved is mentioned in the article. As well Banneker Ventures is mentioned several times, the same firm he attempted to block from getting the Ward 1 Metro Project on U St. Clearly, this story was sourced from Graham's PR guy. It is also interesting that DPR/DDCHA arrangements may pre-date the Fenty Admin. Well guess who had oversight of DCHA immediately pre-Fenty, CM Graham.

With Vincent Gray's son working on the project at 14th and Girard, I just find it difficult to see why Council would be surprised by this type of funding. The article does not seem comprehensive enough and appears to gloss over details/evidence.

D.C. parks contracts bypassed council
PROJECTS MOVED VIA HOUSING AUTHORITY
Jobs went to companies with connections to Fenty

By Nikita Stewart
Washington Post Staff Writer

Friday, October 23, 2009

D.C. Mayor Adrian M. Fenty's administration has funneled at least $72 million to the D.C. Housing Authority to build a dozen parks, ballfields and recreation centers, a process that has circumvented D.C. Council oversight and awarded contracts to firms with ties to the mayor.

By law, the council must approve contracts that exceed $1 million. Last month, contracts for as much as $16 million went to various construction companies as part of the mayor's effort to improve the city's parks system.

Banneker Ventures, a firm owned by a Fenty fraternity brother, Omar Karim, is the construction manager on every project, according to a list of the projects compiled by the council. The general contractor on two of the projects is RBK Landscaping and Construction, which is owned by Keith Lomax, a friend of Fenty's who drew attention this year for illegally driving the mayor's city-owned sport-utility vehicle.

Four council members are requesting that City Administrator Neil O. Albert and other members of the administration who had oversight of the projects appear at a round-table meeting Oct. 30 to discuss the matter. Late Thursday, they sent the mayor a letter raising concerns about the process for awarding the contracts.

"It defeats transparency. Let me put it more strongly. It looks sneaky," council member Mary M. Cheh (D-Ward 3) said Thursday in an interview.

Fenty, a triathlete, has made recreation a priority for his administration, holding groundbreaking ceremonies for playgrounds, pools and dog parks nearly every other weekday during the summer. But the mayor's announcements, which some critics have described as little more than campaign events, did not correspond with the recreation capital budget, said council member Harry Thomas Jr. (D-Ward 5), chairman of the Committee on Libraries, Parks and Recreation.

"I asked my staff, 'Why aren't these contracts matching up with the scope of work that was going through the committee?' " Thomas said.

Some talks with housing authority and parks officials this week led to the discovery of millions of dollars in projects that the council never approved. Thomas said it appears the money was taken from the Department of Parks and Recreation, given to the Office of the Deputy Mayor for Planning and Economic Development and then passed through the quasi-government agency that operate the city's public housing system.

Thomas said he wanted to know how Banneker received the 12 contracts last month. "There are some real concerns that one contractor could win competitive contracts 100 percent of the time," he said.

Herndon-based Regan Associates is teamed with Banneker in all the projects. Sean M. and Thomas J. Regan, who head the real estate advisory firm, have contributed heavily to Fenty's 2010 campaign.

Dena Michaelson, a spokeswoman for the housing authority, said Thursday that she did not have information about the projects. She also said she did not know whether the contracts had been competitively bid.

But she said it is not unusual for city officials to route money through the housing authority for construction work. "They tap into us . . . to get the projects off the ground," Michaelson said. "We get projects going fast, and we keep costs low."

The mayor's office did not answer questions about why it went through the housing authority to build the facilities. Late Thursday, spokeswoman Mafara Hobson said in an e-mail: "The District of Columbia Housing Authority (DCHA) is an independent entity with autonomous procurement authority. The Administration values its long standing partnership with the Authority, and defers to DCHA with respect to any statement about its procurement process." The questioned contracts mark another controversy for the parks department.

The council, led by Thomas, recently rejected Ximena Hartsock as the mayor's pick to be the agency's director. She was the first Fenty Cabinet pick to not be confirmed.

Council members Marion Barry (D-Ward 8) and Kwame R. Brown (D-At Large) joined Thomas and Cheh in sending the mayor the letter about the recreation spending and calling for the round table.

The dozen projects stretch across the city. The largest contracts were $16 million for the Rosedale Recreation Center in Northeast, $15 million for the Barry Farm Recreation Center in Southeast and $12 million each for the Fort Stanton Recreation Center in Southeast and Kenilworth Recreation Center in Northwest.

Karim, whose firm managed the projects, did not return a call seeking comment. At one time, Sinclair Skinner, a campaign coordinator in Fenty's 2006 mayoral bid and also a fraternity brother, did community outreach work for Banneker.

Skinner has come under fire for his involvement in donating a firetruck and ambulance to a town in the Dominican Republic, and his role is being investigated by the Inspector General's Office and the council.

Under the Fenty administration, Banneker Ventures has become a major player in development. It is part of a partnership selected to build the long-awaited $700 million Northwest One New Communities project, which will replace the low-income Sursum Corda cooperative and Temple Courts housing complex.

Date:	Wednesday, April 09, 2008 1:13:27 PM

This is to confirm what I suspect most of you already know, that we have decided to forego tomorrow's Executive Session to address the Monument Settlement and to postpone it until April 24th, which is the date of a regular Board Meeting. There are other matters including Rosslyn Centro and Florida Avenue which may need to be discussed at the Exec. Session on April 24. We have postponed Board action because there are necessary portions of the Monument settlement which have not yet come together. Monument and Ackridge only exchanged their due diligence paperwork yesterday and as a result they have not yet signed off on the settlement. There are also matters which require further discussion between the District and Monument and the District and Ackridge. At the moment we expect all the pieces to fall into place.

Again, please red the names of the construction companies who received these very lucrative contracts...Blue Skye is among them as well, so why did neither the Mayor or Blue Skye work with the Calvin Woodland Sr. Foundation to employ some of our guys, it would have been win-win situation for all parties concerned, if they really cared about employing the residents of the District of Columbia or Ward 8.

This is such a eye-opener.

Fenty's DCHA Contracts: Some Questions

Posted by Mike DeBonis on Oct. 23, 2009, at 8:16 pm

You have questions about the $82 million dollars in parks-and-rec spending that Mayor Adrian M. Fenty is sending to the D.C. Housing Authority? LL has (some) answers!

What are these projects?

According to data furnished by the D.C. Council, they are 12 projects to renovate 12 parks or recreation facilities. One, to build a $1.3 million ballpark at Emery Rec Center, was awarded in January. The rest—concerning 7th and N park ($800,000), Bald Eagle Rec Center ($5.3M), Barry Farm Rec Center ($15M), Chevy Chase Playground ($1.3M), Fort Stanton Rec Center ($12M), Guy Mason Rec Center ($3M), Justice Park ($12M), Kenilworth Rec Center ($12M), Park View ballfield ($1.2M), Rosedale Rec Center ($16M), and a new park in LeDroit Park ($1.7M)—were awarded last month.

Why are contracts being sent to DCHA?

From the Fenty administration's perspective, going through DCHA allows projects to get off the ground faster. "We build housing, we remodel housing, we have extensive experience in construction management," says DCHA spokesperson Dena Michaelson. "We have in-house skill set to do all this stuff. That's what we bring to the table." DCHA has what's called "independent contracting authority," meaning it's not subject to the usual onerous procurement requirements of the rest of government. But there's also the question of transparency: Today, after this arrangement hit the papers, Attorney General Peter Nickles determined that DCHA was required to send contracts worth more than $1 million to the D.C. Council for approval. But it seems that DCHA was not already in that practice. In any case, the use of DCHA as a city vendor has been on the rise as of late. According to a review of city purchase orders, DCHA had been sent $20.6 million worth of District work in 2006, $29.8 million in 2007, and $22.5 million in 2008. So far this year, DCHA has been handed $57 million from the city, not counting the bulk of the controversial contracts.

What is DCHA's contracting process?

According to Michaelson, the agency's procurement procedures are modeled on the federal government's. The vast majority of DCHA's funding comes through the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development; the city money being sent to DCHA is a "drop in the bucket," she says. The DCHA board, which is appointed by the mayor with the consent of the council, reviews all contracts let for more than $250,000. In this particular case, the contract to serve as manager for all 12 parks-and-rec projects was released for bids simultaneously; 13 firms competed, Michaelson says. A joint bid by Banneker Ventures and Regan Associates won. How individual contracts were then let to construction contractors for each project is still unclear.

How are these firms profiting from the city?

In many ways. Since July 2008, Banneker Ventures, run by Fenty frat brother Omar Karim, has been authorized to receive $1.6 million in direct city funding. That was to serve as construction manager on a pair of projects: the reconstruction of Walker-Jones Elementary School and the rebuild of the Deanwood Recreation Center. Banneker is also a developer as well as a construction consultant, having been part fo the team selected in 2007 to rebuild the Sursum Corda/Temple Courts area as "Northwest One." Those two roles have entangled: Earlier this year, Karim was also included on a panel convened by the deputy mayor's office to review submissions for the redevelopment of Stevens Elementary School in Foggy Bottom. Sources close to the process expressed concern at the time to LL about Karim's dual role as a developer and a city-paid consultant. In the latter role, there was concern that Karim would have access to bidders' closely-held financial data—information that could give Karim a leg up in future projects he might bid on. There's also RBK Landscaping & Construction, the company owned by famed Fenty chauffeur Keith Lomax, which has raked in $16.6 million in authorized funds since 2005, most of it through Allen Lew's school construction office—which, like DCHA, has independent contracting authority and is exempt from the usual procurement processes.

What is fishy about all this?

First, the cast of characters. Virtually all of the firms involved (Banneker, RBK, Blue Skye Construction, Capital Construction, Dustin Construction, Forney Enterprise Construction, Forrester Construction, Hamel Construction, Winmar Construction) are major Fenty donors or allies. And Banneker isn't just an ally—it has been associated with some of Fenty's closest associates. Besides Karim, the firm has in the past employed Warren C. Williams Jr., whose involvement in a lottery contract bid drew immense political heat, and Sinclair Skinner, the street activist turned sharp-dressed consultant who seems to be caught up in every mayoral mess.

Second, the timing. The contracts were let in the waning days of Michael Kelly's tenure as DCHA general manager; he left amid rumors that Fenty wanted him out—perhaps to be replaced by Skinner's running buddy David Jannarone, the mayoral director of development. Add to that the parks-and-rec angle: Clark Ray was mysteriously ousted from the head of that agency earlier this year among reports that he clashed with his superiors—was this the reason why?

Third, the secrecy. Even if you buy the implication of Nickles' ruling—that the Fenty administration in no way condoned the letting of big contracts behind the council's back—the contracts went out through the back door. Rather than "reprogram" the funds in a council-reviewed process, it seems to funds were simply granted by the parks department over to the housing agency in a process that wasn't discovered until some council staffers stumbled over the arrangement this week. For a guy who ran for office on accountability and transparency, it's awfully opaque.

Actually this is pretty much business as usual in Ward 1. The Post has just chosen to pick on one group while ignoring other even involved in the same deals. The CVS deal in our own ANC was not much different.

Friends share in D.C. Mayor Adrian M. Fenty's good fortune

By Nikita Stewart and Paul Schwartzman
Washington Post Staff Writer
Sunday, March 7, 2010; 10:09 AM

Before Adrian M. Fenty was elected D.C. mayor in 2006, Sinclair Skinner lived in a worn, two-story brick home on Georgia Avenue NW above his dry cleaning business, a venture that collapsed in financial ruin.

But Skinner had one valuable asset: his relationship with Fenty (D), then a D.C. Council member. They had known each other since they attended Howard University in the 1990s and belonged to the same fraternity.

As field director of Fenty's mayoral campaign, Skinner spent hundreds of hours with the candidate knocking on doors across the city. After Fenty's victory, Skinner started an engineering firm that soon landed work on at least three city projects, according to public records.

In addition, the records show, Skinner's firm was a subcontractor on the rebuilding of city parks and recreation centers -- work that paid about $700,000. Skinner, 40, bought a Porsche and a handsome $654,000 brick house a few blocks from the mayor's house in the Crestwood neighborhood in Northwest Washington.

Skinner and Omar Karim, another Howard graduate and fraternity brother, are at the center of a coterie of Fenty friends who since the mayor's election have traveled from the political margins to the center of power and influence, often helping one another along the way.

On Friday, the D.C. Council appointed a special counsel to investigate the Fenty administration's awarding of $86 million in construction projects at city parks and recreation centers without the council's approval, which is required on contracts exceeding $1 million. The investigator is expected to examine whether the city showed favoritism to the mayor's friends in awarding the deals.

The mayor's friends were relatively unknown before Fenty's rise: engaged in neighborhood activism, working for a developer or running a nightclub or a landscaping business. After Fenty became mayor, the men prospered, starting or expanding companies that have repeatedly landed development and construction projects awarded by the D.C. government. Karim's roster includes a $4.2 million contract to oversee renovation of at least 16 parks and recreation centers. The Fenty administration did not seek council approval for that contract but now says it should have done so.

Politicians have long cultivated circles of lawyers, developers and lobbyists who, in turn, thrive on access to government's highest levels. But Fenty's friends have risen from obscurity at a pace that has captured the attention of the political and business establishments and fostered an image that is seemingly at odds with Fenty's campaign themes of reform and transparency.

"They're suddenly doing so well at the trough of government," said D.C. Council member Mary M. Cheh (D-Ward 3). "There's this network where they all help each other. They all get rich together. It makes you wonder what's going on. What we know is they're friends of Fenty."

Karim and Skinner declined to comment through their attorney, A. Scott Bolden. Karim recently testified at a council hearing on the parks contracts that he had done nothing wrong. Skinner has not responded to a subpoena from the council, contending that he was improperly served. Last week, a D.C. Superior Court judge ordered Skinner to testify this month or face $1,000-a-day fines for each day he does not appear.

After Fenty's election, Skinner and Karim were not shy about mentioning their mayoral ties as they tried to attract business partners or obtain consulting work, according to five developers and consultants who spoke to the men about possible deals. The sources spoke on the condition of anonymity because they said they fear retribution from the Fenty administration.

R. Donahue Peebles, a developer who has considered challenging Fenty in the 2010 mayoral race, has spoken openly about how political networking during Marion Barry's reign as mayor helped him land his first major real estate deal. After critics accused Peebles of benefiting from cronyism in the mid-1990s, the developer became infuriated and relocated to Miami for a decade before turning his attention back to the District, where the Fenty administration has twice rejected his company's bids for city projects.

Since his return to Washington, Peebles said, at least two of Skinner's associates suggested that he hire Skinner, who they said could help him win District projects and gain access to the mayor and his top aides. Peebles said the associates told him that Skinner's fee was $10,000 to $20,000 a month.

Peebles said Karim approached him after an appearance on the Howard campus in 2007 and told him that Fenty was seeking to empower a new group of minority builders, including Karim. As African Americans, Karim and Skinner could benefit from city requirements that developers partner with minority-owned companies.

Karim, Peebles said, told him that "if I wanted to get to do a development deal with the District of Columbia government under Fenty, I'd have to do business with them and their circle, this new inner circle. He gave me this whole spiel about how it was a new day and how the old guys' day was up. Essentially, the message was I was going to need him."

Peebles said he was angered by what he considered a "flagrant pay-to-play overture." He rejected Karim's offer, he said, and refused to hire Skinner.
Another developer, who renovates commercial and residential properties in the city, said Skinner told him that he represented Liberty Law, owned by Karim, which could provide lobbying services for $25,000 a month even though it is not a registered lobbyist. "They wanted a big part of it up front: $200,000," said the developer, who spoke on condition of anonymity because he does not want to antagonize the Fenty administration.
The developer said that when he asked Skinner what services he would provide, Skinner told him, "You need some stuff, don't you?"

'Because of their expertise'

Fenty declined to talk in detail about his relationships with Skinner and Karim. In a brief interview as he left a news conference last month, he said his administration has awarded contracts properly.
Bolden, speaking for Karim and Skinner, acknowledged that his clients have been real estate consultants, but he said: "They're consultants because of their expertise. It has nothing to do with access to the mayor. [To imply otherwise] devalues their educational background, their entrepreneurship, their love of this city."
He added: "They're Howard graduates. They're fraternity brothers. They're friends with the mayor. Maybe they like doing business together. Anything illegal, inappropriate about that?"
Karim's rise as a developer has been swift, and his portfolio consists mostly of projects awarded by the Fenty administration. Karim, 35, worked for a small developer before starting Banneker Ventures LLC during Fenty's campaign for mayor. Since 2005, Karim, his wife and his firm, which has offices two blocks from the White House, have contributed $10,000 to Fenty campaigns.
In addition to holding parks contracts now under investigation by the special counsel, Karim's company was on the team the Fenty administration chose for the $700 million redevelopment of the area around the Sursum Corda housing complex near North Capitol Street.
Banneker Ventures has played various roles in city projects, sometimes joining with other developers to win a contract and sometimes being hired to manage construction projects, a role that allowed Banneker to hire subcontractors who are also the mayor's friends.
On one project, after Banneker Ventures was hired as a planning consultant, the city later awarded the contract for the project to one of Karim's partners. Karim also worked for the city reviewing developers' proposals on two other projects.
Peter Nickles, the D.C. attorney general and a longtime Fenty adviser, said he sees nothing unusual in the frequency with which Fenty's friends have obtained city work. "They're young, African American guys trying to get involved . . . in the business of the city," he said. "You got a prime contractor, and the prime contractor shows it can get things done. . . . The prime has people it trusts."
Another Fenty friend who has prospered is Keith Lomax, a substitute teacher at Mackin High School in the 1980s, when Fenty was a student there. Lomax's construction company has received nearly $16 million in D.C. contracts since Fenty took office, records show. Bolden, also Lomax's attorney, said the contractor would not comment for this article.

Skinner's ascent

Within Fenty's circle, no one else has risen as dramatically as Skinner, who was broke and drove a dented sedan when he went to work for the campaign.

At Skinner's dry cleaning shop on Georgia Avenue, he put up a poster of himself shaking hands with Sherman Hemsley, the actor who played dry cleaner George Jefferson in "The Jeffersons," the TV sitcom known for its "Movin' On Up" theme song. But dry cleaning was not Skinner's way up.

In 2003, about the time his Georgia Avenue property was foreclosed on, Skinner closed a second location, on Rockville Pike, leaving behind a pile of clothing that Montgomery County officials had to return to its owners, said Ralph L. Vines, an administrator in the county's Consumer Protection Office. By 2006, Skinner owed the District $17,238 in rent for a spot he had leased at Judiciary Square, according to a settlement in which Skinner agreed to pay the city the back rent.

Skinner's finances improved during Fenty's campaign, which paid him nearly $70,000, according to city records. Sixteen months after the election, Skinner formed Liberty Engineering and Design, which Karim's company hired as a subcontractor on the parks renovations. Invoices show that Liberty has charged Banneker Ventures about $700,000. The council investigated Banneker's contract after discovering that the administration had awarded it without the required legislative approval.

Skinner has courted controversy throughout Fenty's time in office.

Although he has no job in the administration, Skinner, working with a Fenty aide, orchestrated the donation of a city-owned firetruck and ambulance to a town in the Dominican Republic without the knowledge or approval of the D.C. Council, according to a council investigation. The probe described Skinner as "well-connected" and concluded that "inside connections and access . . . resulted in a loss of value to the District government."

Kappa Alpha Psi, the fraternity to which Skinner, Karim and Fenty belong, publicly thanked Skinner for organizing a $37,000, taxpayer-funded reception last August celebrating the fraternity. Nickles declared the use of city funds improper and told the fraternity to reimburse the District.

Despite such incidents, Skinner and Fenty have remained close. At a birthday bash for Skinner atop Macy's downtown rooftop in 2008, hundreds of well-wishers danced to live go-go music as the mayor took out his cellphone to snap photos of the birthday boy.

Against gentrification

Fenty met Skinner at Howard when the future mayor was a law student and Skinner was studying engineering. At the time, Skinner later told campaign colleagues, he would deliver meals to Fenty, who would hole up in his room for marathon study sessions.

From his earliest years in Washington, Skinner demonstrated a penchant for activism, winning election in 1998 to Petworth's Advisory Neighborhood Commission.

Lenwood Johnson, a commissioner and friend, said Skinner opposed white professionals migrating to the Northwest Washington neighborhood, if only because they could raise property values and drive out longtime residents and businesses. "He'd say, 'Why are they moving over here?' "

Joe Englert, who owns taverns in the District, was planning to open another in Petworth in 2006. Skinner confronted him, asking, "Why would a white man open a business on Georgia Avenue?" said Englert, who is white. "It was hard to respond, it was so outrageous."

As president of a business association, Skinner published the Georgia Avenue Defender, which in 2005 lampooned council member Jim Graham (D-Ward 1) as "Gramzilla," slayer of black-owned businesses. During his campaign, Fenty rebuffed demands by Graham and others to disavow or fire Skinner.

After the election, Fenty's aides tried to find Skinner a government post, said two former administration officials and a former campaign volunteer. Fenty, meanwhile, on several occasions promised that his friend would not get a job. Asked last month about the administration's efforts on Skinner's behalf, the mayor said only that "he doesn't have a role in my administration."

Skinner started his engineering firm and another company, renting space downtown and in an unmarked house with bars on the windows on Martin Luther King Jr. Avenue SE.

By then, Skinner was close to Warren Williams Jr., who owned Club U, a nightclub on U Street that was shut down in 2005, during the administration of Mayor Anthony A. Williams (D), after a patron was fatally stabbed. Warren Williams also owned an apartment building where tenants complained of rat infestation and no heat. In 2008, council members cited the stabbing and the building when they criticized Fenty's choice of a team that included Warren Williams to manage the D.C. Lottery.

During Fenty's campaign, Warren Williams, at Skinner's suggestion, joined Karim at Banneker Ventures, Williams said. After the election, the developers won several D.C. projects, including managing reconstruction of Walker-Jones Educational Complex and work on redeveloping a theater in the Deanwood neighborhood in Northeast.

The administration and the D.C. Housing Authority picked Banneker Ventures as "master planning consultant" for the redevelopment of the Park Morton housing project in Petworth. After Karim and Warren Williams split up in 2008, the District chose Williams's company, the Warrenton Group, as co-developer of Park Morton. Williams, in an interview, said his company was chosen because of its competence, not its political connections.

Ben Soto, Fenty's campaign treasurer, said the mayor's ties to Skinner and Karim are rooted in a common commitment to improve the city. "He likes people who have a sense of urgency," Soto said. "Omar and Sinclair have that." Their bond, Soto said, trumps any political embarrassment. "When Adrian knows you have his back, it's a hiccup."

Although the friends have benefited from minority contracting rules, access to the mayor does not ensure winning bids, Soto said. The District twice rejected proposals from Karim's company, said Sean Madigan, a city spokesman.

Former mayor Barry (D), now the Ward 8 council member, said Fenty's friends have turned up in D.C.-sponsored projects often enough to raise questions.

"There's nobody in this government more Afro-centric than I am, but you can't hide behind that," said Barry, a longtime advocate of minority set-asides. "The problem I have is the circle is so small. The same ones over and over again. It's not fair."

Lomax is among the Fenty friends helped by Banneker Ventures. Banneker hired Lomax's RBK Construction for at least $3.5 million of the $16 million in D.C. contracts that RBK has received since Fenty took office. That's up from $1 million in city work that RBK got during Anthony Williams's administration.

The D.C. inspector general and the city auditor in May began investigating whether Lomax, a Prince George's resident, falsely used a house in Northeast Washington as a business address to improve his chances of winning city business. Lomax declined to comment.

The investigation, which is continuing, apparently has not dampened Fenty's friendship with Lomax. On a recent Saturday, the pair attended a Georgetown-Duke basketball game, where they posed for photos with President Obama.

Nor have Skinner's troubles made the mayor rethink their relationship. One night last month, as Fenty trolled for votes in the Northeast neighborhood of Burrville, there, following the mayor as he knocked on doors, was Sinclair Skinner.

Good Evening Councilman Graham,

I am currently working on a story about the land and Omar Karim and I would like your side of the issue and also to clarify fact from fiction before I publish my story - my question are below. If you could answer these question by 8:15 tonight that would be great.

1. According to Omar Karim he has been awaiting approval to build on the land contracted with WMATA since April 2008 due to waiting on the board to vote. Why has the process been so long for him to be approved? Is this the normal process for developers or are there other stipulations? If so, what are they?

Mr. Karim and six other firms submitted Request for Qualifications (RFQ). The proposals were to develop two parcels of land, one parcel owned by Metro and a second parcel owned by a private citizen. This is the normal process; Metro Real Estate has to review the proposals and submit recommendations, development partners and financing must be attained before the board can approve it.

2. When the term sheet ends on March 31st for Karim, what will happen? Will the land be given to someone else?

I believe the process will start anew with a new RFQ. The land owned by Metro was never to be sold but leased.

3. When looking for builders what are some of the qualifications the WMATA looks for as far as experience, economic stability, etc.?

That is a question better answered by the real estate arm of WMATA. Certainly, a resume containing past projects, financing and a competent builder are necessary. I do not have the expertise beyond that.

4. Have Karim and you spoken directly about the issue? If so, what was the response?

5. According to Karim, his building project keeps getting taken off of the agenda. If so, why is this? Are there plans to put it back on the agenda?

There are not sufficient votes on the board for this project to pass. So it has been pulled each time.

6. Please explain the process that developers must go through when developing through WMATA. Does the whole board have to vote to approve or one person? What role do you play in this?

The entire board has to vote on these projects. I am one board member with one vote.

If you need any clarification, please let me know. Thanks again.

Is it possible for you to come to the LeDroit Park Civic Association meeting on Tuesday and lead some discussion of the Parcel 42 petition? I think it's difficult to explain fully in an email such a matter.
Thanks,

Good Evening Councilman Graham,

I am currently working on a story about the land and Omar Karim and I would like your side of the issue and also to clarify fact from fiction before I publish my story - my question are below. If you could answer these question by 8:15 tonight that would be great.

1. According to Omar Karim he has been awaiting approval to build on the land contracted with WMATA since April 2008 due to waiting on the board to vote. Why has the process been so long for him to be approved? Is this the normal process for developers or are there other stipulations? If so, what are they?

2. When the term sheet ends on March 31st for Karim, what will happen? Will the land be given to someone else?

3. When looking for builders what are some of the qualifications the WMATA looks for as far as experience, economic stability, etc.?

4. Have Karim and you spoken directly about the issue? If so, what was the response?

5. According to Karim, his building project keeps getting taken off of the agenda. If so, why is this? Are there plans to put it back on the agenda?

6. Please explain the process that developers must go through when developing through WMATA. Does the whole board have to vote to approve or one person? What role do you play in this?

If you need any clarification, please let me know. Thanks again.
- Thank You,

Greetings,

New Development

I provided a letter of support to the DC Department of Housing and Community Development in support of the 9% Low Income Housing Tax Credit Application submitted by the Jazz--Banneker Ventures LLC. As you may have read in the Washington Business Journal the development of this Project will transform the immediate neighborhood injecting a lively mix of commercial and residential activity along the 700 and 800 blocks of Florida Ave. I have worked with Banneker Ventures over the last two years and I am very pleased with their commitment to the revitalization of the community as well as the affordable housing component and retail opportunities. This project moves toward anchoring and stabilizing the eastern end of U Street. Today is the last day to submit public comment however, please see the information below.

The public comment period ends Thursday, July 16, 2009. DHCD prefers that comments be submitted to via email to najuma.thorpe@dc.gov . The link to the public comment section of DHCD's website is: http://newsroom.dc.gov/show.aspx/agency/dhcd/section/2/release/17502.

Additionally, below please find sample email content that you may use:

To Whom It May Concern:

My name is _____ and I am a resident of Single Member District 1BO1. As neighbors of the surrounding community, I fully support The Jazz @ Florida Avenue, LLC's application for 9% Low Income Housing Tax Credits with the Department of Housing and Community Development. This mixed-use development project will serve to revitalize the Florida Avenue corridor by transforming two city blocks with much needed retail and residential housing. The project's 26 units of affordable housing is a commendable and necessary component of the Project, which the government should support through financial vehicles such as the tax credits. This will be an amazing project and I fully support The Jazz @ Florida Avenue, LLC's application for tax credits.

Fire Station Naming Ceremony

The northbound lanes of Sherman Avenue, NW , between Barry Place and Euclid Street , will be closed on Saturday, July 18, from 10 am to 6 pm, for a ceremony at Engine Company 4.

The New Cronies Adrian Fenty, some frat buddies, and $86 million in city spending.

By Mike DeBonis
Posted: October 28, 2009

He calls him "God."

He says things like this: "I spoke to God, and God wanted me to have this." Or "God wants us to live well." Or "God's going to make it rain."

Those sound like the words of a priest. But this man is not a priest; he is a developer named Omar Karim.

He does not speak in churches; he talks about "God" in VIP rooms and cigar lounges and in private meetings with investors.

And "God" is not God; "God" is Mayor Adrian M. Fenty.

Has "God" been good to Omar Karim? Someone, somewhere, has been good to Karim.

His firm, Banneker Ventures, has been cut in on one of the biggest redevelopment deals in the city—the sprawling project to turn the old Temple Courts and Sursum Corda housing projects into a gleaming mixed-use, mixed-income development called Northwest One. Banneker has also won lucrative contracts to serve as co-construction managers for a pair of city projects: a rebuild of Walker-Jones Elementary School and a new Deanwood Recreation Center—projects that have helped send $1.8 million to Karim's company since July 2008.

And now comes the revelation that Banneker has won the right to manage tens of millions of dollars in parks construction contracts—contracts that had been sent to the D.C. Housing Authority (DCHA) in a governmental sleight of hand engineered in such a way as to elude D.C. Council oversight or at the very least, short-circuit city procurement practices.

Banneker Ventures, over the past two years, has been the subject of much whispering in political and development circles. That's thanks, in no small part, to its ties to three of the most controversial characters in Fenty's political sphere.

First comes the 36-year-old Banneker co-founder Karim, a law school classmate and Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity brother of Fenty's. The other co-founder is Warren C. Williams Jr., the businessman whose involvement in a bid to operate the D.C. Lottery led to a political showdown at the D.C. Council. Williams has since split with Karim, forming his own development enterprise, the Warrenton Group.

And then there's Sinclair Skinner, the controversial street activist turned consultant and fixer who has maintained his place in the Fenty inner sanctum. He has done work for Banneker in the past, though the nature of his ongoing relationship with the firm is unclear. But his utility to Fenty is ongoing; Skinner was spotted last week campaigning in Hillcrest with Fitzgerald.

Banneker's emissaries know where to find top officials in the city development apparatus—especially development director David Jannarone and former deputy mayor and now City Administrator Neil O. Albert. They've been planted in the city entourage at the yearly Las Vegas retail convention; they're fixtures at the regular happy hours that the deputy mayor's office throws at swank locales; Jannarone and Skinner famously traveled together to the Dominican Republic, gifting city emergency equipment in the process.

Whether Banneker could compete for city contracts on its own bona fides is a matter of debate. It's a small, young firm without the sort of track record this city's premier developers—the Jim Abdos and Chris Donatellis and Doug Jemals—can point to. Not by a long shot. Yet the company has found sustenance away from the tent of D.C. municipal contracting. It competed for, and won, the right to develop a highly sought Metro-owned parcel. Banneker is currently trying to come to terms with financiers to start construction on what's tentatively called Jazz @ Florida Avenue.

And Karim's expertise is apparently such that he appeared earlier this year on a panel of judges tasked with choosing who would redevelop the former Stevens Elementary School. Multiple developers expressed concern to LL that Karim, as a potential competitor in future projects, would have had access in his judging role to their proprietary financial figures.

If there are any holes in the Banneker CV, perhaps the deal with DCHA will close them. The company—jointly bidding with Regan Associates, a well-regarded Herndon management and development firm—won the right from DCHA to manage the parks projects, beating out 12 others. By LL's deadline on Tuesday evening, much was still unknown about the contract. The D.C. Council was circulating a contract list of unknown origin showing that the deal involved 12 projects to renovate parks or recreation centers totaling $82 million and that the individual projects had been let to several construction firms, all of which had donated early and heavily to Fenty's re-election campaign. DCHA would confirm only that Banneker had won the single contract to manage all of the projects, saying the remainder of the contracting had not been approved.

After months of CFSA and DPR and AG, DCHA is a refreshing acronym to find in the headlines. Here's an agency that has escaped public attention for most of the nine years since it left receivership, and that's part of its appeal as a channel for hassle-free contracting. The parks deal was done through the D.C. Housing Enterprises, a nonprofit wholly owned by DCHA that manages projects for other government agencies. "It's a win-win," says DCHA spokesperson Dena Michaelson, referring to a process in which her agency uses its managerial muscle and other agencies get their projects done faster.

And there's been a lot more winning of late. From 2006 to 2008, DCHA transfers never broke $30 million. But since January, more than $57 million has been sent to the quasi-governmental entity, accountable to its own mayorally appointed board. That doesn't include the bulk of the parks money. (Not all of the money, however, is apportioned to construction projects.)

Funneling contracts through DCHA aligns with Fenty's git-'er-done governing ideology. Besides a new school, nothing makes an impression on constituents (and voters) like a sparkling new park or rec center. In an attempt to become the Domino's of new-parks delivery service, Fenty last November tried to hand DPR projects over to the independent schools facilities shop administered by Allen Y. Lew. The power move ran into opposition from council parks committee chair Harry Thomas Jr., who pushed through a bill preventing any transfer of DPR projects outside the agency—and thus evading his oversight.

Timing, as they say, is everything. The Banneker contract, Thomas says, was approved in late September, as DCHA's longtime executive director, Michael Kelly, already had one foot out of the door toward his new job as New York City's public housing chief. It also may shed some light on the reason for the sudden termination this spring of Clark Ray as parks-and-rec chief. Says Ray, "I can tell you without a doubt, we went by the book on every contract we had over $1 million."

In February, Ray signed a memorandum sending $57 million in parks money over to the deputy mayor for planning and economic development, which in turn handed it to DCHA. Under his successor, Ximena Hartsock, that amount was increased to $68.4 million and then, last month, to $86.9 million.

Bypassing the council appears to be the driving force behind all the maneuvering. From all indications, the funds moved to DCHA not through a "reprogramming," which comes with legislative oversight, but through "intradistrict transfers" to the deputy mayor and grants to DCHA, which do not. The parks contract was bid among 13 companies, then vetted by housing agency board members, but not sent to the council for approval.

Fenty denies trying to circumvent the council in getting his rec centers and parks built. And now that the issue has blown up in his face, he has continued down that path. On Monday, Attorney General Peter Nickles ruled that the Banneker contract, already awarded, doesn't need to be sent back to the council, even though it should have been sent there in the first place. The Nickles opinion seems likely to force the court showdown that councilmembers have long been threatening.

That the Fenty administration, intentionally or not, came so close to slipping $86 million in spending past the D.C. Council is scary enough. The scheme was revealed this week after council staff noticed a spate of public groundbreakings without seeing any submitted contracts, coupled with the concerns registered by an aggrieved contractor with another council office.

Says Thomas, "The mayor's PR machine got him in trouble."

On Tuesday morning, LL attended another PR event—an announcement of the imminent construction of one of the first pieces of the Northwest One development. There, Fenty announced the many benefits to come, introducing megadeveloper Chris Smith of the William C. Smith & Co. Present, but not taking the podium was Williams, whose Warrenton Group is codeveloping the 300-unit building (located, incidentally, next to DCHA headquarters).

After the announcement, LL asked Hizzoner how to describe the city-contract beneficiaries that have been painted in the media with the broad brush of "frat brother" (as opposed to his "running buddies," who tend to get appointed to relatively minor boards and commissions.)

How to describe Karim, Skinner, et al.—friends, frat brothers, acquaintances, some other moniker?

"All of the above," said Fenty. He declined to elaborate.

With Vincent Gray's son working on the project at 14th and Girard, I just find it difficult to see why Council would be surprised by this type of funding. The article does not seem comprehensive enough and appears to gloss over details/evidence.

D.C. parks contracts bypassed council
PROJECTS MOVED VIA HOUSING AUTHORITY
Jobs went to companies with connections to Fenty

By Nikita Stewart
Washington Post Staff Writer

Friday, October 23, 2009

D.C. Mayor Adrian M. Fenty's administration has funneled at least $72 million to the D.C. Housing Authority to build a dozen parks, ballfields and recreation centers, a process that has circumvented D.C. Council oversight and awarded contracts to firms with ties to the mayor.

By law, the council must approve contracts that exceed $1 million. Last month, contracts for as much as $16 million went to various construction companies as part of the mayor's effort to improve the city's parks system.

Banneker Ventures, a firm owned by a Fenty fraternity brother, Omar Karim, is the construction manager on every project, according to a list of the projects compiled by the council. The general contractor on two of the projects is RBK Landscaping and Construction, which is owned by Keith Lomax, a friend of Fenty's who drew attention this year for illegally driving the mayor's city-owned sport-utility vehicle.

Four council members are requesting that City Administrator Neil O. Albert and other members of the administration who had oversight of the projects appear at a round-table meeting Oct. 30 to discuss the matter. Late Thursday, they sent the mayor a letter raising concerns about the process for awarding the contracts.

"It defeats transparency. Let me put it more strongly. It looks sneaky," council member Mary M. Cheh (D-Ward 3) said Thursday in an interview.

Fenty, a triathlete, has made recreation a priority for his administration, holding groundbreaking ceremonies for playgrounds, pools and dog parks nearly every other weekday during the summer. But the mayor's announcements, which some critics have described as little more than campaign events, did not correspond with the recreation capital budget, said council member Harry Thomas Jr. (D-Ward 5), chairman of the Committee on Libraries, Parks and Recreation.

"I asked my staff, 'Why aren't these contracts matching up with the scope of work that was going through the committee?' " Thomas said.

Some talks with housing authority and parks officials this week led to the discovery of millions of dollars in projects that the council never approved. Thomas said it appears the money was taken from the Department of Parks and Recreation, given to the Office of the Deputy Mayor for Planning and Economic Development and then passed through the quasi-government agency that operate the city's public housing system.

Thomas said he wanted to know how Banneker received the 12 contracts last month. "There are some real concerns that one contractor could win competitive contracts 100 percent of the time," he said.

Herndon-based Regan Associates is teamed with Banneker in all the projects. Sean M. and Thomas J. Regan, who head the real estate advisory firm, have contributed heavily to Fenty's 2010 campaign.

Dena Michaelson, a spokeswoman for the housing authority, said Thursday that she did not have information about the projects. She also said she did not know whether the contracts had been competitively bid.

But she said it is not unusual for city officials to route money through the housing authority for construction work. "They tap into us . . . to get the projects off the ground," Michaelson said. "We get projects going fast, and we keep costs low."

The mayor's office did not answer questions about why it went through the housing authority to build the facilities. Late Thursday, spokeswoman Mafara Hobson said in an e-mail: "The District of Columbia Housing Authority (DCHA) is an independent entity with autonomous procurement authority. The Administration values its long standing partnership with the Authority, and defers to DCHA with respect to any statement about its procurement process."
The questioned contracts mark another controversy for the parks department.

The council, led by Thomas, recently rejected Ximena Hartsock as the mayor's pick to be the agency's director. She was the first Fenty Cabinet pick to not be confirmed.

Council members Marion Barry (D-Ward 8) and Kwame R. Brown (D-At Large) joined Thomas and Cheh in sending the mayor the letter about the recreation spending and calling for the round table.

The dozen projects stretch across the city. The largest contracts were $16 million for the Rosedale Recreation Center in Northeast, $15 million for the Barry Farm Recreation Center in Southeast and $12 million each for the Fort Stanton Recreation Center in Southeast and Kenilworth Recreation Center in Northwest.

Karim, whose firm managed the projects, did not return a call seeking comment. At one time, Sinclair Skinner, a campaign coordinator in Fenty's 2006 mayoral bid and also a fraternity brother, did community outreach work for Banneker.

Skinner has come under fire for his involvement in donating a firetruck and ambulance to a town in the Dominican Republic, and his role is being investigated by the Inspector General's Office and the council.

Under the Fenty administration, Banneker Ventures has become a major player in development. It is part of a partnership selected to build the long-awaited $700 million Northwest One New Communities project, which will replace the low-income Sursum Corda cooperative and Temple Courts housing complex.

With Vincent Gray's son working on the project at 14th and Girard, I just find it difficult to see why Council would be surprised by this type of funding. The article does not seem comprehensive enough and appears to gloss over details/evidence.

D.C. parks contracts bypassed council
PROJECTS MOVED VIA HOUSING AUTHORITY
Jobs went to companies with connections to Fenty

By Nikita Stewart
Washington Post Staff Writer

Friday, October 23, 2009

D.C. Mayor Adrian M. Fenty's administration has funneled at least $72 million to the D.C. Housing Authority to build a dozen parks, ballfields and recreation centers, a process that has circumvented D.C. Council oversight and awarded contracts to firms with ties to the mayor.

By law, the council must approve contracts that exceed $1 million. Last month, contracts for as much as $16 million went to various construction companies as part of the mayor's effort to improve the city's parks system.

Banneker Ventures, a firm owned by a Fenty fraternity brother, Omar Karim, is the construction manager on every project, according to a list of the projects compiled by the council. The general contractor on two of the projects is RBK Landscaping and Construction, which is owned by Keith Lomax, a friend of Fenty's who drew attention this year for illegally driving the mayor's city-owned sport-utility vehicle.

Four council members are requesting that City Administrator Neil O. Albert and other members of the administration who had oversight of the projects appear at a round-table meeting Oct. 30 to discuss the matter. Late Thursday, they sent the mayor a letter raising concerns about the process for awarding the contracts.

"It defeats transparency. Let me put it more strongly. It looks sneaky," council member Mary M. Cheh (D-Ward 3) said Thursday in an interview.

Fenty, a triathlete, has made recreation a priority for his administration, holding groundbreaking ceremonies for playgrounds, pools and dog parks nearly every other weekday during the summer. But the mayor's announcements, which some critics have described as little more than campaign events, did not correspond with the recreation capital budget, said council member Harry Thomas Jr. (D-Ward 5), chairman of the Committee on Libraries, Parks and Recreation.

"I asked my staff, 'Why aren't these contracts matching up with the scope of work that was going through the committee?' " Thomas said.

Some talks with housing authority and parks officials this week led to the discovery of millions of dollars in projects that the council never approved. Thomas said it appears the money was taken from the Department of Parks and Recreation, given to the Office of the Deputy Mayor for Planning and Economic Development and then passed through the quasi-government agency that operate the city's public housing system.

Thomas said he wanted to know how Banneker received the 12 contracts last month. "There are some real concerns that one contractor could win competitive contracts 100 percent of the time," he said.

Herndon-based Regan Associates is teamed with Banneker in all the projects. Sean M. and Thomas J. Regan, who head the real estate advisory firm, have contributed heavily to Fenty's 2010 campaign.

Dena Michaelson, a spokeswoman for the housing authority, said Thursday that she did not have information about the projects. She also said she did not know whether the contracts had been competitively bid.

But she said it is not unusual for city officials to route money through the housing authority for construction work. "They tap into us . . . to get the projects off the ground," Michaelson said. "We get projects going fast, and we keep costs low."

The mayor's office did not answer questions about why it went through the housing authority to build the facilities. Late Thursday, spokeswoman Mafara Hobson said in an e-mail: "The District of Columbia Housing Authority (DCHA) is an independent entity with autonomous procurement authority. The Administration values its long standing partnership with the Authority, and defers to DCHA with respect to any statement about its procurement process."
The questioned contracts mark another controversy for the parks department.

The council, led by Thomas, recently rejected Ximena Hartsock as the mayor's pick to be the agency's director. She was the first Fenty Cabinet pick to not be confirmed.

Council members Marion Barry (D-Ward 8) and Kwame R. Brown (D-At Large) joined Thomas and Cheh in sending the mayor the letter about the recreation spending and calling for the round table.

The dozen projects stretch across the city. The largest contracts were $16 million for the Rosedale Recreation Center in Northeast, $15 million for the Barry Farm Recreation Center in Southeast and $12 million each for the Fort Stanton Recreation Center in Southeast and Kenilworth Recreation Center in Northwest.

Karim, whose firm managed the projects, did not return a call seeking comment. At one time, Sinclair Skinner, a campaign coordinator in Fenty's 2006 mayoral bid and also a fraternity brother, did community outreach work for Banneker.

Skinner has come under fire for his involvement in donating a firetruck and ambulance to a town in the Dominican Republic, and his role is being investigated by the Inspector General's Office and the council.

Under the Fenty administration, Banneker Ventures has become a major player in development. It is part of a partnership selected to build the long-awaited $700 million Northwest One New Communities project, which will replace the low-income Sursum Corda cooperative and Temple Courts housing complex.

Overview of the WMATA Board Meeting

April 23, 2009
9:00 am

Agenda Items Impacting the District of Columbia

Customer Service, Operations and Safety Committee

Operational Performance

Discussion: For the seventh month of reported bus on-time performance there has been basically no change. February performance was 76.63%, near the top of the historical range. On-time performance has improved for four consecutive months. Bus MDBF was at goal for the month.

Rail on-time performance remains above last year's level and reached goal at 95% for the month. Escalator system availability so far in FY09 is trending below the goal and below last year's levels; elevator availability was above the 97.5% goal for the month. MetroAccess on-time performance is at or above goal and last year's levels.

One of three Navy Yard escalators was operational for only 10% of the month; but this was before baseball season began. An information briefing on escalator and elevator maintenance is scheduled for the May meeting.

Action Items

A. Approval of Dulles Artwork Proposals
B. Approval of Farragut North Artwork Proposal

Discussion: Large scale artwork installations are proposed for stations on the Dulles Metrorail line, and inside the K Street entrance to Farragut North station. Funding for Dulles art is fully reimbursed by MWAA in the amount of $1,721,000. Installation of artwork at Farragut North will have a minimal operating cost to light the LEDs, but the installation itself is funded in full by the DC Commission on the Arts and Humanities and the Golden Triangle BID.

Information Items

A. Safety Performance Indicators

Discussion: FY09 to date safety indicators are improved across the board, in every category and mode.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED

Planning, Development and Real Estate Committee

WMATA staff will resubmit the proposal for Priority Network Corridor Policies and Standards, after including Board member input from the prior committee discussion. A draft has not been provided for DDOT review.

Board of Directors

Action Items: from the Finance, Administration, and Oversight Committee

A. MetroAccess Contracting Authority

Discussion: Ridership growth on MetroAccess is exceeding the original forecast requiring increased work by the contractor. This in turn is requiring an increase in contracting authority. Actual year to date FY 2009 expenditure for MetroAccess is $77.0 million, exceeding budget by $15.0 million. This action calls for increase in contracting authority of $6.5 million to continue through the end of FY 2009.

Impact: Action has no immediate impact on the District of Columbia.

B. Capital Budget Amendment for the Anacostia Light Rail Reimbursable Project

Purpose: To obtain approval of the Board of Directors to increase the budget for the DC Anacostia Streetcar Project from $16,100,000 to $16,960,000.

The basic premise for this item is to authorize spending authority for an additional $860,000 of interest earnings that have accrued over time in the District's streetcar account at WMATA. This additional budget authority will allow WMATA to address any expenditures associated with storage and support of the streetcars as well as any potential claims associated with the purchase of rails and power substations for the Anacostia streetcar line.

The current board item states that DDOT has requested that the streetcars remain in storage in the Czech Republic through the end of 2009. This request was made in January in DDOT's letter to WMATA that is included in your board packet. This letter predates the arrival of DDOT's new director. Subsequent to this initial request, the director has directed DDOT staff to request that WMATA initiate the delivery of streetcars as soon as possible and that DDOT work with WMATA to identify storage of the streetcars at a WMATA facility.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013672

We are recommending that this action be approved in an effort to address any unanticipated costs associated with the existing storage arrangement and the provision of power substations and rail. In addition, it will allow WMATA to address any unanticipated costs associated with initiating the delivery of the streetcars.

Impact: Funding for this increase in authority is from accrued interest on account at WMATA for the Streetcar Project. This action has no fiscal impact on the District.

Action Items: from the Planning, Development and Real Estate Committee

A. Extend Agreement Negotiation Period for Shaw - Florida Avenue

Purpose: Approve a 120-day extension for negotiating a revised term sheet for the Shaw-Howard University/Florida Avenue parcels.

Discussion: WMATA and the developers have requested an extension in negotiation to come to terms with changes in the project team, inclusion of affordable housing, and a change in the proposed lease term of the project. WMATA believes this extension will provide sufficient time to resolve these items.

Impact: No immediate impact to the District, but inclusion of affordable housing component is expected to reduce the land's value. Ultimately less money will accrue to the District's TIIF account upon execution of a joint development agreement than if the affordable housing component were not included.

Action Items: from the Customer Service, Operations and Safety Committee

A. Approval of Dulles Artwork Proposals
B. Approval of Farragut North Artwork Proposal

Discussion: Please refer to the Committee report above.

Administrative Items

1. Approval to Initiate & Award a Contract for Vending Services

Purpose: Request approval to initiate and award a multi-year, revenue-producing contract for vending services for Metro employees at the Jackson Graham Building and field operating facilities including all Metrorail service and inspection yards, all other RAIL facilities, all Metrobus garages, the Stone Straw Building and the Revenue Collection Facility.

Impact: Estimated $100,000 annually will be generated for WMATA.

2. Approval to Initiate & Award a Contract for 1000-Series Railcar Structual Reinforcement

Purpose: To request Board approval to initiate and award a sole-source contract to Sandia National Laboratories not to exceed $285,000 for structural reinforcement of the 1000-Series railcars using a proprietary repair technology.

Impact: No impact to the District; included in the FY09 approved budget. Sandia National Laboratory has developed a proprietary repair technology called a "bonded composite doubler", which is the only patch available for repairs on alloy aluminum surfaces. Sandia Labs will provide training and materials for the first two installations for $150,000 and the patch materials for the subsequent installations at a cost of $135,000, for a total cost of $285,000. These repairs are expected to be completed by the end of FY10.

3. Approval to Initiate & Award a Sole Source Contract for 1000-Series Door Releases

Purpose: To request Board approval to initiate and award a sole-source contract to Vapor Stone Rail Systems not to exceed $886,500 to install a manual exterior door release on the 1000-Series railcars.

Impact: No impact to the District; included in the FY09 approved budget. Metro is complying with the National Transportation Safety Board`s (NTSB) recommendation that all rail passenger cars be equipped with a manual exterior door release device that would permit Metro staff or Emergency Responders ingress to the railcar in case of an emergency or other conditions that may affect customer safety. A prototype manual exterior door release mechanism has been tested and deemed successful in revenue service. This action would allow Vapor to install a manual exterior door release device on all 298 railcars in the 1000-Series fleet at a cost of $886,550.

4. Approval to Initiate & Award a Sole Source Contract for 2000-, 3000- & 6000-Series Door Releases

Purpose: To request Board approval to initiate and award a sole-source contract to Innovations For Entrance Systems (IFE) North America not to exceed $758,218 to install a manual exterior door release on the 2000-, 3000-, & 6000-Series railcars.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013674

Impact: No impact to the District; included in the FY09 approved budget. Metro is complying with the National Transportation Safety Board`s (NTSB) recommendation that all rail passenger cars be equipped with a manual exterior door release device that would permit Metro staff or Emergency Responders ingress to the railcar in case of an emergency or other conditions that may affect customer safety. A prototype manual exterior door release mechanism has been tested and deemed successful in revenue service. This action would allow IFE to install a manual exterior door release device on all 364 railcars in the 2000/3000-Series fleet and all 184 railcars in the 6000-Series fleet and includes five spares at a cost of $758,218.

5. Approval to Initiate & Award Contracts for Backhoe, Flagging Booths, and Flat Cars

Purpose: This action is to request Board approval to initiate and award three individual competitive contracts. One contract is to purchase a Backhoe, a second contract to purchase Flatcar Flagging Booths, and a third contract to modify the height of three flat cars.

Impact: No impact to the District; included in the FY09 approved budget. A Flatcar is a rail bound piece of track equipment with a flat bed and flagman`s booth that allows track personnel to load and mobilize track parts and equipment to various locations within the rail system in order to perform track maintenance. A flagging booth is a small enclosed compartment that sits on top of a flat car on the end farthest from the Locomotive/Prime Mover. The booth houses the flagman and the necessary equipment (i.e. dump valve and lights) to safely operate flat cars when being pushed or pulled by our Locomotive/Prime Movers, more commonly known as work trains.

6. Approval to Initiate & Award a Contract for Environmental Services

Purpose: To obtain the Board of Directors approval to initiate the advertisement and award of the environmental services contract (one base year plus four option years) to support Metro`s environmental compliance and industrial hygiene programs at Metrobus, Metrorail and support facilities, subject to Board approval of the FY10 budget. The current contract expires June 30, 2009.

Impact: No impact to the District.

7. Approval to Initiate & Award Contracts for the Regional Customer Service Center Website & IVR

Purpose: To initiate and award one or more competitive procurements that will result in one or more contracts to design, develop, implement, and maintain Regional Website and IVR systems that will enhance SmarTrip customer service.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013675

Impact: No impact to the District.

8. Approval to Modify a Contract with Alstom for 6000-Series Railcars

Purpose: Request Board approval to modify Contract TC-6000 with Alstom Transportation Inc. to (1) substitute solid-side bearing plates for hollow-side bearing plates, (2) install a varilator into the car radio systems to reduce output power, (3) modify the propulsion system to limit the current draw to 1,620 amps and increase the regenerative braking voltage limit to 830 VDC, and (4) reduce the dollar value of the special tools, test and diagnostic equipment. The increased cost of $869,692 for items 1, 2, and 3 above will be offset by the reduction of $869,692 in the contract line item for special tools, test and diagnostic equipment, resulting in a zero dollar increase to the contract price.

Impact: No impact to the District.

9. Aproval to Execute an Agency Agreement with the Transit Employees Health & Welfare Plan

Purpose: The purpose of this action is to obtain Board approval to execute an Agency Agreement between Metro and the Transit Employee Health and Welfare Plan (Plan) which satisfies the Internal Revenue Service allowing a third party to act as agent for the withholding and reporting obligations of Metro.

Impact: No impact to the District.

10. Approval to Modify Transfer Charge for City of Fairfax CUE and Metrobus Service

Purpose: Authorize the modification of the transfer charge between Fairfax City`s CUE service and Metrobus service. Until their recent fare change in January the CUE system charged a lower base fare than the Metrobus system. As a result, a step-up fee has been in effect to equalize fares. The Metro Tariff specifically identifies the value of the CUE base fare ($.75) and step-up values to base Metrobus ($.50) and Metrobus Express service ($2.25). Since the CUE base fare is now equal to the Metrobus base fare, CUE has requested that the Authority eliminate the base fare step-up and reduce the step-up fee to Metrobus Express to $1.75.

Impact: No impact to the District.

11. Approval to Terminate the Transportation Infrastructure Finance and Innovation Act of 1998 (TIFIA)

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013676

Purpose: To request Board approval for early termination of the TIFIA Loan Agreement (Agreement) in order to issue Metro Matters Bonds. On January 28, 2000 Metro entered into a $600 million TIFIA Loan Agreement with Lehman Commercial Paper Inc. (Lehman). The Agreement, guaranteed by the U.S. Government, serves as a guaranteed loan facility for obligation purposes, per Compact section 22, which is necessary to advance funding of capital projects. As a result of the subsequent funding agreement, Metro Matters, executed in 2004, the TIFIA Agreement is no longer required. The Metro Matters Funding Agreement takes the place of the TIFIA Agreement.

Since the TIFIA Agreement is due to expire on June 30, 2009, and would require a feasibility study prior to the issuance of bonds, Metro is recommending an early termination of the TIFIA Loan Agreement. In addition, Lehman`s bankruptcy on September 15, 2008 and the subsequent failure of the Lender of Record role transferring to Barclays also supports an early termination of the Agreement prior to the bond issuance on June 9, 2009.

Impact: No impact to the District. No funds were ever drawn under the TIFIA Agreement and the early termination of the TIFIA Agreement will not have a budget impact.

Overview of the WMATA Board Meeting

November 5, 2009
9:00 am

Executive Summary

A series of executive sessions in both committees are scheduled to discuss the Public Access to Records Policy, Sale of Excess Property at Chillum Place NE, and the Term Sheet for Shaw-Howard University site on Florida Avenue. The Board will meet in full after these items are considered at the committees. Finance, Administration and Oversight committee has one regional item regarding MetroAccess, three local action items not affecting the District, and several information items on the budget and SmarTrip.

Summary of Suggested Questions to WMATA GM/Staff

- Travel training initiative: how much savings in the MetroAccess operating budget could be realized by these 600 additional registrants being trained to travel on fixed-route transit? At what rate of shifting from MetroAccess to fixed-route modes would the program be expected to show a net positive financial benefit?
- 28A/B and Q2 restructuring: Metro is charging $80,000 annually for a "Service Operations Manager" to oversee these lines. The District's experience with our limited stop routes (30s, S9, 79) is that supervision was promised at the route's introduction but over time the routes lost their dedicated supervision. What assurances can Metro give that when jurisdictions pay for dedicated supervision that they will actually receive it?
- IRS and SmarTrip: what would be the process for an employee receiving money back from their employer? Won't this greatly increase the administrative burden on employers with SmartBenefits?
- FY10 Budget Action Plan: Presentation references using $20 million in ARRA money for "other operating budget activities." What are these and how much of the $20 million do they represent?
- FY10 Budget Action Plan: There is not a line item savings next to each of these proposed initiatives, only a few mention dollar amounts. The Board should be provided with a detailed breakdown of how much savings each initiative entails, because as it stands the Board has no idea how much budget gap remains in FY10 and if these steps are sufficient to solve the problem.
- September's Monthly Financial Report: Explain the huge increases in bus patrons paying the elderly and disabled fare (up 70% or more from last year). What is causing this to happen? Is there evidence of non-elderly or non-disabled patrons abusing the fare structure? What steps is Metro taking to ensure passengers pay the proper fare? Why is the Board hearing about this for the first time now?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013680

- September's Monthly Financial Report: Why is the 'supplies' line item coming in so high on both rail and bus (37% high on rail, 33% on bus)? Shouldn't the authority be watching its spending pressures more closely in this area? Also, the problem seems to be worsening with September rail supplies overbudget by 62%, bus by 39%. How much of this is as a result of the Red Line incident?

Agenda Items Impacting the District of Columbia

Finance, Administration and Oversight Committee

Action Items:

A. Establish Reimbursable Project - Regional Travel Training Initiative

Discussion: Metro, through its Department of Access Services, was recently awarded $987,000 in Job Access Reverse Commute (JARC) and New Freedom Program funding through the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments (COG) to initiate a two-year regional travel training initiative in cooperation with Centers for Independent Living (CILs), the Inclusion Research Institute, and vocational rehabilitation centers in Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia. This funding will be combined with a required match - $161,893 in in-kind support and $85,000 in matching funds.

Impact: Although Metro makes no such assurance in the presentation, at the current ridership rate of 7 trips per month per registrant, the 600 additional individuals to be travel-trained could represent a savings of up to $1.9 million in reduced demand for MetroAccess trips. Even at a lower rate of trips shifting off MetroAccess the program is projected to have a net positive return on investment.

B. Proposed Restructuring of Metrobus Routes 28A and 28B Leesburg Pike Line

Discussion: The route carries 5,000 riders daily between King Street Metro and Tysons Corner. Route segments will be streamlined and consolidated, with the most important change being the introduction of new limited stop service during peak periods on the 28X.

Impact: The action has a net savings in FY10 of $193,500, of which $83,000 will accrue to the District. Savings in FY11 and 12 are approximately double the FY10 savings as they are for a full year.

C. Proposed Restructuring of Metrobus Route Q2 Veirs Mill Road Line

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013681

Discussion: The routes carry over 10,000 passengers between Shady Grove and Silver Spring. Proposed route restructuring would split the route into two, offering less service on the segment with lower demand and more service on the overlapping segment and where higher passenger demand exists.

Impact: The action has a net savings in FY10 of $125,000, of which $53,700 will accrue to the District.

D. Huntington Parking Garage Budget Adjustments

Discussion: Garages at Huntington and West Falls Church are complete, but the Huntington garage is overbudget by $250,000 and West Falls Church has budget remaining. Action will transfer funds from Huntington to West Falls Church budgets so that both projects may be closed out.

Impact: None.

Information Items:

A. IRS Requirements for Separation of Parking and Transit Benefits

Discussion: The IRS ruling requiring separate 'purses' of funds within SmarTrip (for cash added by users, for parking benefit provided by employer, for transit benefit provided by employer) will be implemented in January 2010 as required. Employers will be afforded the option to stay under the current system, where unused employee benefits are rolled over at the end of each month, or elect a new system where unused benefits revert to the employer. This is a clarification for Metro's prior assertion that all employers were required to operate under the second scheme; they now will be afforded the option of either one.

B. FY10 Budget Action Plan

Discussion: Metro proposes to use up to $20 million in ARRA money to support preventive maintenance, and "other operating budget activities." Funds received from Inauguration will offset $3.4 million, and $7 million will be recovered from insurance as a result of the red line accident. Shifting to paperless payroll and employee schedule optimization are also mentioned, along with use of the prior year's surplus of $5.6 million. Nowhere does Metro total up these actions by line item and show how they fully offset the FY10 budget gap; Board members are left with no assurance that these actions will solve the problem.

C. FY11 Budget Calendar

Discussion: Public forums on the FY11 budget have completed in the District and Virginia, with sessions still to go in Maryland. Metro recommits to producing a balanced operating and capital baseline budget in December, and a detailed proposed budget book in January that includes a schedule for potential service and fare adjustments.

D. FY10 Monthly Financial Report (September)

Discussion: Revenues coming in 6% low and expenses coming in 5% high have led to an overbudget situation of $8.4 million in the operating budget. Rail ridership is 3% lower than last year and 6% below budget. Bus ridership is 6% lower than last year and 10% below budget.

The capital budget for FY2010 is $764 million. Capital spending through September is as follows: $266 million has been obligated, and $78 million has been expended. The FY2010 debt balance is $59 million.

Bus procurement is still delayed; staff has stopped making a prediction on when New Flyer will deliver the remaining buses. Through September, Metrobus has received 131 buses in its procurement of 203 diesel-electric hybrid buses, 105 of which are in revenue service.

Year-to-date authority wide spending showed supplies as one of the major overbudget categories; 37% on rail and 33% on bus.

Agenda Items Impacting the District of Columbia

Planning, Development and Real Estate Committee

Action Items:

A. Leesburg Pike Metrobus Improvements Request to Conduct Public Hearings
B. Veirs Mill Road Metrobus Improvements Request to Conduct Public Hearings

Impact: These routes are in Virginia and Maryland, respectively, with no service inside the District. The changes are intended to be cost-neutral to the Authority.

Information Items:

A. Safety Report

Discussion: On the rail side, rail maintenance safety stand-down has been launched, additional personnel have been assigned to the Safety Department to assist with conducting comprehensive safety checks throughout the rail system, and safety personnel have been assigned to night shifts to increase oversight of night work activities. On bus, six bus training instructors have completed the Smith Systems (Defensive Driving) training course, and a bus safety advisory was distributed. DDOT staff questions what steps are being taken to impart the Smith Systems expertise to drivers.

Safety report was mostly favorable in comparison to year-ago levels, with clear exceptions of rail on-board injuries and derailments, both extremely serious deficiencies. Preventable and nonpreventable bus accident rates were both improved dramatically over one year ago.

B. Metro Police Crime Statistics and Significant Facts

Discussion: Crime statistics are steady from year-ago levels. MTPD arrested a serial bomb threat suspect in August, he is accused of 21 bomb threats inside the system and has been charged with federal crimes. Assaults against bus operators are down 22% from a year ago. Gallery Place remains the top station for crime incidence in the District.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013684

C. Metro Rehabilitation

Discussion: Metro is providing substantial detail of upcoming work on the system and its impact on customers.

D. Update on NextBus

Discussion: The NextBus system is operating well, with most customers (65%) accessing predictions via the web. 35% are using the phone system.

E. Elevator and Escalator Maintenance Program

Discussion: Metro is providing an overview of the escalator and elevator maintenance program. A total of 534 escalators and 236 elevators provide service to customers in the Metro system. Next year, all mechanics will be Metro employees and preventive maintenance conducted in-house per a blue ribbon panel recommendation. Metro's CIP rehabilitates 15 elevators and 30 escalators annually.

F. City Year Secret Shopper

Discussion: In the fall of 2008, City Year partnered with Council member Jim Graham to receive a $150,000 Council-approved grant to purchase bus and rail passes in exchange for implementing the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA) Secret Shopper Program. City Year corps members have conducted 1,700 surveys on rail and bus to gauge customer service issues and performance.

Board of Directors

Items from the Finance, Administration and Oversight Committee

Action Items:

A. Approve FY11 Budget Guidance

Purpose: To obtain budget guidance from the Board regarding the development of the FY2011 General Manager's Proposed Budget, and obtain Board approval of the FY2011 Budget Guidance Resolution.

Discussion: The FY11 proposed budget guidance calls for a fare increase of 6%, resulting in a nominal 1% increase in fare revenue net of elasticity and no cuts in service levels. Mainly because the currently in-place advertising contract expires at the end of FY10, non-passenger revenues will see a dramatic cut of $44.9m. Total authority revenues even with the 6% passenger fare increase are projected to be down nearly $1m from FY10 levels.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013685

Impact: Given the pro-forma scenario, total subsidy for FY11 would be $653.3m, an increase of $106.6m or nearly a 20% increase. The District has budgeted a 5.7% increase in WMATA subsidy for FY10. Clearly additional cost savings must be found, service levels reduced, fares raised more than 6%, or other revenue sources identified in order to close the gap and provide a balanced budget for Board consideration by December 2009.

B. Amend FY10 Budget for DHS-Funded Security Projects

Purpose: To inform the Finance, Administration and Oversight (FAO) Committee and the Board of Directors of the availability of 100% federally-funded U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) grants; and
2. To obtain FAO concurrence and Board approval to:
(a) amend the FY 2010 Annual Budget to include federal security grants that require no matching funds, and apply $6,820,291 of grant funds to the FY10 Operating Budget, and apply $60,369,913 of grant funds to the FY 2010 Capital, Metro Matters Program;
(b) modify existing engineering, construction and equipment contracts and/or advertise and award contracts for security projects funded by the DHS funds; and
(c) authorize 25 DHS grant-funded positions to the Metro Transit Police Department.

Discussion: Despite their significant financial contributions to Metro security, and the fact that DHS grants presented in this action require no matching jurisdictional funds, most of these grants will impact future Metro budgets. DHS-funded equipment will need servicing and maintenance, just as non-DHS funded fire alarm systems need periodic testing, servicing, repairs and upgrades to keep them working. DHS grants do not pay for that work, so future Metro budgets will likely bear the load. This action does not address the sustainability challenge, except to suggest that while the transit industry operates in a heightened security status, the cost of sustaining security systems is analogous to the cost of sustaining fire suppression/alarm systems. It is a necessary business expense to maintain safety and security systems.

Impact: Action has no immediate fiscal impact on the District, but will increase future operating costs of the Authority by $1.4m in 2011 and $1.9m in 2012, with continued operating costs thereafter for maintenance of the new equipment and programs.

Items from the Planning, Development and Real Estate Committee

Action Items:

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013686

A. Amend Sale of Arlington Bus Garage Property

Purpose: Obtain Board approval to amend the Sale and Development Agreement with Ashton Park Associates, LLC to allow for a phased sale of the Arlington Bus Garage property.

Discussion: This property was advertised as available for development in the February 11, 1999, Joint Development Solicitation. Ashton Park Associates, LLC ("APA") was chosen as the selected developer of the 179,497-square-foot property, and an Interim Term Sheet was negotiated and approved. A Sale and Development Agreement was executed on June 5, 2007, which contemplated the sale of the property for office and residential development by December 31, 2009.

Due to the collapse of the real estate credit market, APA has been unable to obtain debt financing for purchase of the entire property. APA has requested a phased sale of the property to allow development of a first phase office building for a committed Federal government tenant. To facilitate this Arlington County economic development objective, staff has negotiated an Amendment to the Sale and Development Agreement that provides for the sale of the property in two or three phases, with completion by December 23, 2011, and no diminution in present value.

Impact: Proceeds from this sale will be reimbursed to the Metro Matters Capital program from which funds were advanced, pursuant to Board Resolution 2006-02, subject to reimbursement from the sale of the Arlington Bus Garage. The replacement garage, as built and operational, is shared by both Metro and Fairfax County.

B. Extension of Negotiating Period for Shaw Howard University/Florida Avenue Parcels

Purpose: Extend the negotiating period for the Shaw-Howard U./Florida Avenue joint development site by 120 days, from August 2009, to allow negotiation of a term sheet and joint development agreement to be brought to the Board in December 2009.

Discussion: In April 2009, the Board approved a 120-day period to renegotiate a term sheet for the Shaw-Howard U./Florida Avenue joint development site, which consists of three separate parcels totaling 28,892 sf located between 7th and 9th streets NW in Washington, DC. The development team, led by Banneker Ventures, LLC, proposed to lease the site from Metro for 60 years and build a minimum of 104 housing units over ground floor retail space of approximately 11,750 sf.

Upon approving the development team in June 2008, the Board requested that an affordable housing component be included in the project. The development team then amended its financial offer to Metro to include a substantial reduction in rent to reflect its affordable housing component. The project has undergone other delays due to FTA requirements and negotiation regarding the affordable housing component.

An appraiser has been engaged, but will not complete its assignment in time for conclusion of term sheet negotiations and a Board decision in September 2009. Accordingly, and in light of the fact that the development team and staff have been reviewing a draft joint development agreement, staff proposes instead to conclude negotiations on the term sheet and joint development agreement and bring both to the Board for its consideration in December 2009.

Impact: This action will have no immediate impact on funding. Revenue from the project will be deposited into the Transit Infrastructure Investment Fund (TIIF).

C. Initiate New On-Call A-E Contracts

Purpose: To obtain Committee concurrence and Board approval to initiate six separate "On-Call" professional, architectural, engineering, and planning services contracts for Fiscal Years 2011 through 2016.

Discussion: The proposed five-year "On-Call" engineering services contracts shall be structured using six separate major specialty contracts: (1) Architectural, Structural, Civil, Electrical, Mechanical and New Projects; (2) Traction Power, (3) Communication, (4) Automatic Train Control and Track Work, (5) Automatic Fare Collection, and (6) Planning. This structure will provide increased competition, better response to technical issues and a larger knowledge base of specialty disciplines.

Impact: There is no impact on funding at this time; however, projections indicate that similar levels of funding will be expended on the new "On-Call" contracts as for the present "On-Call" contracts. The FY10 "On-Call" program includes $14,143,000 for the SF5070 contract and $4,800,000 for the SF5111 contract.

D. Initiate Orange/Blue Line System Rehabilitation Contract

Purpose: To obtain Board of Directors approval to initiate a contract to provide System Infrastructure Rehabilitation for the Orange and Blue Lines from Stadium-Armory Metrorail station to Reagan National Airport station.

Discussion: This is a continuation of the new System Infrastructure Rehabilitation Program for the Metro rail system presented at the July 24, 2008 Committee and Board Meetings. The Red Line rehabilitation – 1 contract received Board approval to award a $177 Million contract on July 16, 2009. The Orange/Blue Line project will enhance Metro`s ability to keep the system in a state of good repair, with minimal disruption, increase productivity and reduce cost.

Work to be performed includes, but is not limited to, traction power, automatic train control, motor control centers, communications upgrades, track fasteners replacement, tunnel lighting replacement, tunnel ventilation and fire standpipe rehabilitation. Station rehabilitation includes platform slab/tile replacement, canopy roof replacement, station vaults repair, air conditioning/ventilation equipment rehabilitation and replacement, lighting, public address, closed circuit video camera (CCTV) system upgrades and elevator/escalator rehabilitation.

A contract award is anticipated for June 2010, with the projects continuing for five years after that date.

Impact: Funding for the first $41.5m is included in Metro Matters, but the remaining needed funds ($338.5m) are subject to approval via the next capital funding agreement. Rehabilitation will have significant impacts on passengers for the duration of construction due to single tracking and station closures.

E. Initiate Rail Yard Infrastructure Rehabilitation Project

Purpose: To obtain Board of Directors approval to initiate a contract to provide System Infrastructure Rehabilitation for three Rail Maintenance Yards: Alexandria, Brentwood and New Carrollton.

Discussion: This project is the first of three proposed projects for rail operations and maintenance facilities, and the third in a series of contracts, which are part of an overall System Infrastructure Renewal Program (IRPG) that was presented at the July 24, 2008 Committee Meeting. The Red Line Rehabilitation - 1 contract received Board approval to award a $177 million contract on July 16, 2009.

Examples of rehabilitation activities include: bring electrical systems into code compliance; overhaul fire hydrants; install control tower fire escapes; replace shop/building equipment (air compressors/dryers, steam cleaners, HVAC, plumbing fixtures, water heaters, boilers, sprinkler system components); upgrade security & Public Address systems; install new or replacement signage; repair or replace street and yard lights; rehabilitate bathrooms, locker rooms, office spaces; rehabilitate wear surfaces including interior/exterior walls, floors, stairs and ceilings; rehabilitate pavement/fence; restore landscaping.

Under this project, the work will be scheduled by facility with construction initiating on the Alexandria Rail Yard in early 2010 completing in late 2011 with a budget of $61.1 million. Brentwood follows in early 2011 completing in late 2012 with a budget of $36.8 million. The final yard under this contract is New Carrollton with construction initiating in mid 2012 completing in mid 2014 with a budget of $29.8 million. A contract award is anticipated for June 2010, with the projects continuing for five years after that date.

Impact: Funding for the first $34m is included in Metro Matters, but the remaining needed funds ($93.7m) are subject to approval via the next capital funding agreement.

F. Approval of the Public Hearing Report for Cinder Bed Road Bus Garage

Purpose: To obtain concurrence from the Planning, Development and Real Estate Committee and approval, subject to a final financing plan, from the Board of Directors for: 1. The Final Public Hearing Staff Report and Final General Plans for a new bus facility; and 2. Approval of the Project and amendment of the Mass Transit Plan to add the Cinder Bed Road Bus Facility.

Discussion: The proposed action taken to the public hearing is for a new bus facility in Fairfax County on Cinder Bed Road. The facility would house up to 160 buses with a LEED Silver rating and with capability for Compressed Natural Gas (CNG) buses. The Public Hearing was held on July 28, 2009 in Fairfax County and one person testified in opposition to the proposal due to traffic concerns. The Public Hearing comment period closed at 5:00PM on August 7, 2009 at which time five additional written comments were received. Four of the written comments oppose the proposed action primarily on concerns related to traffic in the vicinity of the new facility. The fifth comment came from Fairfax County staff with technical comments that will be addressed as the project moves forward into final design.

Impact: No Budget approval is being sought with this action. The budget and funds approved by the Board in April 2009 included the costs associated with the holding of the public hearing.

RE: Response to July 2, 2012, subpoena

Dear Mr. Bondi,

Please find attached to this letter, Councilmember Jim Graham's initial response to your July 2, 2012, subpoena. We have conducted a search of the Councilmember's official email address (jgraham@dccouncil.us) and his personal email address (jim@grahamwone.com), and reviewed the search results for all communications that are in any way relevant to the Florida Avenue development project.

As agreed, I will likely be providing additional documents by July 20, 2012, after an opportunity to complete the full search and review.

The documents responsive to each request are identified as follows:

1. All communications or evidence of communications between you (or any member of your staff) and representatives of Banneker Ventures LLC, Omar Karim, Warren Williams, Alaka Williams, Crystal Wright, or James Link. This includes, but is not limited to, letters, memoranda, facsimiles, meeting notes, handwritten notes, meeting talking points, agendas, presentation materials, sign-in sheets, telephone records, and emails, including emails from personal email accounts.

Pages 3 - 4

2. All communications or evidence of communications between you (or any member of your staff) and representatives of LaKritz Adler Development LLC, Donatelli Development, Inc., or Metropolis Development Company, including, but not limited to, communications with Rob LaKritz, Josh Adler, or Merrick Malone. This includes, but is not limited to, letters, facsimiles, meeting notes, handwritten notes, meeting talking points, agendas, presentation materials, sign-in sheets, telephone records, and emails, including emails from personal email accounts.

Pages 5 - 15

3. All communications or evidence of communications between you (or any member of your staff) and representatives of Intralot, W21, or W2Tech, created, dated, sent, or received between January I, 2008, and December 31, 2008, discussing, relating, or referring to property development involving WMAT A. For this request, please include all such communications with lobbyists representing Intralot, W2I, or W2Tech, including, but not limited to, any current or former employee of the American Capitol Group. This includes, but is not limited to, letters, memoranda, facsimiles, meeting notes, handwritten notes, meeting talking points, agendas, presentation materials, sign-in sheets, telephone records, and emails, including emails from personal email accounts.

No responsive documents are in our possession.

4. All documents or communications with anyone discussing, relating, or referring to the development of the Florida Avenue Property, including, but not limited to, WMATA staff, current or former members of the WMA TA Board of Directors, current or former members of the D.C. Council, or current or former D.C. Council staff. This includes, but is not limited to, letters, memoranda, facsimiles, meeting notes, handwritten notes, meeting talking points, agendas, presentation materials, sign-in sheets, telephone records, and emails, including emails from personal email accounts.

Pages 17 - 78

5. All calendars, date books, daily planners, or schedules reflecting meetings or conversations with Omar Karim, Warren Williams, Alaka Williams, Crystal Wright, James Link, Rob LaKritz, Josh Adler, or Merrick Malone.

Pages 79 – 82. The Councilmember's calendar reflects the following entries:

- Crystal Wright & James Link (05/29/08) re: The W2 DC Lottery Contract.

- Omar Karim (09/04/08) re: Florida Avenue project.

Councilmember Graham is producing, as requested, a sign-up sheet and calendar entries pertaining to a May 29, 2008, meeting in an effort to be fully cooperative with the investigation and amicably resolve legal disputes concerning these documents. The production of these documents, however, should not be construed as being an admission by Councilmember Graham that the WMATA Florida Avenue contract was discussed at the May 29, 2008, meeting. Nor should it be construed as being a waiver of the legislative immunity that applies to Councilmember Graham's consideration of the lottery contract pending before the Council at the time of the May 29, 2008 meeting.

The May 29, 2008, meeting was held for the exclusive purposes of discussing the lottery contract and to attempt to resolve longstanding issues pertaining to and the concerns about the qualifications of the bid partners for that lottery contract.

The Florida Avenue development was not the subject of the meeting and, to the best of Councilmember Graham's recollection, the Florida Avenue development was not discussed at the May 29, 2008, meeting.

Lastly, the production of these documents should not be construed as being an invitation to or permission for the Metro inquiry to consider the lottery contract.

6. All communications relating to your February 24, 2012, Washington Post editorial, as well as all documents you reviewed while drafting the February 24 editorial.

Pages 83 - 136

Please do not hesitate to contact us with any questions or concerns you may have.

Did Jim Graham try to undermine a Metro project?

Today's Post editorial on the actions of CM Graham should be seen as a peak into how the Council Member's pay-to-play political machine works, not as an isolated incident around a single Metro parcel. Whether it's building a park, a multi-million dollar city sponsored development project, closing schools or getting an ABC License the pay-to-play game is the same. Also related to this same lottery contact was the clever use of the legislative/budget process to enable internet gaming, to follow the quid pro quo of the Graham machine requires following closely a similar use of the budget process and emergency legislation to reward public resources to crony developers such as Lakritz Adler. During this same period, LaKritz Adler was recieving via the use of emergency legislation $2.0M in TIF financing to build a CVS on Georgia Ave. A project under normal circumstances which would have never qualified for a city sponsored TIF. Was this TIF a consolation prize in the struggle of a Graham backed team and a Fenty Admin backed team over this Metro prize? For the sake of a political education let's hope the Post keeps peeling back the onion.

Did Jim Graham try to undermine a Metro project?

OFFICIALS AT Banneker Ventures were thrilled when they learned in February 2008 that their company had won a competition to develop Metro-owned property on Florida Avenue NW. The general construction and contract management firm had beaten rival companies in an open procurement process for the retail and residential project. But when the proposal came before Metro on April 24, Jim Graham (D), the District's representative on the transit agency's board and a D.C. Council member whose Ward 1 would be home to the development, successfully moved to postpone action. Mr. Graham's action warrants scrutiny.

Not long after that, he allegedly tried to pressure Banneker out of the Metro deal by linking it to his support for a separate bid by one of Banneker's principals for the District's lucrative lottery contract. What was Mr. Graham up to? On whose behalf was he advocating? And why was it that in both cases — the operation of D.C.'s lottery and the development of Metro land — the winning bidders ended up not doing the public's business?

Subject: Developement of Florida Ave between 7th and 9th

Mr. Graham,

For the proposed development of the metro owned property on Florida Ave between 7th and 9th ST NW, I assume the appropriate channels will be notified and community involvement will be encouraged in the development of this area. Mr. Tony Norman (CC'ed) leads the important "Design Review Committee" for ANC 1B and I am sure would appreciate the opportunity to gather input on the development of this site.

As we are all are aware, this area would be crucial to anchoring the lower Georgia Ave and Shaw communities (along with the redevelopment of Howard theater and the Progression Place development) .

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED

As only one voice in the community, in my opinion, The Howard University servicing convention center and hotel development proposed by Lakritz Adler (doesn't Shaw already have a magnificent convention center already only 7 blocks away?) that looks like a carbon copy of the tragic Reeves Center would not be a good fit for this historical area.

Please afford the community an opportunity to help guide this project into something that will benefit more than just Howard University and offer something to all (and is easy on the eyes). Thank you.

Alex Murray

Subject: Donatelli Hegemony: More Costs in Facing A Moral Hazard

While scanning the District's Tax Sale list, properties delinquent from the Oct. 2009 round of property tax payments, I came across the properties listed below. From, what I can tell these delinquent properties are still in possession of Donatelli Development.

From DC's Latest Tax Sale List:
2672 0004 ALMP TX COLUMBIA HEIGHTS VENTURE 1400 IRVING ST NW $586,791.63

2848 2075 ALMP TX COLUMBIA HEIGHTS VENTURE 1390 KENYON ST NW $520.51
2848 2094 ALMP TX COLUMBIA HEIGHTS KENYON 1390 KENYON ST NW $6,563.03
2848 2103 ALMP TX COLUMBIA HEIGHTS VENTURE 1390 KENYON ST NW $7,689.42
2848 2167 ALMP TX COLUMBIA HEIGHTS KENYON 1390 KENYON ST NW $5,654.95
2848 2177 ALMP TX COLUMBIA HEIGHTS KENYON 1390 KENYON ST NW $6,209.78
2848 2181 ALMP TX COLUMBIA HEIGHTS KENYON 1390 KENYON ST NW $5,121.32
2848 2182 ALMP TX COLUMBIA HEIGHTS KENYON 1390 KENYON ST NW $6,727.35
2848 2194 ALMP TX COLUMBIA HEIGHTS KENYON 1390 KENYON ST NW $6,858.74 http://otr.cfo.dc.gov/otrfiles/pdf/otr/2010_rpta_forms/2010_dc_taxsale.pdf

The first, ~$519K for Highland Park, I understand why that property is delinquent. CM Graham, the Council and the Mayor had ensured via the 2011 Budget Support Act that Donatelli Development would not have to pay property taxes in 2008, 2009, 2010, for Highland Park. As well if 2008 taxes have been paid they will be refunded, a total value of at least $1.5M with is one of the elements at the heart of our community development moral and civic hazard. The money would have been better spent stabilizing Boys & Girls Club #10.

I was surprised however, to see they 8 properties associated with Kenyon Square delinquent for about a total $40K. If, I understand the terms of the Land Disposition Agreement (LDA) entered between Donatelli Development and the District, DCHFC, the District has the right to take these units at this minimum auction price and make them available as workforce housing. If what I suspect is true, these units have not been sold and remain in the developer's inventory. The property taxes have not been paid. The Government per the LDA maintains an interest in these units on behalf of the residents of the District and specifically Columbia Heights. By allowing these units to go to tax sale the District seems to be acting against its own interest and the interest of its citizens.

As well, the District seems to have placed the interest of Columbia Heights in the hands of an entity that is no longer capable for performing. To close the gap the District is taking jobs, housing, and resources from the community and the homeless to pay for political commitments to Donatelli Development. And now wants to not only continue this model which takes resources from those in the community most in need and shifts them to Donatelli Development and CM Graham's political machine with Highland Park Phase II and other areas of the city.

If CM Graham, the Mayor and Council were serious about addressing this moral hazard and developmental equity, they would support an effort transfer these resources and others to a neighborhood trust, until we can sort out this moral, civic and economic hazard.

William

It may be best to think of Columbia Heights for the good and bad of it as a micro or bellwether for neighborhood development in the District, the region or even the world. All of the issues or similar ones would become apparent if there was the courage to look beyond the surface. Believe me I understand the fear. But we must start somewhere and Donatelli Development's blunge into this hazard is something this community and government can do something about, if we can fine the moral courage.

Subject: Re: [columbia_heights] Donatelli Hegemony: Political Avoidance of Facing A Moral Hazard Pt. 1 1/2

I get the moral hazard.

It's in how the city does contracting generally, how many zoning and planning procedures are very weakly defined so as to afford the most flexibility for developers and the least consideration of community concerns, how there isn't a standard process to request tax abatements (generally, it goes through councilmembers, there isn't one universal process), how we don't create neighborhood/district community plans, so there isn't much guidance and consensus setting of priorities, how there isn't a standard process and system for awarding grants to community organizations, and how it's a "system" designed to reward the connected.

For me, the Donatelli stuff that so engages you is to me an infinitesimal part of the whole. But you focus on the infinitesimal (a/k/a Columbia Heights) and inadequately draw out the entire process. It's like the story of the four blind men touching an elephant, each touching a different part and having no idea of the totality of the whole.

Where's the outrage over David Wilmot's "nonprofit" for the disabled, the contracting problems at UPO a few years ago, issues with CDCs, or people like HR. Crawford, all the subject of long investigative pieces in the Washington Post over the years?

Where is the outrage over the minimal participation in the WMATA Board by most of DC's appointees other than Councilmember Graham?

etc.

Those are pieces of the same pie, the same problem, the same totality.

I admire people who have the fortitude to deal with the corrupt but legal practices in the city over the long term.

I've dealt with it for about 10 years and I don't have the energy or desire to continue. I do find it ironic that points I made 5-8 years ago are starting to become the conventional wisdom about problems with the system.

But the problem which most people still don't get isn't "process," but about how the system is structured to operate.

And instead of building government systems to be robust and focused on excellence, we get piecemeal programs, piecemeal plans, piecemeal legislation that focuses on itty bitty pieces of big problems.

Doing a blog search of my own blog with the keyword corruption finds more than one dozen entries and a discussion of the world bank publication, Corrupt Cities: A Practical Guide to Cure and Prevention <http://www.google.com/url?sa=t&source=web&ct=res&cd=1&ved=0CBIQFjAA&url=http%3A%2F%2Fbooks.google.com%2Fbooks%3Fid%3DBJdTSSNmMgQC%26dq%3DCorrupt%2BCities%2522%2BA%2BPractical%2BGuide%2Bto%2BCure%2Band%2BPrevention%26printsec%3Dfrontcover%26source%3Dbl%26ots%3DJ4Bsw4LUnw%26sig%3DACfU3U1Ubm9peKCobHeNcqdyd1t2cuf6OQ%26hl%3Dbook_result%26ei%3DmdSbTOnSFtrn0fcp5QKHrhg%26sa%3DX%26oi%3Dbook_result%26ct%3Dresult%26resnum%3D4%26ved%3D0CDcQ6AEwAw#v=onepage&q&f=false>, which is fully relevant to the situation in DC:

http://urbanplacesandspace.blogspot.com/search?q=corruption

While I still have plenty of outrage and write about various issues in my blog (although my amount of writing has declined considerably too, since I am consistent and say the same things, I don't feel a need to keep repeating myself), I am focusing on projects in other cities and state as a consultant/businessperson and wrestling with the decision on whether I even want to vote in the upcoming Democratic primary because my choices -- except for Phil Mendelson -- are unappealing.

Richard, I actually thought of all people you would get it, the gravity of this moral hazard. Instead you have surprisingly taken the position that the messenger is the problem and narrow neighborhood develop down to building pretty buildings. Had I been asked 2 years ago, I would have cautiously vouched for Donatelli Development as a good development partner for any community, presenting the benefit of any doubt. I don't say this lately, but today I am pretty close to using the phrase, "neo-carpetbagger" .

It turns out with CM Graham flying air cover, apparently with the support of some in the Fenty administration, Donatelli Development has been rewarded for violating the terms of its partnership with the Columbia Heights community. Instead of holding Donatelli Development accountable its been a tale of sabotage, duplicity and slight of hand at the expense of the most vulnerable. Things have gotten so bad that I cannot in good conscience remain silent.

First it should be understood, that Donatelli Development did not go on the open market and assemble these parcels via its own resources. No, the government over many, many years using Federal dollars designed to support low and moderate income residents, the building of Metro and even the use of eminent domain assembled these parcels in the name of the public good and the responsibilities which went along with developing these parcels; well defined in many many community meetings and documents. As well, the city provided Donatelli Development with a near monopolist in the Northern Columbia Heights condo market over 370 units valued at over $200M all within a 1/2 mile radius. When combined with the Allegro Development about 2/3rd units valued at about $150M both actively represented by Council Member Graham at one point 3 people nearly terminated the market almost unchecked to the tune of over 1200 units and $400M. So what was the community benefit.

1. Donatelli Development spent 5 years attempted to sabotage the Columbia Heights Public Realm Plan and its implementation. Efforts which cost the city at least a $2M and residents 2 extra years of road construction.

2. Donatelli Development spent 5 years sabotaging Columbia Height's effort to help end homelessness. As an aside, recently in the news the Council just voted not to fund the city summer youth employment program (SYEP) with money destinaed for the homeless. That is just the surface of the story. At a recent ANC meeting Donatelli Development representatived that the city would use these funds for replacing the homeless trailers near 14th & Irving with permanent housing for the homeless. This was important because support for this project to help end homelessness was a required part of Phase II of the Highland Park Project and its related PUD. The Deputy Mayor by proposing to use the funds to the SYEP was in effect helping Donatelli Development legally get out of its obligations required for Highland Park Phase II. My proposing to use the money for SYEP the city would not be able to fund the permanent housing project. It should be noted that Donatelli Development had earlier gotten around the community to reduce the size of the permanent housing project by quietly working through their CPM to take land from the project designed to end homelessness.

It should be noted , when I invited some of the residents of the LaCasa shelter to express their concerns about how the closing of the current trailers would be handled, mysteriously the shelter director who had ever been to ANC1A meeting shows up, without a word intimidating the residents not to speak.

To protect the interests of Donatelli Development elements in the city were willing to intimidate the homeless and remove millions of dollars in resources.

3. Unfortunately, the moral hazard does not end there. Not long ago the city awards Donatelli Development another Metro related parcel on Georgia Ave. which abuts another property Donatelli Development land banked for years unkept and undeveloped. I wonder with they paid the nuisance property rate. Unable to move forward with financing on these and other projects Donatelli Development which had just basically violated every agreement with the Columbia Heights community needed a bailout. With the city in a financial crisis, Donatelli Development comes to the Council for what turned out to be a $2M.2M over property tax abatement. Given an election year CM's house not to introduce a bill to bailout a company controlling 370 plus units and $2D in assets, so he had CM Evans introduce the bill. The bill in part exempted Highland Park from all property taxes for 10 years with a slow increase over the 10 to follow. The curious thing was that at the time Highland Park was almost completely rented, no real need for a bailout of that project. On top of that the abatement includes Highland Park Phase II, which Donatelli Development has been land banking and sabotaging the homeless project. While others in the city were facing higher property taxes for not developing land, Donatelli Development was being award an abatement for the very same behavior.

Wait, that is not it. The tax abatement Bill gets added to the city's budget, but with a twist. The Bill now apart of a budget that is cutting city services left and right now retroactively gives Donatelli Development a tax abatement back to 2008; therefore, a refund check from the city my guess worth about $1.5M. Justified in part by their contribution to addressing the homeless issue. The money is then used to help close financing on a project in Petworth.

So to sum it up Richard, the hazard has gotten so deep that in effect Donatelli Development is meeting its obligations to Columbia Heights by looting resources for the homeless in the name of the children to build housing that the neither the homeless not most of the families of "the children" could ever afford as a reward for failing to meet these very obligations at least according to the DC Auditor. Donatelli Development does not deserve to continue with the development of Highland Park Phase II and/or should not be award any additional permits from the city until they make Columbia Heights whole and come into compliance for current agreements, no excuses or rationalizations. I plan to do what I can to bring justice to this situation, starting by tell the story as I know it (backed by the public record). I ask you to join me.

Subject: Re: [columbia_heights] Donatelli Hegemony: Political Avoidance of Facing A Moral Hazard Pt. 1 you're misstating my position.

I believe, like you do, that there are many flaws with how contracting is done in the city, with earmarks, eminent domain, and with the awarding of tax increment financing benefits.

I have written quite a bit about these issues for the past 8 years, and testified from time to time about it before Council, and opposed certain "greased" contracts (i.e., the Florida Market master redevelopment contract awarded by City Council through legislation without any RFP process having been created or opened up to the business community) as an involved citizen.

My writings and testimonies called for the need to develop standards for measuring and allocating community benefits and for the use of eminent domain powers, for setting open, transparent processes for awarding projects, for having true community/neighborh ood/multi- neighborhood plans which set priorities, and then having those designated priorities set the terms for contracting, RFP, tax incentive negotiations, and community benefits negotiations.

My position has been pretty consistent, calling for the development of robust and strong open and transparent processes at the expense of personalization and if not self-dealing, semi-closed negotiations.

My problem with your statements is that you overdraw your conclusions which then provides easy ammunition for stakeholders to ignore your complaints and downplay your arguments. You act like somehow Columbia Heights is some major unique cesspool, when reality it is but one itty bitty example of how things work in the city.

The issue with the Donatelli group is no different than with many other contracting agreements in the city.

But you mistake the fact that Donatelli has more projects with govt.-owned land as some conspiracy, when the reality is that it derives from other factors--specifically that they have developed a special competence in dealing with Metro-adjacent land, with center city projects, with DC government-owned land. That means that they are more likely to win such projects, and carry them out successfully, and given that such projects tend to have an extra-normal amount of encumbrances, they are more likely to receive tax reductions and other incentives and inducements.

Various companies have differing business plans, processes, and sets of expertise which guides their building and developing programs and the projects they decide to undertake. This is no different from how companies like Toll Brothers excel at buying large tracts of greenfield land and developing it.

If Donatelli appears to benefit unduly from tax breaks and the like, to me, I find it a pretty typical affair, not much different from how other companies in the city operate, such as Stonebridge Carras, which received TIF breaks for their One Constitution Plaza project (which meant that this project won a Harris Teeter over a location on H Street), the Sang Ch Choi group in Florida market (which I testified against), the Steuart Development Group, which is about to receive benefits for their property on the 300 block of H Street NE, etc.

Now again, I would rather that true community/multi- neighborhood plans be created and priorities set within these processes, and requests for tax breaks be measured against and awarded on the basis of those priorities. (Note that this is how the development process works in Arlington County, and while a study comparing the awards and benefits between the two jurisdictions has not been produced, I would expect that as a rule, for the amount of public dollars and incentives provided, Arlington is likely to receive more public benefits in return than is DC.)

All that being said, one definite factor in Donatelli's favor as far as I am concerned is the quality of their projects and the commitment to urban design. Their projects contribute significant revitalization benefits when many other projects do not.

But that doesn't negate my belief that the city needs to do true community planning and prioritization, and award project development rights and community benefits against such plans and priorities.

Richard I believe that the majority agrees with you, that the ends justifies the means. That basically there are no significant civic, ethical, rule of law, let alone moral obligations when it come to the redevelopment of certain neighborhoods/ communities. As long as new urban design principles are not significantly violated, might makes right and folk should leave the redevelopment of their communities to the pseudo new urbanist elite and pay to play government officials. I just happen to disagree. So, I am both attempting to make the case of justice in Columbia Heights and warning others in neighborhoods across the city that all that glisters new urbanist, ain't necessarily redevelopment gold.

the other comparison I forgot to make was the horrid multiunit buildings at Fort Totten, versus the buildings Donatelli has constructed on U Street, Columbia Heights, and Petworth.

They're pretty junky looking, whereas the Donatelli buildings help generate further investment by other property owners and developers.

the ironic thing is that actually, despite the value of Metro locations in the city, most developers aren't interested in working with sites that have mostly residential value. All developers have particular sets of heuristics they use to judge projects and are comfortable working with a limited set of properties and "products". It's why a company like EYA only does rowhouses, and they put the rowhouses on every piece of land, even if the development characteristics and the rowhouse building typology don't readily fit a particular site.

Most developers aren't interested in working with government -owned properties. Donatelli, Akridi, EYA are some of the only companies interested in working with Metro sites --at least in DC. This becomes even more pronounced with locations that would not be termed A locations (i.e., Petworth, Minnesota Ave., etc.)

Donatelli and EYA are exceptions. That's why these companies end up with what might seem as a "preponderance" of these projects.

While I don't always agree with the choices these companies make, I would argue that Donatelli in particular does high quality work, especially with regard to design and what we might call urban-appropriate building type. This is where a comparison of EYA and Donatelli is particularly interesting. Donatelli does attractive multiunit residential buildings with retail on the ground floor, while EYA builds traditional rowhouses.

So Donatelli's buildings maximize their transit-adjacent locations, while EYAs sites do not in the same way (e.g., compare EYA projects in Silver Spring and as proposed in Takoma to Donatelli projects on U Street, 14th Street, and especially Petworth).

The Donatelli projects in each area have been transformative in what they contribute to neighborhood and commercial district revitalization, while the EYA projects don't have quite the same long term impact, even though they are also high quality (and the EYA project, Chancellor's Row, in Brookland is particularly interesting as it will extend the traditional city block street grid). But it's not quality that's the issue as much as it is quality + urban -appropriatene ss.

So when I saw the recent WBJ article, listing the projects, including the Donatelli project in NE, I had a different reaction than you. I said to myself how it is rare that a quality developer wants to participate in a languishing location, and that the entry of a developer committed to high quality projects can only help revitalization in NE DC and set a higher bar for quality design than would normally be able to be obtained in such a location.

E.g., compare the Martin Jawer project on top of the U Street metro station to the Donatelli projects, and be honest about what company you'd prefer to do such a development at the Minnesota Ave. station.

Sure the projects get subsidized with land price and tax breaks, but that is something that happens across the board with many projects in the city. That is an issue that ought to be addressed in a systematic fashion, but I would argue that it is intrinsic to argue that somehow Donatelli is quantunly different in that regard. Where they are different in a quantum fashion is in their commitment to producing quality projects, in places that most developers aren't willing to tred.

The real hegemonic issue is what urban sociologist Harvey Molotch calls the "Growth Machine" and various political scientists term the "Urban Regime." Putting into place the right systems and procedures for transparency, openness, fairness, and quality is necessary in order to better balance public objectives with private sector preferences and the ability of the private sector to shape the public agenda.

To start, we'd need real sub-city planning ("small area plans" aren't true neighborhood plans, they are development guidance plans) with real neighborhood/ community plans.

And then, ideally, we'd merge the economic development office into the planning office, and have consensus plans guide the visioning and project development, rather than RFPs, which as I repeat ad infinitum "RFPs aren't plans."

Disclosure. I have never dealt with the Donatelli group. This is only from observation, based on dealing with land use projects in NE DC and downtown as a neighborhood activist and member of the ANC6C Planning and Zoning Committee from 2003-2005, as a Main Street program manager in Brookland in 2007.

Donatelli Hegemony: Political Avoidance in Facing A Moral Hazard

Literally and metaphorically, the power relationship between our elected and key appointed government officials, Donatelli Development and residents, especially in Ward 1 is probably the most important political, social, economic and even moral issue facing this city. Donatelli Development is fast approaching a state of hegemony where as they are above accountability, checks and balances and because of there relationship to city officials maybe even beyond the market. This to the point where the interests of Donatelli Development trump those of the neighborhoods and communities inwhich they operate. This hegemony is costing residents 10s of Millions in public dollars, goodwill and threatens our very form of representative government which we cannot afford without grave consequences. At this present moment city officials in effect are basically transferring millions of resources designed to help eliminate homelessness in the District to bailout Donatelli Development' s speculative maneuvers in the luxury condo market, hence one of many moral hazards. Others include, government transparency, education policy, housing policy, ABC licensing, employment, public space management and ownership, transportation policy and whose interest government should represent. I'm appealing to all to help restore balance and accountability and check "Donatelli Hegemony".

Donatelli Development with the support of Council Member Graham and the past two Mayors have amassed a near monopoly on development over and around Metro Stations, the area's most valuable land, within a 3/4 mile of the Columbia Heights Metro Station. All of these sites where owned or controlled by the District Government or publically funded entity before being awarded to Donatelli Development at below market value. At the rest of these awards to Donatelli Development was an obligation to address the public good. The public good in most of these cases did not go undefined, but was documented in numerous planning/zoning documents and land disposition agreements. Any objective review of these documents outlining the public good would reveal that Donatelli Development has failed after 5 or so years to meet fully in good faith any of the obligations required in these awards. A closer review would reveal that not only have Donatelli Development Failed to fully live up to it obligations to the Columbia Height neighborhood, but has turned things on its head and turn its obligations to community into community/public obligations to Donatelli Development. Further, the short and long term interests of Donatelli Development has become a replacement for public policy and in many parts of Ward 1, a law unto itself.

Today, the Bruce Monroe School family of about 400 students is homeless in large part due to an effort to bend education policy in Ward 1 to fit the interest of Donatelli Development. In about 2005 there was a public realization that the placement of Charter and Public Schools could negatively affect the land value of parcels recently awarded to Donatelli Development above Columbia Height Metro stops. The ABC board had on its books regulation which limited even prohibited the awarding of ABC licenses to establishments within 400 feet of a school. The location of EL Haynes PCS at 14th & Irving would mean that ABC licenses could not be awarded Donatelli's Highland Park and Hanson Sloues properties thereby lowering the value of these properties to Donatelli Development. Instead of bringing this public policy matter to the community, without transparency CM Graham, Donatelli Development and I assume others, privately developed a plan to move EL Haynes from the corner of 14th and Irving which would solve the problem. The ripple effect of this choice is the homeless Bruce Monroe School Family and the relocation of EL Haynes almost out of the Bloo to Georgia Ave. and the lost of millions in Great Streets Funds for Georgia Ave..

To be fair EL Haynes was looking or a newhome in Ward 1; however, options for new spaces and financing were limited. The only suitable publicly owned space was the old Bruce School, but it had been quietly promised by the CM Graham to another charter school with no public transparency, so was off the table. Here is the chain of events as I knowthem.

Working with Donatelli Development (financing) and CM Graham a space on Georgia Ave. was ID'd for EL Haynes; however, this site was controlled by local developer LaSalle and Adler. Preliminarily, LaSalle and Adler had been awarded about $2M in Great Streets grant funding to build a mixed use project on that Georgia Ave. site. During city budget negotiations that $2M award was cancelled and the site was sold to EL Haynes on which the school nowsits, goal achieved.

Of course ultimately, the law was changed to exclude Charter Schools and children from many of the protections of the 400ft ABC regulations. At the time however, CM was making political hay around ABC license protections for communities and politically could not lead a legislative effort to strip such protections for schools and children. Instead of course CM Evans introduced the change around a licensing issue in Shaw which was used to give CM Graham cover.

During this same period, the public school system was developing a facilities master plan which would call for some school modernizations and closings. I will not go into the details, but the plan would call of consolidating two eastern Ward 1 schools and modernizing the others in phases. Bruce Monroe was one of these schools along with Park View however, the presence of EL Haynes altered this public policy. With the arrival of Rhee a new deal was quietly cut. Rhee needed the support of constituencies east of 16th Street for her so-called reforms. These constituencies wanted their schools moved up earlier on the modernization list. To achieve this CM Graham agreed to allow 4 eastern Ward 1 schools to be closed including Bruce Monroe. One of the key public policies justifications for these closures was the presence of EL Haynes on Georgia Ave.. Several protests and bait and switches later, the Bruce Monroe School families ends up dumped in a deteriorating Park View school building.

The bottomline, with almost no transparency or substantive debate or review educational policy in the eastern portion of Ward 1 was driven in a significant way by the need of Donatelli Development to increase the leasing opportunities and value of its publically awarded properties, hegemony. By the way, cry no tears for LaSalle and Adler. Recently, the government while attempting to replace the old Bruce Monroe site with a commuter parking lot award via emergency legislation LaSalle and Adler a $2M Great Streets TIF loan to develop a CVS. The award of this TIF violated almost every TIF principle the city has set for the granting of TIF loans and the public trust. Howl we go about addressing this Moral Hazard in large part caused by Donatelli Hegemony should be the number 1 election issue as it affects so many element of public life and policy.

In Part II, we will explore howthe Donatelli Hegemony altered public space policy, LDA and zoning agreements and the city's master plan inorder to claim public space as part of its commercial leasing agreements.

john,

has the councilman been served with that deposition subpoena yet? are you all going to cooperate or go through counsel to resist?

i've left messages for the councilmember and have not heard back on the other questions. we are asking him to respond to the claims made by the representatives of the w2tech team, which i understand prompted a subpoena and an interview with alaka williams before the office of integrity and oversight, which is out of gandhi's office. the email reactions from the williams team, especially their lawyer, a. scott bolden, are very clear and consistent in their version of events, which states that mr. graham offered to support their lottery award if williams would jump off a wmata award he won with banneker.

please let me know if mr. graham is willing to offer his version of events, and his thoughts on whether OIO is independent enough to conduct an investigation of a procurement run by the CFO, and whether the OIG is motivated to follow through with a vigorous investigation on the request of the former AG.

also, what does he think about the online gaming proposal, including how it was handled, and who is involved with getting it through the council?

finally, does he have any concerns about the local bidder, mr. bailey, based on published reports that reflect on his business background and representations of same?

thanks for your attention.

Re: Status of Banneker Ventures Term Sheet and Award of Jazz at Florida Avenue Project

Dear Mr. Bolden:

Your letter dated April 27, 2010 to Mr. Sarles and Mr. Benjamin has been referred to me for response. The procedural posture of the Jazz at Florida Avenue Project is as follows: The Board of Directors ("Board") of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority ("WMATA") unanimously voted, on March 25, 2010, to table any action on the proposed amendment of the term sheet ("Term Sheet", attached hereto as Attachment A) executed by WMATA and Banneker Ventures, LLC ("Banneker") following Board member Graham's motion to extend the time within which to finalize a joint development agreement. The Board follows Robert's Rules of Order. Accordingly, the matter can now be taken from the table only by majority vote of the Board in accordance with the voting provisions of the WMATA Compact (Section 8). Pursuant to the terms of the Term Sheet, the exclusive negotiation period between WMATA and Banneker expired on March 31, 2010.

You have presented a number of points in your letter; although I will not respond point by point, the following discussion is intended to meet the substantive issues of concern. Let me begin by saying that WMATA staff worked diligently with Banneker representatives in attempting to achieve agreement on the revised business terms proposed by your client, which differed significantly from those originally proposed. We recognized that those revisions were driven by the changed economic circumstances. Nevertheless, the changes occurred in the context of a public solicitation for proposals for the Florida Avenue site and the differing terms presented challenges that simply could not be overcome, despite our best efforts and the efforts of your client. We appreciate your client's interest in the site and regret that the faltering real estate market made it difficult for your client to adhere to the original terms which prompted the Board's initial selection of Banneker as the developer for the site. Having said that, it is important for you to understand that the Board has plenary authority to approve the terms of a joint development agreement and that approval simply was not achieved. I know of no plans to remove the matter from the table.

By submitting a proposal in response to the Florida Avenue Joint Development Solicitation ("JDS" or "Solicitation", attached hereto as Attachment B), Banneker agreed to and accepted all of the terms of the JDS (see JDS, § 1.5). Thus, Banneker agreed that the Term Sheet was not a binding agreement between WMATA and Banneker, but only established a fixed period of time in which Banneker had the exclusive right to negotiate a binding development agreement (see JDS §§ 1.6 and 1.7; and Term Sheet § 12). Banneker also agreed that the Term Sheet would terminate upon the expiration of such exclusive negotiation period (see JDS § 3.3(C)). It has so terminated. The Board has the sole authority to approve extensions of the Term Sheet and/or the terms of the binding development agreement (see JDS § 3.3(D), Term Sheet § 2, and WMATA's Joint Development Policies and Guidelines § 5.1).

Pursuant to the Term Sheet, Banneker and WMATA established an exclusive negotiation period of five months. The Term Sheet was initially executed by Banneker in July 2008, which meant that the parties had until December 2008 to submit a development agreement to the Board for approval. Almost immediately after being granted its exclusive negotiation period, Banneker significantly reduced its offer to WMATA. For example, Banneker's winning proposal offered an annual ground lease rent payment of $597,000 per year; soon after being selected, Banneker lowered its offer to less than $200,000 per year. The Board extended the negotiation period several times to provide the parties additional time to improve the business terms. In January 2010, the Board voted to extend the exclusive negotiation period through March 31, 2010. When the Board did not approve the extension of the exclusive negotiation period on March 25, 2010, the Term Sheet expired.

In Section IV of your letter, you state that Banneker has incurred significant additional costs as a result of the protracted contract negotiations. Please note that Banneker agreed at the onset that any costs incurred by Banneker during this exclusive negotiation period are the sole liability of Banneker (see JDS § 1.9 and Term Sheet § 12).

Your letter overlooks critical details surrounding WMATA's dealings with Banneker. First, your letter provides a detailed description of WMATA's inquiry into the role of Warren Williams, Jr. and implies that the inquiry was, in some fashion, wrong. As Banneker acknowledged in its letter dated April 23, 2008, WMATA reserved the sole right to disqualify a selected developer if any member of the development team were found to have an unsatisfactory record of integrity and business ethics (see JDS § 5.2(F)). WMATA's inquiries were consistent with this right. As a publicly funded entity, WMATA has a duty to avoid entering into business relationships with persons that do not share WMATA's commitment to integrity. It is unquestioned that WMATA acted properly when it requested further information on certain members of Banneker's development team.

Your letter addresses affordable housing issues on this project, but fails to acknowledge all of the relevant facts. The JDS required proposals to be consistent with local land use policies (s*ee* JDS § 2.1). At the time of the Solicitation, WMATA's Florida Avenue property was subject to the "small area plan" adopted by the District of Columbia Council in June 2005, known as the "Duke Plan." As Banneker acknowledged in several meetings with WMATA, the Duke Plan, in conjunction with the positions of local community groups and the District of Columbia zoning and permitting offices, effectively required a 20% to 30% affordable housing set aside for any residential project on WMATA's Florida Avenue property. Banneker's acknowledgement of this fact is further evidenced by Banneker's original proposals, which included an affordable housing component (s*ee* the letter from District of Columbia Housing Finance Agency to Banneker, attached hereto as Attachment C). The Duke Plan's affordable housing policy was extant long before any purported meeting between Mr. Karim and Mr. Graham on July 2, 2008.

When reviewing all of the proposals that responded to the JDS, WMATA placed a high priority on development experience. Development experience is a priority for all WMATA joint development sites, and this project required the sophisticated expertise to be able to build a structure directly over WMATA's train tunnel. Such attention to development experience is evidenced in the JDS, which provided: (i) that the designation of a selected developer was in the nature of a personal services contract because of the importance of skills, experience, knowledge, and financing on this project; and (ii) a change in the composition of the selected developer's development team required WMATA's written approval (see JDS § 5.1).

Throughout the duration of negotiations, WMATA had concerns about the stability of Banneker's development team. Because WMATA felt that Banneker was relatively inexperienced with this type of project, it decided that Banneker needed a strong development partner. It was the presence of Banneker's much more experienced partners, first Donatelli Development and then Metropolis Development Company, which satisfied WMATA when it initially approved Banneker's proposal. But, Banneker's development team experienced constant instability. Development partners Donatelli Development, District Development Group, Metropolis Development Company, and Banc of America Community Development Corporation all dropped out of the project without warning or explanation. Consequently, WMATA understandably expressed concern with Banneker's development team.

Your letter states that, "[f]rom August 2009 through October 2009, WMATA proposed to change the Project from a lease agreement to a purchase agreement." This statement ignores crucial facts surrounding this event. WMATA made it clear from the very beginning that WMATA preferred a lease transaction over a sale (see JDS § 1.1). Banneker's winning proposal was for a lease transaction. But, three months after WMATA and Banneker executed the Term Sheet, Banneker significantly changed its proposal. Banneker informed WMATA that it intended to purchase parcels adjacent to WMATA's property in order to construct a larger single building traversing both WMATA's property and the adjacent property. WMATA immediately informed Banneker that WMATA did not want to be the ground lease landlord of half of a building. Banneker assured WMATA that it would find a way to make this situation work for both parties. Over the next 10 months, WMATA repeatedly asked Banneker to resolve this problem and voiced its skepticism about this concept. Banneker never offered any solutions, but still insisted on combining WMATA's property with the adjacent property. Finally, in August 2009, Banneker proposed a co-tenancy agreement, which would govern the ownership of the building on the combined properties in the event that Banneker defaulted on its lease with WMATA. WMATA informed Banneker that the co-tenancy agreement was an untenable arrangement for WMATA. Seeing no other solution to Banneker's insistence on adding the adjacent parcels, in late August 2009, WMATA began to explore the option of selling its land to Banneker and to evaluate whether the co-tenancy arrangement could be appropriately modified. But, in October 2009, WMATA decided to remove the sale option because of: (i) WMATA's long standing institutional preference for a lease; and (ii) concerns that the switch from lease to sale, after awarding the project would expose WMATA to bid protests. Your assertion that Mr. Graham advocated for the Florida Avenue project to be a lease transaction is consistent with the long standing policy of the Board to enter into leases rather than sales.

The incorporation of adjacent property into the project was required to be disclosed at the time of bidding under the JDS (see JDS §3.2(X)). By waiting until after it was designated as the selected developer to reveal its intention to assemble WMATA's property with adjacent parcels, Banneker caused significant problems for the negotiation.

Your letter also states that the Board removed consideration of the amended Term Sheet at the behest of Board member Jim Graham. It should be noted here that Mr. Graham, as chairman of WMATA's Planning, Development and Real Estate committee, actually recommended that the Board grant an extension of the Term Sheet. Board member Neil Albert then stepped in and moved to table the issue. The Board then voted unanimously to approve the motion to table.

In Section III, you have attempted to create the impression that improprieties occurred during your conversations with a WMATA Board member. Board members frequently discuss the progress of joint development negotiations with the parties involved. The nature of these discussions is dynamic, but the critical fact is that the discussions do not bind the WMATA Board of Directors. Nothing in your letter suggests to me that any violation of the Board's Standards of Conduct occurred. If further consideration is deemed appropriate, it will be handled in accordance with the Board's Procedures.

At all times, WMATA staff and the Board have acted in accordance with the JDS and the Term Sheet. Neither the Term Sheet nor any other document grants Banneker an entitlement to any interest in WMATA's Florida Avenue property. By entering into the Term Sheet, the parties agreed to a schedule for negotiating a binding development agreement, but there was never a guarantee that these negotiations would produce an agreement that would gain Board approval. That schedule was enlarged by a series of extensions, from December 2008 to March 2010. The Board took firm action on March 25, 2010. The Board is not required, under the JDS, Term Sheet, or WMATA's internal procedures, to provide Banneker with further explanation or rationale for its action, but I believe this letter clearly outlines the problems that are inherent in Banneker's revised business proposal.

I trust that this is responsive to your concerns.

Sincerely,

Carol B. O'Keeffe
General Counsel

We based terms and appraisal on a 60 year lease with 39 year option. The option would restore to market rate lease values at 60 years. Mr. Karim is asking for a 99 year lease that extends the terms of the first 60 years for a full 99 years with no true-up to market rates at any point.

Subject: Question Regarding Florida Avenue Project

Mr. Graham—

Mr. Karim has contacted us with the surprising statement that the lease option on which our appraisal and term sheet materials are based should be different from what we expected it to be.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED

He suggested that you and Mr. Catoe were aware of and in agreement with this.

Could you let us know whether Mr. Karim's statement has any basis in fact, please?

Thank you very much for your help with this,

U Street Flea Market Slated for Redevelopment Retail and Apartments Planned for WMATA-owned Site by Hunter Gorinson

[http://capitalcommu nitynews. com/CCN_Website0 9/publication% 20html/papers/ DCN/0909/ UStFleaMarket. html]

More than a year after gaining development rights to a string of Washington Metro Area Transit Authority (WMATA)-owned vacant lots along Florida Avenue NW, Banneker Ventures LLC and the Banc of America Community Development Corporation have announced the details behind the mixed-use, mixed-income project they're now calling "The Jazz @ Florida Avenue."

Per an application for Federal Low Income Housing Tax Credits filed with the District's Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD) in July, the Jazz will bring some 153,770 square feet of new apartments and retail to the current site of Shaw's U Street Flea Market. In total, WMATA owns three separate properties between Seventh and Ninth streets on the north side [actually, the south side] of Florida Avenue, totaling nearly 29,000 square feet, above the Green Line tunnel linking the Howard-Shaw and U Street-Cardozo stations. Those lots, all of which will be incorporated in to the Jazz, stand just blocks from Howard University and delineate the border of the booming U Street corridor from the less development- prone Shaw/LeDroit Park communities.

"We've had challenges at Ninth and U," said Bryan N. Martin Firvida, president of the U Street Neighborhood Association. "It'll be nice to see new activity and investment on that corner. The neighborhood is always looking for new opportunities for more daytime traffic and more retail. Everyone loves the idea of the 24-hour neighborhood that serves not only people who are just visiting, but residents as well. This is one of the gateway corners into the neighborhood, and it's going to be nice have something other than a vacant lot there."

Since being selected to develop the project by WMATA in June of last year, Banneker has gone on to acquire two other privately-owned parcels along Ninth Street, thereby adding an additional 7,720 square feet of buildable ground area to their project plan. At present, the Jazz is slated to consist of three adjacent four-story buildings, for a total of 124 apartments and 20,000 square feet of ground-floor retail.

Designed by Torti Gallas and Partners, each of the glass and brick buildings will feature between 32 and 52 units, one level of underground parking and a private interior courtyard for use by residents only. According to the development teams application, their plans call for "a mix of studio, junior one-bedroom, one-bedroom and two-bedroom units" with finishes like "9-foot ceilings, in-unit laundry, granite countertops and ceramic kitchen tiles." Kettler Management has already been contracted to handle the day-to-day of the residential operation.

Making it Affordable and Profitable
Twenty-six of the Jazz's apartment units have been earmarked for affordable housing (defined as housing for District residents making 50 percent or less of the Area Median Income), with the remainder slated to hit the market as workforce housing targeted at the "young and affluent professionals" now flooding into the greater U Street area.

It is the Jazz's affordable housing component, however, that has put the project on the fast track to development. Since posting their application with DHCD, the Banneker/Banc of America proposal has drawn several letters of support from prominent local authorities, businesses and residents, including Advisory Neighborhood Commissioner Myla Moss (1B01), Suman Sorg, head of a U Street-based architectural firm unaffiliated with the project, and Dr Rodney D. Green, executive director of the Howard University Center for Urban Progress.

"The injection of commercial and residential development will have a transformative impact on two city blocks on the Florida Avenue corridor that have been underutilized for over 40 years," wrote Green, who has previously worked with Banneker Ventures on the redevelopment of Petworth"s Park Morton public housing complex. "The plans for this project include 26 units of affordable housing, which is both a commendable and necessary element of any urban development. We are confident [of Banneker's] ability to ensure that The Jazz @ Florida Avenue will be a successful community partner."

A key component of that partnership will be the Jazz's retail outlets, which will front along a two-block span of Florida Avenue. Though the development team has not formally outlined uses for the commercial space, the Florida

Avenue lots do fall under the purview of three District planning initiatives: the Great Streets plan for Seventh Street and Georgia Avenue NW; the Neighborhood Investment Fund that seeks to "provide a much-needed economic stimulus to the immediate area"; and, most importantly, the District of Columbia's Uptown Cultural District Plan for Greater Shaw/U Street (aka "the Duke Plan"), which envisions the neighborhood as DC's newest "arts and entertainment district with active restaurants, shopping and music/theatre venues"

Once completed, the Jazz @ Florida Avenue will stand directly across from such area nightlife destinations as Nellie's Sports Bar and the DC9 and Town nightclubs, and two blocks from the soon-to-be renovated, historic Howard Theatre. As such, the Jazz's strategic positioning makes it a linchpin of the Duke Plan's intent to extend the success of the U Street corridor even farther south. For their part, Banneker hopes to invite area foot traffic in with not only new shopping opportunities, but three public, open-air plazas along Eighth Street, Ninth Street and Florida Avenue, as well.

Extra Credit
Apart from the application for $695,000 in tax credits currently pending with DHCD, the $40 million project is being funded in part by Tax Incremental Financing (TIF) "tentatively awarded" by the Office of the Deputy Mayor for Planning and Economic Development (DMPED). According to the DHCD, the developers are "currently in final negotiations with [DMPED] to receive $7 million in the form of a promissory note to help pay costs associated with infrastructure, parking and the retail component." Banneker founder and principal Omar Karim did not respond to repeated inquiries concerning the status of these negotiations.

Moss, however, has been receiving quarterly updates from the developer for the past two years and states that an announcement regarding the tax credit application will be coming in the next several weeks.

"I understand that they have been notified that they have been tentatively awarded the credits that they were seeking and that on Sept. 9, there will be a meeting of those who have made the short list. [DHCD] will absolutely make an approval after [that date]," said Moss.

Though the Jazz is scheduled to start construction in the summer of 2010, the Banneker team has yet to fully reach joint development and lease agreements with WMATA. A final, conclusive meeting with that agency's board of directors was expected in late July but failed to materialize. Angela Gates, an information specialist with WMATA, says that the board will now likely meet with Banneker representatives this winter, and according to Moss, the developer hopes to have the Jazz "fully operational by the fall of 2011."

Jim,

Do you have any info on the WMATA sites on Florida ave. now that Banneker is out of the picture? Perhaps Level 2 can step in and take their place? This was suggested by Myla Moss, the ANC commissioner and we think it's worth exploring.

Jon Kardon had a conversation with Jonathan Wyner, who suggested we write a letter of interest.

Cheers,

David

> Level 2 Development specializes in developing mixed use transit-oriented residential and retail buildings in the U Street neighborhood in which these parcels are located. We would welcome the opportunity to work with WMATA on the development of these parcels to bring mixed use, transit oriented, community benefitting development to the eastern portion of the U Street neighborhood, near both the U Street and Shaw Metro Stations.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED

Level 2 recently completed the development of View 14 (www.view14.com) , a nine-story mixed use Planned Unit Development (PUD) with 185 apartments and 32,000 square feet of retail in the U Street neighborhood located at 2303 14th Street, NW. Open for less than 9 months, the project is setting submarket records for lease-up rents and absorption pace, and the project is nearly stabilized. Through the PUD entitlement process, the project contributed $1 Million to preserve 48 units of low income housing 1 block away from the site, there are 7 units of on-site affordable housing, the significant blight of Comcast satellite dishes and antenna tower at the corner of 14th and Florida Ave was removed, there is a green roof, and we participated in DC LSDBE and First Source employment programs.

In addition to developing View 14, as the former owner of 2400 14th Street, we managed the project through the PUD process to get the project entitled as a nine story mixed-use PUD with 250 apartments and 18,000 square feet of retail. After achieving zoning approval, at the outset of the recession the project was sold for a profit to a REIT and the project is expected to break ground later this year.

Both of these projects were adjacent to the WMATA green/yellow tunnel and we worked closely with WMATA throughout the development and construction process to avoid any impact on the tunnel.

We look forward to the prospect of working with WMATA again on the development of the parcels in the 700 and 800 block of Florida Ave. Please let me know if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

Jon Kardon

Thank you.

I have two more questions, if you could answer them by 8 p.m. that would be great.

1. What are the reasons the some of the board members has not voted for the Banneker Ventures Project?

2. In question #2 you said, "the process will start anew" when the term sheet ends, does this mean more developers are allowed to give their proposals?

3. Why is choosing the right developer for this project so important? How will it affect the area?

Good Evening Councilman Graham,

I am currently working on a story about the land and Omar Karim and I would like your side of the issue and also to clarify fact from fiction before I publish my story - my question are below. If you could answer these question by 8:15 tonight that would be great.

1. According to Omar Karim he has been awaiting approval to build on the land contracted with WMATA since April 2008 due to waiting on the board to vote. Why has the process been so long for him to be approved? Is this the normal process for developers or are there other stipulations? If so, what are they?

2. When the term sheet ends on March 31st for Karim, what will happen? Will the land be given to someone else?

3. When looking for builders what are some of the qualifications the WMATA looks for as far as experience, economic stability, etc.?

4. Have Karim and you spoken directly about the issue? If so, what was the response?

5. According to Karim, his building project keeps getting taken off of the agenda. If so, why is this? Are there plans to put it back on the agenda?

6. Please explain the process that developers must go through when developing through WMATA. Does the whole board have to vote to approve or one person? What role do you play in this?

If you need any clarification, please let me know. Thanks again.

Good Evening Councilman Graham,

I am currently working on a story about the land and Omar Karim and I would like your side of the issue and also to clarify fact from fiction before I publish my story - my question are below. If you could answer these question by 8:15 tonight that would be great.

1. According to Omar Karim he has been awaiting approval to build on the land contracted with WMATA since April 2008 due to waiting on the board to vote. Why has the process been so long for him to be approved? Is this the normal process for developers or are there other stipulations? If so, what are they?

Mr. Karim and six other firms submitted Request for Qualifications (RFQ). The proposals were to develop two parcels of land, one parcel owned by Metro and a second parcel owned by a private citizen. This is the normal process; Metro Real Estate has to review the proposals and submit recommendations, development partners and financing must be attained before the board can approve it.

2. When the term sheet ends on March 31st for Karim, what will happen? Will the land be given to someone else?

I believe the process will start anew with a new RFQ. The land owned by Metro was never to be sold but leased.

3. When looking for builders what are some of the qualifications the WMATA looks for as far as experience, economic stability, etc.?

That is a question better answered by the real estate arm of WMATA. Certainly, a resume containing past projects, financing and a competent builder are necessary. I do not have the expertise beyond that.

4. Have Karim and you spoken directly about the issue? If so, what was the response?

5. According to Karim, his building project keeps getting taken off of the agenda. If so, why is this? Are there plans to put it back on the agenda?

There are not sufficient votes on the board for this project to pass. So it has been pulled each time.

6. Please explain the process that developers must go through when developing through WMATA. Does the whole board have to vote to approve or one person? What role do you play in this?

The entire board has to vote on these projects. I am one board member with one vote.

If you need any clarification, please let me know. Thanks again.

Jim,

Do you have any info on the WMATA sites on Florida ave. now that Banneker is out of the picture? Perhaps Level 2 can step in and take their place? This was suggested by Myla Moss, the ANC commissioner and we think it's worth exploring.

Jon Kardon had a conversation with Jonathan Wyner, who suggested we write a letter of interest.

Cheers,

David

In the instance you cite, she handled it directly with you and the Chair rather than through the Board office. You may have hit on the way all future such matters should be handled, i.e., directly between General Counsel and Board members, not through the Board office, even if a request from the Board member comes through the Board office.

Yes, please call me on my cell phone, 487-6646. I am in a hearing now, but I should be able to take your call around 1-2. In short, this matter was in a public board meeting last Thursday, By a vote of 7-0 the extension of time for his project was tabled by the board, effectively ending the consideration by the time of the last deadline.

Hi Councilmember Graham,

I'm a reporter with the Washington Business Journal and am working on a story about joint development lawsuits involving WMATA. I saw that the Florida Ave. project was on the executive session agenda last week, rather than in normal session and wanted to follow up with you about the next steps for that joint development project. Metro media relations simply said the project was "tabled" and deferred to individual members of the board from D.C.

What is the status of that project? Banneker Ventures said it was planning to file a suit if Metro does not move forward with the project in a timely manner.

Do you have a few minutes to talk about this today?

Thanks so much.

Best,

Sarah

Developers want part of $33.7M for affordable housing
Washington Business Journal - by Jonathan O'Connell Staff Reporter
[http://washington.bizjournals.com/washington/stories/2009/06/29/daily75.html]

Developers of 22 affordable housing projects in D.C. are seeking a slice of $33.7 million the city will receive in federal stimulus money from the Treasury Department.

The money, divvied to D.C. and the states by formula, will allow the city to provide grants aimed at jump starting or completing construction or rehabilitation of below market rate housing units that have stalled in the recession.

The developers applying for funds are working on projects all across the city, in neighborhoods including Anacostia, Brightwood, Mount Pleasant, Petworth and Trinidad. The city's own sources of affordable housing subsidies have been deeply hampered by the slow real estate market.

D.C. Mayor Adrian Fenty said in a June 23 statement that the money "will have an immediate and critical impact on the development and rehabilitation of affordable housing" and would bring jobs for D.C. residents.

The city's Department of Housing and Community Development began seeking developers in April, two months after President Barack Obama signed the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009. Projects must be eligible for federal low-income tax housing tax credits, government-issued tax breaks that developers can use to attract private financing. The value of the tax credits has fallen dramatically in the recession, leaving many projects with shortfalls.

DHCD is hoping to maximize funding for projects that will provide units for elderly, special needs or chronically homeless individuals and families in need of supportive services. Spokeswoman Angelita Colon-Francia said she was not sure when the agency will make funding decisions.

In addition to the $33.7 million in Treasury funds, the federal government has committed another $94.58 million to D.C. in stimulus money for housing programs, according to the Web site Recovery.gov. Of that, another $11.6 million will also be dedicated to projects eligible for low-income housing credits.

Jim: As I advised your staffer, I have interviewed two individuals who said they were present at the May 29, 2008 meeting that you conducted in your office regarding the D.C. lottery contract awarded to W21 by the OCFO in January 2008..

I read what you said about the meeting in your recent Post op-ed.

Warren Williams, who attended the meeting, told me that you said to him, referring to his company Banneker Ventures, :' " You've been winning too much". Did you say that?
Did you also say to Willliams in that meeting " you recently won an award at a Metro site"?

Did you say to him: "Well, you've got to give me something in order for me to support you on the lottery, and the something I'm looking for is the WMATA project."?

Re the statement quoted in your email to Jim Link following the May 29 meeting, to wit: "Do you think they will do anything?" The sources said your statement refers to your interest in Banneker withdrawing from the WMATA bid. Is that the case? If not, were you inquiring about something else? If so, what?

Banneker Ventures other principal owner, Omar Karim, told me in an interview that in a meeting with you in 2008 at your favorite French restaurant, then located at 13th and Penn. Ave. NW, you said you wanted Lakritz/Adler, a local real estate investment company to get in the U Street Metro project.. Karim said that at the time of that meeting, the Metro staff had awarded the U Street Metro project to Banneker. Did you meet with Karim? Did you express an interest in having another firm get involved in the U Street metro project?
Look forward to your responses.

Subject: big Skinner news

This will grow legs.

"A an article in this month's Hill Rag by Hunter L. Gorinson (not yet online) reveals some serious flames. Gorinson explains how Liberty Engineering & Design, owned by Fenty buddy Sinclair Skinner, was handed $358,500 in surveying subcontracts for the parks projects by Omar Karim's Banneker Ventures. Liberty, however, didn't do the actual survey work; rather, they turned around and hired a Hyattsville contractor to do all the work for no more than $70,000, and passed it off as their own. A Liberty employee insisted to the contractor, Anthony Currie, that he put the Liberty logo on his work. Says Currie to Hill Rag, 'I had no clue, but after a while, I started to realize that these guys were crooks.' If nothing else, Skinner's D.C. Council testimony later this month just got even more interesting. More to come."

Good morning, Councilman,

Thank you for forwarding Ms. Hudgins's statement.

I'll be glad to incorporate your edit; did you mean to attach it? The version below is the same as the one I sent you earlier.

Regarding the names, for the most part, my goal is specifics instead of generalities (such as "the Banneker client"). With such a complex subject, proper nouns help a reader hold the story in mind -- and if needed, circle back to a first reference for a reminder of how a certain person factors into the story. So where it's possible to go with names, I would encourage that. But I take your point about not wanting to repeat Colby's "cast of characters."

Best,
Scott

I have researched Banneker's general contract problems more since submission. I have major edit here. But on the question of names—an issue you quite appropriately raise frequently—its going to get confusing. There as more than Karim involved with Banneker, and Williams—as a Banneker "principal"—had others involved with him as well, including his father and wife. I see Colby King sets forth a "cast of characters" this AM. I would rather avoid that. Let me think of what to do.

Hello again,

As promised, here are questions on the sixth paragraph:

For some reason, The Post sees an injustice perpetrated against Banneker and its principals. I do not agree. Banneker, as you may recall, was at the center of serious allegations of political cronyism, lack of qualifications and overbilling [[IS THIS A REFERENCE TO THE PARKS AND REC CONTRACTS? CAN WE MAKE THAT EXPLICIT?]]. Indeed, Banneker executives [[SOURCE FOR MULTIPLE EXECUTIVES? NEWS CLIPS FROM EARLY 2010 INDICATE THAT, OF BANNEKER OFFICIALS, ONLY KARIM TESTIFIED BEFORE THE COUNCIL]] were compelled to testify before the D.C. Council on what they did and didn't do with $82 million worth of city contracts from which they were fired because of how poorly they managed the work [[SOURCE FOR THIS? NEWS CLIPS AT THE TIME DON'T REPORT THAT BANNEKER WAS "FIRED" OR "POOR MANAGEMENT," ONLY THAT THE COUNCIL "ENDED THE CONTRACT" AND "STRIPPED BANNEKER OF THE CONTRACT."]]. Yet none of the editorials mention any of this, despite the saga having been covered extensively in the news pages of The Post.

Thanks again,

Best,
Scott

Hello, Councilman Graham,

The questions are marked below. Thank you for your assistance.

Best,
Scott

by Jim Graham

A web of intrigue and aspersion can be spun by selectively choosing some facts while ignoring others. Such is the case with six editorials published in the past three weeks by The Washington Post, all concerning my role in 2008 in a Metro development project on Florida Avenue NW and in the awarding of the D.C. Lottery contract.

"More Questions for Mr. Graham," the most recent editorial headline calls out. Actually, this is not quite true - it is the very same question, somewhat repackaged, that has been asked over some 5,600 words in the six editorials. It is also mind-boggling: The Post, which has spent the past year calling for ethics reform in District government, is now criticizing me for requesting an ethics inquiry when I had a compelling reason to do so.

Why all this attention? The Post itself seemed puzzled in its Feb. 19 editorial, [[WRONG DATE; TO WHICH EDITORIAL DOES THIS REFER?]] spending hundreds of words trying to explain why it was so cross with someone whom it had endorsed in every election. But that did give The Post a chance to regurgitate yet again the sparse facts at its command.

Much of what was written would have been red-lined out of a news story, never seeing the light of day. But editorial is opinion, and pretty much anything goes.

The Post builds much of its case on speculation regarding a four-year-old conversation I had with a group bidding to become the local and majority partner in the D.C. lottery contract. The same persons [[CQ PERSONS? IS WARREN WILLIAMS NOT THE ONLY PERSON BOTH INVOLVED WITH W2I AND BANNEKER?] were also involved with Banneker Ventures, an engineering/contracting firm whose lawyer, A. Scott Bolden, later cried foul amidst efforts to win [[THIS SUGGESTS THE EFFORTS WERE UNSUCCESSFUL; DID BANNEKER INDEED GET NO SETTLEMENT?]] a settlement from the city. Bolden was not at the meeting. [[GIVEN THIS, IS IT RELEVANT TO INTRODUCE MR. BOLDEN AT THIS POINT? IT WOULD HELP YOUR NARRATIVE TO PULL HIM OUT AND INTRODUCE HIM SIX GRAFS LATER]] While I cannot recall every detail of the meeting, I remember repeatedly challenging the qualifications of Banneker [[EARLIER IN THIS PARAGRAPH, YOU INDICATED THIS WAS A MEETING WITH W2I; DID YOU MEAN TO SAY W2I HERE THEN?]] and the irresponsible actions of one of its principals with a prior D.C. government privilege [[WHAT DOES THIS MEAN OR REFER TO?]]. I have a big fat file on all of that.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013785

For some reason, The Post sees an injustice perpetrated against Banneker and its principals. I do not agree. Banneker, as you may recall, was at the center of serious allegations of political cronyism, lack of qualifications and overbilling. Indeed, Banneker executives were compelled to testify before the D.C. Council on what they did and didn't do with $82 million worth of city contracts from which they were fired because of how poorly they managed the work. Yet none of the editorials mention any of this, despite the saga having been covered extensively in the news pages of The Post. [[I HAVE NOT YET FACT-CHECKED THIS PARAGRAPH; QUESTIONS WILL COME TOMORROW ON IT. ANY SUPPORTING MATERIAL YOU CAN PROVIDE -- SUCH AS LINKS TO THE NEWS STORIES YOU MENTION -- WOULD BE MOST HELPFUL.]]

Let's get some clarity on the facts.

First and foremost, there is zero allegation of any crime - not even by The Post - because none was committed. As well, there is no suggestion of any financial gain by me.

The Post brushes aside with little or no mention these facts:

[BULLET] No evidence of wrongdoing by Graham, the D.C. inspector general concluded last month in a lengthy review of my involvement with the lottery contract process.

[BULLET] No evidence of wrongdoing by Graham, the Metro general counsel concluded in a five-page letter dated May 28, 2010, after a careful review of the major pleas [[WAS THIS IN A LEGAL PROCEEDING? IF NOT, SHOULDN'T THE NOUN BE SOMETHING LIKE "ALLEGATIONS"?]] raised by attorney A. Scott Bolden [[THIS COULD BECOME THE NEW FIRST REFERENCE TO MR. BOLDEN -- "RAISED BY BANNEKER'S LAWYER, A. SCOTT BOLDEN"]] concerning the Florida Avenue project. Metro found that the problem with the Banneker Ventures bid was not Jim Graham. The problem with Banneker was Banneker. The contractor missed deadlines, slashed its inflated, initial offer for the land, and failed to demonstrate the capacity to do the work.

[BULLET] Just a few days ago, the current Metro board chair made clear that the unanimous board decision in 2010 to end Banneker's role in the project was "based upon a dramatic change in the developer's proposed price and other factors adverse to WMATA's business interest." In addition, she wrote, [[CAN YOU FORWARD OR POINT ME TOWARD THIS DOCUMENT?]] the decision was not based on "the views of Mr. Graham or any individual board member."

Indeed, the Banneker executive [[SINCE BANNEKER HAD NO ROLE IN THE LOTTERY CONTRACT, SHOULDN'T THIS BE REWORDED TO FOCUS JUST ON MR. WILLIAMS?]] lost out on the lottery not because of me, but because - as one person close to the deal put it - "Forces don't want you guys in the lead decision making role." [[SOURCE FOR THIS QUOTATION?]]

None of this will be found in The Post's editorials.

Now, who is left?

Ah, yes, the D.C. Attorney General. In May 2010, out of an abundance of caution, I personally asked the attorney general, Peter J. Nickles, to review these matters. As best as I can tell, he took no action.

For sure, Banneker Ventures and its principals were not happy to lose out on the lottery and Metro projects. [[SINCE BANNEKER HAD NO ROLE IN THE LOTTERY CONTRACT, SHOULDN'T THIS BE JUST "LOSE OUT ON THE METRO PROJECT"?]] It probably cost them and their lawyer millions. Bolden started complaining back in 2008, [[SOURCE? MR. BOLDEN'S 4/27/10 LETTER TO WMATA INDICATES IT WAS HIS FIRST FORMAL COMPLAINT]] and at that time the CFO staff [[SINCE WE HAVE NOT YET INTRODUCED MR. GANDHI, SHALL WE EXPLAIN THE ROLE OF HIS OFFICE IN THESE MATTERS?]] advised him to go to the inspector general. [[THE DC INSPECTOR GENERAL? OR THE METRO IG?]] But Bolden took no action in 2008 or 2009, instead waiting two years until the Metro project had been lost. Then in 2010, he wrote the bitter letter that is the cold soup the Post has been warming up over the past three weeks.

But what about other major issues? For example, why did the District's chief financial officer in early 2011 approve - by "making no objection" - [[SOURCE FOR THIS QUOTATION?]] the addition of Emmanuel Bailey as the replacement for the Banneker principal [[SHOULDN'T THIS BE THE REPLACEMENT FOR W2I?]] in the majority-ownership role for the D.C. Lottery contract? Who told the CFO to let that go? Why was Bailey -- a Maryland resident with no experience and no qualifications in gaming, and with a start-up company housed in a spare room of his mother's Southeast rowhouse -- given 51 percent of the lottery? Why wasn't this selection resubmitted to the D.C. Council, since Bailey was not in the lottery contract as approved?

Bolden's clients will also have questions to answer. As reported in the Washington Times, which obtained the e-mails, why was Bailey - who appears to have come out of nowhere - contacting the Banneker client, [[IS THIS A REFERENCE TO MR. WILLIAMS? THAT'S NOT CLEAR.]] offering a strategy involving then-Mayor Adrian Fenty, months before he was selected for the majority ownership role? How did the men know each other? And was a financial consideration paid to Bolden's clients [["W2I"?]] after they were dropped from the [["LOTTERY"?]] deal?

These issues are a lot closer to the heart of the matter, yet The Post would rather carpet-bomb the underbrush.

Let's have a full investigation of all the major issues in this [["THE LOTTERY"?]] contract award. Then the Post can write a seventh editorial exonerating me.

The writer, a Democrat, represents Ward 1 on the D.C. Council.

Subject: The problem with Banneker was not Jim Graham

The problem with Banneker was not Jim Graham. The problem with Banneker was Banneker. Today's editorial contained more innuendo and implication than it did facts, all in an effort to discredit me for the unsubstantiated, unfounded and flat out wrong supposition that I attempted to kill Banneker's deal in favor of another developer. These assertions were made without regard for the evidence.

Due to advice from Mayor Fenty and his people, I actually tried to overcome my reservations. All my votes were either in favor with a single abstention until the final tabling motion was made by City Administrator and Mayor's representative Neil Albert.

From the start, I had major concerns about the ability of Banneker to do the work. I did express those concerns. And I was reinforced in those concerns. For example, the Post editorial gave little emphasis or detail to the following major problems:

--an inflated land offer which was the main reason they initially got the award (withdrawn and reduced after the award) ,

--no comparable experience with a project of this size, initially compensated for by the participation of Metropolis builders but they soon quit the project.

--repeated extensions of time over a two year period all at the request of Banneker in a struggle to try to make a deal work. All told, three years were lost on this project as a direct result.

--changes by Banneker to the original terms of contract, giving rise to the prospect of bid protests by those who lost on terms more favorable to Metro

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013788

--ongoing concerns by WMATA about the stability of Banneker's development team.
Keep in mind, the Banneker who later would be front and center in the contracting scandals of the Fenty Administration was the same Banneker that was before Metro.
But why believe me?
Instead consider the points made by the Metro General Council who on May 28, 2010 responded to the major issues in attorney Bolden's letter. I have decided to share the General Counsel's letter which follows (also attached). I had hoped a limited paraphrase would suffice, but apparently not. I believe the editorial needs to be revised in light of the facts of the Metro letter.
I am now requesting appropriate space on your Editorial Pages to respond to five editorial/op ed comments in a little over a week.
Please advise.
Councilmember Jim Graham

Dear Mr. Bolden:

Your letter dated April 27, 2010 to Mr. Sarles and Mr. Benjamin has been referred to ' me for response. The procedural posture of the Jazz at Florida Avenue Project is as follows: The Board of Directors ("Board/') of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority ("WMATA") unanimously voted, on March 25, 2010, to table any action on the proposed amendment of the term sheet ("Term Sheet'/, attached hereto as Attachment A) executed by WMATA and Banneker Ventures, LLC ("Banneker") following Board member Graham's motion to extend the time within which to finalize a joint development agreement. The Board follows Robert's Rules of Order. Accordingly, the matter can now be taken from the table only by majority vote of the Board in accordance with the voting provisions of the WMATA Compact (Section 8). Pursuant to the terms of the Term Sheet, the exclusive negotiation period between WMATA and Banneker expired on March 31, 2010.

You have presented a number of points in your letter; although I will not respond point by point, the following discussion is intended to meet the substantive issues of concern. Let me begin by saying that WMATA staff worked diligently with Banneker representatives in attempting to achieve agreement on the revised business terms proposed by your client, which differed significantly from those originally proposed. We recognized that those revisions were driven by the changed economic circumstances. Nevertheless, the changes occurred in the context of a public solicitation for proposals for the Florida Avenue site and the differing terms presented challenges that simply could not be overcome, despite our best efforts and the efforts of your client. We appreciate your client's interest in the site and regret that the faltering real estate market made it difficult for your client to adhere to the original terms which prompted the Board's initial selection of Banneker as the developer for the site. Having said that, it is important for you to understand that the Board has plenary authority to approve the terms of a joint development agreement and that approval simply was not achieved. I know of no plans to remove the matter from the table.

By submitting a proposal in response to the . Florida Avenue Joint Development Solicitation ("JDS" or "Solicitation", attached hereto as Attachment B), Banneker agreed to and accepted all of the terms of the JDS (see JDS, § 1.5). · Thus, Banneker agreed that the Term Sheet was not a binding agreement between WMATA and Banneker, but only established a fixed period of time in which Banneker had the exclusive right to negotiate a binding development agreement (see JDS §§

1.6 and 1.7; and Term Sheet § 12). Banneker also agreed that the Term Sheet would terminate upon the expiration of such exclusive negotiation period (see JDS § 3.3(C)). It has so terminated. The Board has the sole authority to approve extensions of the Term Sheet and/or the terms of the binding development agreement (see JDS § 3.3(D), Term Sheet § 2, and WMATA's Joint Development Policies and Guidelines § 5.1).

Pursuant to the Term Sheet, Banneker and WMATA established an exclusive negotiation period of five months. The Term Sheet was initially executed by Banneker in July 2008; which meant that the parties had until December 2008 to submit a development agreement to the Board for approval. Almost immediately after being granted its exclusive negotiation period, Banneker significantly reduced its offer to WMATA. For example, Banneker's winning proposal offered an annual ground lease rent payment of $597,000 per year; soon after being selected, Banneker lowered its offer to less than $200,000 per year. The Board extended the negotiation period several times to provide the parties additional time to improve the business terms. In January 2010, the Board voted to extend the exclusive negotiation period through March 31, 2010. When the Board did not approve the extension of the exclusive negotiation period on March 25, 2010, the Term Sheet expired.

In Section IV of your letter, you state that Banneker has incurred significant additional costs as a result of the protracted contract negotiations. Please note that Banneker agreed at the onset that any costs incurred by Banneker during this exclusive negotiation period are the sole liability of Banneker (see JDS § 1.9 and Term Sheet § 12).

Your letter overlooks critical details surrounding WMATA's dealings with Banneker. Firstly your letter provides a detailed description of WMATA's inquiry into the role of Warren Williams, Jr. and implies that the inquiry was, in some fashion, wrong. As Banneker acknowledged in its letter dated April 23, 2008, WMATA reserved the sole right to disqualify a selected developer if any member of the development team were found to have an unsatisfactory record of integrity and business ethics (see JDS § 5.2(F)). WMATA's inquiries were consistent with this right. As a publicly funded entity, WMATA has a duty to avoid entering into business relationships with persons that do not share WMATA's commitment to integrity. It is unquestioned that WMATA acted properly when it requested further information on certain members of Banneker's development team.

Your letter addresses affordable housing issues on this project, but fails to acknowledge all of the relevant facts. The JDS required proposals to be consistent with local land use policies (see JDS § 2.1). At the time of the Solicitation WMATA's Florida Avenue property was subject to the \\small area plan" adopted by the District of Columbia Council in June 2005, known as the \\Duke Plan." As Banneker acknowledged in several meetings with WMATA, the Duke Plan, in conjunction with the positions of local community groups and the District of Columbia zoning and permitting offices, effectively required a 20% to 30% affordable housing set aside for any residential project on WMATA's Florida Avenue property. Banneker's acknowledgement of this fact is further evidenced by Banneker's original proposals, which included an affordable housing component (see the letter from District of Columbia Housing Finance Agency to Banneker, attached hereto as Attachment C). The Duke Plan's affordable housing policy was extant long before any purported meeting between Mr. Karim and Mr. Graham on July 2, 2008.

When reviewing all of the proposals that responded to the JDS, WMATA placed a high priority on development experience. Development experience is a priority for all WMATA joint development sites, and this project required the sophisticated expertise to be able to build a · structure directly over WMATA's train tunnel. Such attention to development experience is evidenced in the JDS, which provided: (i) that the designation of a selected developer was in the nature of a personal services contract because of the importance of skills, experience, knowledge, and financing on this project; and (ii) a change in the composition of the selected developer's development team required WMATA's written approval (see JDS § 5.1).

Throughout the duration of negotiations, WMATA had concerns about the stability of Banneker's development team. Because WMATA felt that Banneker was relatively inexperienced with this type of project, it decided that Banneker needed a strong development partner. It was the presence of Banneker's much more experienced partners, first Donatelli Development and then Metropolis Development Company, which satisfied WMATA when it initially approved Banneker's proposal. But, Banneker's development team experienced constant instability. Development partners Donatelli Development, District Development Group, Metropolis Development Company, and Banc of· America Community Development Corporation all dropped out of the project without warning or explanation. Consequently, WMATA understandably expressed concern with Banneker's development team.

Your letter states that, "[f]rom August 2009 through October 2009, WMATA proposed to change the Project from a lease agreement to a purchase agreement." This statement ignores crucial facts surrounding this event. WMATA made it clear from the very beginning that WMATA preferred a lease transaction over a sale (see JDS § 1.1). Banneker's winning proposal was for a lease transaction. But, three months after WMATA and Banneker executed the Term Sheet, Banneker Significantly changed its proposal. Banneker informed WMATA that it intended to purchase parcels adjacent to WMATA's property in order to construct a larger single building traversing both WMATA's property and the adjacent property. WMATA immediately informed Banneker that WMATA did not want to be the ground lease landlord of half of a building. Banneker assured WMATA that it would find a way to make this situation work for both parties. Over the next 10 months, WMATA repeatedly asked Banneker to resolve this problem and voiced its skepticism about this concept. Banneker never offered any solutions, but still insisted on combining WMATA's property with the adjacent property. Finally, in August 2009, Banneker proposed a co-tenancy agreement, which would govern the ownership of the building on the combined properties in the event that Banneker defaulted on its lease with WMATA. WMATA informed Banneker that the co-tenancy agreement was an untenable arrangement for WMATA. Seeing no other solution to Banneker's insistence on adding the adjacent parcels, in late August 2009, WMATA began to explore the option of selling its land to Banneker and to evaluate whether the co-tenancy arrangement could be appropriately modified. But, in October 2009, WMATA decided to remove the sale option because of: (i) WMATA's long standing institutional preference for a lease; and (ii) concerns that the switch from lease to sale, after awarding the project would expose WMATA to bid protests. Your assertion that Mr. Graham advocated for the Florida Avenue project to be a lease transaction is consistent with the long standing policy of the Board to enter into leases rather than sales.

The incorporation of adjacent property into the project was required to be disclosed at the time of bidding under the JDS (see JDS §3.2(X)). By waiting until after it was designated as the selected developer to reveal its intention to assemble WMATNs property with adjacent parcels, Banneker caused significant problems for the negotiation.

Your letter also states that the Board removed consideration of the amended Term Sheet at the behest of Board member Jim Graham. It should be noted here that Mr. Graham, as chairman of WMATA's Planning, Development and Real Estate committee, actually recommended that the Board grant an extension of the Term Sheet. Board member Neil Albert then stepped in and moved to table the issue. The Board then voted unanimously to approve the motion to table.

In Section III, you have attempted to create the impression that improprieties occurred during your conversations with a WMATA Board member. Board members frequently discuss the progress of joint development negotiations with the parties involved. The nature of these discussions is dynamic and may include ways to strengthen the development team, but these discussions do not bind the WMATA Board of Directors. The allegations in your letter, standing alone, do not appear to constitute a violation of the Board's Standards of Conduct. However, if further consideration is deemed appropriate, it will be handled in accordance with the Board's Procedures. As you are aware, Mr. Graham has referred your letter to the Attorney General for the District of Columbia regarding the claims you have made concerning District of Columbia matters.

At all times, WMATA staff and the Board have acted in accordance with the JDS and the Term Sheet. Neither the Term Sheet nor any other document grants Banneker an entitlement to any interest in WMATA's Florida Avenue property. By entering into the Term Sheet, the parties agreed to a schedule for negotiating a binding development agreement, but there was never a guarantee that these negotiations would produce an agreement that would gain Board approval. That schedule was enlarged by a series of extensions, from December 2008 to March 2010. The Board took firm action on March 25, 2010. The Board is not required, under the JDS, Term Sheet, or WMATA's internal procedures, to provide Banneker with further explanation or rationale for its action, but I believe this letter clearly outlines the problems that are inherent in Banneker's revised business proposal. I trust that this is responsive to your concerns.

Sincerely,

J Carol B. O'Keeffe

Jim,

Thank you for your note.

We can never promise publication of a piece we haven't seen, but of course we would be happy to review a submission from you, and I would certainly like to get something in.

I do feel there are a number of unanswered questions. Here's one. You have said that when the lottery folks came to see you, you did not press them to have Banneker withdraw from the Metro contract. Shortly after the meeting, one of the participants thanked you and said he was looking forward to "discussing next steps" with you. You replied, "Thanks. Do you think they will do anything?" He replied, "Yes. Wheels are in motion. Everyone took your concerns seriously."

What were your concerns? What were you referring to when you asked, "Do you think they will do anything?"

Given all the information you have provided to us, this doesn't seem like a difficult question. Anything you can provide to make it clear would be appreciated, if not in the piece you submit then just in a response to us.

Best,
Fred

Subject: The problem with Banneker was not Jim Graham

The problem with Banneker was not Jim Graham. The problem with Banneker was Banneker.
Today's editorial contained more innuendo and implication than it did facts, all in an effort to discredit me for the unsubstantiated, unfounded and flat out wrong supposition that I attempted to kill Banneker's deal in favor of another developer. These assertions were made without regard for the evidence.
Due to advice from Mayor Fenty and his people, I actually tried to overcome my reservations. All my votes were either in favor with a single abstention until the final tabling motion was made by City Administrator and Mayor's representative Neil Albert.
From the start, I had major concerns about the ability of Banneker to do the work. I did express those concerns. And I was reinforced in those concerns. For example, the Post editorial gave little emphasis or detail to the following major problems:
--an inflated land offer which was the main reason they initially got the award (withdrawn and reduced after the award) ,
--no comparable experience with a project of this size, initially compensated for by the participation of Metropolis builders but they soon quit the project.
--repeated extensions of time over a two year period all at the request of Banneker in a struggle to try to make a deal work. All told, three years were lost on this project as a direct result.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013797

--changes by Banneker to the original terms of contract, giving rise to the prospect of bid protests by those who lost on terms more favorable to Metro
--ongoing concerns by WMATA about the stability of Banneker's development team.
Keep in mind, the Banneker who later would be front and center in the contracting scandals of the Fenty Administration was the same Banneker that was before Metro.
But why believe me?
Instead consider the points made by the Metro General Council who on May 28, 2010 responded to the major issues in attorney Bolden's letter. I have decided to share the General Counsel's letter which follows (also attached). I had hoped a limited paraphrase would suffice, but apparently not. I believe the editorial needs to be revised in light of the facts of the Metro letter.
I am now requesting appropriate space on your Editorial Pages to respond to five editorial/op ed comments in a little over a week.
Please advise.
Councilmember Jim Graham

Dear Mr. Bolden:

Your letter dated April 27, 2010 to Mr. Sarles and Mr. Benjamin has been referred to ' me for response. The procedural posture of the Jazz at Florida Avenue Project is as follows: The Board of Directors ("Board/') of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority ("WMATA") unanimously voted, on March 25, 2010, to table any action on the proposed amendment of the term sheet ("Term Sheet'/, attached hereto as Attachment A) executed by WMATA and Banneker Ventures, LLC ("Banneker") following Board member Graham's motion to extend the time within which to finalize a joint development agreement. The Board follows Robert's Rules of Order. Accordingly, the matter can now be taken from the table only by majority vote of the Board in accordance with the voting provisions of the WMATA Compact (Section 8). Pursuant to the terms of the Term Sheet, the exclusive negotiation period between WMATA and Banneker expired on March 31, 2010.
You have presented a number of points in your letter; although I will not respond point by point, the following discussion is intended to meet the substantive issues of concern. Let me begin by saying that WMATA staff worked diligently with Banneker representatives in attempting to achieve agreement on the revised business terms proposed by your client, which differed significantly from those originally proposed. We recognized that those revisions were driven by the changed economic circumstances. Nevertheless, the changes occurred in the context of a public solicitation for proposals for the Florida Avenue site and the differing terms presented challenges that simply could not be overcome, despite our best efforts and the efforts of your client. We appreciate your client's interest in the site and regret that the faltering real estate market made it difficult for your client to adhere to the original terms which prompted the Board's initial selection of Banneker as the developer for the site. Having said that, it is important for you to understand that the Board has plenary authority to approve the terms of a joint development agreement and that approval simply was not achieved. I know of no plans to remove the matter from the table.

By submitting a proposal in response to the . Florida Avenue Joint Development Solicitation

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED

("JDS" or "Solicitation", attached hereto as Attachment B), Banneker agreed to and accepted all of the terms of the JDS (see JDS, § 1.5). Thus, Banneker agreed that the Term Sheet was not a binding agreement between WMATA and Banneker, but only established a fixed period of time in which Banneker had the exclusive right to negotiate a binding development agreement (see JDS §§ 1.6 and 1.7; and Term Sheet § 12). Banneker also agreed that the Term Sheet would terminate upon the expiration of such exclusive negotiation period (see JDS § 3.3(C)). It has so terminated. The Board has the sole authority to approve extensions of the Term Sheet and/or the terms of the binding development agreement (see JDS § 3.3(D), Term Sheet § 2, and WMATA's Joint Development Policies and Guidelines § 5.1).

Pursuant to the Term Sheet, Banneker and WMATA established an exclusive negotiation period of five months. The Term Sheet was initially executed by Banneker in July 2008; which meant that the parties had until December 2008 to submit a development agreement to the Board for approval. Almost immediately after being granted its exclusive negotiation period, Banneker significantly reduced its offer to WMATA. For example, Banneker's winning proposal offered an annual ground lease rent payment of $597,000 per year; soon after being selected, Banneker lowered its offer to less than $200,000 per year. The Board extended the negotiation period several times to provide the parties additional time to improve the business terms. In January 2010, the Board voted to extend the exclusive negotiation period through March 31, 2010. When the Board did not approve the extension of the exclusive negotiation period on March 25, 2010, the Term Sheet expired.

In Section IV of your letter, you state that Banneker has incurred significant additional costs as a result of the protracted contract negotiations. Please note that Banneker agreed at the onset that any costs incurred by Banneker during this exclusive negotiation period are the sole liability of Banneker (see JDS § 1.9 and Term Sheet § 12).

Your letter overlooks critical details surrounding WMATA's dealings with Banneker. Firstly your letter provides a detailed description of WMATA's inquiry into the role of Warren Williams, Jr. and implies that the inquiry was, in some fashion, wrong. As Banneker acknowledged in its letter dated April 23, 2008, WMATA reserved the sole right to disqualify a selected developer if any member of the development team were found to have an unsatisfactory record of integrity and business ethics (see JDS § 5.2(F)). WMATA's inquiries were consistent with this right. As a publicly funded entity, WMATA has a duty to avoid entering into business relationships with persons that do not share WMATA's commitment to integrity. It is unquestioned that WMATA acted properly when it requested further information on certain members of Banneker's development team.

Your letter addresses affordable housing issues on this project, but fails to acknowledge all of the relevant facts. The JDS required proposals to be consistent with local land use policies (see JDS § 2.1). At the time of the Solicitation WMATA's Florida Avenue property was subject to the \\small area plan" adopted by the District of Columbia Council in June 2005, known as the \\Duke Plan." As Banneker acknowledged in several meetings with WMATA, the Duke Plan, in conjunction with the positions of local community groups and the District of Columbia zoning and permitting offices, effectively required a 20% to 30% affordable housing set aside for any residential project on WMATA's Florida Avenue property. Banneker's acknowledgement of this fact is further evidenced by Banneker's original proposals, which included an affordable housing component (see the letter from District of Columbia Housing Finance Agency to Banneker, attached hereto as Attachment C). The Duke Plan's affordable housing policy was extant long before any purported meeting between Mr. Karim and Mr. Graham on July 2, 2008.

When reviewing all of the proposals that responded to the JDS, WMATA placed a high priority on development experience. Development experience is a priority for all WMATA joint development sites, and this project required the sophisticated expertise to be able to build a · structure directly over WMATA's train tunnel. As you know, I am somewhat limited in what I can say. Yesterday, the Council's Genral Counsel again stated—

Councilmember,
I write to follow up to our earlier conversation. As you know, the matter regarding your deposition is pending before the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. Until that matter is resolved, I would avoid public communications about the process regarding the Council's consideration of the contract.
Regards, V. David Zvenyach

There are matters on the pubcl record, howver, and recollections that I have that permit me to provide this comment, especially as it relates to question involving the Banneker proposal at WMATA.

This recital of facts estvbalihes that there were many serious, ongoing problems with the Banneker proposal, starting shortly after they were awarded a term sheet. A lot of it would be bait and switch problems, as Banneker tried to first compensate for a high value offer for the land, and then calling for a susbtnatial reduction in order to have the deal work. Many efforts by various people went in to trying to salvage this deal.

But my problem with the Banneker proposal was entiley on the merits and ualifiecations of the bidder as elucidated below. Simply put, Banneker lacked the major construcito expeirnce needed for this work.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED

Believe me, at veeyr turn, I was remoinded of the political influence of Banneker and its allies nad friends. As the Washington Business Jounral put it on April 12, 2010, "Political and media observers have said the Banneker award may have had more to do with Mayor Fenty's rekationship with founder Omar Karim…than they do with the cmpany's qualifications."

But I took my Metro Board responsibilities seriously. I feared that Banneker's problems woulkd result in delays and problems with the development. (I was right, by the way, it cost the project about three years!)

I was reassured by the presence of seasoned construction copanyies in the deal. In June 2008, with my vote case in favor, the Metro Board approved a Term Sheet for the Florida Avenue project. Banneker understood that the Term Sheet by its terms was not a binding agreement between WMATA and Banneker, but only established a fixed period of time in which Banneker had the exclusive right to negotiate a binding development agreement. Subsequently, Banneker and WMATA established an exclusive negotiation period of five months to expire in December 2008.

Almost immediately after being granted the exclusive negotiation period, Banneker significantly reduced its offer to WMATA. For example, Banneker's winning proposal offered an annual ground lease rent payment of $597,000 per year--soon after being selected, Banneker lowered its offer to less than $200,000 per year. Later in 2010, after numerous extensions, Banneker would reduce its initial $14 million offer for the land down to $2.5 million.

Indeed, the Board extended the negotiation period several times to provide the parties additional time to improve the business terms. In January 2010, the Board voted to extend the exclusive negotiation period through March 31, 2010. When the Board did not approve the extension of the exclusive negotiation period on March 25, 2010, the Term Sheet expired.

I was also concened about Warren C. Williams, one of the principals of Banneker Ventures LLC who would, according to the proposal, "oversee all land acquisitions" for the LLC. As the Washington Post reported on April 10, 2008: "Warren C Williams, a real estate developer, [was]recenltyk ciriticized by tenants for allowing his property to deteriorate. Williams denied tenants' allegations that he was attempting to force them out so he could convert their apartments into condominiums. He and his father also owned Club U, which the District closed in 2005 after a patron was fatally stabbed there." The article also states that $100,000 in back rent on the Reeves Center space was not paid until 2007.

WMATA had every right to inquire into the background of the members of the development team. In the joint development agreement, WMATA reserved the sole right to disqualify a selected developer if any member of the development team were found to have an unsatisfactory record of integrity and business ethics As a publicly funded entity, WMATA has a duty to avoid entering into business relationships with persons that do not share WMATA's commitment to integrity. It is unquestioned that WMATA acted properly when it requested further information on certain members of Banneker's development team.

Mr. Bolden raised affordable housing issues on this project, but fails to acknowledge all of the relevant facts. The Joint Development policy requires proposals to be consistent with local land use policies. At the time of the Solicitation, WMATA's Florida Avenue property was subject to the "small area plan" adopted by the DC Council in June 2005, known as the "Duke Plan", which requires a 20% to 30% affordable housing set aside. Indeed, Banneker's original proposals included an affordable housing component. The Duke Plan's affordable housing policy was in place long before any purported meeting between Mr. Karim and myself.

Development and construction experience really matters in this decision, and it has a high priority for all WMATA joint development sites. The priority in this site was further underscored by the skills that would be required to build a structure directly over WMATA's train tunnel.

From the very beginning of the consideration of Banneker, WMATA—and myself-- had serious concerns about the stability of Banneker's development team. Because it was felt that Banneker was relatively inexperienced with this type of project, it was decided that Banneker needed a strong development partner. It was reassuring to me, and other Metro Board members, that Banneker's had much more experienced partners, first Donatelli Development and then Metropolis Development Company

But, Banneker's development team experienced constant instability.

Development partners Donatelli Development, District Development Group, Metropolis Development Company, and Banc of America Community Development Corporation all dropped out of the project without warning or explanation. Throughout, concern was expressed with Banneker's development team.

WMATA made it clear from the very beginning that WMATA preferred a lease transaction over a sale. Banneker's winning proposal was for a lease transaction. But, it was Banneker which took action calling the lease into question. Three months after WMATA and Banneker reached agreement on the terms, Banneker significantly changed its proposal. Banneker informed WMATA that it intended to purchase parcels adjacent to WMATA's property in order to construct a larger single building traversing both WMATA's property and the adjacent property. WMATA immediately informed Banneker that WMATA did not want to be the ground lease landlord of half of a building. Banneker assured WMATA that it would find a way to make this situation work for both parties. Over the next 10 months, WMATA repeatedly asked Banneker to resolve this problem and voiced its skepticism about this concept. Banneker never offered any solutions, but still insisted on combining WMATA's property with the adjacent property. Finally, in August 2009, Banneker proposed a co-tenancy agreement. WMATA rejected that approach. In October 2009, WMATA removed the sale option because WMATA had a long standing policy preference for a lease, and out of concerns that the switch from lease to sale would open up bid protests. The statement that I advocated for the Florida Avenue project to be a lease transaction would be an advocacy consistent with the long standing policy of the Board.

There are various and numerous factual errors in the Bolden letter. For example, in March 2010, I actually recommended that the Board grant an extension of the Term Sheet. It was Board member Neil Albert—Banneker's chief advocate for the project from the beginning-- who moved to table the issue which was unanimously approved by the Board.

As to any improprieties that Mr. Bolden suggested, those allegations were reviewed by the Board's ethics officer and found not to constitute a violation of the Board's Standards of Conduct.

I did refer the Bolden letter to the Attorney General for the District of Columbia regarding the claims you have made concerning District of Columbia matters.

Today's Post editorial on the actions of CM Graham should be seen as a peak into how the Council Member's pay-to-play political machine works, not as an isolated incident around a single Metro parcel. Whether it's building a park, a multi-million dollar city sponsored development project, closing schools or getting an ABC License the pay-to-play game is the same. Also related to this same lottery contact was the clever use of the legislative/budget process to enable internet gaming, to follow the quid pro quo of the Graham machine requires following closely a similar use of the budget process and emergency legislation to reward public resources to crony developers such as Lakritz Adler. During this same period, LaKritz Adler was recieving via the use of emergency legislation $2.0M in TIF financing to build a CVS on Georgia Ave. A project under normal circumstances which would have never qualified for a city sponsored TIF. Was this TIF a consolation prize in the struggle of a Graham backed team and a Fenty Admin backed team over this Metro prize? For the sake of a political education let's hope the Post keeps peeling back the onion.

Did Jim Graham try to undermine a Metro project?

OFFICIALS AT Banneker Ventures were thrilled when they learned in February 2008 that their company had won a competition to develop Metro-owned property on Florida Avenue NW. The general construction and contract management firm had beaten rival companies in an open procurement process for the retail and residential project. But when the proposal came before Metro on April 24, Jim Graham (D), the District's representative on the transit agency's board and a D.C. Council member whose Ward 1 would be home to the development, successfully moved to postpone action. Mr. Graham's action warrants scrutiny.

Not long after that, he allegedly tried to pressure Banneker out of the Metro deal by linking it to his support for a separate bid by one of Banneker's principals for the District's lucrative lottery contract. What was Mr. Graham up to? On whose behalf was he advocating? And why was it that in both cases — the operation of D.C.'s lottery and the development of Metro land — the winning bidders ended up not doing the public's business?

good talking with you yesterday. here's what i have for the metro story we briefly discussed:

1) warren williams says you had buwa binitie call him as he was headed into a metro meeting after banneker was on the shortlist for the florida ave. project. he says binitie strongly discouraged the group from going through with their bid. confirm, comment, deny?

2) after the award, williams says roslyn doggett began calling him about being under pressure from you to look unfavorably on banneker and williams because of the reeves center, skinner and other grievances. confirm, comment, deny?

3) what conversations if any did you have with binitie and doggett with regard to the banneker bid on the metro project?

4) did you tell omar karim that banneker should partner with lakritz adler? did you table votes on the matter after the award and then also threaten to place a 20 percent affordable housing component on the deal despite the RFP calling for market rate housing?

5) what conversations if any did you have with karim about these issues?

6) what conversations if any did you have with chris donatelli about this project?

7) which firm or firms did you prefer to see in control of this project?

8) did you suggest to or tell karim and/or williams that they'd do better to include any of the companies that you favored in the deal, either before or after they won the award?

9) how many buwa binitie projects are there in your ward?

10) how many chris donatelli or lakritz adler projects are there in your ward?

if you could reply by thursday i'd appreciate it.

thanks,

jeff

No big deal here, but I just want to be sure we are using the same version.

Please advise before I go further.

Hello, Councilman Graham,

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013816

Thanks for addressing my questions. I know there were a bunch of them.

Here's the first edit to the piece, based off the revision you sent yesterday. I'm happy to explain any of the changes, if you like.

One additional question, and a thought:

-- Do you want to refer by name to Club U? You've provided enough details that your inference will probably ring bells for a few readers, but a name might help jog the memory of more readers.

-- I'm not sure the "Now, who is left? Ah, yes, the D.C. attorney general ..." sentences are working. It might work better just to go straight from "found in The Post's editorials" to "In May 2010, out of an abundance ..." sentences.

Please let me know any thoughts or questions.

Best,
Scott

by Jim Graham

A web of sullying intrigue and aspersion can be spun by selectively choosing some facts while ignoring others. Such is the case with six editorials published by The Washington Post in a recent three-week period , all concerning my role in 2008 in a Metro development project on Florida Avenue NW and in the awarding of the D.C. Lottery contract.

"More questions for Mr. Graham," the most recent editorial headline calls out. Actually, this is not quite true - it is the very same question, somewhat repackaged, that has been asked over some 5,600 words in the six editorials. It is also mind-boggling: The Post, which has spent the past year calling for ethics reform in District government, is now criticizing me for requesting an ethics inquiry when I had a compelling reason to do so.

Why all this attention? The Post itself seemed puzzled in its Feb. 12 editorial, spending hundreds of words trying to explain why it was so cross with someone whom it had endorsed in every election. But that did give The Post a chance to regurgitate yet again the sparse facts at its command.

Much of what was written would have been red-lined out of a news story, never seeing the light of day. But editorial is opinion, and pretty much anything goes.

The Post builds much of its case on speculation regarding a four-year-old conversation I had with a group bidding to become the local and majority partner in the D.C. lottery contract. While I cannot recall every detail of the meeting, I remember repeatedly challenging the qualifications of the bidders and the irresponsible actions of one of the group's principals with a prior D.C. government lease and alcohol license at the Reeves Municipal Center. I have a big, fat file on all of that.

Members of this group were also involved with Banneker Ventures, an engineering/contracting firm that, in 2009, would be at the center of serious allegations of political cronyism, lack of qualifications and overbilling. Indeed, Banneker executives were compelled to testify before the D.C. Council on what they did and didn't do with millions in city contracts. The council's special counsel, Robert Trout, concluded his examination of the matter by recommending in a generally favorable report that the U.S. attorney conduct "further investigation" into Banneker officials regarding these contracts.

For some reason, The Post sees an injustice perpetrated against those bidding for the lottery, as well as against Banneker and its principals. I do not agree. Let's get some clarity on the facts.

First and foremost, there is zero allegation of any crime - not even by The Post - because none was committed. As well, there is no suggestion of any financial gain by me.

The Post brushes aside with little or no mention these facts:

[BULLET] No evidence of wrongdoing by Graham, the D.C. inspector general concluded last month in a lengthy review of my involvement with the lottery contract process.

[BULLET] No evidence of wrongdoing by Graham, the Metro general counsel concluded in a five-page letter dated May 28, 2010, after a careful review of the major points raised by attorney A. Scott Bolden concerning the lottery and Florida Avenue projects. Metro found that the problem with the Banneker Ventures bid was not Jim Graham. The problem with Banneker was Banneker. The contractor missed deadlines, slashed its inflated, initial offer for the land, and failed to demonstrate the capacity to do the work.

[BULLET] Just a few days ago, the current Metro board chair made clear that the unanimous board decision in 2010 to end Banneker's role in the project was "based upon a dramatic change in the developer's proposed price and other factors adverse to WMATA's business interest." In addition, she wrote, the decision was not based on "the views of Mr. Graham or any individual board member."

Similarly, the group bidding for the lottery contract lost out not because of me, but because - as one person close to the deal put it - "Forces don't want you guys in the lead decision making role."

None of this will be found in The Post's editorials.

Now, who is left?

Ah, yes, the D.C. attorney general. In May 2010, out of an abundance of caution, I did the ethical thing and asked the attorney general, Peter J. Nickles, to review these matters. He apparently took no action.

For sure, Banneker Ventures and its principals were not happy to lose out on the Metro project. It probably cost them and their lawyer, Bolden, millions. He started complaining back in 2008 to the office of the city's chief financial officer. At that time the CFO staff advised him to go to the D.C. inspector general. But Bolden curiously took no action in 2008 or 2009, instead waiting until the Metro project had been lost. Then in 2010, he wrote the bitter letter that is the cold soup The Post has been warming up over the past month.

But what about other major issues? For example, why did the CFO in early 2011 approve - by "making no objection" - the addition of Emmanuel Bailey as the replacement for the majority-ownership role for the D.C. Lottery contract? Who told the CFO to let that go? Why was Bailey - a Maryland resident with no experience and no qualifications in gaming, and with a start-up company housed in a spare room of his mother's Southeast rowhouse, given 51 percent of the lottery? Why wasn't this selection resubmitted to the D.C. Council, since Bailey was not in the lottery contract as approved?

Bolden's clients also have questions to answer. The Washington Times reported last August on e-mails to one client from Bailey - who appears to have come out of nowhere - that offered a strategy involving then-Mayor Adrian Fenty, months before Bailey was selected for the majority-ownership role. How did the men know each other? And was a financial consideration paid to Bolden's clients after they were dropped from the lottery deal?

These issues are closer to the heart of the matter, yet The Post would rather carpet-bomb the underbrush.

Let's have a full investigation of all the major issues in this contract award. Then the Post can write a seventh editorial exonerating me.

Scott, please use this version. Let me know. Bests Jim

A web of sullying intrigue and aspersion can be spun by selectively choosing some facts while ignoring others. Such is the case with six editorials published recently over a three week period by The Washington Post, all concerning my role in 2008 in a Metro development project and the D.C. Lottery contract.

"More Questions for Mr. Graham," the most recent editorial headline calls out. Actually, this is not quite true - it is the very same question, somewhat repackaged, that has been asked in some 5,600 words in the six editorials. It is also mind-boggling: The Post, which has spent the past year calling for ethics reform in District government, is now criticizing me for requesting an ethics inquiry when I had a compelling reason to do so.

Why all this attention? The Post itself seemed puzzled in its Feb. 12 editorial, spending hundreds of words trying to explain why it was so cross with someone whom it had endorsed in every election. But that did give The Post a chance to regurgitate yet again the sparse facts at its command.

Much of what was written would have been red-lined out of a news story, never seeing the light of day. But editorial is opinion, and pretty much anything goes.

The Post builds much of its case on speculation regarding a four-year-old conversation I had with a group bidding to become the local and majority partner in the D.C. lottery contract. The same persons [[NO, HIS WIFE, FATHER AND OTHERS WERE INVOLVED--CQ PERSONS? IS WARREN WILLIAMS NOT THE ONLY PERSON BOTH INVOLVED WITH W2I AND BANNEKER?] were also involved with Banneker Ventures, an engineering/contracting firm whose lawyer, A. Scott Bolden, later cried foul PERHAPS IN AN effort to win a settlement from the city. Bolden was not at the meeting. While I cannot recall every detail of the meeting, I remember repeatedly challenging the qualifications of THE BIDDERS and the irresponsible actions of one of its principals with a prior D.C. government LEASE AND ALCOHOL LICENSE AT THE REEVES CENTER. I have a big fat file on all of that.

For some reason, The Post sees an injustice perpetrated against THESE BIDDERS, ESPECIALLY Banneker and its principals. I do not agree. Banneker, as you may recall, was at the center of serious allegations of political cronyism, lack of qualifications and overbilling. Indeed, Banneker executives were compelled to testify before the D.C. Council on what they did and didn't do with millionS IN DC contracts. IN A GENERALLY FAVAORABLE REPORT, THE COUNCIL'S OWN SPECIAL COUNSEL, ROBERT TROUT, CONCLUDED HIS INVESTIGATION BY RECOMMENDING THAT THE UNITED STATES ATTORNEY COONDUCT "FURTHER INVESTIAGTION" BETWEEN BANNEKER PRINCIPALS ON THESE DC CONTRACTS. Yet none of the editorials mention any of this, despite the saga having been covered extensively in the news pages of The Post.

Let's get some clarity on the facts.

A web of intrigue and aspersion can be spun by selectively choosing some facts while ignoring others. Such is the case with six editorials published in the past 23 days by The Washington Post, all concerning my role in 2008 in a WMATA development project on Florida Avenue NW and in the D.C. Bolden was not at the meeting. While I cannot recall every detail of the meeting, I remember repeatedly challenging the qualifications of Banneker and the irresponsible actions of one of its principals with a prior D.C. government privilege. I have a big fat file on all of that.

For some reason, the Post sees an injustice perpetrated against Banneker and its principals. I do not agree. Banneker, as you may recall, was at the center of serious allegations of political cronyism, lack of qualifications, and over-billing. Indeed, Banneker executives were compelled to testify before the D.C. Council on what they did and didn't do with $82 million worth of city contracts from which they were fired because of how poorly they managed the work. Yet none of the editorials make mention of any of this despite the saga having been covered extensively in the news pages of the Post.

Let's get some clarity on the facts.

First and foremost, there is zero allegation of any crime --not even by the Post-- because none was committed. As well, there is no suggestion of any financial gain by me.

The Post brushes aside with little or no mention these facts:

- No evidence of wrongdoing by Graham, concluded the D.C. Inspector General in his January 2012 lengthy review of the facts of my involvement with the lottery contract process.
- No evidence of wrongdoing by Graham, concluded the Metro General Counsel in a five page letter dated May 28, 2010 after a careful review of the major pleas raised by attorney Scott Bolden concerning the Florida Avenue project. Metro found that the problem with the Banneker Ventures was not Jim Graham. The problem with Banneker was Banneker. Ah yes, the DC Attorney General. In May 2010, out of an abundance of caution, I personally asked AG Nickles to review these matters. Best I can tell he took no action, presumably because there was insufficient cause.

For sure, Banneker Ventures and its principals were not happy to lose out on the Lottery and Metro projects. It probably cost them and their lawyer millions. The lawyer started complaining back in 2008, and at that time the CFO staff advised him to go to the Inspector General. But Bolden took no action in 2008 or 2009, but instead waited two years until the Metro grant had been lost. Then in 2010, he wrote the bitter letter that is the cold soup the Post has been warming up over the past three weeks.

But what about other major issues? Why wasn't this selection resubmitted to the Council since Bailey was not in the lottery contract as approved?

Also, Mr. Bolden's clients will have questions to answer. As reported in the Washington Times which obtained the emails, why was Mr. Bailey—who appears to have come out of nowhere—contacting the Banneker client offering a strategy including Mayor Fenty months before he was selected for the majority owner role? How did they know each other? And was there a financial consideration paid to Bolden's clients after they were dropped from the deal?

Good morning, Councilman,

Thank you for forwarding Ms. Hudgins's statement.

I'll be glad to incorporate your edit; did you mean to attach it? The version below is the same as the one I sent you earlier.

Regarding the names, for the most part, my goal is specifics instead of generalities (such as "the Banneker client"). With such a complex subject, proper nouns help a reader hold the story in mind -- and if needed, circle back to a first reference for a reminder of how a certain person factors into the story. So where it's possible to go with names, I would encourage that. But I take your point about not wanting to repeat Colby's "cast of characters."

Best,
Scott

I have researched Banneker's general contract problems more since submission. I have major edit here. But on the question of names—an issue you quite appropriately raise frequently—its going to get confusing. There as more than Karim involved with Banneker, and Williams—as a Banneker "principal"—had others involved with him as well, including his father and wife. I see Colby King sets forth a "cast of characters" this AM. I would rather avoid that. Let me think of what to do.

Hello again,

As promised, here are questions on the sixth paragraph:

For some reason, The Post sees an injustice perpetrated against Banneker and its principals. I do not agree. Banneker, as you may recall, was at the center of serious allegations of political cronyism, lack of qualifications and overbilling [[IS THIS A REFERENCE TO THE PARKS AND REC CONTRACTS? CAN WE MAKE THAT EXPLICIT?]]. Indeed, Banneker executives [[SOURCE FOR MULTIPLE EXECUTIVES? NEWS CLIPS FROM EARLY 2010 INDICATE THAT, OF BANNEKER OFFICIALS, ONLY KARIM TESTIFIED BEFORE THE COUNCIL]] were compelled to testify before the D.C. Council on what they did and didn't do with $82 million worth of city contracts from which they were fired because of how poorly they managed the work [[SOURCE FOR THIS? NEWS CLIPS AT THE TIME DON'T REPORT THAT BANNEKER WAS "FIRED" OR "POOR MANAGEMENT," ONLY THAT THE COUNCIL "ENDED THE CONTRACT" AND "STRIPPED BANNEKER OF THE CONTRACT."]]. Yet none of the editorials mention any of this, despite the saga having been covered extensively in the news pages of The Post.

Thanks again,

Best,
Scott

Subject: Your op-ed to The Post -- initial questions

Hello, Councilman Graham,

The questions are marked below. Thank you for your assistance.

Best,

by Jim Graham

A web of intrigue and aspersion can be spun by selectively choosing some facts while ignoring others. Such is the case with six editorials published in the past three weeks by The Washington Post, all concerning my role in 2008 in a Metro development project on Florida Avenue NW and in the awarding of the D.C. Lottery contract.

"More Questions for Mr. Graham," the most recent editorial headline calls out. Actually, this is not quite true - it is the very same question, somewhat repackaged, that has been asked over some 5,600 words in the six editorials. It is also mind-boggling: The Post, which has spent the past year calling for ethics reform in District government, is now criticizing me for requesting an ethics inquiry when I had a compelling reason to do so.

Why all this attention? The Post itself seemed puzzled in its Feb. 19 editorial, [[WRONG DATE; TO WHICH EDITORIAL DOES THIS REFER?]] spending hundreds of words trying to explain why it was so cross with someone whom it had endorsed in every election. But that did give The Post a chance to regurgitate yet again the sparse facts at its command.

Much of what was written would have been red-lined out of a news story, never seeing the light of day. But editorial is opinion, and pretty much anything goes.

The Post builds much of its case on speculation regarding a four-year-old conversation I had with a group bidding to become the local and majority partner in the D.C. lottery contract. The same persons [[CQ PERSONS? IS WARREN WILLIAMS NOT THE ONLY PERSON BOTH INVOLVED WITH W2I AND BANNEKER?] were also involved with Banneker Ventures, an engineering/contracting firm whose lawyer, A. Scott Bolden, later cried foul amidst efforts to win [[THIS SUGGESTS THE EFFORTS WERE UNSUCCESSFUL; DID BANNEKER INDEED GET NO SETTLEMENT?]] a settlement from the city. Bolden was not at the meeting. [[GIVEN THIS, IS IT RELEVANT TO INTRODUCE MR. BOLDEN AT THIS POINT? IT WOULD HELP YOUR NARRATIVE TO PULL HIM OUT AND INTRODUCE HIM SIX GRAFS LATER]] While I cannot recall every detail of the meeting, I remember repeatedly challenging the qualifications of Banneker [[EARLIER IN THIS PARAGRAPH, YOU INDICATED THIS WAS A MEETING WITH W2I; DID YOU MEAN TO SAY W2I HERE THEN?]] and the irresponsible actions of one of its principals with a prior D.C. government privilege [[WHAT DOES THIS MEAN OR REFER TO?]]. I have a big fat file on all of that.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013832

For some reason, The Post sees an injustice perpetrated against Banneker and its principals. I do not agree. Banneker, as you may recall, was at the center of serious allegations of political cronyism, lack of qualifications and overbilling. Indeed, Banneker executives were compelled to testify before the D.C. Council on what they did and didn't do with $82 million worth of city contracts from which they were fired because of how poorly they managed the work. Yet none of the editorials mention any of this, despite the saga having been covered extensively in the news pages of The Post. [[I HAVE NOT YET FACT-CHECKED THIS PARAGRAPH; QUESTIONS WILL COME TOMORROW ON IT. ANY SUPPORTING MATERIAL YOU CAN PROVIDE -- SUCH AS LINKS TO THE NEWS STORIES YOU MENTION -- WOULD BE MOST HELPFUL.]]

Let's get some clarity on the facts.

First and foremost, there is zero allegation of any crime - not even by The Post - because none was committed. As well, there is no suggestion of any financial gain by me.

The Post brushes aside with little or no mention these facts:

[BULLET] No evidence of wrongdoing by Graham, the D.C. inspector general concluded last month in a lengthy review of my involvement with the lottery contract process.

[BULLET] No evidence of wrongdoing by Graham, the Metro general counsel concluded in a five-page letter dated May 28, 2010, after a careful review of the major pleas [[WAS THIS IN A LEGAL PROCEEDING? IF NOT, SHOULDN'T THE NOUN BE SOMETHING LIKE "ALLEGATIONS"?]] raised by attorney A. Scott Bolden [[THIS COULD BECOME THE NEW FIRST REFERENCE TO MR. BOLDEN -- "RAISED BY BANNEKER'S LAWYER, A. SCOTT BOLDEN"]] concerning the Florida Avenue project. Metro found that the problem with the Banneker Ventures bid was not Jim Graham. The problem with Banneker was Banneker. The contractor missed deadlines, slashed its inflated, initial offer for the land, and failed to demonstrate the capacity to do the work.

[BULLET] Just a few days ago, the current Metro board chair made clear that the unanimous board decision in 2010 to end Banneker's role in the project was "based upon a dramatic change in the developer's proposed price and other factors adverse to WMATA's business interest." In addition, she wrote, [[CAN YOU FORWARD OR POINT ME TOWARD THIS DOCUMENT?]] the decision was not based on "the views of Mr. Graham or any individual board member."

Indeed, the Banneker executive [[SINCE BANNEKER HAD NO ROLE IN THE LOTTERY CONTRACT, SHOULDN'T THIS BE REWORDED TO FOCUS JUST ON MR. WILLIAMS?]] lost out on the lottery not because of me, but because - as one person close to the deal put it - "Forces don't want you guys in the lead decision making role." [[SOURCE FOR THIS QUOTATION?]]

None of this will be found in The Post's editorials.

Now, who is left?

Ah, yes, the D.C. Attorney General. In May 2010, out of an abundance of caution, I personally asked the attorney general, Peter J. Nickles, to review these matters. As best as I can tell, he took no action.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013833

For sure, Banneker Ventures and its principals were not happy to lose out on the lottery and Metro projects. [[SINCE BANNEKER HAD NO ROLE IN THE LOTTERY CONTRACT, SHOULDN'T THIS BE JUST "LOSE OUT ON THE METRO PROJECT"?]] It probably cost them and their lawyer millions. Bolden started complaining back in 2008, [[SOURCE? MR. BOLDEN'S 4/27/10 LETTER TO WMATA INDICATES IT WAS HIS FIRST FORMAL COMPLAINT]] and at that time the CFO staff [[SINCE WE HAVE NOT YET INTRODUCED MR. GANDHI, SHALL WE EXPLAIN THE ROLE OF HIS OFFICE IN THESE MATTERS?]] advised him to go to the inspector general. [[THE DC INSPECTOR GENERAL? OR THE METRO IG?]] But Bolden took no action in 2008 or 2009, instead waiting two years until the Metro project had been lost. Then in 2010, he wrote the bitter letter that is the cold soup the Post has been warming up over the past three weeks.

But what about other major issues? For example, why did the District's chief financial officer in early 2011 approve - by "making no objection" - [[SOURCE FOR THIS QUOTATION?]] the addition of Emmanuel Bailey as the replacement for the Banneker principal [[SHOULDN'T THIS BE THE REPLACEMENT FOR W2I?]] in the majority-ownership role for the D.C. Lottery contract? Who told the CFO to let that go? Why was Bailey -- a Maryland resident with no experience and no qualifications in gaming, and with a start-up company housed in a spare room of his mother's Southeast rowhouse -- given 51 percent of the lottery? Why wasn't this selection resubmitted to the D.C. Council, since Bailey was not in the lottery contract as approved?

Bolden's clients will also have questions to answer. As reported in the Washington Times, which obtained the e-mails, why was Bailey - who appears to have come out of nowhere - contacting the Banneker client, [[IS THIS A REFERENCE TO MR. WILLIAMS? THAT'S NOT CLEAR.]] offering a strategy involving then-Mayor Adrian Fenty, months before he was selected for the majority ownership role? How did the men know each other? And was a financial consideration paid to Bolden's clients [["W2I"?]] after they were dropped from the [["LOTTERY"?]] deal?

These issues are a lot closer to the heart of the matter, yet The Post would rather carpet-bomb the underbrush.

Let's have a full investigation of all the major issues in this [["THE LOTTERY"?]] contract award. Then the Post can write a seventh editorial exonerating me.

The writer, a Democrat, represents Ward 1 on the D.C. Council.

Re: Status of Banneker Ventures Term Sheet and Award of Jazz at Florida Avenue Project

Dear Mr. Bolden:

Your letter dated April 27, 2010 to Mr. Sarles and Mr. Benjamin has been referred to me for response. The procedural posture of the Jazz at Florida Avenue Project is as follows: The Board of Directors ("Board") of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority ("WMATA") unanimously voted, on March 25, 2010, to table any action on the proposed amendment of the term sheet ("Term Sheet", attached hereto as Attachment A) executed by WMATA and Banneker Ventures, LLC ("Banneker") following Board member Graham's motion to extend the time within which to finalize a joint development agreement. The Board follows Robert's Rules of Order. Accordingly, the matter can now be taken from the table only by majority vote of the Board in accordance with the voting provisions of the WMATA Compact (Section 8). Pursuant to the terms of the Term Sheet, the exclusive negotiation period between WMATA and Banneker expired on March 31, 2010.

You have presented a number of points in your letter; although I will not respond point by point, the following discussion is intended to meet the substantive issues of concern. Let me begin by saying that WMATA staff worked diligently with Banneker representatives in attempting to achieve agreement on the revised business terms proposed by your client, which differed significantly from those originally proposed. We recognized that those revisions were driven by the changed economic circumstances. Nevertheless, the changes occurred in the context of a public solicitation for proposals for the Florida Avenue site and the differing terms presented challenges that simply could not be overcome, despite our best efforts and the efforts of your client. We appreciate your client's interest in the site and regret that the faltering real estate market made it difficult for your client to adhere to the original terms which prompted the Board's initial selection of Banneker as the developer for the site. Having said that, it is important for you to understand that the Board has plenary authority to approve the terms of a joint development agreement and that approval simply was not achieved. I know of no plans to remove the matter from the table.

By submitting a proposal in response to the Florida Avenue Joint Development Solicitation ("JDS" or "Solicitation", attached hereto as Attachment B), Banneker agreed to and accepted all of the terms of the JDS (see JDS, § 1.5). Thus, Banneker agreed that the Term Sheet was not a binding agreement between WMATA and Banneker, but only established a fixed period of time in which Banneker had the exclusive right to negotiate a binding development agreement (see JDS §§ 1.6 and 1.7; and Term Sheet § 12). Banneker also agreed that the Term Sheet would terminate upon the expiration of such exclusive negotiation period (see JDS § 3.3(C)). It has so terminated. The Board has the sole authority to approve extensions of the Term Sheet and/or the terms of the binding development agreement (see JDS § 3.3(D), Term Sheet § 2, and WMATA's Joint Development Policies and Guidelines § 5.1).

Pursuant to the Term Sheet, Banneker and WMATA established an exclusive negotiation period of five months. The Term Sheet was initially executed by Banneker in July 2008, which meant that the parties had until December 2008 to submit a development agreement to the Board for approval. Almost immediately after being granted its exclusive negotiation period, Banneker significantly reduced its offer to WMATA. For example, Banneker's winning proposal offered an annual ground lease rent payment of $597,000 per year; soon after being selected, Banneker lowered its offer to less than $200,000 per year. The Board extended the negotiation period several times to provide the parties additional time to improve the business terms. In January 2010, the Board voted to extend the exclusive negotiation period through March 31, 2010. When the Board did not approve the extension of the exclusive negotiation period on March 25, 2010, the Term Sheet expired.

In Section IV of your letter, you state that Banneker has incurred significant additional costs as a result of the protracted contract negotiations. Please note that Banneker agreed at the onset that any costs incurred by Banneker during this exclusive negotiation period are the sole liability of Banneker (see JDS § 1.9 and Term Sheet § 12).

Your letter overlooks critical details surrounding WMATA's dealings with Banneker. First, your letter provides a detailed description of WMATA's inquiry into the role of Warren Williams, Jr. and implies that the inquiry was, in some fashion, wrong. As Banneker acknowledged in its letter dated April 23, 2008, WMATA reserved the sole right to disqualify a selected developer if any member of the development team were found to have an unsatisfactory record of integrity and business ethics (see JDS § 5.2(F)). WMATA's inquiries were consistent with this right. As a publicly funded entity, WMATA has a duty to avoid entering into business relationships with persons that do not share WMATA's commitment to integrity. It is unquestioned that WMATA acted properly when it requested further information on certain members of Banneker's development team.

Your letter addresses affordable housing issues on this project, but fails to acknowledge all of the relevant facts. The JDS required proposals to be consistent with local land use policies (s*ee* JDS § 2.1). At the time of the Solicitation, WMATA's Florida Avenue property was subject to the "small area plan" adopted by the District of Columbia Council in June 2005, known as the "Duke Plan." As Banneker acknowledged in several meetings with WMATA, the Duke Plan, in conjunction with the positions of local community groups and the District of Columbia zoning and permitting offices, effectively required a 20% to 30% affordable housing set aside for any residential project on WMATA's Florida Avenue property. Banneker's acknowledgement of this fact is further evidenced by Banneker's original proposals, which included an affordable housing component (s*ee* the letter from District of Columbia Housing Finance Agency to Banneker, attached hereto as Attachment C). The Duke Plan's affordable housing policy was extant long before any purported meeting between Mr. Karim and Mr. Graham on July 2, 2008.

When reviewing all of the proposals that responded to the JDS, WMATA placed a high priority on development experience. Development experience is a priority for all WMATA joint development sites, and this project required the sophisticated expertise to be able to build a structure directly over WMATA's train tunnel. Such attention to development experience is evidenced in the JDS, which provided: (i) that the designation of a selected developer was in the nature of a personal services contract because of the importance of skills, experience, knowledge, and financing on this project; and (ii) a change in the composition of the selected developer's development team required WMATA's written approval (see JDS § 5.1).

Throughout the duration of negotiations, WMATA had concerns about the stability of Banneker's development team. Because WMATA felt that Banneker was relatively inexperienced with this type of project, it decided that Banneker needed a strong development partner. It was the presence of Banneker's much more experienced partners, first Donatelli Development and then Metropolis Development Company, which satisfied WMATA when it initially approved Banneker's proposal. But, Banneker's development team experienced constant instability. Development partners Donatelli Development, District Development Group, Metropolis Development Company, and Banc of America Community Development Corporation all dropped out of the project without warning or explanation. Consequently, WMATA understandably expressed concern with Banneker's development team.

Your letter states that, "[f]rom August 2009 through October 2009, WMATA proposed to change the Project from a lease agreement to a purchase agreement." This statement ignores crucial facts surrounding this event. WMATA made it clear from the very beginning that WMATA preferred a lease transaction over a sale (see JDS § 1.1). Banneker's winning proposal was for a lease transaction. But, three months after WMATA and Banneker executed the Term Sheet, Banneker significantly changed its proposal. Banneker informed WMATA that it intended to purchase parcels adjacent to WMATA's property in order to construct a larger single building traversing both WMATA's property and the adjacent property. WMATA immediately informed Banneker that WMATA did not want to be the ground lease landlord of half of a building. Banneker assured WMATA that it would find a way to make this situation work for both parties. Over the next 10 months, WMATA repeatedly asked Banneker to resolve this problem and voiced its skepticism about this concept. Banneker never offered any solutions, but still insisted on combining WMATA's property with the adjacent property. Finally, in August 2009, Banneker proposed a co-tenancy agreement, which would govern the ownership of the building on the combined properties in the event that Banneker defaulted on its lease with WMATA. WMATA informed Banneker that the co-tenancy agreement was an untenable arrangement for WMATA. Seeing no other solution to Banneker's insistence on adding the adjacent parcels, in late August 2009, WMATA began to explore the option of selling its land to Banneker and to evaluate whether the co-tenancy arrangement could be appropriately modified. But, in October 2009, WMATA decided to remove the sale option because of: (i) WMATA's long standing institutional preference for a lease; and (ii) concerns that the switch from lease to sale, after awarding the project would expose WMATA to bid protests. Your assertion that Mr. Graham advocated for the Florida Avenue project to be a lease transaction is consistent with the long standing policy of the Board to enter into leases rather than sales.

The incorporation of adjacent property into the project was required to be disclosed at the time of bidding under the JDS (see JDS §3.2(X)). By waiting until after it was designated as the selected developer to reveal its intention to assemble WMATA's property with adjacent parcels, Banneker caused significant problems for the negotiation.

Your letter also states that the Board removed consideration of the amended Term Sheet at the behest of Board member Jim Graham. It should be noted here that Mr. Graham, as chairman of WMATA's Planning, Development and Real Estate committee, actually recommended that the Board grant an extension of the Term Sheet. Board member Neil Albert then stepped in and moved to table the issue. The Board then voted unanimously to approve the motion to table.

In Section III, you have attempted to create the impression that improprieties occurred during your conversations with a WMATA Board member. Board members frequently discuss the progress of joint development negotiations with the parties involved. The nature of these discussions is dynamic, but the critical fact is that the discussions do not bind the WMATA Board of Directors. Nothing in your letter suggests to me that any violation of the Board's Standards of Conduct occurred. If further consideration is deemed appropriate, it will be handled in accordance with the Board's Procedures.

At all times, WMATA staff and the Board have acted in accordance with the JDS and the Term Sheet. Neither the Term Sheet nor any other document grants Banneker an entitlement to any interest in WMATA's Florida Avenue property. By entering into the Term Sheet, the parties agreed to a schedule for negotiating a binding development agreement, but there was never a guarantee that these negotiations would produce an agreement that would gain Board approval. That schedule was enlarged by a series of extensions, from December 2008 to March 2010. The Board took firm action on March 25, 2010. The Board is not required, under the JDS, Term Sheet, or WMATA's internal procedures, to provide Banneker with further explanation or rationale for its action, but I believe this letter clearly outlines the problems that are inherent in Banneker's revised business proposal.

I trust that this is responsive to your concerns.

Sincerely,

Carol B. O'Keeffe
General Counsel

Board members frequently discuss the progress of joint development negotiations with the parties involved. The nature of these discussions is dynamic and may include ways to strengthen the development team, but these discussions do not bind the WMATA Board of Directors. The allegations in your letter, standing alone, do not appear to constitute a violation of the Board's Standards of Conduct. However, if further consideration is deemed appropriate, it will be handled in accordance with the Board's Procedures. As you are aware, Mr. Graham has referred your letter to the Attorney General for the District of Columbia, regarding the claims you have made concerning District of Columbia matters.

At all times, WMATA staff and the Board have acted in accordance with the JDS and the Term Sheet. Neither the Term Sheet nor any other document grants Banneker an entitlement to any interest in WMATA's Florida Avenue property. By entering into the Term Sheet, the parties agreed to a schedule for negotiating a binding development agreement, but there was never a guarantee that these negotiations would produce an agreement that would gain Board approval. That schedule was enlarged by a series of extensions, from December 2008 to March 2010. The Board took firm action on March 25, 2010. The Board is not required, under the JDS, Term Sheet, or WMATA's internal procedures, to provide Banneker with further explanation or rationale for its action, but I believe this letter clearly outlines the problems that are inherent in Banneker's revised business proposal. I trust that this is responsive to your concerns.

Sincerely,

Carol B. O'Keeffe
General Counsel

SHAW-HOWARD/FLORIDA AVENUE JOINT DEVELOPMENT SITE: PROPOSAL SUBMISSION REQUIREMENTS

SECTION 1: ADMINISTRATIVE AND CONTRACTUAL INFORMATION

1.1. Issuing Information

This Joint Development Solicitation (JDS) is issued in accordance with WMATA's Joint Development Policies and Guidelines, Revised July 21, 2005, as may be amended, included as Attachment D to this JDS. The three parcels that comprise the Joint Development Site in this solicitation are available primarily under a long-term lease, as WMATA's preference is to lease, rather than sell, its property. If a sale is proposed, the Proposal must clearly demonstrate that a sale is more advantageous to WMATA than a long-term lease. WMATA reserves the right to select different Developers for individual parcels.

1.2. Purpose and Scope

This JDS is intended to provide interested Developers with sufficient summary information about WMATA's requirements to facilitate Proposal preparation. It contains instructions on Proposal content and format, but does not attempt to define all of WMATA's Joint Development contract requirements in detail. Certain contract requirements are non-negotiable.

1.3. Amendments and Supplements to JDS

WMATA reserves the right to issue Amendments and/or Supplements to this JDS. Developers will be required to acknowledge in writing the receipt of an Amendment and/or Supplement.

1.4. Acceptance/Rejection of Proposals

This JDS does not commit WMATA to designate a Selected Developer or to enter into a Development Agreement. WMATA reserves the right to accept or reject any or all Proposals.

1.5. Acceptance of Terms and Conditions

By submitting a Proposal, a Developer is deemed to have agreed to and accepted all terms and conditions set forth in this JDS. Notwithstanding the foregoing, WMATA reserves the right to amend or modify any of the terms and conditions.

1.6. Selected Developer Status

A designation as Selected Developer for a Joint Development Site does not mean WMATA accepts the Proposal without further negotiation. Rather, the Developer's Proposal is the foundation for further negotiation and WMATA reserves the right to negotiate a Development Agreement with a Selected Developer containing benefits to WMATA that exceed those set forth in the Proposal.

1.7. Binding Agreement

An executed Development Agreement, approved by the WMATA Board of Directors, is the only binding commitment of and by WMATA with respect to a Joint Development Site. Designation of a Selected Developer, WMATA's agreement to a Term Sheet or any conduct or oral representations by WMATA shall not in any way constitute a binding obligation or commitment by WMATA. In submitting a Proposal, the Developer acknowledges it will have no legal or equitable right to, or interest in, any Joint Development Site except as set forth in an executed Development Agreement.

1.8. Schedule of Activities

Item	Date
Request for Proposals	AUG 24, 2007
Proposals Due	OCT 5, 2007
Meetings with Developers (if required)	NOV/DEC 2007
Final Proposals Due (if required)	DEC 2007/ JAN 2008

1.9. Costs

WMATA shall not be liable for any costs incurred by a Developer and/or Development Team responding to this JDS or any costs incurred with respect to the negotiation of the Development Agreement and related final documentation.

1.10. Approvals

The designation of a Selected Developer and the terms of a Development Agreement negotiated pursuant to this JDS are subject to the approval of the WMATA Board of Directors and the Federal Transit Administration of the U.S. Department of Transportation (FTA).

Prior to submitting a Proposal, Developers are required to meet with jurisdictional representatives from the Office of Planning and interested community organizations, including the Advisory Neighborhood Commission, to share information about a pending Proposal submission to WMATA and to seek their views. Failure to comply with this requirement may result in a Proposal's being rejected. WMATA will provide a contact list to each Developer from whom a Proposal is being requested.

WMATA will hold all funds that can be deposited into a financial institution in an interest-bearing account, and interest will be paid on such funds. No later than 15 business days after the WMATA Board of Directors identifies and approves the Selected Developer for a specific Joint Development Site, the Proposal Security will be returned to all Developers other than the designated Selected Developer. WMATA shall retain the designated Selected Developer's Proposal Security until a Development Agreement is executed and provisions are made with respect to the disposition of the Proposal Security in the Development Agreement.

2.6. Alternative Proposals

Mr.Nat Bottigheimer
Contracting Officer
Office of Property Development and Management
Washington Metropolitan Area
Transit Authority
600 Fifth Street, NW
Washington, DC 20001

SECTION 3. PROPOSAL REVIEW, EVALUATION, DEVELOPER SELECTION AND POST DEVELOPER SELECTION PROCESS

3.1. Proposal Review Process
WMATA will review and evaluate Proposals as follows:

A. The Contracting Officer receives and processes all Proposals. Proposals that in WMATA's sole and non-reviewable discretion are deemed non-responsive or not reasonably susceptible of being selected for award will be rejected and returned to the Developer with a written explanation. Please note that any Proposal that does not satisfy the requirements for jurisdictional officials and community organization participation may be rejected as technically unacceptable and returned to the Developer. WMATA reserves the right to accept or reject any Proposal without negotiation or discussion.

B. The Contracting Officer designates an Evaluation Team composed of WMATA's Joint Development staff assisted by other WMATA staff, jurisdictional representative(s) and consultants, as appropriate. An analysis and evaluation of each Proposal deemed to be reasonably susceptible of being selected for award is conducted.

C. The Evaluation Team may meet with all or select Developers for both an oral presentation and specific discussions about a Proposal. If such meetings are held, details on the oral presentation will be provided as part of the scheduling process. Such discussions will include identifying areas of the Proposal that: require clarification or improvement including architectural and engineering designs and drawings, or do not comply with the JDS.

D. If requested by WMATA, Developers shall submit Final Proposals. The Final Proposal may be significantly changed from the Initial Proposal submitted. WMATA reserves the right to waive the Final Proposal submission requirement, to request further clarification of a Final Proposal, or to request a Revised Final Proposal.

E. The Evaluation Team will, in coordination with the Contracting Officer, rate each responsive Proposal, and rank it based upon the Proposal Evaluation Factors in Section 3.2. The Evaluation Team will then forward its ranking to the Contracting Officer, who will decide to tentatively designate a Selected Developer. The Joint Development project manager will commence negotiation of a Term Sheet. If negotiations are unsuccessful, the Joint Development staff, in coordination with the Contracting Officer, may terminate negotiations and commence negotiations with the second ranked Developer and those ranked thereafter, in order of ranking. Alternatively, the Joint Development staff may, in coordination with the Contracting Officer, decide upon competitive negotiations with two or more ranked Developers.

F. As soon as the principal business terms for the tentatively Selected Developer's Project have been reduced to a Term Sheet, the Contracting Officer submits a recommendation regarding the designation of a Selected Developer and approval of the Term Sheet to WMATA's Real Estate Committee and to the WMATA Board of Directors.

G. Designation of a Selected Developer must be approved by the WMATA Board of Directors.

3.2. Proposal Evaluation Factors

Each Proposal will be evaluated using FTA's requirements for "Highest and Best Use" or "Highest and Best Transit Use" (see www.fta.dot.gov/library/policy/9300.1A/appenB.htm) and the following criteria:

A. Technical Criteria

1. Degree to which the Project reflects Transit-Oriented Development principles;

2. The market viability of the Project;

3. The experience and prior performance of the Development Team;

4. The innovation and creativity of the Project;

5. The compatibility of the Project with local Transit-Oriented Development plans and land use policies; and

6. Benefits accruing to the local jurisdiction.

B. Economic Criteria

1. Financial benefits accruing to WMATA;

2. Financial viability of the Project; and

3. Enhanced ridership.

3.3. Post Developer Selection Process

A. A Developer designated by the WMATA Board of Directors as a Selected Developer will be required to send a letter to each of the community organizations with which its representatives met to inform them as to how the Proposal presented to WMATA addresses their issues or concerns. A copy of this letter must also be submitted to WMATA.

B. A Developer designated by the WMATA Board of Directors as a Selected Developer will be required to pay WMATA, in immediately available funds, a non-refundable option fee for WMATA's granting to the Selected Developer the exclusive right to negotiate a Development Agreement. The amount and timing of the non-refundable option fee shall be as set forth in the Proposal (or Final Proposal, as the case may be), in accordance with Section 2.4.

C. After WMATA's Board of Directors has designated a Selected Developer and approved the Term Sheet, WMATA staff, in coordination with the Contracting Officer, will negotiate with the Selected Developer a Development Agreement (and other necessary final documentation) that incorporates the provisions of the Term Sheet. Such Development Agreement shall be completed within 150 days following the WMATA Board's designation of the Selected Developer and approval of the Term Sheet.

In the event that this schedule is not met, the Selected Developer designation expires, the Proposal is no longer viable, and WMATA may retain the Proposal Security (in addition to the non-refundable option fee) in accordance with Section 5.2. WMATA may choose to reestablish the Selected Developer designation and provide a specific time frame to the Selected Developer for the completion of negotiations or to re-advertise the Joint Development Site.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013857

D. As soon as the Development Agreement (and related final documentation) is completed and executed by the Developer, the Contracting Officer submits a recommendation and summary of the final Development Agreement to WMATA's Real Estate Committee and to the WMATA Board of Directors for approval. There is no binding agreement between the Selected Developer and WMATA until such time as the WMATA Board of Directors has approved the final Development Agreement and the Development Agreement has been executed by the parties

3.4. Disclosure and Use of Data

WMATA is required to brief its Board of Directors on all aspects of a Proposal. The proposed business terms of a Proposal will be held in confidence only until the Development Agreement and all final documentation have been approved and executed. WMATA reserves the right to review the zoning and land use aspects of any Proposal with local zoning, land use planning, transportation and environmental officials (and in the State of Maryland, with state officials). Additionally, at the sole discretion of the WMATA Board of Directors, such review may include conducting public hearings, town meetings and similar public forums.

NOTE: WMATA's "Public Access to Records Policy" is available at MetroOpensDoors.com (click"About Metro," then click "Public access to records.")

SECTION 4. WMATA'S NONNEGOTIABLE REQUIREMENTS AND CONDITIONS

The following requirements and conditions are nonnegotiable and the concepts will be included in the Development Agreement and final documentation executed by the Selected Developer and WMATA. By submitting a Proposal in response to this JDS, a Developer is agreeing to accept and comply with these nonnegotiable requirements and conditions.

4.1. WMATA's Reserved Areas and Interests

The location of WMATA's Reserved Areas and Interests shall be determined by WMATA in its sole and absolute discretion. Additionally, the conveyance or lease of any WMATA property shall be subject to a reservation by WMATA of a permanent, exclusive and irrevocable easement for vertical and horizontal support and as otherwise necessary for the operation and maintenance of present and future WMATA Facilities, WMATA Improvements and WMATA Reserved Areas and Interests.

4.2. WMATA's Approval Rights and Adjacent Construction Requirements

The following rights and requirements apply to all Projects:

A. Approval Rights
WMATA shall have the right to approve in its sole and absolute discretion:

1. Matters that affect the integrity, functionality, efficiency, safety, operation, maintenance, legal compliance, cost or profitability of WMATA's business, customers, operations or activities;

2. Matters that affect WMATA Facilities, WMATA Replacement Facilities, WMATA Reserved Areas and Interests, ingress/egress to WMATA Facilities, etc.;

3. Matters that affect any of WMATA's adjacent property;

4. The design and construction of interim and permanent WMATA Replacement Facilities; and

5. Matters that affect the Selected Developer's obligations as they relate to timing (changes in Project schedule) and performance (changes in what will be constructed, i.e., the product mix).

B. WMATA's Comment Rights

WMATA shall have the right to comment on the development plan/site plan and on other matters concerning the Project which do not affect the integrity, functionality, efficiency, safety, operation or maintenance of WMATA Facilities, WMATA Improvements, or WMATA Reserved Areas and Interests. The Selected Developer shall be obligated to consider WMATA's comments and to respond reasonably.

C. WMATA's Construction Requirements

In order to avoid adverse impact on WMATA Facilities, Projects must be built in compliance with WMATA's adjacent construction criteria as contained in WMATA's Adjacent Construction Design Manual, Revision I and as further revised, and WMATA's Manual of Design Criteria (Release 8), which are available by e-mailing tbushnaq@wmata.com. Additionally, Developers must comply with WMATA's requirements for the relocation and maintenance of operations during construction which include the uninterrupted and unimpeded operation of WMATA Facilities. WMATA will review and approve Developer plans in accordance with established WMATA procedures.

4.3. Relocation or Replacement of WMATA Facilities

Intentionally omitted.

4.4. Selected Developer's Funding of WMATA Compact Public Hearing

Intentionally omitted.

4.5. No Subordination of WMATA's Fee Interest

WMATA will not subordinate its fee interest in its property. In a lease situation, WMATA will permit lenders to have a leasehold security interest in the Project, which security interest would be subordinate to WMATA's right to terminate the lease upon a default by the Selected Developer (subject to the lender's right to cure).

4.6. Federal Transit Administration (FTA) Requirements

WMATA is subject to the requirements of the FTA. The terms of the Development Agreement negotiated with the Selected Developer, as it pertains to WMATA property, are subject to FTA approval. While FTA may impose additional requirements which cannot be known until FTA reviews a specific Project, FTA requires that the Selected Developer comply with certain laws and regulations barring discrimination on the basis of race, color, national origin or disabilities; and further requires compliance with FTA requirements regarding conflicts of interest and debarment.

FTA also requires, as a covenant running with the land, that the entire Joint Development Project constitute a Transit-Oriented Development as defined in the latest applicable FTA Regulations. See FTA Circular 9300.1A, Appendix B, The Relationship Between Joint Development and Livable Communities on the FTA web site at: www.fta.dot.gov/library/policy/IFT/iftb.html.

4.7. Americans With Disabilities Act (ADA)

All Projects shall be constructed in compliance with Titles II and III of the Americans with Disabilities Act, 42 USCA Section 12101, et seq., as amended, and any regulations promulgated thereunder. Proposals must include a plan indicating how access from the Project to the Metro station will be provided for persons with disabilities. SECTION 5. ADDITIONAL JOINT DEVELOPMENT REQUIREMENTS AND PROCEDURES

5.1. Assignment of Proposal, Change in Developer or Withdrawal of Developer
WMATA considers the designation of Selected Developer to be in the nature of a personal services contract. The Selected Developer will be designated because of its skills, experience, knowledge and financial standing.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013860

A Developer who submits a Proposal in response to this JDS may withdraw, assign its Proposal or change the composition of its Development Team only as follows:

A. Withdrawal of Proposal

At any time prior to designation of the Selected Developer, a Developer may elect to withdraw its Proposal. Under such circumstances, WMATA shall return the Proposal Security without interest.

B. Assignment of Proposal

At any time prior to designation of the Selected Developer, a Developer may request WMATA's approval to assign its Proposal to another development entity. No purported assignment is valid unless WMATA has given its prior written approval. The Developer and its proposed assignee shall submit all documents required by WMATA before the request will be considered. WMATA is under no obligation to approve the request. If WMATA refuses to grant approval, and the Developer does not want to proceed in accordance with its Proposal, WMATA will return the Proposal Security without interest. An assignment may be subject to the requirement of a Guaranty pursuant to Section 5.7.

C. Change in Composition of Developer or Development Team

1. Prior to designation of the Selected Developer, a Developer may change its composition or the composition of its Development Team only with WMATA's prior written approval. If WMATA does not approve the change, and the Developer does not want to proceed in accordance with its Proposal, WMATA will return the Proposal Security without interest.

2. After designation as the Selected Developer, the Selected Developer must request WMATA's written approval to change its composition or the composition of its Development Team. If WMATA does not approve the change, and the Selected Developer does not want to proceed in accordance with its Proposal, WMATA may terminate the Selected Developer designation and retain the Proposal Security.

D. Other Situations

An assignment or change in the composition of the Development Team which is not addressed above is at the sole discretion of WMATA's Contracting Officer. For any such assignment or change to be valid, WMATA's prior written approval is required. Any purported assignment occurring without WMATA's prior written approval shall be void.

5.2. Termination of Selected Developer Designation

WMATA may terminate the Selected Developer designation for any of the following reasons and retain the Proposal Security and any other deposit held by WMATA (except as stated otherwise in subsections I and J):

A. The Selected Developer fails to negotiate and execute the Development Agreement within 150 days following the designation of the Selected Developer and approval of the Term Sheet by the WMATA Board of Directors.

In the event that the foregoing schedule is not met, WMATA may terminate the designation of the Selected Developer and retain the Proposal Security without any liability or further obligation to the Selected Developer. The foregoing deadlines can only be extended by action of the WMATA Board of Directors in its sole and non-reviewable discretion.

B. The Selected Developer or any individual or entity holding ownership in or comprising the Development Team declares bankruptcy.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013861

E. The Selected Developer or any principal, officer, director, partner, member, manager or equivalent of any person or entity constituting a member of the Development Team is indicted for, or convicted of, a fraud or a felony.

F. The Selected Developer or any principal, officer, director, partner, member, manager or equivalent of any person or entity constituting a member of the Development Team is found not to have a satisfactory record of integrity and business ethics, in WMATA's sole and non-reviewable discretion.

G. The Selected Developer provided materially incorrect or incomplete information in any of its submissions to WMATA, as determined in WMATA's sole and non-reviewable discretion.

H. The Selected Developer does not comply with this JDS, its Proposal or the terms of the Development Agreement as negotiated by the parties.

I. In accordance with Section 5.5, the Selected Developer conducts environmental due diligence and consequently modifies its Proposal in a manner which is unacceptable to WMATA. Under such circumstances, WMATA shall return the Proposal Security with any interest that may have accrued, less site restoration costs actually incurred by WMATA.

J. WMATA determines (in its sole and non-reviewable discretion) that termination is in its best interest. Under such circumstances, WMATA shall return the Proposal Security with any interest that may have accrued.

5.3. Metro Station Access Roads and Interior Maintenance Roads

Intentionally omitted.

5.4. Developer's Research Obligations

A Developer is expected to know all information reasonably ascertainable concerning the site size, and character, quality, and quantity of surface and subsurface materials or obstacles on the Joint Development Site as well as the existing utilities on the Joint Development Site. Some of this information is available from a visual inspection of the Joint Development Site and may be available from technical drawings and specifications (as built drawings) which WMATA will make available upon request, utility companies serving the area and local land records. WMATA has undertaken no comprehensive environmental investigations of the presence or absence of contaminated material or other environmental conditions that may affect development except as specifically identified. Interested Developers may request permission to perform a due diligence environmental site assessment prior to Proposal submission, after Proposal submission or after designation as the Selected Developer. Such due diligence site assessment and all associated costs shall be the sole responsibility of the Developer. Permission will be granted by WMATA subject to the execution of a Right of Entry Agreement with standard insurance and indemnity provisions. A sample Right of Entry Agreement is available from rdoggett@wmata.com.

WMATA shall be provided, in a timely manner, a copy of each test result and report addressing the environmental site investigation. If environmental contamination is found that requires a clean-up or remediation of the Joint Development Site under a governmental regulatory agency's review, the Developer may withdraw its Proposal (including its Final Proposal) but is responsible for site restoration costs. In the event that the due diligence environmental site assessment is performed after the designation of the Selected Developer, but prior to the execution of the Development Agreement, the Selected Developer and WMATA may negotiate the transaction based upon the levels of contaminated materials or other environmental conditions encountered which would substantially delay development or substantially increase the costs of excavation, removal or disposal of soil/materials, or the treatment of groundwater. If the parties cannot agree upon the resolution of these issues the Selected Developer may withdraw its Proposal but the Developer is responsible for site restoration costs, and WMATA has the corresponding right to terminate the Selected Developer designation in accordance with Section 5.2.I.

C. The Interested Party wishing to file a protest shall submit a written document to WMATA's Contracting Officer which contains the following:

1. The name and address of the Interested Party;

2. Description of the nature of the protest;

3 Identification of the provision(s) of this JDS, applicable Joint Development Policies and Guidelines or laws upon which the protest is based;

4. A statement of the specific relief requested; and

5. Any documents relevant to the protest.

D. WMATA's Contracting Officer shall carefully review the protest in consultation with WMATA staff. At the discretion of the Contracting Officer, a conference may be held with the Interested Party. The Contracting Officer shall have 30 calendar days to render a written decision on the merits of the protest. A determination by the Contracting Officer that a protest is meritorious may result in a change in the terms, conditions or format of this JDS in the form of an Amendment; the rejection of a Proposal; the cancellation of this JDS; or the termination of the designated Selected Developer.

E. This Protest Policy is not applicable to actions taken by WMATA in response to legal proceedings filed in the courts, or actions taken by WMATA in its sole and non-reviewable discretion.

2. Definitive Agreement
   The Definitive Agreement, to be prepared initially by WMATA and presented by WMATA to the WMATA Board for approval and signature within five months of Board Term Sheet approval, will be a Joint Development Agreement ("JDA") that will include, as an exhibit, a 60-year ground lease agreement ("Lease"), together with all related documentation upon which WMATA and DEVELOPER mutually agree. The Lease term will begin with the earlier of twenty (20) months after the WMATA Board approves the Definitive Agreement or the start of construction of the Project.

3. Property to Be Leased by Developer
   WMATA will lease to DEVELOPER approximately 28, 892 sf of land area outlined in red in Exhibit A and attached hereto (the "Leased Premises"). 4.1 DEVELOPER improvements (the "DEVELOPER Improvements") are a minimum 130,014 FAR gross square feet including not less than 104 dwelling units per District of Columbia ("District") approvals and approximately 11,750 gross square feet of retail/arts use plus associated residential and retail parking, estimated at 47 below-grade spaces, per District approvals. The DEVELOPER Improvements will be built in a single phase on the Leased Premises.

4.2 No improvements will be constructed on the Leased Premises other than the Project Improvements, unless approved in advance in writing by WMATA.

5. Due Diligence
5.1 Leased Premises Condition: In the Definitive Agreement, WMATA will provide knowledge-qualified representations customarily made by WMATA in transactions of this type, including with respect to title to the Leased Premises and the environmental history or condition of the property. DEVELOPER shall have sixty (60) days from the effective date of the Definitive Agreement to conduct its due diligence related to the Leased Premises (the "Study Period"). If DEVELOPER, in its sole and exclusive discretion, shall be dissatisfied for any reason with the results of its Study Period investigations, DEVELOPER shall be entitled, upon written notice to WMATA delivered not later than ten (10) days following expiration of the Study Period, to terminate this Term Sheet and the Definitive Agreement, whereupon WMATA shall return to DEVELOPER the entire Security Deposit or the Proposal Security (as defined below), as applicable, and both DEVELOPER and WMATA shall be relieved of any further obligations hereunder other than such obligations as shall, pursuant to the terms hereof or of the Definitive Agreement, expressly survive termination of this Term Sheet or the Definitive Agreement.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED

6. Security Deposit

6.1 Within two (2) business days of the execution of the Definitive Agreement, the DEVELOPER will place with WMATA a cash security deposit in the amount of Two Hundred Fifty Thousand and No/100 Dollars ($250,000.00), (the "Security Deposit") to secure DEVELOPER's performance. The Security Deposit will replace the $100,000 Proposal Security.

6.2 The Security Deposit will not be applied to any rental payments due to WMATA under the Definitive Agreement.

6.3 The entire Security Deposit shall be forfeited and may be retained by WMATA if DEVELOPER shall be in default under the Definitive Agreement beyond applicable notice, cure and grace periods therein provided. In such event, the Security Deposit may be applied by WMATA in whole or in part to cure such default. No such application of the Security Deposit shall constitute a waiver of any such default by DEVELOPER or an election of remedies. If the Security Deposit is applied in whole or in part as described herein, DEVELOPER shall, within ten (10) days, increase the Security Deposit by an amount equal to the amount applied.

6.4 The Security Deposit, less any amounts previously applied in connection with any breach or default by DEVELOPER and not replenished by DEVELOPER, shall be refunded to DEVELOPER upon the acceptance (not to be unreasonably withheld, delayed or conditioned) by WMATA of those sureties and guarantees identified in Sections 9.6 and 9.8 of this agreement.

6.5 WMATA shall return the Security Deposit plus interest to DEVELOPER within twenty (20) business days of its receipt of a copy of the Certificate of Occupancy for the Project.

Definitive Agreement (the "Pre-stabilization Period"). Pre-stabilization Rent, for the first fifteen (15) months, will be $100,000 per year payable in advance in quarterly instalments of $25,000. Pre-stabilization Rent will increase to $115,000.00 per year for the next twelve (12) months. For the remaining Pre-stabilization Period, rent shall be $130,000.00 per year.

7.3 Base Rent: The first base rent payment shall be paid by DEVELOPER to WMATA within fourteen (14) calendar days of the end of the Pre-stabilization Period ("Initial Base Rent"). Any delay in first payment of Initial Base Rent will require a penalty payment, the amount of which to be determined in the Definitive Agreement. Initial Base Rent will be for the first calendar year after the end of the Pre-stabilization Period and will be pro-rated accordingly, payable in advance in quarterly instalments of one-quarter of the Initial Base Rent. In no event shall the Initial Base Rent (for a full year) be less than Five Hundred and Ninety-Seven Thousand and No/100 Dollars ($597,000.00). After the Initial Base Rent payment, Base Rent will be due annually, in quarterly instalments, beginning on the first business day of the calendar year for the remaining term of the Lease ("Base Rent"), and will be pro-rated accordingly. Base Rent payments will be determined as follows:

7.3.2 For the second through tenth years of Base Rent payments, subsequent Base Rent payments due after the Initial Base Rent payment, except for the first Base Rent payment to be determined pursuant to 7.3.4 below, each Base Rent payment will be the product of the immediately preceding Base Rent payment and the Initial Escalation Factor. In no event will any Base Rent payment be less than the Base Rent payment for the preceding calendar year.

7.3.3 For the eleventh year of Base Rent payments and thereafter, except for Base Rent to be determined pursuant to 7.3.4 and 7.5 below, each Base Rent payment will be the product of the immediately preceding Base Rent payment multiplied by 1.03 (the Escalation Factor). In no event will any Base Rent payment be less than the Base Rent payment for the preceding calendar year.

7.3.4 At the time of any Capital Event as defined in Section 7.4, Base Rent will be reset at 7% of the Project land value derived through a three-appraiser process that establishes unit values for each type of Project land use multiplied by the total gross Project FAR square footage of each land use. In no event will any Base Rent payment be less than the Base Rent payment for the preceding calendar year.

7.3.5 DEVELOPER shall lease the Leased Premises for a period of sixty (60) years (the "Lease Period"). The Definitive Agreement will provide a mechanism by which Developer may request an extension of the Lease Period, subject to completion of a written agreement between the parties and approval, if necessary, by WMATA's Board of Directors.

7.4 Capital Event Participation: Capital Events (defined hereinbelow) shall be permitted in accordance with this Section 7.4. Whenever a Capital Event occurs, the DEVELOPER will make a payment to WMATA ("Capital Event Participation"). Capital Event" include any of the following by DEVELOPER: (i) assignments of the Definitive Agreement or the Lease, (ii) sales or re-financings of DEVELOPER's Improvements, (iii) other dispositions, transfers, and conversions that changes the membership of the DEVELOPER to include new members not originally included as of the execution date of the Definitive Agreement shall be a Capital Event. The Parties agree that Non-Capital Events, which will require WMATA approval, but not WMATA monetary participation, also exist and will be defined in the Definitive Agreement. A one-time payment per Capital Event will be paid to WMATA in an amount equal to ten percent (10%) of any Adjusted Gross Capital Event Proceeds. Adjusted Gross Capital Event Proceeds are the gross transaction revenues to DEVELOPER from a Capital Event, and any affiliated entities receiving income from such a Capital Event, less the payoff of remaining original Project debt secured by DEVELOPER Improvements and repayment of the original equity to DEVELOPER not yet repaid. To confirm DEVELOPER's original project debt and equity, within thirty days of the start of Project construction, DEVELOPER will provide WMATA with documentation confirming such amounts from DEVELOPER. Total debt and equity to finance the Project (amounts paid prior to the subject Capital Event) will total no more than one hundred percent (100%) of the original total Project cost, including both hard and soft costs. WMATA Base Rent will never decrease from the then payable Base Rent as a result of any Capital Event.

7.5 Periodic Rent Revaluation: Upon a Capital Event or every ten years, whichever is earlier, the Base Rent will be adjusted to 7 % of Project land value established through a three-appraiser process as described in Section 7.3.4 above. WMATA Base Rent will never decrease from the then payable Base Rent as a result of any Periodic Rent Revaluation.

7.6 WMATA Improvements: intentionally omitted

7.7 Proposal Security: If WMATA and DEVELOPER do not execute a Definitive Agreement within five months following Board Term Sheet Approval (as provided in Section 2 above), WMATA will refund DEVELOPER's full Proposal Security of One Hundred Thousand and No/100 Dollars ($100,000.00) to DEVELOPER within twenty (20) business days.

7.8 WMATA Delays: The maximum length of 45months for the Pre-stabilization Period will be extended, on a day-for-day basis, for delays caused by WMATA actions or failure to act, including obtaining FTA Approval in accordance with Section 8.5 below and . In no other event will payment of Pre-stabilization Rent, Initial Base Rent, or Base Rent be delayed, even though DEVELOPER's schedule may take longer than anticipated.

7.9 Force Majeure Delays: The maximum length of 45 months for the Pre-stabilization Period may be extended, subject to an increase in the rental payments due in order to maintain the net present value of the Definitive Agreement to WMATA, for any delays caused by acts of God, terrorism, casualty, or other events of "force majeure", as may be further defined and agreed to in the Definitive Agreement.

7.10 Changes to Project: Changes to Project, which increase Project density may be requested by the Developer, subject to the terms and conditions for such changes to the Project as may be required by WMATA in the Definitive Agreement. Such terms and conditions will require increases in rent or other compensation to WMATA.

7.11 Additional Density:

7.11.1 If prior to Lease execution, DEVELOPER receives approval for additional density over that in Section 4.1, DEVELOPER will pay additional Base Rent to be determined by multiplying such density at $60/FAR sf (subject to true-up of 3% per year from the execution of the Definitive Agreement) of additional density and multiplying the product derived (Project land value) by 7%.

7.11.2 During the term of the Lease, any densities or unit totals actually constructed on the DEVELOPER Improvements that are more than those originally shown in the Approved Site Plan will require DEVELOPER to pay additional Base Rent. The revised Base Rent payments will be determined through the three-appraiser as described in Section 7.3.4 above, with such additional Base Rent including the incremental increase associated with any actually constructed DEVELOPER Improvements.

8. Conditions to Definitive Agreement Consummation

If each of the following conditions is not satisfied within the timeframes provided below therefor, then in such instance, DEVELOPER may terminate this Term Sheet and the Definitive Agreement upon ten (10) days written notice to WMATA, in which event WMATA shall return the entire Security Deposit to DEVELOPER and both DEVELOPER and WMATA shall be relieved of any further obligations hereunder other than such obligations as shall, pursuant to the terms hereof or the Definitive Agreement, expressly survive termination of this Term Sheet or the Definitive Agreement.

8.1 Design Approvals: Within sixty (60) days after the execution of the Definitive Agreement and prior to any submission to the District, DEVELOPER must obtain WMATA's approval of a conceptual Project site plan in substantial conformance with Exhibit B, including building elevations and floor plans and related improvements to the Leased Premises such as streetscape, plazas, and sidewalks and landscaping (the "WMATA-Approved Site Plan"). The design of the Project shall be oriented in such a manner as to encourage use of WMATA transit facilities by tenants, residents, customers, and employees (as applicable) travelling to and from the Leased Premises. DEVELOPER must make its initial submission to WMATA no more than ten (10) days after execution of the Definitive Agreement.

8.2 Study Period: DEVELOPER shall be satisfied, in its sole and exclusive judgment, with its Study Period inspections in accordance with Section 5.2 above.

8.3 Public Hearing: DEVELOPER acknowledges that WMATA has concluded that a WMATA Compact Public Hearing is not required for this Project.

8.4 Subsequent Approval: DEVELOPER acknowledges that WMATA will not be bound by the Definitive Agreement unless and until such Definitive Agreement is approved by WMATA's Board of Directors and executed by WMATA.

8.5 FTA Approval: The transaction described herein is subject to Federal Transit Administration approval (the "FTA Approval"). WMATA will apply for said FTA Approval within thirty (30) days after full execution of the Definitive Agreement. The Definitive Agreement will contain appropriate termination provisions to address the possibility that the FTA may not approve the Definitive Agreement.

8.6 Financing Contingency: Developer shall have received a commitment for construction financing from a bank or other lending institution in such amounts, and upon such terms and conditions, as shall be consistent with the approved development budget for the Project and as shall otherwise be reasonably satisfactory to Developer and WMATA.

9. Special Considerations

9.1 Community Contact: Within sixty (60) days of the WMATA Board's approval of the negotiated Definitive Agreement and WMATA's written notification to DEVELOPER of such approval, DEVELOPER shall contact the appropriate community groups in the area as specified by WMATA,to apprise such groups of the Project and provide WMATA with a written report naming each group contacted, its contact person and phone number, and a brief list of issues expressed by each group. DEVELOPER's failure to perform under this provision will constitute an event of default under the Definitive Agreement.

9.2 Rezoning Approvals: DEVELOPER will be responsible for obtaining all entitlements, including, but not limited to, re-zonings, variances, special exceptions, historic district approvals, zoning modifications, TDR's or similar actions relating to the Leased Premises (collectively, "Zoning") required to allow construction of the Project on the Leased Premises. DEVELOPER will use commercially reasonable efforts to obtain such entitlements.

9.2.1 DEVELOPER will fund any and all costs of the Zoning. WMATA will not incur any costs in connection with the Zoning either in the actual Zoning process or for required on-site or off-site improvements or other work. DEVELOPER shall indemnify WMATA against any such costs.

9.2.2 At no expense to WMATA, DEVELOPER also shall be responsible for, and shall diligently and expeditiously pursue, all necessary permits and approvals, including, without limitation, land disturbance permits, building permits, and soil and erosion control measures as required by the District or any other local, state, or federal agency having jurisdiction.

9.2.3 WMATA shall cooperate with DEVELOPER in all zoning and other related land use matters.

9.3 Site Plan Approval by the District: DEVELOPER will submit to the applicable District agency or agencies a Zoning request and an application for District approval of the WMATA-approved Site Plan, for development of the Leased Premises.

9.4 WMATA Review and Approval of Site Plan: In the event that DEVELOPER makes any modifications to the Site Plan approved by the District and subsequently by WMATA (the "Approved Site Plan"), such modifications will be subject to WMATA's approval.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013874

9.5 WMATA Review and Approval of Construction Drawings: WMATA will have the right to approve or disapprove, and require changes to any of the DEVELOPER Improvements that materially or adversely affect WMATA's operations. The design and construction plans for the Project Improvements will incorporate the most recent revisions of WMATA's design and construction standards and criteria, including, without limitation "STANDARDS—2007 Drawings/ Specifications/ Design Criteria," and WMATA's Adjacent Construction Design Manual, Revision 2 (collectively, "WMATA Design and Construction Standards").

9.6 Construction Requirements: DEVELOPER shall cause all of the components of the Project Improvements to be constructed by one or more reputable contractors having a record of successfully constructing similar projects. Construction of DEVELOPER Improvements shall be insured by one hundred percent (100%) performance and payment surety bonds with a nationally recognized corporate surety acceptable to WMATA. Such surety bonds shall name WMATA as a co-obligee, and evidence of such bonds shall be furnished by DEVELOPER to WMATA at least ten (10) calendar days prior to commencement of construction of the DEVELOPER Improvements.

9.7 Interim Improvements: intentionally omitted

9.8 Guaranty: DEVELOPER will obtain from one or more third-party Guarantors, guarantees for the completion of a) construction of the Project Improvements, b) infrastructure required by either the District of Columbia or WMATA that is not included in the Site Work, c) any demolition and removal as and when required under the terms of the Definitive Agreement, d) remediation of all hazardous materials as required by the Definitive Agreement or by applicable laws, courts or governmental authorities, and e) the timely payment and performance of all other DEVELOPER obligations under the Definitive Agreement. The adequacy of security and need for this Guarantee to be further discussed in Definitive Agreement.

9.9 Transit-Oriented Development/Continuing Transit Orientation: DEVELOPER will design the Leased Premises so as to constitute a Transit-Oriented Development, and the DEVELOPER Improvements will be maintained with a Continuing Transit Orientation, as described in FTA Notice of Final Agency Guidance on the Eligibility of Joint Development Improvements Under Federal Transit Law, which can be found at 72 FR 5788.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013875

No consent by WMATA will be interpreted as a waiver by WMATA or assumption of liability or risk by WMATA. As to all Study Period activities, DEVELOPER and its consultants will be obligated, at their sole cost and expense, to restore the Leased Premises to the similar condition existing immediately prior to those activities.

11. Insurance Requirements

DEVELOPER, and each of its consultants, contractors and subcontractors, will maintain at all times, at their sole cost and expense, insurance coverages and policies to protect each of them and WMATA from claims that may arise out of activities contemplated by the Definitive Agreement. The scope and limits of such coverages and policies required by WMATA will be addressed in the Definitive Agreement.

12. Non-Binding Intent

This Term Sheet will have no binding effect on the parties except that DEVELOPER shall have the exclusive right to negotiate a Definitive Agreement with WMATA for a period of five (5) months from the date of this Term Sheet. Any expenditures undertaken by either party hereto are at its own risk. Re: Letter of Interest as part of WMATA Joint Development Solicitation
Development of three parcels on Florida Avenue, NW
Tax Exempt Bond and Low Income Housing Tax Credit Financing

Dear Mr. Karim:

The District of Columbia Housing Finance Agency ("DCHFA" or the "Agency") has reviewed your response to the Washington Metropolitan Transit Authority Joint Development Solicitation (the "Proposal Response") to redevelop the above referenced parcels (the "Project") in the Shaw neighborhood of Washington, DC (the "District").

The Agency has a strong interest in participating in the financing of the redevelopment of over 18,000 square feet of currently vacant parcels. Your proposal to develop the site into a quality mixed-use residential and retail development (aptly called The Jazz @ Florida Avenue) is consistent with the Agency's strategic objective of encouraging the development of affordable housing in vibrant mixed income and mixed-use developments. Moreover, with the proximity of the Project located directly across the street from the Agency, we are enthusiastic to partner with you to develop this site.

According to the Proposal Response, which appears to be consistent with the requirements of your Joint Development Solicitation, your proposal is as follows:

- Redevelop the site, in a mixed-use platform, into 103 high quality units of mixed-income rental housing which will be built over 11,700 square feet of ground floor retail space.
- Make 20% of the units affordable to individuals or families who earn up to 50% of the area median income (AMI).
- Partner with District Development Group and Donatelli Development, both respected developers in the redevelopment of the site.
- Include neighborhood serving retail uses including cultural and arts space.

Phone: 202-777-1600 Fax: 202-986-6705 www.dchfa.org

- Finance the $36 million development with an allocation of tax exempt bonds, equity from the sale of 4% low income housing tax credits (LIHTCs), institutional equity and possibly secondary permanent financing from the District of Columbia Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD).

Although this letter does not represent a financing commitment from DCHFA, it does represent the Agency's strong interest in financing the subject project. Based on our current and projected bond volume cap for multifamily housing, DCHFA will be able to allocate tax exempt and/or taxable bonds and 4% LIHTCs to the Project. The final allocation of bond volume cap and low income housing tax credits will depend on the final build out, tenant mix and the resultant eligible basis of the Project.

We eagerly await your submission of a formal application for financing and are looking forward to working with you to bring this much needed and exciting project to fruition.

Sincerely,

Anthony L. Waddell

Overview of the WMATA Board Meeting

September 24, 2009
9:00 am

Agenda Items Impacting the District of Columbia

Planning, Development and Real Estate Committee

Action Items:

A. Leesburg Pike Metrobus Improvements Request to Conduct Public Hearings
B. Veirs Mill Road Metrobus Improvements Request to Conduct Public Hearings

Impact: These routes are in Virginia and Maryland, respectively, with no service inside the District. The changes are intended to be cost-neutral to the Authority.

Information Items:

A. Safety Report

Discussion: On the rail side, rail maintenance safety stand-down has been launched, additional personnel have been assigned to the Safety Department to assist with conducting comprehensive safety checks throughout the rail system, and safety personnel have been assigned to night shifts to increase oversight of night work activities. On bus, six bus training instructors have completed the Smith Systems (Defensive Driving) training course, and a bus safety advisory was distributed. DDOT staff questions what steps are being taken to impart the Smith Systems expertise to drivers.

Safety report was mostly favorable in comparison to year-ago levels, with clear exceptions of rail on-board injuries and derailments, both extremely serious deficiencies. Preventable and nonpreventable bus accident rates were both improved dramatically over one year ago.

B. Metro Police Crime Statistics and Significant Facts

Discussion: Crime statistics are steady from year-ago levels. MTPD arrested a serial bomb threat suspect in August, he is accused of 21 bomb threats inside the system and has been charged with federal crimes. Assaults against bus operators are down 22% from a year ago. Gallery Place remains the top station for crime incidence in the District.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013880

C. Metro Rehabilitation

Discussion: Metro is providing substantial detail of upcoming work on the system and its impact on customers.

D. Update on NextBus

Discussion: The NextBus system is operating well, with most customers (65%) accessing predictions via the web. 35% are using the phone system.

E. Elevator and Escalator Maintenance Program

Discussion: Metro is providing an overview of the escalator and elevator maintenance program. A total of 534 escalators and 236 elevators provide service to customers in the Metro system. Next year, all mechanics will be Metro employees and preventive maintenance conducted in-house per a blue ribbon panel recommendation. Metro's CIP rehabilitates 15 elevators and 30 escalators annually.

F. City Year Secret Shopper

Discussion: In the fall of 2008, City Year partnered with Council member Jim Graham to receive a $150,000 Council-approved grant to purchase bus and rail passes in exchange for implementing the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA) Secret Shopper Program. City Year corps members have conducted 1,700 surveys on rail and bus to gauge customer service issues and performance.

Board of Directors

Items from the Finance, Administration and Oversight Committee

Action Items:

A. Approve FY11 Budget Guidance

Purpose: To obtain budget guidance from the Board regarding the development of the FY2011 General Manager's Proposed Budget, and obtain Board approval of the FY2011 Budget Guidance Resolution.

Discussion: The FY11 proposed budget guidance calls for a fare increase of 6%, resulting in a nominal 1% increase in fare revenue net of elasticity and no cuts in service levels. Mainly because the currently in-place advertising contract expires at the end of FY10, non-passenger revenues will see a dramatic cut of $44.9m. Total authority revenues even with the 6% passenger fare increase are projected to be down nearly $1m from FY10 levels.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013881

Impact: Given the pro-forma scenario, total subsidy for FY11 would be $653.3m, an increase of $106.6m or nearly a 20% increase. The District has budgeted a 5.7% increase in WMATA subsidy for FY10. Clearly additional cost savings must be found, service levels reduced, fares raised more than 6%, or other revenue sources identified in order to close the gap and provide a balanced budget for Board consideration by December 2009.

B. Amend FY10 Budget for DHS-Funded Security Projects

Purpose: To inform the Finance, Administration and Oversight (FAO) Committee and the Board of Directors of the availability of 100% federally-funded U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) grants; and
2. To obtain FAO concurrence and Board approval to:
(a) amend the FY 2010 Annual Budget to include federal security grants that require no matching funds, and apply $6,820,291 of grant funds to the FY10 Operating Budget, and apply $60,369,913 of grant funds to the FY 2010 Capital, Metro Matters Program;
(b) modify existing engineering, construction and equipment contracts and/or advertise and award contracts for security projects funded by the DHS funds; and
(c) authorize 25 DHS grant-funded positions to the Metro Transit Police Department.

Discussion: Despite their significant financial contributions to Metro security, and the fact that DHS grants presented in this action require no matching jurisdictional funds, most of these grants will impact future Metro budgets. DHS-funded equipment will need servicing and maintenance, just as non-DHS funded fire alarm systems need periodic testing, servicing, repairs and upgrades to keep them working. DHS grants do not pay for that work, so future Metro budgets will likely bear the load. This action does not address the sustainability challenge, except to suggest that while the transit industry operates in a heightened security status, the cost of sustaining security systems is analogous to the cost of sustaining fire suppression/alarm systems. It is a necessary business expense to maintain safety and security systems.

Impact: Action has no immediate fiscal impact on the District, but will increase future operating costs of the Authority by $1.4m in 2011 and $1.9m in 2012, with continued operating costs thereafter for maintenance of the new equipment and programs.

Items from the Planning, Development and Real Estate Committee

Action Items:

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013882

A. Amend Sale of Arlington Bus Garage Property

Purpose: Obtain Board approval to amend the Sale and Development Agreement with Ashton Park Associates, LLC to allow for a phased sale of the Arlington Bus Garage property.

Discussion: This property was advertised as available for development in the February 11, 1999, Joint Development Solicitation. Ashton Park Associates, LLC ("APA") was chosen as the selected developer of the 179,497-square-foot property, and an Interim Term Sheet was negotiated and approved. A Sale and Development Agreement was executed on June 5, 2007, which contemplated the sale of the property for office and residential development by December 31, 2009.

Due to the collapse of the real estate credit market, APA has been unable to obtain debt financing for purchase of the entire property. APA has requested a phased sale of the property to allow development of a first phase office building for a committed Federal government tenant. To facilitate this Arlington County economic development objective, staff has negotiated an Amendment to the Sale and Development Agreement that provides for the sale of the property in two or three phases, with completion by December 23, 2011, and no diminution in present value.

Impact: Proceeds from this sale will be reimbursed to the Metro Matters Capital program from which funds were advanced, pursuant to Board Resolution 2006-02, subject to reimbursement from the sale of the Arlington Bus Garage. The replacement garage, as built and operational, is shared by both Metro and Fairfax County.

B. Extension of Negotiating Period for Shaw Howard University/Florida Avenue Parcels

Purpose: Extend the negotiating period for the Shaw-Howard U./Florida Avenue joint development site by 120 days, from August 2009, to allow negotiation of a term sheet and joint development agreement to be brought to the Board in December 2009.

Discussion: In April 2009, the Board approved a 120-day period to renegotiate a term sheet for the Shaw-Howard U./Florida Avenue joint development site, which consists of three separate parcels totaling 28,892 sf located between 7th and 9th streets NW in Washington, DC. The development team, led by Banneker Ventures, LLC, proposed to lease the site from Metro for 60 years and build a minimum of 104 housing units over ground floor retail space of approximately 11,750 sf.

Upon approving the development team in June 2008, the Board requested that an affordable housing component be included in the project. The development team then amended its financial offer to Metro to include a substantial reduction in rent to reflect its affordable housing component. The project has undergone other delays due to FTA requirements and negotiation regarding the affordable housing component.

An appraiser has been engaged, but will not complete its assignment in time for conclusion of term sheet negotiations and a Board decision in September 2009. Accordingly, and in light of the fact that the development team and staff have been reviewing a draft joint development agreement, staff proposes instead to conclude negotiations on the term sheet and joint development agreement and bring both to the Board for its consideration in December 2009.

Impact: This action will have no immediate impact on funding. Revenue from the project will be deposited into the Transit Infrastructure Investment Fund (TIIF).

C. Initiate New On-Call A-E Contracts

Purpose: To obtain Committee concurrence and Board approval to initiate six separate "On-Call" professional, architectural, engineering, and planning services contracts for Fiscal Years 2011 through 2016.

Discussion: The proposed five-year "On-Call" engineering services contracts shall be structured using six separate major specialty contracts: (1) Architectural, Structural, Civil, Electrical, Mechanical and New Projects; (2) Traction Power, (3) Communication, (4) Automatic Train Control and Track Work, (5) Automatic Fare Collection, and (6) Planning. This structure will provide increased competition, better response to technical issues and a larger knowledge base of specialty disciplines.

Impact: There is no impact on funding at this time; however, projections indicate that similar levels of funding will be expended on the new "On-Call" contracts as for the present "On-Call" contracts. The FY10 "On-Call" program includes $14,143,000 for the SF5070 contract and $4,800,000 for the SF5111 contract.

D. Initiate Orange/Blue Line System Rehabilitation Contract

Purpose: To obtain Board of Directors approval to initiate a contract to provide System Infrastructure Rehabilitation for the Orange and Blue Lines from Stadium-Armory Metrorail station to Reagan National Airport station.

Discussion: This is a continuation of the new System Infrastructure Rehabilitation Program for the Metro rail system presented at the July 24, 2008 Committee and Board Meetings. The Red Line rehabilitation – 1 contract received Board approval to award a $177 Million contract on July 16, 2009. The Orange/Blue Line project will enhance Metro`s ability to keep the system in a state of good repair, with minimal disruption, increase productivity and reduce cost.

Work to be performed includes, but is not limited to, traction power, automatic train control, motor control centers, communications upgrades, track fasteners replacement, tunnel lighting replacement, tunnel ventilation and fire standpipe rehabilitation. Station rehabilitation includes platform slab/tile replacement, canopy roof replacement, station vaults repair, air conditioning/ventilation equipment rehabilitation and replacement, lighting, public address, closed circuit video camera (CCTV) system upgrades and elevator/escalator rehabilitation.

A contract award is anticipated for June 2010, with the projects continuing for five years after that date.

Impact: Funding for the first $41.5m is included in Metro Matters, but the remaining needed funds ($338.5m) are subject to approval via the next capital funding agreement. Rehabilitation will have significant impacts on passengers for the duration of construction due to single tracking and station closures.

E. Initiate Rail Yard Infrastructure Rehabilitation Project

Purpose: To obtain Board of Directors approval to initiate a contract to provide System Infrastructure Rehabilitation for three Rail Maintenance Yards: Alexandria, Brentwood and New Carrollton.

Discussion: This project is the first of three proposed projects for rail operations and maintenance facilities, and the third in a series of contracts, which are part of an overall System Infrastructure Renewal Program (IRPG) that was presented at the July 24, 2008 Committee Meeting. The Red Line Rehabilitation - 1 contract received Board approval to award a $177 million contract on July 16, 2009.

Examples of rehabilitation activities include: bring electrical systems into code compliance; overhaul fire hydrants; install control tower fire escapes; replace shop/building equipment (air compressors/dryers, steam cleaners, HVAC, plumbing fixtures, water heaters, boilers, sprinkler system components); upgrade security & Public Address systems; install new or replacement signage; repair or replace street and yard lights; rehabilitate bathrooms, locker rooms, office spaces; rehabilitate wear surfaces including interior/exterior walls, floors, stairs and ceilings; rehabilitate pavement/fence; restore landscaping.

Under this project, the work will be scheduled by facility with construction initiating on the Alexandria Rail Yard in early 2010 completing in late 2011 with a budget of $61.1 million. Brentwood follows in early 2011 completing in late 2012 with a budget of $36.8 million. The final yard under this contract is New Carrollton with construction initiating in mid 2012 completing in mid 2014 with a budget of $29.8 million. A contract award is anticipated for June 2010, with the projects continuing for five years after that date.

Impact: Funding for the first $34m is included in Metro Matters, but the remaining needed funds ($93.7m) are subject to approval via the next capital funding agreement.

F. Approval of the Public Hearing Report for Cinder Bed Road Bus Garage

Purpose: To obtain concurrence from the Planning, Development and Real Estate Committee and approval, subject to a final financing plan, from the Board of Directors for: 1. The Final Public Hearing Staff Report and Final General Plans for a new bus facility; and 2. Approval of the Project and amendment of the Mass Transit Plan to add the Cinder Bed Road Bus Facility.

Discussion: The proposed action taken to the public hearing is for a new bus facility in Fairfax County on Cinder Bed Road. The facility would house up to 160 buses with a LEED Silver rating and with capability for Compressed Natural Gas (CNG) buses. The Public Hearing was held on July 28, 2009 in Fairfax County and one person testified in opposition to the proposal due to traffic concerns. The Public Hearing comment period closed at 5:00PM on August 7, 2009 at which time five additional written comments were received. Four of the written comments oppose the proposed action primarily on concerns related to traffic in the vicinity of the new facility. The fifth comment came from Fairfax County staff with technical comments that will be addressed as the project moves forward into final design.

Impact: No Budget approval is being sought with this action. The budget and funds approved by the Board in April 2009 included the costs associated with the holding of the public hearing.

Overview of the WMATA Board Meeting

June 25, 2009
9:00 am

Agenda Items Impacting the District of Columbia

Customer Service, Operations and Safety Committee

Action Items

A. Approval of Retail Services Demonstration Program

Purpose: To gain Board approval to issue a Request for Proposals (RFP) for a three-year Retail Demonstration Program with five one-year options.

Discussion: This RFP would seek proposals for retail services at all 86 Metrorail stations with locations subject to approval by operational departments. Multiple license awards may be made under this solicitation.

The sale of food, beverages, alcohol and tobacco would be prohibited, and proposals would not be accepted for these items, per Board direction from the earlier presentation of the proposal.

All types of retail structures would be considered: kiosks, carts, vending machines and mobile units. Licenses would be required, with Metro`s assistance, to obtain all local jurisdictional approvals and permits.

Impact: Action is expected to generate net positive revenue for Metro, but the amount will be unknown until proposals are received.

Information Items

A. Safety and Security Report

Purpose: To provide the Committee with an update on Safety and Security as of April 2009.

Discussion: Metrorail and Metrobus safety data continue to show downward trends for passenger and facility occupant injuries; however this report's timeframe does not cover this week's tragic rail incident and associated injuries and fatalities.

Crime trend data identified that the vast majority of robberies were the unarmed snatching of personal electronic devices from passengers. MTPD has established a plainclothes robbery detail and adjusted deployment schedules in an attempt to curb this problem.

B. NextBus

Purpose: To provide the Committee with an update on the status of NextBus and the rollout effective July 1, 2009.

Discussion: On July 1, 2009, Metro will relaunch the NextBus system which had been discontinued temporarily in October 2007. The prior launch suffered from reliability issues and was deemed non-functional. While the NextBus technology was not at fault, the information supplied to the NextBus system by the Metrobuses themselves was not working to a sufficient degree of accuracy and the resulting arrival predictions were poor as a result. WMATA has since upgraded their on-bus technology as well as backoffice servers to allow the system to function appropriately.

Information will be made available on the web, via mobile devices, on electronic signs, and on voice readers (at stops, and on telephone using voice response).

C. Operational Performance

Purpose: To provide the Committee with monthly operational highlights for April and system performance trends for FY09.

Discussion: Rail on-time performance for the month of April was 93%, slightly below goal of 95%. Average weekday bus ridership is down nearly 3,000 riders per day as compared to FY08 complete; WMATA has yet to fully explain the causes of stagnant bus ridership. Possibly, some riders were lost from the system completely with the elimination of paper transfers or they are now taking fewer trips. Elevator availability was at goal, but escalator availability was below the 93% goal at 90.4%. MetroAccess on-time performance is near 92% with average daily ridership up 57% from FY08.

Metrobus on-time performance by day shows the same trend as last month: nearly 90% of trips in the a.m. peak operating on-time, with performance degrading for the rest of the day. Approximately 1/3 of all trips in the p.m. peak arrive outside their scheduled window.

MDBF statistics by bus fleet were updated – all three types of newer buses (CNG, Hybrid, Clean Diesel) consistently perform better than the 'all other fleets' category consisting of all older diesel buses. On average for FY09, clean diesel performs the best in terms of reliability, followed by CNG and Hybrid, but the relative differences are small compared to the older buses as a group. 58% of the bus fleet consists of the older buses.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013891

Cost avoidance of MetroAccess patrons taking advantage of free rides on Metrobus/Metrorail is projected at $18 million for FY09.

No longer shown are escalators and elevators with long periods out of service (the so-called dirty dozen list).

Board of Directors

Items from the Planning, Development and Real Estate Committee

Action Items

A. Lease of Easement Rights at Shaw-Howard University Station
Purpose: To request Board approval of a lease to Broadcast Center Partners (BCP), LLC with option to purchase various easement rights from Metro at the Shaw-Howard University Metrorail station north entrance.

Discussion: The proposed lease area includes an easement over Metro`s escalator parcel for window washing on the front facade of the office building, an easement over Metro`s elevator parcel for portion of office building entrance, and underground easements for part of parking garage and office building footings.

Term of the lease is 99 years commencing when BCP closes on its Land Disposition and Development Agreement with the District. The agreement calls for an initial payment of $336,000 with the balance of $864,000 paid out over 99-year lease term with interest. Annual Rent paid in the amount of $61,413 will total $6,079,887 over the 99-year life of the agreement.

This is a revenue generating contract with funds to be deposited into the Transit Infrastructure Investment Fund ("TIIF"). Use of these funds is restricted to Federal Transit Administration-eligible capital projects.

B. Approval to Hold a Public Hearing for Cinder Bed Road Bus Garage

Purpose: To obtain concurrence from the Planning, Development and Real Estate Committee and approval from the Board of Directors to authorize staff to conduct a Public Hearing for a new bus facility to be located on Cinder Bed Road in Fairfax County. The facility would replace the aging Royal Street garage.

Discussion:
The project was initiated by way of an unsolicited proposal by a developer to support the construction of a replacement facility to Royal Street and develop the former site. Bus capacity is proposed to expand from 71 at Royal to 160 at Cinder Bed Road.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013892

Impact: Proposed facility is 13 miles from existing Royal Street garage and WMATA acknowledges that there are probable added deadheading costs to serve bus routes out of the new facility, but have not explicitly quantified them. DC Village is nearly 7 miles from former Southeastern Garage to the new garage and came saddled with an additional $4.8 million per year in deadheading costs until the new facility is built. Though this is only an authorization for a public hearing and does not authorize the project, board members may wish to inquire why there is no indication as to who will pay for added deadhead costs from the relocation of Royal Street garage and how much they are.

C. Authorization to Negotiate and Execute a MOU with Montgomery County for Wheaton Redevelopment

Purpose: Authorize (1) inclusion of Metro properties at Wheaton Station in a Montgomery County solicitation similar to Metro`s Request for Qualifications process in which a developer is selected to help plan an ultimate redevelopment, and (2) execution of a Memorandum of Understanding ("MOU") with Montgomery County defining the basic ground rules under which the Metro property would be included.

Discussion: Two properties at the Wheaton station were the subject of a Metro solicitation by which the selected developer was to build an apartment project on the east side of Georgia Avenue and an office building on the west side. The apartment building is now substantially complete, but the developer was not able to find tenants for the office building and withdrew. A short time later, Metro was contacted by Montgomery County, which is interested in finding a developer to redevelop downtown Wheaton. The County will include its property on the same block as the Wheaton bus station and Metrorail station entrance, as well as others in the adjoining blocks.

Impact: There is no current impact on funding. Assuming the process contemplated by the MOU is successful, there will be future agreements which, if approved by the Metro Board, would likely generate revenue and/or improved station access. However, there are no immediate financial consequences of executing the MOU.

Information Items

A. Bus Facility Plan

Purpose: The presentation describes pending action that address:
1. The activities underway to replace the Southeastern bus garage in the District of Columbia (which was vacated in 2008) with a new bus facility at DC Village,
2. The planning efforts to replace Southern bus garage in Prince George's County with a new bus facility and the potential to expand this 103-bus facility to

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013893

a 220-bus capacity, and
3. The activities underway to replace the Royal Street bus garage in Alexandria with the new Cinder Bed Road facility in Fairfax County with the capacity to expand from 83 buses to 150 buses.

Discussion: Though there is much interest in closing down Northern Bus Garage and this action calls for a solicitation for turning this property over to private interests, WMATA has not fully calculated or presented a detailed plan for phasing this shutdown and how it would impact systemwide capacity or increase deadheading costs. Before a decision is made on Northern, such a plan should be fully vetted with DDOT and District officials.

Impact: Funding sources for any of these projects are not currently budgeted or within an adopted capital improvement plan.

Items from the Finance, Administration and Oversight Committee

Action Items:

A. Capital Budget Amendment for the Columbia Pike Streetcar – Environmental Planning and Preliminary Engineering

Purpose: Obtain approval to (1) establish a reimbursable project entitled "Columbia Pike Streetcar - Environmental Planning and Preliminary Engineering" to be included in the FY 2010 Reimbursable Projects Budget and (2) negotiate and execute separate reimbursable agreements with Arlington County and Fairfax County.

Impact: None to the District. Metro proposes to develop interoperability standards for light rail and streetcars under the FY 2010 Project Development Program, which will have future positive impact on the District should we choose to engage Metro on the construction and possible operation of a District streetcar network.

B. Approve FY 2010 Budget for referral to Board of Directors

Purpose: To present to the Board of Director's Finance, Administration and Oversight Committee the General Manager's FY 2010 budget of $2.1 billion for approval.

Discussion: Metro's FY 2010 operating portion of the budget totals $1.4 billion which includes operating revenue, expense and subsidy and the FY 2010 Metro

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013894

Matters capital and projects portion of the budget which totals $0.7 billion. This action approves the budget.

Impact: The fiscal impact of approving Metro's operating budget on the District is approximately $53 million per quarter for the base operating subsidy. There is an additional amount for new debt issuance for Metro Matters projects funded through the operating subsidy of about $3.38 million (per local funding agreement, LFA) and a capital subsidy $15 million for a grand total of $71.28 million per quarter.

C. Amendment to the Procurement Policy

Purpose: To request Board approval to amend Chapter 1 of the Procurement Procedures Manual to implement procurement streamlining initiatives.

Discussion: In September 2007, the Board of Directors approved procurement streamlining initiatives based upon recommendations from a peer review performed in December 2006 by the National Institute of Government Purchasing.

In preparation for receipt of federal grant funding through American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009, the Authority developed a Plan of Contracts for stimulus projects and presented this plan to the Board on March 26, 2009 for review and approval.

In general, the changes will grant the General Manager approval authority for most contractual matters, regardless of dollar value, if the contracts appear on the Plan of Contracts that will be approved annually with the budget. The requested changes involve authority to: initiate procurements, award and modify contracts, including sole source contracts.

Subsequent discussion with the JCC assured staff that the measures meet or exceed Federal standards in all cases, and that the annual adopted Plan of Contracts is a critical check on the sole-source contracts because any sole-source not listed on the fiscal year Plan of Contracts must come to the Board as a separate item.

Impact: Action has no impact on the District.

D. Review of MetroAccess Ridership, Cost and Policy and Extension of Contracting Authority.

Purpose: To provide the Board of Directors with a detailed briefing on the source and nature of growing ridership and cost associated with the MetroAccess paratransit service; and (2) to request approximately $200 million in additional contracting authority to continue the paratransit service contract through FY 2011.

Discussion: The detailed briefing includes data on the sources of Paratransit ridership growth by jurisdiction. There is a discussion of the treatment of the evolution of the service from a policy perspective and its corresponding impact on growth. Data on the MetroAccess Free Ride Program and APTA Peer Review were also included.

Impact: The FY 2010 portion of this request ($90 million) is already included in the FY 2010 budget, has no adverse impact on the District. In FY 2011, $100 million in additional contract authority would be subject to Board approval as part of the FY 2011 budget.

Items from the Customer Service, Operations and Safety Committee

Action Items

A. Approval of Retail Services Demonstration Program

See discussion of this item earlier in this briefing.

Administrative Items

Action Items

1. Approval to Initiate & Award a Contract for Environmental Mitigation - Rohr Car HVAC Project

Purpose: To request Board approval to initiate and award a competitive contract for environmental mitigation in the Rohr railcars as part of the Rohr car HVAC project.

Discussion: As part of the Rohr 1000-Series HVAC overhaul, the evaporator coils will be thoroughly cleaned and new AC blower motors, blower wheels, and inverters will be installed. Environmental mitigation services are required during the performance of this work to remove non-friable material from the evaporator units located at the front and rear of each Rohr car. Amount is not to exceed $400,000.

2. Approval to Revise Morgan Boulevard Station Connection Agreement

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013896

Purpose: Obtain Board approval of revised terms to the Connection Agreement with Camden Summit Partnership, L.P. for a pedestrian connection at the Morgan Boulevard Metrorail station.

Discussion: Metro staff has been working with the new Camden team on an acceptable, safe connection between the Camden 478-unit development and the Morgan Boulevard Metrorail station. As a result of recent negotiations, Camden is willing to construct a pedestrian connection which includes sidewalks, stairs, an ADA-compliant ramp, lighting, landscaping, hardscape and an irrigation/drainage system and to maintain the approximately 32,189 square feet of Metro property between the Camden project and the Morgan Boulevard station under a 20-year term agreement, with Camden contributing $75,000 to Metro upfront and escalating fees beginning at $6,450 annually. This is a revenue generating contract with fees to be deposited into the Transit Infrastructure Investment Fund ("TIIF"). Use of these funds is restricted to Federal Transit Administration eligible projects.

3. Approval of FY2010 Project Development Program

Purpose: Obtain Board approval of the projects included in the Fiscal 2010 Project Development Program, totaling $3 million.

Discussion: District projects include DC Bus Service Development Studies, DC On-Street Bus Terminals, Union Station Capacity and Access Study, Planning Support, Stakeholder participation in transit land use studies, Joint Development planning support. Regional projects include Regional Transit System Plan (Core Capacity), Interoperability Standards for Light Rail and Streetcar Systems, Capital Improvement Plan Update.

4. Extend Negotiation Period for Navy Yard Chiller Site

Purpose: Approve a 180-day extension for negotiating an agreement for the Navy Yard Chiller joint development site.

Discussion: On July 24, 2008, the Metro Board of Directors selected Donatelli Development (Developer) to redevelop the 14,100sf Navy Yard chiller plant joint development site, located at Half and L streets, SE, to provide approximately 84 housing units and 3,500sf of ground floor retail space under a ground lease with an initial term of 60 years. At its own cost, the Developer will place two new, larger chillers within the development and relocate Metro field trailers now on the site to service yard locations selected by Metro.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013897

A draft joint development agreement and lease exhibit are being finalized. An extension of 180 days from the date of this Board action is requested for negotiating the agreement and bringing it to the Board for approval.

Jeff,
Councilmember Graham forwarded to me the email below. Plaintiff's allegations, while untrue, are the subject of pending litigation and it would be inappropriate to offer any additional comment on the matter. Given that the deposition subpoenas will be challenged, it would be especially inappropriate to seek to litigate the matter through the press, notwithstanding Plaintiff's apparent desire to do so.

john,

has the councilman been served with that deposition subpoena yet? are you all going to cooperate or go through counsel to resist?

i've left messages for the councilmember and have not heard back on the other questions. we are asking him to respond to the claims made by the representatives of the w2tech team, which i understand prompted a subpoena and an interview with alaka williams before the office of integrity and oversight, which is out of gandhi's office. the email reactions from the williams team, especially their lawyer, a. scott bolden, are very clear and consistent in their version of events, which states that mr. graham offered to support their lottery award if williams would jump off a wmata award he won with banneker.

please let me know if mr. graham is willing to offer his version of events, and his thoughts on whether OIO is independent enough to conduct an investigation of a procurement run by the CFO, and whether the OIG is motivated to follow through with a vigorous investigation on the request of the former AG.

also, what does he think about the online gaming proposal, including how it was handled, and who is involved with getting it through the council?

finally, does he have any concerns about the local bidder, mr. bailey, based on published reports that reflect on his business background and representations of same?

thanks for your attention.

Re: Shaw-Howard Florida Avenue Joint Development Site

Dear Mr. Turay:

Thank you for the submission of your proposal for the above-referenced 2007 Joint Development Solicitation (JDS) site.

The purpose of this letter is to bring to your attention missing or incomplete items or items that require further discussion and clarification. We would like to schedule an oral presentation by your team on December 17, 2007 at 1 p.m. at WMATA headquarters and have attached instructions for the presentation. We ask that you provide 10 copies of the supplementary information requested in this letter not later than the presentation and preferably before so that we may first review it.

The following items need clarification, correction or completion:

Technical Information
What is the experience of the team in actually carrying out a residential development? This was not apparent from your proposal.

What is the contractual arrangement between Moddie Turay Company and Clark Enterpises? Has an agreement been worked out?

What, if any, zoning approvals or variances will you be seeking for Parcels 1 or 3?

Assess the market for rental apartments in the area now that conversions of condominium projects to rental product are occurring. Is the market becoming oversaturated with rentals and would you expect to experience difficulty in obtaining financing for your project.?

Do you have prospective tenants for the retail components of your project?

You appear to close the alley between 8th and 9th streets. Do you regard this as feasible? Can you obtain agreement from adjacent property owners?

Calculations of annual property, sales and any other taxes to the local jurisdiction are missing from your proposal. Please provide.

Economic Information

Note that your valuation of the site is considerably below WMATA's appraisal and needs to be increased substantially or your offer cannot be considered.

WMATA expects escalation in the sale or rent amount from today's values if closing is delayed beyond a year. Please indicate how you would satisfy this requirement.

Please be more precise about how you derived fair market value indicated as $6,496,200.

The pro forma rent, $279,000 annually does not seem to square with your statement that you will pay 8% of land value. Nor does escalation, stated as 2.5% annually , appear to take place in the pro forma.

Schedule: since rent does not start until stabilization, please indicate the outside date for stabilization.

WMATA also expects and receives participations in capital events and in cash flow (or, alternatively to cash flow, revaluation of the project in which rent values do not fall below the previous year). Please provide your proposal.

Is it expected that Clark Enterprises will provide the equity for this project? Do you have alternative equity sources?

Please submit the balance sheet that the proposal indicates will be provided under separate cover.

We look forward to your presentation and to further discussion on this project.

Sincerely,

/s/

Re: SHAW-HOWARD FLORIDA AVENUE JOINT DEVELOPMENT SITE

Dear Mr. Washington:

Thank you for reviewing my proposal. I hope the following responses address your questions and provide clarifications on our proposal.

I. Technical Information

1. What is the experience of the team in actually carrying out a residential development? This was not apparent from your proposal.

Our development team has significant residential development experience in the Washington DC Metropolitan Area and nationwide. Clark's portfolio of projects includes some of the most prominent in the market and reflects the company's extensive knowledge of the residential real estate industry. Clark has acted as the developer and co-developer in numerous joint ventures with qualified development partners, such as Moddie Turay Company, LLC (MTC). Clark has decided to form an ongoing strategic partnership with MTC based on MTC's principal's significant experience in managerial roles, while at Western Development Corporation, on some of the most complex mixed-use projects in the Washington DC Metropolitan Area.

MTC also has significant experience working with District officials and community members. Clark offers unparalleled resources to meet the needs of any joint venture. Clark has, in-house and at the ready disposal of our development team, substantial expertise to bring to every phase of the development process. Further, Clark is not only the largest, private general contractor in the United States, but also one of the largest residential developers in the Washington Metropolitan Area. In the past seven years, Clark has developed (or has under development) more than $6 billion of real estate, including numerous large-scale residential real estate developments. Clark will provide the equity for the project and act as the co-developer and general contractor in the joint venture with MTC, providing all of the necessary development services needed to create a world-class mixed-use project along Florida Avenue.

2. What is the contractual arrangement between Moddie Turay Company and Clark Enterprises? Has an agreement been worked out?

   Clark and the Moddie Turay Company have formed a joint venture under the legal entity, Renaissance Row LLC, and are currently in the final stages of negotiating the joint venture terms. An agreement is expected to be signed by the end of December. The arrangement provides that Clark will fund 100% of the total equity for the project. Clark and Moddie Turay Company will jointly develop the project and will use resources of both companies.

3. What, if any, zoning approvals or variances will you be seeking Parcels 1 or 3?

   We are confident that we can build what we have presented based on our preliminary evaluation of the current zoning. However, as we proceed with the entitlement process and as our project is refined, we may determine that may require a variance. At this time, we do not anticipate needing a variance. However, if we are selected, we will remain in consultation with our land use counsel.

4. Assess the market for rental apartments in the area now the conversions of condominium projects to rental product are occurring. Is the market becoming oversaturated with rentals and would you expect to experience difficulty in obtaining financing for your project?

Apartment vacancy in the District of Columbia is forecasted at 3.1% with effective rent increasing 5% from last year. Clark is the owner of over 5,000 apartment units in the Washington Metropolitan Area. We feel the Shaw neighborhood is a growth area that can sustain the current in flux of condominium conversions and speaks directly to our long term investment strategy to acquire, develop and own high quality, well-located real estate opportunities in the Washington Metropolitan area. Since its inception in 1972, Clark has become one of the nation's largest privately held companies and based on Clark's track record, we do not anticipate difficulties in obtaining financing for Renaissance Row with any number of Clark's long term banking relationships. See the attached letter from Maury Zanoff, CBRE, which confirms our ability to obtain financing.

5. Do you have prospective tenants for retail components of your project?

Renaissance Row, LLC provided letters of interest from prospective tenants in our proposal, and we have re-attached them to this response for your review. The following are local retailers we believe will greatly contribute to our vision of creating a first class mixed use project with a neighborhood feel that will speak to the past present and future Shaw neighborhood.

Tryst: We have a letter of interest from the owner, Constantine Stavropoulos, of Tryst Coffeehouse, Open City restaurant, and the Diner. All three of his establishments are wildly successful neighborhood and DC staples. Constantine is extremely excited about creating what he calls "neighborhood gathering places" at Renaissance Row.

Yes! Organic Market: Yes! Organic Grocery has six locations in Washington DC and considers the Shaw neighborhood a key area for its growth. An organic grocery such as Yes! is a great addition to the retail mix and will further promote a neighborhood feel. The concept for this location will be relatively similar to Dean & Deluca in Georgetown with wine and spirits, prepared foods and outdoor seating that will help activate the streetscape.

Hank's Oyster Bar: With locations in Dupont Circle and Old Town Alexandria, Hank's is a well-established neighborhood restaurant with a strong following and great food. The owner, Jamie Leeds, established her reputation for serving creative American comfort foods at 15 Ria and continues her artistry with New England style beach fare.

Art Vines: Art Vines is a new Art Gallery/Lounge Bar concept scheduled to open in downtown on 7th St NW in the spring of 2008. This venue would be a home run for the 24/7 environment we want to create at Renaissance Row and will promote local artists and serve as a gathering place for both wine and art enthusiasts.

6. You appear to close the alley between 8th and 9th streets. Do you regard this as feasible? Can you obtain agreement from adjacent property owners?

Yes, we do regard this as feasible. It is called for in the Duke Ellington Plan and thus supported by the regulatory agencies. We also believe we can obtain agreements from the adjacent property owners. Also, as an alternative strategy, we could re-configure the site plan to create an alley throughput to transverse the WMATA property if alley access is necessary.

7. Calculations of annual property, sales and any other taxes to the local jurisdiction are missing from your proposal.

The calculations of annual property, sales and any other taxes to the local jurisdictions are included as an attachment.

II. Economic Information

1. Note that your valuation of the site is considerably below WMATA's appraisal and needs to be increased substantially or your offer cannot be considered.

   Please see the answer to question number 3.

2. WMATA expects escalation in the sale or rent amount from today's values if closing is delayed beyond a year. Please indicate how you would satisfy this requirement.

   In the scenario of an out-right sale, we propose that the land value escalate 2.5% annually until closing. In the scenario of a ground lease, we propose that the land value escalate 2.0% until stabilization.

3. Please be more precise about how you derived fair market value indicated as $6,496,200.

   The land market has significantly changed since the condo run up of values in 2005 and the credit crunch during the past year. Accordingly, we value the WMATA land at $50 per FAR SF. We arrived at this number by analyzing comparable land sales in the surrounding neighborhood and adjusting to account for the market differences in the Shaw neighborhood as compared to the more mature U Street area. An example is set forth below:

   a. 2400 14th Street – located at 14th and Florida near the 14th and U ST market. The land traded to Level 2 Development on 3/7/2006 for $13,270,000 or $55 per FAR SF. Rental rates are $2.90-3.00 per SF in the 14th and U ST market. We are projecting slightly lower rents for the WMATA site of $2.65 per SF based on market information. As such, the land should be valued at less than $55 per FAR SF.

   The land is zoned Arts Overlay/C-2-B. With the Arts Overlay, we can build up to a 4.5 FAR. This results in a fair market value of $6,496,200 at $50 per FAR SF. Should we decide to pursue a Planned Unit Development, the FAR will increase up to 6.0. Accordingly, this results in an increased fair market value of $8,661,600 at $50 per FAR SF.

If we purchase the land out-right from WMATA, we are prepared to pay $6,496,200 upon closing and up to an additional $2,165,400 upon rezoning for a total of $8,661,600.

If WMATA would prefer a ground lease, we are prepared to value the land up to an above-market number of $65 per FAR SF with 2.0% annual escalations until stabilization. This equates to a fair market value of $8,445,060 by-right and up to $11,260,080 if we pursue a Planned Unit Development.

4. The pro forma rent, $279,000 annually does not seem to square with your statement that you will pay 8% of land value. Nor does escalation, stated as 2.5% annually, appear to take place in the pro forma.

   The pro forma has been adjusted to reflect the ground rent based upon 8% of the land value (please find our pro forma attached). We are prepared to value the land up to an above-market number of $65 per FAR SF with 2.0% annual escalations until stabilization, projected to be December 2011. In this scenario, the ground lease payment would be $716,957 annually. Thereafter, the fair market value will be adjusted every 10 years to appraised value using the "three appraiser method."

5. Schedule: since rent does not start until stabilization, please indicate the outside date for stabilization.

   Based on positive market indicators and our past positive experiences with WMATA, we anticipate the project will be stabilized by December 2011. The fair market value of the land will be escalated by 2.0% annually until stabilization. In the event the project is not stabilized by December 2012, we will pay WMATA one-half of the stabilized ground rental amount due and owing to WMATA as set forth above (payable monthly beginning in December 2012). The land value will continue to escalate by 2.0% annually until stabilization is reached.

6. WMATA also expects and receives participations in capital events and in cash flow (or, alternatively to cash flow, revaluation of the project in which rent values do not fall below the previous year). Please provide in your proposal.

   We propose that WMATA receives participations in the amount of 3% of gross proceeds upon certain "capital events" to be further defined. We do not propose that WMATA receive a participation in operating cash flow; however, as noted above, we have increased the fair market value of the land resulting in substantially larger ground lease payment.

7. Is it expected that Clark Enterprises will provide the equity for this project? Do you have alternative equity sources?

   Yes, Clark Enterprises or an affiliate thereof will provide the equity for this project. At this time, we do not anticipate other equity sources will be necessary.

8. Please submit the balance sheet that the proposal indicates will be provided under separate cover.

   Please see the attached statement of net worth from Clark Enterprises, Inc.

Thank you for your consideration and allowing me to give a presentation of our proposal.

Sincerely,

Moddie Turay

Board Action/Information Summary

◉Action ○Information	MEAD Number: 100527	Resolution: ○Yes ◉No

TITLE:

ApproveTerm Sheet to Sell Shaw-Howard/FL Ave Site

PURPOSE:

Approve a term sheet for the sale of the Shaw-Howard U./Florida Avenue joint development site to the development team of Banneker Ventures, LLC, and Banc of America Community Development Corporation and authorize negotiation of a sale agreement.

DESCRIPTION:

In September 2009, the Board approved an extension to December 2009 to renegotiate a term sheet, to include affordable housing, for the Shaw-Howard U./Florida Avenue development site, which consists of three separate parcels totaling 28,376 sf located between 7th and 9th streets NW in Washington, DC.

The project will feature ground floor retail along Florida Avenue, with four stories of housing above, for a minimum of 100,000 sf. If additional density can be achieved, Metro will be compensated. At a minimum, the project will include affordable housing required by the District of Columbia`s new mandatory Inclusionary Zoning law and regulations (approximately 8% of the housing that is built); however, the developer is exploring financing to extend affordability.

Staff and the development team, led by Banneker Ventures, LLC with Banc of America Community Development Corporation, have negotiated a term sheet for disposition of the development site.

The project was initially proposed as a lease; however, the development team subsequently gained control of additional adjacent land on 9th Street and proposes to combine that land with the two of the three Metro parcels between 8th and 9th streets. The combined site will allow potentially greater density on Metro`s land than if the Metro parcels were developed alone and therefore greater economic benefit to Metro. The sale of the site will also allow the three sites to be financed and developed as one project. While these advantages would hold also for a lease, in the event of a lease default there is a high risk disadvantage to Metro, namely, that Metro could not gain effective control of Metro land under a portion of the building constructed on combined Metro land and development team land. For this reason, a sale is preferable.

Metro facilities on the site consist of two underground rail tunnels and a vent shaft opening to 8th Street. These facilities will be reserved in perpetuity for Metro.

A sale will provide for reversion of the property to Metro in the event that the developer does not commence construction of the project within three years of executing the sales agreement. However, the Metro Board may issue a one-time extension of one year.

Metro will receive 79% (its share of the total size of the development parcel) of the value of any bonus density granted the development team by the District of Columbia.

The negotiated sale agreement will be brought to the Board for approval within the extension period which ends in December 2009.

FUNDING IMPACT:

Revenue from the project will be deposited into the Transit Infrastructure Investment Fund (TIIF).

RECOMMENDATION:

Approve a term sheet for the sale of the Shaw-Howard/Florida Avenue joint development site to the development team of Banneker Ventures, LLC, and Banc of America Community Development Corporation and authorize negotiation of a sale agreement.

SUBJECT: Shaw-Howard/Florida Avenue Joint Development Sites - Tentative Developer Selection

DATE: February 26, 2008

FROM: Nat Bottigheimer

TO: John B. Catoe, Jr.

The Department of Planning and Joint Development (PLJD) recommends tentative selection of Banneker Ventures as developer of Metro's three Shaw-Howard/Florida Avenue parcels and preparation and negotiation of a term sheet with that team. If negotiations are unsuccessful, we recommend turning to the Moddie Turay Company for negotiation of a term sheet.

In early 2007, Metro issued Requests for Expressions of Interest for its Shaw-Howard/Florida Avenue joint development sites: Parcel 1, 3,800 sf on Florida Avenue at 9th St, NW; Parcel 2, 8,600 sf on Florida Avenue between 8th and 9th streets, NW, and Parcel 3, 16,500 sf on Florida Avenue between 7th and 8th streets.

After evaluation of responses, Metro requested six developers to submit more detailed proposals, and four did so with two combining as one team.

On October 5, 2007, Metro received three proposals from teams led by:

1. Banneker Ventures
2. Lakritz Adler
3. Moddie Turay Company

Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority

The recommendation to tentatively select Banneker Ventures is based on the Metro Evaluation Team's ranking of the proposals (memo attached) in accordance with the evaluation criteria in the Joint Development Solicitation and Source Selection Plan.

Metro team members comprising the Evaluation Team were from the Office of Station Area Planning and Asset Management (SAAM) and the Office of the General Counsel (COUN) with participation by the Office of Joint Development and Adjacent Construction (JDAC) since the sites are partly over Metrorail tunnels. In addition to Metro staff review and due diligence, outside real estate consultant Bolan Smart provided financial and market analysis, and representatives from the District of Columbia's Office of the Deputy Mayor for Economic Development and Office of Planning evaluated the proposals for conformance with city plans and policies.

SUBJECT: Shaw-Howard/Florida Avenue Joint Development Sites - Tentative Developer Selection

DATE: January 29, 2008

FROM: Rosalyn Doggett

THRU: Joel R. Washington JRW

TO: Nat Bottigheimer

WMATA received 3 proposals for its Shaw-Howard/Florida Avenue joint development sites: Parcel 1, 3,800 sf on Florida Avenue at 9th St, NW; Parcel 2, 8,600 sf on Florida Avenue between 8th and 9th streets, NW, and Parcel 3, 16,500 sf on Florida Avenue between 7th and 8th streets. In accordance with the Source Selection Plan for the Shaw-Howard/Florida Avenue Joint Development Sites, an Evaluation Team composed of Rosalyn Doggett, Chair, John Magarelli and Marc Biondi met a number of times to rate proposals from each of three teams. Two meetings were held before interviews with the teams, and two were held after interviews and additional due diligence. The development teams are led by:

Banneker Ventures
Lakritz Adler
Moddie Turay Company

The Evaluation Team recommends tentative selection of Banneker Ventures and preparation and negotiation of a term sheet with that team. If negotiations are unsuccessful, the Evaluation Team recommends turning next to the Moddie Turay Company for negotiation of a term sheet.

The Lakritz Adler proposal does not meet the threshold test in the Source Selection Plan of providing WMATA with net present value of rent over a 60-year lease that meets WMATA's current fair market value appraisal for the site ($7.5 million as of August 2007). The failure to meet appraisal value, alone, eliminates the team from further consideration. Further, Lakritz Adler offers one-half or less of the present value offered by the other two teams so it is thought that the deficit cannot be made up through negotiation even if there were other reasons to select the team, which there do not appear to be.

The net present values of the offers over a sixty-year lease period are:

Banneker	$14 million
Moddie Turay	$11.8 million
Lakritz Adler	$ 6 million

Banneker Ventures has been recommended because it provides greater rental present value to WMATA, approximately $2.2 million more than its remaining competitor.

Both teams propose 4 to 5 story residential development over retail for all three parcels that comprise the joint development site, at a matter-of-right FAR of 4.5. Moddie Turay proposes combining Parcel 1 with two small adjacent parcels totaling 3,000 sf, which it controls, and utilizing the air rights over an alley proposed to be closed between Parcels 1 and 2; however its financial offer is not contingent on the two parcels being incorporated or the alley closing. Banneker proposes 103 dwelling units and 12,000 sf of retail whereas, utilizing the combined properties and alley closing, Moddie Turay proposes 130 dwelling units and 26,000 sf of retail. Otherwise, there is little difference in design concept between the two teams.

The Evaluation Team ranked the teams according to the evaluation criteria in the Source Selection Plan. These final rankings are shown in the accompanying table, which lists the evaluation criteria underlined below.

The Team found that both proposals reflect TOD principles since they are on a walkable street within blocks of two different Green Line Metro stations (Shaw-Howard and U Street-Cardozo-African American Civil War Memorial), maximize matter-of-right density and provide a mix of uses that will contribute to the ongoing revitalization of the area. The Banneker proposal includes a modest amount of affordable housing and represents that its building will be "green." Both proposals are equally viable in the market provided that the apartment market remains strong in the area. Each proposes some ground floor arts/retail uses that would be an asset to the community if realized. Their proposals conform to the District of Columbia's Duke Plan (except that the plan advocates even taller buildings if possible through a PUD; lack of space for underground parking may be a constraint, however). Also, the Office of Planning has since indicated that it will support by-right development. Both provide similar benefits to the local jurisdiction in terms of property and sales taxes.

The Moddie Turay proposal is slightly more creative in that it combines Parcel 1 with adjoining property, making a larger and more regular development parcel. However, it is not clear from talking to District planning and regulatory officials that the developer can accomplish either the alley closing or the demolition of two structures which "contribute" to the historic district in which they are located. There may be issues with combining the adjoining fee property with leased WMATA property; also a sales price has not yet been agreed upon between Moddie Turay and the adjoining property owner. Price and historic preservation negotiations could delay project execution. Neither project will have an impact on WMATA facilities though construction over the Metro tunnel which runs partially beneath each parcel will need to be coordinated by JDAC. Once more detailed designs are prepared it is possible that the teams may need to seek a variance for required parking because of limitations in construction over the Metro tunnel.

There is little difference in experience. The Banneker team members (led by Omar Karim) include the District Development Group and, recently added, Metropolis Development, which has replaced Donatelli Development as a team member. Metropolis Development has extensive experience in developing new and adaptive residential buildings with ground floor retail in the Shaw neighborhood, including the Langston Lofts condominium project at 14th and V streets, a WMATA joint development site. The other teams members are less experienced but are obtaining approvals for a Silver Spring residential building at the present time. The Banneker Team architect, Torti Gallas, is experienced in residential and retail design on nearby U Street and over Metro tunnels. Moddie Turay and his company staff appear to have somewhat less experience but have an experienced local architect, Suman Sorg, and have teamed with Clark Enterprises represented by General Counsel Rebecca Owen who stated in interviews that Clark will deploy the necessary personnel to build the project for which the Moddie Turay Company will be project manager. Ms. Owen added that this could be either Clark Realty Capital, Clark's housing arm (which has participated in Fort Totten and Huntington but elected not to follow through on its contract for Western Bus Garage) or new personnel hired by Clark Enterprises, the parent company. Clark Enterprises clearly has construction expertise; however Banneker has stated that it intends to use Tompkins Builders, a local firm with Metro-related experience.

Financial benefit to WMATA was discussed earlier, and Banneker's offer is clearly superior in that regard. In terms of financial viablility, neither proposal has obvious flawed market or financial assumptions though Banneker depends on rent increases, which appear to be achievable, to subsidize affordable housing. Clark would more likely have access to financial sources. However, lender references for both teams indicated an interest in financing projects on these sites. Equity for Banneker would be provided by MacFarlane Partners, who are active team participants, and Clark will furnish its own equity, which it has the resources to do. Both teams provide modest enhancement to Metro Ridership.

It should be noted that WMATA requested both lease and sale proposals and received both. Net present value analysis showed that the lease proposals generate more revenue for WMATA over 60 years than the sale proposals. Since the Board's preference is to lease, the sale proposals were not considered further.

The accompanying table summarizes the land use and financial elements of the two finalist lease proposals. Both have financial elements that would likely need to be strengthened or provided in negotiations, for example, capital event participation for both teams; bonus density rent provisions and slightly higher base rent for Banneker; and annual base rent escalation for Moddie Turay. It is conceivable that negotiations could change the relative positions of the teams.

But for the present, it appears fair to start with the Banneker team since its financial offer is superior and its proposal does not have the potential complications of combining property with an adjacent owner. The Moddie Turay team, though close in ranking, has no clear superiority overall.

Statement from Board Chair Hudgins:

With respect to the development of WMATA property on Florida Avenue, the Board of Directors made a decision not to proceed with the Banneker Ventures LLC's proposal in March 2010. The decision not to proceed was based upon a dramatic change in the Developer's proposed price and other factors adverse to WMATA's business interests, not on the views of Mr. Graham or any individual Board member. However, in light of recent questions raised, we will conduct an independent review of this matter in accordance with Board procedures.

SUMMARY OF FLORIDA AVENUE DEVELOPMENT EVENTS

Shaw Howard/Florida Avenue Time Line

- Spring 2007: WMATA issued a Joint Development Solicitation (JDS) for Florida Avenue parcels.

- Spring 2008: Pursuant to the JDS, WMATA reserved the right to disqualify any proposers if they were found to have an unsatisfactory record of integrity or business ethics. During review of the proposals, WMATA became aware of allegations lodged against one of Banneker's original development partners, Warren Williams, Jr. Banneker eventually dropped Mr. Williams from its development team.

- June 2008: the Board selected the Banneker development team. WMATA's appraisal valued the parcels at $7.5M. The Net Present Value of the three bids were as follows:

    1. Banneker - $14M (based on annual lease payments of $597,000)
    2. Moddie Turay - $11.8M
    3. Lakritz Adler - $6M

- June 2008: In approving the Term Sheet, the Board called for the inclusion of an affordable housing component in the project. The "affordable" component was not defined. (Note: (i) Banneker's original proposal stated that its project would have an affordable component and (ii) the local small area plan, known as the Duke Plan, required 20 to 50% affordable housing to get PUD approval in that neighborhood).

- October 2008: Negotiations with developer turned problematic because Banneker's financial offer plummeted immediately after Board approval. Most striking was that the proposed annual rent went from $597K per year to $150K per year.

- November 2008: Banneker first informed WMATA that it had adjacent parcels under contract and it intended to build a single building that would sit partially on the parcel leased from WMATA and partially on Banneker's adjacent parcel (It should be noted that disclosure of intent to build on adjacent lots was a requirement of the RFP, which was not met by Banneker). WMATA objected repeatedly to a building spanning the WMATA and non-WMATA parcels because it would inhibit WMATA's ability to terminate the lease.

- April 2009: WMATA approved the inclusion of Banc of America Community Development Corporation (BACDC) as the new development partner. Banc of America later abandoned its involvement in the project. (Note: During review of Banneker's initial proposal, WMATA expressed concern about the experience of Banneker's development team. In response, Banneker added Metropolis Development as its development partner, but, Metropolis dropped out after Board approval).

- April 2009: The Board approved a 120-day extension of Banneker's exclusive negotiation period. The parties attempted to re-negotiate the term sheet.

- June/July 2009: Banneker proposed a co-tenancy agreement as a solution for the problems associated with its desire to construct a building partially on the property leased from WMATA and partially on its adjacent parcel. The parties' extended discussions on the co-tenancy arrangement lead nowhere.

- August/September 2009: After WMATA rejected the co-tenancy arrangement, the parties discussed a sale instead of a lease. After about a month of lease vs. sale discussions, WMATA decided against the sale option.

- January 2010: The Board extended Banneker's exclusive negotiation period through March 2010 to provide Banneker an opportunity to improve its financial proposal.

- March 2010: The Board decided not to extend Banneker's term sheet and tabled the matter. Banneker had improved its financial proposal, but the proposal still fell millions short of the initial proposal. Banneker's exclusive negotiation period ended on March 31, 2010.

The following outlines the terms of an operating agreement between Banneker Ventures, LLC ("Banneker"), District Development Group, Inc. ("DDG"), and Metropolis Development Company, LLC ("Metropolis") and the Washington Metropolitan Transit Authority ("WMATA") for the purpose of leasing WMATA's properties on the 700 and 800 blocks of Florida Avenue, NW, Washington, DC (collectively, the "Site"), and developing and operating a to-be-built mixed-use retail and residential project consisting of approximately 103 residential units and 12,000 square feet of retail space on the Site (the "Project").

The venture will be formed as a District of Columbia limited liability company (the "Company"). The Members of the Company shall include Banneker, or an affiliate thereof, DDG, or an affiliate thereof, and Metropolis, or an affiliate thereof. This outline contains the terms and conditions which, if successfully concluded, will result in a definitive operating agreement (the "Operating Agreement").

Business Plan:

The business plan for the Company calls for the negotiation and execution of a Term Sheet and Development Agreement with WMATA and the completion of the planned development as described above.

The Company intends to lease the residential portion of the Project as mixed-income apartments and the ground floor retail portion of the Project to a mix of different retailers, including a full-service restaurant and a boutique café/theatrical/music venue.

Once the Term Sheet and Development Agreement are approved by WMATA's Board of Directors, the Members will work collaboratively to obtain all necessary government approvals (BZA, HPRB, ANC, etc.), complete designs and commence necessary plans to start construction. DDG will take the lead on working with the neighbors, community organizations, and assist with construction management activities. Banneker will take the lead in the government approval process, working with WMATA, and design and operational issues. DDG will take the lead in working with the ANC and community organizations and permitting process, and work with Banneker and Metropolis during the construction process. Metropolis will take the lead in the construction process and work with Banneker and DDG in working with WMATA and in the design process. All of the Members will work to secure necessary construction and permanent financing for the Project.

Marketing and leasing of the Project shall be handled by one or more firms selected by the Members and commence six to nine months prior to construction completion. Once the Project is stabilized or at a time deemed optimal by the Members, it is anticipated that the Project will be permanently financed.

WMATA poised to sell parcels above the Green Line tunnels by Eric Fidler • April 26, 2011 10:47 am

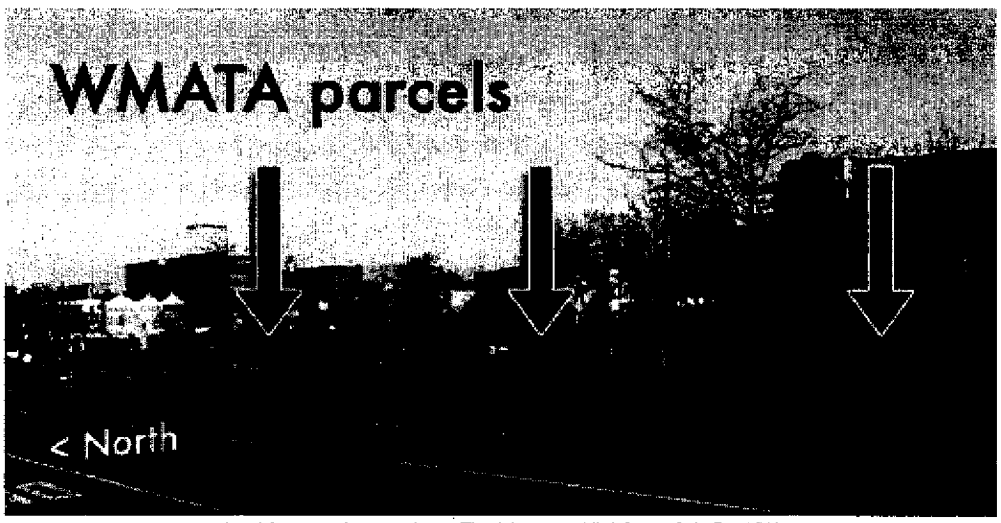
WMATA is finally nearing a sale for 3 lots it has been trying to sell for 9 years. The drawn-out saga illustrates how financing struggles and board politics bogged down a real estate decision for nearly a decade. A sale plus DC's urban design requirements for the area mean that walkable urban buildings will likely finally fill these empty spaces.

The 3 vacant lots are on the 700 and 800 blocks of Florida Avenue NW, on the east end of the U Street corridor. The agency has just put the lots out to the development community for the fourth time in 9 years. Judging by the brief sales window and by developer JBG's previous hefty offer, I suspect the lots will be sold for a mixed-use development quite soon.



Looking southeast along Florida Ave. NW from 9th St. NW

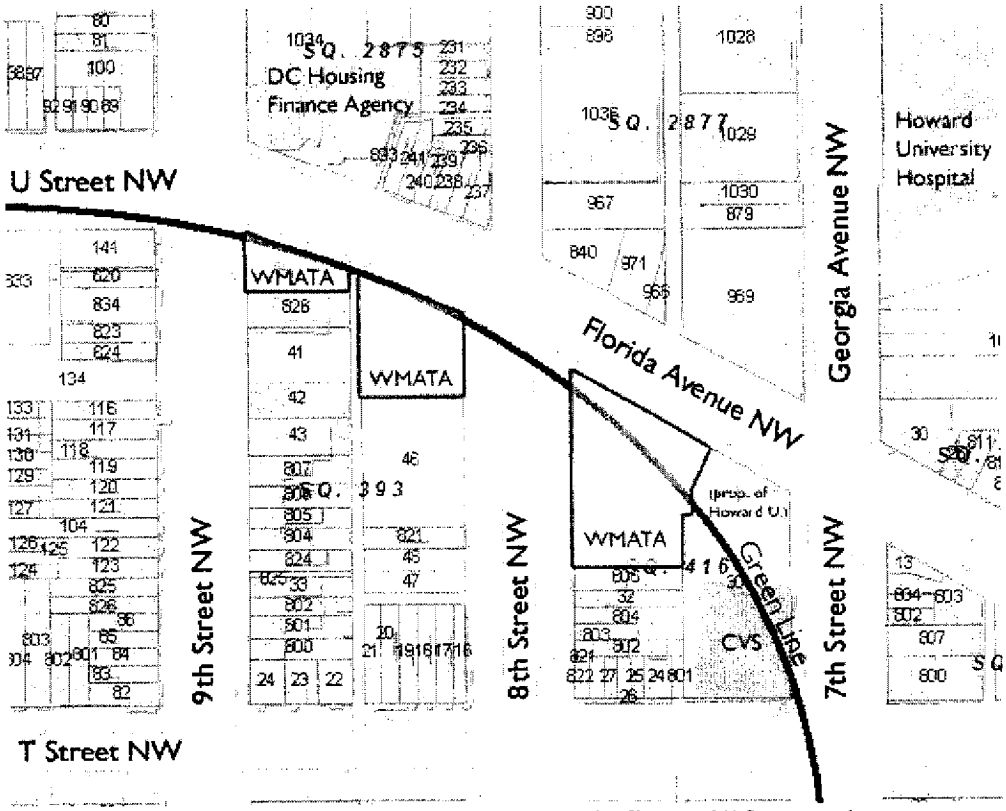
First let's revisit the past 9 years of ill-fated sales attempts.

The agency acquired the lots decades ago to build the Green Line, which cuts under them as it turns from U Street to 7th Street. The lots have remained vacant, save for weekend flea markets, ever since.

In the 1990s, WMATA considered selling the easternmost lot to Checkers, which likely would have built an asphalt-heavy, auto-oriented drive-thru like their location at 14th and Maryland, NE in Capitol Hill. The deal fell through and nothing was built.

In 2002 WMATA put the lots out for proposals and tentatively set a deal with Howard University in 2003. The university already owns the lot occupied by the CVS and its surface parking lot on 7th Street between Florida Avenue and T Street NW.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013940



These 3 lots are above the Green Line between the Shaw and U Street stations.

Litigation brought that Howard deal to a halt, and WMATA offered the lots again in 2007, this time for a long-term lease. Banneker Ventures LLC, infamous for its park contracts, won that round and aimed to lease the land for redevelopment into apartments and retail space.

The deal with Banneker was ill-fated at best since it appears that DC's representatives, Councilmember Jim Graham and City Administrator Neil Albert, were at odds over the lease. On the Kojo Nnamdi show, Banneker's head, Omar Karim, accused former WMATA board member and current Ward 1 councilmember Jim Graham of delaying the project so it could be awarded to another developer. Albert, a Fenty appointee, was supportive of Banneker, which was accused of receiving undue favorable treatment in city contracts.

Leasing rather than selling the land brought in other complications. Some parcels adjoin others and some developers were hoping to combine parcels to create a larger development project. But it's difficult if not impossible to structure a lease where someone then builds a building half on the leased land and half on adjoining land owned by someone else.

A lease doesn't require the developer to put much money down, and therefore some, possibly including Graham, feared that as a less experienced developer, Banneker might not ultimately be able to make a high-quality project work. That could either leave the property mostly vacant for longer or result in buildings not worthy of being the eastern end of the U Street commercial corridor.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013941

Finally after multiple extensions, the WMATA Board last year voted to end its engagement with Banneker and the agency put the lots on the table yet again. This time, they structured it as a much simpler "excess property land disposition" process rather than the more complex and collaborative "joint development" process, for either sale or lease. U Street land baron JBG offered WMATA $11.5 million, by far the highest price for the lots.

For esoteric technical reasons, the agency recently determined that in this round, none of the offers were "technically compliant," and no sale could be completed. (WMATA used a bid procurement process typically used for buying very specific items with no variation; adapting it to real estate is challenging for anything except an outright fee simple sale. WMATA included a standard lease form in its package of bid materials, and a successful bidder would have to meet all bid forms' criteria precisely with no deviations or risk being disqualified.)

Now, more than a decade after the initial Checkers idea, WMATA is requesting bids again. These will be due May 2, leaving a 3-week window for offers. It's less likely, therefore, that any new bidders will come in, though the previous bidders might change their offers for this round.

Despite these delays, there is some good news as to what must go on these lots. WMATA's RFP for the lots mandates a mixed-use development in compliance with the Office of Planning's DUKE Plan:

> WMATA parcels should be developed to include active, ground floor arts and retail with offices and residential above. Preference may be given to projects which include specialty restaurants, a small-format anchor and/or a cluster of retail shops, small clubs, and/or museum uses themed to the African American culture and experience of the district.

For this specific site, the DUKE plan has several requirements which WMATA has incorporated into their solicitation:

- Any tall building must provide a "meaningful cornice" at 65 feet and then step back at a 1:1 ratio above that point.
- The ground-floor commercial or cultural bays must be 14 feet tall, thus creating welcoming retail spaces.
- No parking will be permitted on or above ground.
- All buildings must have zero setbacks, meaning they must be built up to the street-fronting property lines.

The tops of the Green Line tunnels are about 30 feet below the surface, thus limiting the size of any underground garage. Since the lots are with within 900 feet of two Metro stations, any project shouldn't need a lot of parking.

The DUKE plan requirements mandate design features that create vibrant streets. Ground-floor retail or cultural space, and the fact that the buildings will go up to the sidewalk, are qualities that will enliven the sidewalk, especially at night. Prohibiting above-ground parking will prevent unsightly parking decks and will limit the ability for projects to induce car traffic.

Hopefully, this last round will finally transform these vacant lots into productive uses that enhance, rather than detract from, the area. With Progression Place and the Howard Theatre already in the works, and Howard Town Center just a few years off, these blocks are slated for some much-needed rejuvenation.

The WMATA Board still gets to ultimately approve or reject any winning bids, but this more straightforward process involves them less deeply in specific decisions. Plus, with new Board members less interested in managing details, it's likely the political fights of last year won't repeat themselves, and neighbors won't have to suffer another decade of vacant lots.

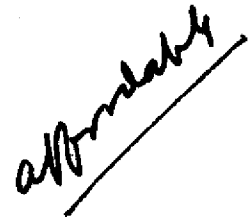
Joint Development Selection Criteria — Integrity and Business Ethics

Florida Avenue solicitation provided for termination of selected developer if found not to have satisfactory record of integrity and business ethics.

- post-selection rather than qualification/responsibility criteria
- joint development guidelines can be amended to include as a selection criteria

Federal government contractors must have a satisfactory record of integrity and business ethics.

WMATA uses Federal Acquisition Regulations (FAR) as guidance in standard procurement, but joint development has its own guidelines.



WMATA-INV 013945

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED

Joint Development Selection Criteria — Integrity and Business Ethics (continued)

FAR requires a certificate from offerors and their principals that they (in summary):

- are not ineligible for award of Federal contracts;
- are not currently indicted for and have not recently been convicted of or had a judgment entered regarding malfeasance in public contracting or certain dishonesty crimes; and
- do not have an unsatisfied tax delinquency of greater than $3,000.

Certificate responses are evaluated as a matter of responsibility. Inability to certify does not necessarily preclude award. A failure to respond, on the other hand, bars award.

- The contractor may be terminated for default if it knowingly provides an erroneous certificate.

Joint Development Selection Criteria — Integrity and Business Ethics (continued)

In 2000, the FAR council issued a final rule further defining what constitutes a "satisfactory record of integrity and business ethics" as persuasive evidence of noncompliance with labor, employment, environmental and consumer protection laws.

- A broad coalition of business organizations brought suit alleging the rule lacked adequate justification or guidelines to prevent arbitrary and abusive implementation.
- Other industry associations and congressional representatives also sought suspension of the rule.
- The FAR council responded by staying the rule.

Possible Approach for Joint Development

- Use FAR and local procurement integrity and business ethics standards to evaluate developer integrity and business ethics. Local standards are similar to the FAR in some respects and supplement the FAR in other respects.
- Require self-certification by the developer on behalf of its principals, members and other related entities.

Background

In Spring 2007, Metro issued a Request for Expressions of Interest ("REI") for its Shaw-Howard/Florida Avenue joint development sites (hereinafter the "Property" or the "JD Site"). Staff review of the REI evaluated the proposals based on conformity with the Duke Plan; WMATA Return; Schedule (time to completion); Developer's Ability to Perform; and Developer's Track Record. Staff in WMATA's Office of Station Area Planning and Asset Management of the Department of Planning and Joint Development ("SAAM"), evaluated and ranked these proposals and requested detailed proposals from those six developers who met the minimum requirements.

On October 5, 2007, in response to WMATA's request, detailed proposals were received from teams led by: Banneker Ventures; Lakritz Adler; and Moddie Turay Company. In each case the lead developer included other partners to strengthen their proposal and provide needed technical and financial support. Proposals were reviewed by Staff and Staff interviewed each team to discuss both the financial and technical aspects of the proposals. The evaluation criteria used by staff were those stated in the request for detailed proposals:

Technical Criteria

- Does the development reflect transit oriented development principles?
- Is the project viable/marketable?
- What is the Development Team's experience?
- Is the development innovative/creative?
- Is the development proposal compatible with the local land use plan?
- What benefits are provided to the local jurisdiction?

Economic Criteria

- What is the financial benefit to WMATA?
- What is the financial viability of the Proposal?
- Will the development enhance ridership?

Each development team was given the opportunity to 1) supplement their submissions where those submissions were found to be lacking; and 2) increase compensation to WMATA. The proposals received a numeric ranking on a scale of one to 100. Staff recommendation to management was the highest ranked developer, Banneker Ventures. Staff was aware, at the time of its recommendation, that Metropolis Development had replaced Donatelli Development as a partner on the Banneker team. Management agreed with Staff recommendation and made its recommendation to the General Manager on February 26, 2008.

Banneker Ventures Financial Submissions

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013954

Banneker Ventures made a timely submission in response to WMATA's request for a detailed proposal. As part of Staff's review, several deficiencies were identified and Staff sent a letter to Banneker dated December 4, 2007 requesting, among other things:

- Evidence of the interest of MacFarlane Partners in providing equity for this project;
- Documentation of the creditworthiness of the entire team, and
- Balance sheets [of Banneker Ventures, LLC].

Banneker Ventures provided written responses, with supporting documentation on December 14, 2007. The response included financial documentation from MacFarlane Partners; letters of interest from three additional investment entities; and the Balance Sheet, Income Statement and Statement of Cash Flow from Banneker Ventures, LLC. As shown by the hand-written notes on the Letters of Interest, Staff communicated with the potential financial backers of the Banneker development and received positive feedback. Staff communication with these investment interests are not clearly dated, but appear to have occurred on or before January 8, 2008.

Substitution of Metropolis Development Company

The Florida Avenue Joint Development Site: Proposal Submission Requirements address the eventuality of a Change in Composition of Developer or Development Team at Section 5.1.C.1. This section states that "Prior to designation of the Selected Developer, a Developer may change its composition or the composition of its Devlopment Team only with WMATA's prior wirtten approval. If WMATA does not approve the change, and the Developer does not want to proceed in accordance with its Proposal, WMATA will return the Proposal Security without interest."

By letter dated January 28, 2008, Metropolis Development Company ("Metropolis") joined Banneker Ventures and District Development Group as part of the Banneker Team. This partnership was later memorialized in that Outline of Operating Agreement Between Banneker Ventures, LLC., District Development Group, Inc. And Metropolis Development Company, LLC, dated March 11, 2008.

No additional documentation regarding this substitution is found in the file, however, as the January 28th letter indicates, Metropolis is a known entity having participated in the development of the Langston Lofts project with Metro at 14th and V Streets. It is my understanding that the substitution of Metropolis had no impact on the financial strength of the Banneker team. This is because of the high marketability of the proposed project at the JD Site and because of the strength of another equity partner of the team: MacFarlane Partners D.C. Rather, the impact of the removal of Donatelli Development was to call into question the team's ability to manage the construction of the project. The construction management experience, shown in the January 28, 2008 letter, allowed Staff to accept the change in membership and advance Banneker Ventures as the proposed developer. In addition, on or about June 16, 2008, Metropolis did submit a Condensed Balance Sheet showing its financial strength as of December, 2007.

Jim Graham takes on Warren Williams

Warren Williams Jr. is making headlines these days — too many, for some members of the D.C. Council.

In December, his Banneker Ventures LLC was part of a group tapped to redevelop the Sursum Corda housing project Northwest One, part of the city's New Communities program. Later, Banneker was the winning bidder — OK, the only bidder — to redevelop the Strand Theatre in Northeast. And just recently, Banneker was selected by the Metro board to develop an agency-owned lot on Florida Avenue NW.

But that's not why Williams has been in the papers so much lately. He and his wife, Alaka Williams, are the couple behind the company embroiled in controversy over the contract to run the D.C. Lottery, as The Washington Post reported. Mayor Adrian Fenty and Chief Financial Officer Natwar Gandhi favor a proposal from their company, W2I, over the existing operator, LTE. But the mayor, facing a skeptical council and accusations of cronyism, recently withdrew the proposal, meaning the council won't consider it until September at the earliest.

Some council members, including Jim Graham, D-Ward 1, are upset about Williams' past. He co-owned Club U — a hip-hop club in leased space inside D.C.'s Franklin D. Reeves Municipal Center at 14th and U streets NW — that closed in 2005 after a fatal stabbing on the premises.

Graham, a member of Metro's board, was so wary of Williams that he tried to derail efforts to award to him the Florida Avenue lot. While the original solicitation includes a provision allowing the board to fire Banneker if its integrity is questioned, the board went further, directing staff to develop "business ethics" guidelines for selecting future development partners. He voted to approve Banneker.

Metro officials said they would specify what those guidelines are by September. No word from Williams about the whole brouhaha.

Mr. Graham,

I read today in the Washington Business Journal that you are challenging the city's business dealings with Warren Williams Jr.

I support you in that effort, mainly because I have been forced to look at one of Mr Williams abandoned eyesores for the past 5+ years at the corner of 7th and Q Street NW. I know its not within your ward but from what I understand Mr Williams has a number of these properties throughout the city. It seems unbelievable that the city would continue to do business with a person that can not take proper care of his properties throughout DC. I have no idea what tax rate he's being charged for this vacant building..

The location of the property is 1547 7th Street NW, although there is a door to the building at 642 Q Street NW. This property has been the site of ongoing drug deals and a drug related shooting last year.

Re: Status of Banneker Ventures Term Sheet and Award of Jazz at Florida Avenue Project

Dear Messrs. Sarles and Benjamin:

We represent Banneker Ventures, LLC ("Banneker") and write to address the status of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority ("WMATA") Board of Directors ("Board") approval of the Banneker Term Sheet for the joint development project known as the "Jazz at Florida Avenue Project" (the "Project"). We received a letter today from Steven Goldin, Director Office of Station Area Planning & Asset Management, WMATA confirming that the WMATA Joint Development and Real Estate Committee had moved to extend Banneker's exclusive negotiation period to July 30, 2010, but noting that The WMATA Board had voted unanimously, without explanation or rationale, "to table" indefinitely any further consideration of Banneker's timely-submitted, amended Term Sheet. WMATA's attempt to provide itself an opportunity to begin negotiations with other developers, besides Banneker, during the exclusive negotiation period, without the Board ever considering or rejecting the amended Term Sheet as required by the Joint Development Solicitation, is outrageous and unlawful.

Below, we provide: (I) a background summary of the Project; (II) Banneker's responses to alleged WMATA Board concerns; (III) Banneker's allegations of inappropriate conduct by WMATA

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED

Board Member, Joint Development & Real Estate Committee ("Committee") Chair Jim Graham; and (IV) Banneker's request for immediate WMATA Board approval and award of the Project.

I. BACKGROUND

On May 31, 2007, Banneker submitted its Response to the Opportunity to Compete Against an Unsolicited Proposal for the redevelopment of WMATA-owned parcels located at Shaw-Howard/Florida Avenue to Gary Malasky, Contracting Officer, Office of Property Development and Management, WMATA. In preparing the proposal, Banneker assembled a team, which included Torti Gallas & Partners, Inc., an architectural company with previous experience working on WMATA joint development projects, and District Development Group, LLC, who would serve as co-developer for the Project.

On August 24, 2007, WMATA issued a Joint Development Solicitation ("JDS") for the joint development of real estate at the Shaw-Howard/Florida Avenue Joint Development Site (the "Site"). See Attachment 1, Joint Development Solicitation, Shaw-Howard/Florida Avenue Joint Development Site: Proposal Submission Requirements, August 24, 2007. According to the JDS, proposals were due on October 5, 2007.

On September 18, 2007, Myla Moss, Advisory Neighborhood Commission ("ANC") Commissioner, ANC 1B01, held a Town Hall meeting to allow the WMATA short-listed development teams to present their vision for redeveloping the Shaw-Howard/Florida Avenue site. According to Ms. Moss' letter to Nat Bottigheimer, Contracting Officer, Office of Property Development and Management, WMATA dated October 4, 2007, only the Banneker proposal responded to all the express needs and desires of the community. See Attachment 2, Letter from Myla Moss, Commissioner, ANC 1B01 to Nat Bottigheimer, WMATA, dated October 4, 2007. Accordingly, Ms. Moss' letter supported Banneker to receive the WMATA contract to perform the Project.

On October 5, 2007, Banneker responded to the JDS and submitted a proposal to WMATA after assembling a team of development and investment partners, which included: (1) Banneker (Developer); (2) District Development Group, LLC (Co-Developer); (3) Donatelli Development Inc. (Co-Developer); (4) Torti Gallas & Partners, Inc. (Project Architect); (5) MacFarlane Partners (Equity Partner); and (6) Tompkins Builders (General Contractor).

On December 17, 2007, Banneker presented the Project to WMATA to demonstrate their capability and commitment to developing the WMATA-owned parcels at the Shaw-Howard/Florida Avenue site. See Attachment 3, Banneker Presentation to WMATA, The Jazz at Florida Avenue, December 17, 2007.

On February 29, 2008, Rosalyn Doggett called Omar Karim and informed him that WMATA had designated Banneker as the Selected Developer of the Site. Over the next several weeks, WMATA and the Banneker-led team negotiated a Term Sheet resulting in a final version of the Term Sheet on March 18, 2008. During these negotiations, Ms. Doggett informed Mr. Karim that WMATA's Board should approve the Joint Development Agreement ("JDA") and resulting lease agreement with the Banneker-led team by October 2008.

In early April 2008, WMATA staff requested that the WMATA Board approve the Term Sheet previously agreed to by the parties and the selection of Banneker to perform the Project. Later that month, on April 17, 2008, Rosalyn Doggett contacted Omar Karim to inform him that WMATA Board Member Jim Graham raised issues regarding the participation of then Banneker principal Warren Williams, Jr. in the Project. Ms. Doggett recommended that Banneker respond to the issues raised by Jim Graham in a written submission to WMATA.

More specifically, Ms. Doggett suggested that Banneker's written submission state that Mr. Williams would not participate in the WMATA deal, if Banneker's selection was approved by the WMATA Board. By letter dated April 23, 2008, Banneker wrote WMATA to address the concerns raised by Mr. Graham. See Attachment 4, Letter from Omar Karim, Banneker to Rosalyn Doggett, WMATA dated April 23, 2008.

On April 24, 2008, during the monthly meeting conducted by the Committee, Mr. Graham requested that Banneker's designation as the Selected Developer of the Site be discussed in Executive Session of the Committee. Following the closed door meeting, the Committee reconvened in public and Mr. Graham moved to defer the WMATA Board approval of Banneker to serve as the Florida Avenue Developer and approval of the Term Sheet for a period of not less than 60 days. See Attachment 5, WMATA, Minutes of Planning, Development and Real Estate Committee, April 24, 2008.

By letter dated May 9, 2008, Banneker wrote WMATA to respond to further questions raised by Jim Graham regarding alleged obligations due the District of Columbia by Mr. Williams. See Attachment 6, Letter from Omar Karim, Banneker to Joel Washington, WMATA dated May 9, 2008. The letter clarified that Mr. Williams did not have any outstanding financial obligations due to the District in either his personal or corporate capacities.

In June 2008, WMATA staff again requested that the WMATA Board approve the Term Sheet previously agreed to by the parties and the selection of Banneker to perform the Project. On June 26, 2008, during a meeting of the Committee, Mr. Graham once again requested that the Committee discuss approval of Banneker's selection in Executive Session. See Attachment 7, WMATA, Board Agenda Review as of June 3, 2008. Following the Executive Session, the matter was eventually brought before the Committee in a public meeting during which the Committee approved both Banneker's selection as the Selected Developer and the Term Sheet over Mr. Graham's objections.

Following the June 26, 2008 Committee meeting, the WMATA Board reconvened later that day to review and vote on matters that had been approved by the various Board committees. During the full meeting of the Board, Mr. Graham approached and met briefly with Mr. Karim while he was in the audience. Mr. Graham informed Mr. Karim that he would vote for Banneker's selection to perform the Project, but that Mr. Karim needed to meet with him to discuss the Project.

ReedSmith

On or about July 2, 2008, Mr. Graham and Mr. Karim met at Mr. Graham's Council of the District of Columbia office and then again at a restaurant to discuss the Project. During these meetings, Mr. Graham informed Mr. Karim that he wanted the Project to set aside 20% of its residential units as affordable housing. Mr. Graham also strongly suggested that Banneker add LaKritz Adler, a small, local real estate firm, to its development team for the Project or purchase their interest in an adjacent property that LaKritz Adler was controlling at the time. LaKritz Adler and its principals contributed significantly to Mr. Graham's District of Columbia Council re-election campaign. Ultimately, Banneker chose not to add LaKritz Adler to its development team.

On or about July 25, 2008, WMATA and Banneker participated in the Project kick-off meeting. At this meeting, Banneker provided WMATA with an executed copy of the Term Sheet and paid the $100,000 Option Fee as required by the JDS.

From July 2008 through March 2009, the parties engaged in continuous negotiations to enter into a finalized JDA.

In January 2009, Mr. Graham became Chairman of the WMATA Board. During his entire tenure as a WMATA Board Member and Chairman, Mr. Graham has injected himself into the day-to-day management of WMATA operations and has exceeded the scope of his duties as a WMATA Board Member. For example, in July 2009, Mr. Graham took it upon himself to contact the independent appraiser, who had been hired by WMATA staff to appraise the value of the Site, before the appraiser had submitted its appraisal report.

On March 6, 2009, Banneker provided WMATA with a letter from Banc of America Community Development Corporation ("Banc of America"). See Attachment 8, E-mail correspondence from Omar Karim, Banneker to Emeka Moneme, WMATA sent on March 6, 2009 at 3:00PM. Banc of America agreed to become a Co-Developer of and provide direct equity investment into the Project.

On April 23, 2009, WMATA's Board approved a one hundred twenty (120) day extension of the negotiation period between WMATA and Banneker regarding the Project. See Attachment 9, Letter from Emeka Moneme, WMATA to Leila Edwards, District of Columbia Department of Housing and Community Development, dated June 1, 2009.

By e-mail sent on May 29, 2009, WMATA informed Banneker that a possible JDA was imminent. However, WMATA indicated that it could not finalize the JDA until an outside appraisal of the deal was conducted by an independent contractor. See Attachment 10, E-mail correspondence from Rosalyn Doggett, WMATA to Omar Karim, Banneker sent on May 29, 2009 at 4:53PM.

From August 2009 through October 2009, WMATA proposed to change the Project from a lease agreement to a purchase agreement, whereby Banneker would own the property.

On or about September 10, 2009, WMATA staff requested another extension of the negotiation period with Banneker and the WMATA Board approved the extension.

against Metro policy

On October 22, 2009, Mr. Graham met with Mr. Karim and Banneker's Chief Financial Officer ("CFO") to discuss the Project. Mr. Graham told both Mr. Karim and Banneker's CFO that the "firm should not have bid on the WMATA project" and that he "won't allow the sale of the WMATA-owned parcels located at Shaw-Howard/Florida Avenue." Mr. Karim told Mr. Graham that Banc of America preferred a sale, and had spent the past few months underwriting the Project as a sale. Mr. Graham told Mr. Karim that Banneker could get a new joint venture partner to facilitate the lease of the WMATA-owned parcels.

Moreover, Mr. Graham also told Mr. Karim that he would ensure that the Project would not get delayed if Mr. Karim agreed to change the Project from a sale of property to a lease. Mr. Karim agreed with Mr. Graham's request to change the Project back to a lease agreement. Later that day, Mr. Karim had several telephone conversations with John Catoe, Jr., the then-WMATA General Manager and Mr. Graham to discuss the terms of the lease.

By e-mail correspondence sent on October 22, 2009 from Steven Goldin, WMATA's Director of Station Area Planning & Asset Management, WMATA informed Banneker that "per direction from our Board, we are proceeding with preparing a Term Sheet for the lease of our property. The matter is to be taken up by the full Board in a special meeting in two weeks." See Attachment 11, E-mail correspondence from Steven Goldin, WMATA to Omar Karim, Banneker sent on October 22, 2009 at 3:08PM.

On or about November 16, 2009, WMATA staff submitted the parties' revised Term Sheet to the WMATA Board for approval. See Attachment 12, E-mail correspondence from Rosalyn Doggett, WMATA to Omar Karim, Banneker sent on November 16, 2009 at 8:54AM.

By e-mail correspondence sent on November 19, 2009, WMATA informed Banneker that the WMATA Board discussed the Term Sheet, but the WMATA Board took no action. See Attachment 13, E-mail correspondence from Steven Goldin, WMATA to Omar Karim, Banneker sent on November 19, 2009 at 5:22PM. This correspondence further advised Banneker that the WMATA Board directed WMATA staff to address specific issues raised by the Board regarding the initial capitalized lease payment and the lack of a payment "reset" for the first 60 years under the lease.

Following the November 19, 2009 meeting of the WMATA Board, Banneker was able to convince its equity partner to reduce its return on their investment and therefore increase the capitalized lease that the Banneker team could pay WMATA. WMATA and Banneker negotiated a revised Term Sheet which WMATA's staff then recommended to the WMATA Board for approval.

On January 14, 2010, although the WMATA staff recommended the Committee approve the revised Term Sheet, the Committee informed WMATA staff that it wanted Banneker to pay additional funds to perform at the Site. In this regard, the Committee moved to approve a time extension to allow WMATA staff and Banneker to negotiate an amended Term Sheet for the Site, which was to be brought to the WMATA Board by March 31, 2010. See Attachment 14, WMATA, Committee, Minutes of Planning, Development and Real Estate Committee, January 14, 2010.

ReedSmith

Following the January 14, 2010 meeting of the WMATA Board, Mr. Graham becomes Chair of the Committee.

From January 14, 2010 through March 25, 2010, WMATA and Banneker engaged in negotiations to reach final agreement with regard to the amended Term Sheet for the Project. Prior to March 25, 2010, the parties reached final agreement on the amended Term Sheet and submitted it to the WMATA Board for approval. The revised Term Sheet significantly increases the capitalized lease payment that Banneker would pay WMATA from the amount submitted to the WMATA Board at the January 14, 2010 meeting.

On March 25, 2010, the WMATA Board discussed the executed amended Term Sheet in Executive Session, but, at the behest of Jim Graham, the Board removed from their agenda consideration of the amended Term Sheet and the WMATA Board did not take any action to approve it.

Since the March 25, 2010 WMATA Board Executive Session meeting and subsequent tabling of the approval of the executed amended Term Sheet at the public WMATA Board meeting, WMATA has not taken any action with regard to its further consideration and approval of the executed amended Term Sheet. Moreover, the Committee is not scheduled to meet to discuss the Banneker Project in the month of April.

On April 26, Steven Goldin, Director Office of Station Area Planning & Asset Management, WMATA sent a letter to Banneker confirming that the WMATA Joint Development and Real Estate Committee had moved to extend Banneker's exclusive negotiation period to July 30, 2010. Mr. Goldin's letter noted that The WMATA Board had voted unanimously, without explanation or rationale, "to table" indefinitely any further consideration of Banneker's timely-submitted, amended Term Sheet without the Board ever considering or rejecting the amended Term Sheet as required by the Joint Development Solicitation.

II. BANNEKER'S RESPONSES TO ALLEGED WMATA BOARD CONCERNS

During the course of the negotiations between WMATA and Banneker, mentioned above, WMATA raised concerns regarding Banneker's ability to: (a) perform the Project; (b) have a joint venture partner to work with Banneker on the Project; and (c) maintain financing to perform the Project. Each of these concerns is addressed below.

A. Banneker Has the Experience to Perform the Project

Banneker is a full service real estate firm that specializes in providing construction, construction management, real estate development and real estate advisory services to the public and private sectors. The firm focuses its resources and experience on transforming neighborhoods throughout the Mid-Atlantic region of the United States. The Banneker management team has more than 40 years of construction, construction management, development and finance experience in the public and private real estate sectors. In this regard, Banneker is known for its ability to work on and complete complex construction projects on time and within budget.

As part of its proposal, Banneker provided WMATA with three (3) examples of prior construction and land development projects for which Banneker played a significant lead role. Moreover, Banneker currently plays a significant role as the lead or co-lead on the following projects: (1) Walker Jones Education Campus; (2) Deanwood Community Center; and (3) Joiner Shop Lofts. All of these projects are comparable to the WMATA Project.

(1) Walker Jones Education Campus

Banneker provided project management and construction management services toward the design and construction of the Walker Jones Education Campus in the District of Columbia. This $50 million project involved the design and construction of a: (i) 100,000 square foot public school; (ii) 20,000 square foot recreation center; and (iii) 5,000 square foot library. Construction of this project was completed on time and within budget in December 2009. This project was the fastest public school ever built in the District of Columbia.

(2) Deanwood Community Center

Banneker is providing project management and construction management services toward completion of the Deanwood Community Center project in the District of Columbia. This project is a 63,000 square foot community center and library facility with a project budget of $32 million. The facility includes an indoor swimming pool, locker rooms, gymnasium, game room, library, childcare facilities, senior services area, kitchen, and multi-purpose facilities. The facility is 85% complete and is expected to reach Final Completion in August 2010. Upon completion, the Deanwood Community Center will be the largest public recreation center ever built in the District of Columbia.

(3) Joiner Shop Lofts

Banneker is providing development management services toward completion of the $60 million Joiner Shop Lofts project. The Joiner Shop Lofts is an adaptive-use, residential and retail development that includes the conversion of a 157,000 square foot warehouse into a 170-unit apartment and retail project. This project is the first residential building that will be completed at The Yards, a large-scale, mixed-use redevelopment of a 42-acre former annex to the Washington Navy Yard.

The above successful projects evidence Banneker's unquestionable ability to serve as project and construction manager on major projects such as the "Jazz at Florida Avenue Project". The services provided by Banneker on the above projects are similar in size and scope to those necessary to perform the WMATA Project. Accordingly, Banneker certainly has the experience to successfully perform the Project.

B. Banneker Has Development Partners to Perform the Project

Jim Graham has been reported as claiming that Banneker does not have a development partner(s) to perform the Project. This simply is not true. Banneker has development partners to perform the Project.

As stated above, Banc of America was very interested and preferred the WMATA deal when the Project involved the sale of the WMATA-owned parcels. However, due to Mr. Graham's requests, the structure of the WMATA deal was changed to a lease. Given these facts, Jim Graham advised Banneker that it could select another development partner to replace Banc of America, if necessary. Accordingly, the executed amended Term Sheet contains language that allows Banneker to replace Banc of America with a development partner with similar experience as that of Banc of America, if necessary.

In addition, Banneker has assembled a team of other development partners, which includes: Torti Gallas & Partners, Inc. (Project Architect); Clark Builders Group (General Contractor); Love Funding Corporation (Project Financing); and Holland & Knight LLP (Land Use Counsel). During negotiations, Banneker provided WMATA with information from each of the above and can provide that information again upon request.

Accordingly, there is no question that Banneker has capable and competent development partners to perform the WMATA Project.

C. Banneker Has Financing to Perform the Project

The WMATA Board, particularly Jim Graham, has raised concerns as to whether Banneker has financing to perform the Project. In fact, Banneker has financing to perform the WMATA Project. Love Funding Corporation ("Love Funding"), a national full-service, commercial mortgage-banking firm that serves as a direct lender and financial intermediary to offer loan placement services for borrowers, as well as origination, consulting and servicing of loans for investors nationwide, has agreed to provide the majority of the financing needed for the Project. In addition, Banneker has received a commitment from the District of Columbia to provide grant funding. Finally, Banneker and its equity partner will provide any remaining financing needed for the Project. Indeed, there is no question that Banneker has financing to perform the WMATA Project.

III. BANNEKER'S ALLEGATIONS OF INAPPROPRIATE CONDUCT BY WMATA BOARD MEMBER JIM GRAHAM

As you are aware, Jim Graham serves on the WMATA Board and is currently the Chair of the Committee. The duties of the WMATA Board members are prescribed in the "Procedures for WMATA Board of Directors – 2010" ("WMATA Board Rules"), which were presented and approved on January 28, 2010. See Attachment 15, Procedures for WMATA Board of Directors – 2010, January 28, 2010. The Standards of Conduct for Members of the WMATA Board of Directors ("Standards of Conduct") are included as Attachment 2 to the WMATA Board Rules.

Banneker believes that Mr. Graham likely has engaged in inappropriate conduct and has violated WMATA's Standards of Conduct as prescribed in the WMATA Board Rules. Specifically, Mr. Graham, in violation of WMATA Board rules, has: (a) in July of 2008, misused his official position as a member of the WMATA Board and his position as a District of Columbia Councilmember to improperly influence WMATA's selection of Banneker by offering to support a separate piece of legislation pending before the District of Columbia Council that would benefit a former Banneker principal, in exchange for Banneker resigning as the Selected Developer for the WMATA Project; (b) on July 2, 2008, Mr. Graham inappropriately offered Banneker a quid pro quo for his support of Banneker for the Project on the condition that Banneker agree to use a specific developer identified by Mr. Graham; and (c) Mr. Graham has not acted impartially and has instead repeatedly demonstrated bias against Banneker.

If necessary, Banneker and others will provide evidence of Mr. Graham's unethical conduct. At a minimum, Mr. Graham should be investigated by the WMATA Office of the Inspector General and/or not be allowed any further involvement in approval or oversight of the WMATA Project. According to the WMATA Board Rules, any Board member who willfully violates the WMATA Board Rules shall forfeit the Board member's position with WMATA. See id., Article VI.

IV. BANNEKER'S REQUEST FOR IMMEDIATE WMATA BOARD APPROVAL AND AWARD OF THE PROJECT

Banneker requests an opportunity to meet with the WMATA officials and/or Board to provide information or make a presentation to address any concerns the Board may have in order to facilitate the immediate approval of the executed amended Term Sheet. Toward that end, Banneker seeks immediate WMATA Board approval of the executed amended Term Sheet followed by an expedited negotiation in order to reach agreement and WMATA Board approval of the JDA and resulting lease agreement. As stated above, the negotiations for the Project have been ongoing for over two (2) years. Banneker has paid both the requisite Proposal Security ($100,000) and the Option Fee ($100,000).

In addition, Banneker has incurred significant additional costs as a result of the protracted WMATA contract negotiations. As a small business, Banneker should not be forced to continue to incur these costs absent a commitment from WMATA that a final deal to perform the Project is forthcoming.

The WMATA Board should act immediately to approve the Project and avoid further delays. The Project is being delayed as a result of the WMATA Board's failure to approve the executed amended Term Sheet.

V. CONCLUSION

WMATA and Banneker have been engaged in good faith negotiations regarding the award of the Project to Banneker since March 2008. Throughout these negotiations, Banneker has remained available to perform the Project and has remained , ready, willing and able to provide information, if necessary, to address any WMATA concerns in an effort to eliminate further delay of the contract award decision-making process. WMATA's announcement today that it plans to indefinitely "table" consideration of the amended Term Sheet WMATA Staff has executed with Banneker, without the Board ever meeting in public session to review and approve or reject it, itself demonstrates bad faith. Moreover, such action (or in this case inaction) cannot be in the best interests of WMATA.

Banneker requests a meeting as soon as possible with the appropriate WMATA officials, including members from the WMATA Joint Development & Real Estate Committee, in order to expedite WMATA's action on the the Project and formal consideration of Banneker's amended Term Sheet.

If the parties are unable to successfully move forward with action on Banneker's amended Term Sheet, given the foregoing, Banneker is prepared to seek any and all available remedies at law or in equity to address Banneker's damages and concerns regarding the selection process in this instance.

Sincerely, I am

A. Scott Bolden

At the D.C. chief financial officer's request, Mayor Adrian M. Fenty has withdrawn a proposal to award a lottery contract worth more than $120 million to a new company. D.C. Council members had questioned the background and gaming industry experience of the company's owners.

The revelation came yesterday as Chief Financial Officer Natwar M. Gandhi testified at a routine budget hearing before the council's Committee on Finance and Revenue.

"We are taking a second look," Gandhi said. Later, in an e-mail, he said the office needed more time to "review and respond to the questions raised by the committee."

Gandhi, however, defended the contract, saying it will save more than $6 million a year and is "the best technological solution for the District." He said the office might resubmit the contract after completing criminal and civil background reviews.

Gandhi and Fenty (D) recommended awarding the lottery contract to W2I, a joint venture between local company W2Tech, created nine months ago, and international gaming giant Intralot. Lottery Technology Enterprises and its partner, GTech, a national lottery services provider, have had the contract for almost 25 years and have filed a formal protest over the deal.

In a letter to the council, Fenty said the D.C. Lottery and Charitable Games Control Board would save about $5 million a year by awarding the contract to a company that could provide state-of-the-art technology to help boost lottery sales and offer more games. LTE, which has been paid $80 million since 2000, has been plagued by an aging network. Its contract expires in November 2009, but the city wants to end it early to save costs.

W2Tech, the parent of the W2I partnership, was created by Warren C. Williams Jr., a real estate developer recently criticized by tenants for allowing his property to deteriorate. Williams has denied tenants' allegations that he was attempting to force them to move out so he could convert their apartments into condominiums. He and his father also owned Club U, which the District closed in 2005 after a patron was fatally stabbed there.

The council was skeptical of the contract, which could grow from $11 million a year for six years to $120 million if a five-year extension is granted.

Questions about the proposal were raised for the second time this week when D.C. Council member Jim Graham (D-Ward 1) asked Gandhi about the status of the lottery contract. During Monday's committee hearing, several council members expressed concerns about the background of W2I's owners and fairness and transparency in the bidding process.

Graham said yesterday that the city should "get our facts straight" before awarding the contract, which could have come before the council for a vote as early as Tuesday.

"I am asking you to withdraw this contract," Graham said yesterday.

Finance committee Chairman Jack Evans (D-Ward 2) told Graham the council and finance office, which oversees the lottery, had discussed dropping the proposal with Gandhi the previous day.

"Mr. Graham, we talked, remember," Evans said. "I actually made that request already."

Graham responded: "I was not aware a decision had been made."

In an interview after the meeting, Graham said he wanted to make sure the private discussion was stated publicly.

"I had known that the requests had been made," he said. "I wanted to hear it, on the public record, that this is in fact a withdrawn contract. If they come back with this, I want to see scrutiny."

The questions raised by some council members this week focused on the ownership of W2Tech and whether its partnership with Intralot, which is owned by a Greek conglomerate, constituted a bona fide joint venture. It appeared that Intralot was investing more money in the joint venture than its local partner, W2Tech.

Eric W. Payne, the contracting officer for the finance office, testified Monday that Janisha Richardson, a Ward 1 advisory neighborhood commissioner, was W2Tech's controller. City records indicate that Richardson is the company's principal owner.

Payne also said he did not know whether Alaka Williams, who was listed as the company's contact and with whom he was communicating, was related to Warren Williams Jr. She is his wife. Payne also said that Warren Williams Sr. had 35 years of gaming experience, including with the D.C. lottery when it started in 1982. He could not say whether the elder Williams had remained active in lottery services.

"Having those facts wrong robs you of the feeling of confidence of what they know and don't know," Graham said.

Council members also wanted to know whether Club U had paid $100,000 in back rent. The club was in the Frank D. Reeves Municipal Center at 14th and U streets NW. Bill Rice, spokesman for the D.C. Office of Property Management, said the back rent was paid, as scheduled, by January 2007.

Warren C. Williams, Jr

Principal

Mr. Williams oversees all land acquisitions for the firm while helping to guide the firm through the implementation of its $1 billion development goal. A native of Washington, DC, Mr. Williams grew up working in several local family-owned and operated businesses which allows him to leverage this experience for Banneker.

Prior to joining Banneker as a Principal, Mr. Williams was responsible for helping Washington, DC transform its neighborhoods through the development of two of the most recognized residential projects in the heart of the urban core of Washington: The Warrenton West, a 24,000 square foot upscale residential condominium project in the 16th Street Heights neighborhood, and The Warrenton, a 12,000 square foot market rate residential condominium project in the Brookland neighborhood. Each of these projects have been recognized by the Washington real estate community as "jewels" of their neighborhoods, literally transforming perceptions and exceeding expectations.

Mr. Williams received a Bachelor's degree from Drexel University. After a brief stint with Wilmer Cutler & Pickering LLP, he began his real estate career as a property manager with his family-owned firm, Williams Management. His experience managing his family's portfolio of properties, led him to leverage this portfolio and turn them into "jewels" within the urban core of Washington. During this period, Mr. Williams was able to create numerous strategic partnerships with financial, architectural, and construction institutions which have been invaluable to the success of the firms that he has been involved with, most recently Banneker.

Mr. Williams is a member of the District of Columbia Building Industry Association, Urban Land Institute and African American Real Estate Professionals of Washington, DC.

STANDARDS OF CONDUCT FOR MEMBERS OF THE WMATA BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Article I. Purpose and Scope.

These Rules shall govern the conduct of all members of the Board of Directors in all their activities relating to their positions as Board Members. They also apply to all individuals, corporations and other entities who have actual or prospective business relationships with the Authority. These Rules do not supersede or abrogate any laws, rules or regulations of the United States or of the applicable state or local governing body represented by the members of the Board of Directors.

These Rules address several types of conflicts: those arising from gifts and favors and from financial and employment interests. They prohibit certain actions, including misuse of official positions; set out the nature of financial interests which may cause an appearance of conflict; and provide procedures for disclosure, recusal and enforcement.

Article II. Definitions.

A. "Actual or Prospective Business Relationships with the Authority" means any actual or prospective arrangement whereby an individual, corporation or other entity has entered into or has offered or proposed to enter into or has decided to offer or proposed to enter into a financial transaction with the Authority which obligates the Authority to purchase, sell, lease, transfer, receive or convey any interest in real or personal property; to construct or improve any facility; or to furnish or obtain services including personal and/or consulting services, but does not include consignment sales by the Authority of goods or services (such as fare media) where price is determined without competition or negotiation.

B. Board Member" or "Member" means a Director and/or Alternate Director of the Board of Directors of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority.

C. "Direct Financial Interest" means an interest in an enterprise that consists of securities of any kind that constitute ownership of three percent (3%) or more of the total equity of the enterprise. The test for a direct financial interest shall exclude any arrangement with the Authority which is not within the definition of financial transactions contained in these Standards of Conduct.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED WMATA-INV 013977

D. "Employment" means full-time, part-time, regular or temporary work for compensation and includes work as an independent contractor, but does not include government employment. Employment shall be deemed to exist if there is a regular relationship with a business, even if there is no relationship at the time a matter is before the Board.

E. "Financial Transaction" means any arrangement where a party anticipates receiving or transferring money or any other thing of value including, but not limited to, arrangements for purchase, sale, lease or other transfer or conveyance of any interest in real or personal property; construction or improvement of any facility or property; and procurement of services, both personal and consulting, but does not include consignment sales by the Authority of goods or services (such as fare media) where price is determined without competition or negotiation.

F. "Gratuities" means any gift, favor, entertainment, hospitality, transportation, loan or other tangible item or any intangible benefits (i.e., discounts, passes or similar consideration) offered to a Board Member because of his/her position on the WMATA Board of Directors for which the Member did not pay fair market value and which is not offered to the public generally.

G. "Household Member" means a spouse or minor child and any other dependent who resides in a Board Member's household on other than a temporary basis.

H. "Initiation and Pre-Award Phases of the Procurement Process" means that period beginning on the earliest date upon which an identifiable, specific action is taken by the Board for a particular procurement and ending upon award. Such actions shall include approvals by the Board or by Committees acting on behalf of the Board of any plan or budget which specifically authorizes an identifiable procurement, the drafting of specifications, statements of work or development of procurement requests therefore, or Board issuance of directives or taskings requiring that such actions be undertaken.

I. "Indirect Financial Interest" means income from revenues for services provided to an enterprise by a Director's partnership, business, or other entity when those revenues exceed three percent (3%) of the partnership, business, or entity's gross income for its current or preceding fiscal year. The test for an indirect financial interest shall exclude any arrangement with the Authority which is not within the definition of financial transactions contained in these standards of conduct.

J. "Member's Business Associates" means a person(s) who is engaged with a Board Member in a venture expected to result in a benefit to the Board Member or a resident of the Board Member's household in the form of money or other thing of value.

L. "Party" means an individual, corporation, partnership or other legal entity.

Article III. Policy.

A. Public funds must be expended in a manner which assures the highest degree of confidence and public trust in WMATA. It is imperative that Board Members in their private financial relationships and in their official conduct strictly avoid engaging in actions which create conflicts of interest or the appearance of a conflict of interest. It is likewise imperative that Board Members act impartially in their official conduct by avoiding any actions which might result in favored treatment or appearances thereof toward any individual, private organization, consultant, contractor or potential consultant or contractor. Each Board Member while acting in his/her capacity as a WMATA Board Member, has a duty to place the public interest foremost in any dealings involving WMATA.

B. Under the Compact, Board Members shall not (1) be financially interested, either directly or indirectly, in any contract, sale, purchase, lease or transfer of real or personal property to which the Board or the Authority is a party; (2) in connection with services performed within the scope of their official duties, solicit or accept money or any other thing of value in addition to the compensation or expenses paid to him by the Authority; (3) offer money or any thing of value for or in consideration of obtaining an appointment, promotion or privilege with the Authority.

D. Financial Transactions.

1. Except as provided in subsection E.3. below, a Board Member or household member shall not solicit or accept anything of value from a party with an actual or prospective business relationship with the Authority.

2. A Board Member may not accept an unsolicited gratuity when it could reasonably be inferred that the gratuity was intended to influence the Board Member or was intended as a reward for any action on the Member's part.

3. Board Members may accept unsolicited gratuities:

(i) whose value is seventy-five dollars ($75) or less, except that a Board Member may not accept gratuities worth more than $200 from a single source in any calendar year; or

(ii) in connection with attendance at a widely attended gathering, such as events held by the American Public Transportation Association and similar organizations.

4. The restriction on the receipt of gratuities shall not apply to the solicitation or acceptance of bona fide religious or charitable donations, or political contributions by a Board Member or a household member provided, with respect to political contributions to or for the benefit of a Board Member or a household member, the contribution has been reported in accordance with the law of the Board Member's jurisdiction.

5. A Board Member shall not personally solicit any support or financial assistance for any political party, candidate, or committee for any political, charitable, or other purpose from any WMATA employee. This prohibition is not intended to preclude solicitations by mass mailing or other similar anonymously directed solicitations.

1. use or permit others to use information not generally available to the public obtained from the Authority through the Board Member's official position with the Authority to further the direct or indirect financial interests of a Board Member, any household member, a Member's business associates, or any party to any actual or prospective financial transaction with the Authority;

4. offer money or anything of value for or in consideration of obtaining an appointment or privilege in the Board Member's official position with the Authority; or

5. receive compensation from WMATA except for reimbursement for necessary expenses incurred incident to the performance of their duties.

G. Post WMATA Employment Restrictions. Board Members shall not, for a period of one year following the end of their term or effective date of their resignation, accept employment with any private third party to work on a matter which is being considered by the Board, or any WMATA committee, task force, or subcommittee.

H. No party shall have, nor seek to have, actual or prospective business relationships with the Board or the Authority if to do so would create a violation by a Board Member of the provisions of Paragraphs B or C of this article. No party shall induce or seek to induce a Board Member to violate the provisions of Paragraph D of this article.

I. Each Board Member shall disclose, on the form attached as Exhibit B, each contact with a WMATA contractor or bidder, in which the Member has any financial interest, during the Initiation and Pre-Award Phases of the Procurement Process. signed statement and the member will not need to submit another signed statement until April 30 of the succeeding calendar year.

Article V. Disqualification.

If a Board Member is precluded by these Rules or by other applicable laws or regulations from performing the Board Member's duties, the Board Member shall so notify the Chair and request that the Board's official records reflect that the Board Member will abstain from any participation in the matter to which the prohibition applies.

Article VI. Sanctions.

A. Any Board Member who willfully violates any provision of Article III, Section B, hereof, shall, at the discretion of the Board, forfeit the Board Member's position with the Authority. The Board shall provide the Board Member notice and an opportunity to be heard, in writing and in person, directly or through counsel, before taking official action to cause the Board Member to forfeit the position.

B. Any financial transaction, to which the Authority is a party, made in contravention of Article III, Section B hereof, may be declared void by the Board. The Board shall provide notice and an opportunity to be heard, in writing and in person, directly or through counsel, to any party whose financial transaction with the Board or the Authority is considered to contravene these sections before taking action to void the transaction.

Article VII. Severability.

The provisions of these Standards of Conduct shall be severable and if any phrase, clause, sentence or provision is declared invalid, the validity of the remainder shall not be affected thereby.

Article VIII. Effective Date; Duration; Amendment; Responsibility.

These Rules shall become effective when adopted by the Board and shall remain in effect unless and until amended or revoked by the Board in accordance with Article III, Section 8, of the Compact. The Board is responsible for interpreting and enforcing these rules. It may seek general guidance from the General Counsel, but where there are specific allegations of misconduct, it shall, if necessary, employ appropriate outside legal counsel for assistance.

Mr. Omar A. Karim
Banneker Ventures, LLC.
700 12th Street NW Ste. 700
Washington, DC. 20005

Dear Mr. Karim:

Metropolis Development Company ("Metropolis") welcomes the opportunity to serve as a Co-Developer with Howard University, Banneker Ventures and District Development Group to develop a mixed-use hotel, residential and retail project known as the Howard University Gateway Project on three WMATA parcels located in the Shaw/U Street District specifically on the South Side of Florida Avenue NW between 7th and 9th Streets NW. Metropolis has successfully developed WMATA parcels (LANGSTON LOFTS) at 14th and V Street and look forward to working with WMATA on this transaction.

The proposed Howard University Gateway Project provides an exciting development opportunity for our firm. Metropolis is the one of the most active residential and retail developers in the Uptown Arts Overlay with over 600,000 square feet valued at approximately $157 million delivered or under construction in the past 5 years.

Metropolis' core strengths are its ability to successfully execute complex real estate transactions in combination with unique design. The nature of constructing over Metro is familiar to Metropolis as we built successfully over Metro tunnels in our neighborhood-anchoring Langston Lofts project at 14th and V Streets; NW. Langston Lofts is an awarding winning mixed use residential/retail building that was built on top of the Metro Tunnel which included two air shafts. Throughout the Langston Project, Metropolis successfully closed an alley, removed oil contaminants and removed the cut and cover debris from the site. More importantly, Metropolis working closely with WMATA's an engineer successfully navigated its construction around the Metro Tunnels and is therefore extremely experienced with WMATA's requirements to protect its underground tunnel and its "zones of influence".

Metropolis Development Company is a full service mixed use real estate development company focused on residential and retail projects in the Uptown Arts Overly market area.

Metropolis is a District Certified LSDBE and therefore fully committed to involving LSDBE participants and the community as major components of our project.

One of our objectives is to ensure, where possible, that District residents and District based LSDBEs and employees have an opportunity to benefit from our projects. Metropolis will continue to work closely and cooperatively with the District of Columbia Department of Employment Services and the Office of Local Business Development to maximize the participation, employment and contracting opportunities for District residents and businesses which surround its development.

In all of its mixed use development projects, Metropolis has demonstrated that it is imperative that the surrounding community of residents, churches, business and civic associations be considered as "partners" in the development process and must be integrated into all aspects of the process from planning/design to completion.

As a result of its previous mix-use developments in the area Metropolis has formed excellent relations with the members of the ANC in which the WMATA parcels are located. ANC's 1 and 2A as well as the Cardozo Shaw Neighborhood Association were all instrumental in the success of our development of Langston Lofts and our development of the new Duron site at 14th and Clifton. We sought and received their support for these developments which also required Historical Preservation Review Board and Board of Zoning Adjustments Approvals.

Metropolis has a demonstrated history of successful development and looks forward to working with your team on the Howard Gateway Project.

Sincerely,

Merrick T. Malone, Principal and Executive Vice President

Key Principals

Scott Pannick, Principal and President, formed Metropolis in 1998 with the goal of revitalizing the new housing market in the District of Columbia. As of today Metropolis has 310 condominiums under development with more than 62,000 square feet of retail space. Before Metropolis, Scott was Executive Vice President, Director and Branch Manager of Julien J. Studley, Inc. in Washington, D.C. At Studley, Scott performed consulting, advisory work and fee development for institutional and corporate headquarters buildings in the District for 25 years. Scott's projects, which total seven million square feet, include Postal Square (1.2 million square feet), the Department of Transportation headquarters (1.35 million square feet), the American Red Cross headquarters (475,000 square feet) and the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists headquarters (50,000 square feet). Scott has an M.B.A. from Harvard Business School.

Merrick Malone, Principal and Executive Vice President, joined Metropolis in 1999 and brought with him a wealth of experience having worked both in public and private economic development as developer, consultant and high level public official in Washington and Detroit. Prior to joining Metropolis, Merrick was President of URBANCITYFOODS, a minority-owned restaurant development company which acquired and developed multiple restaurants in Baltimore, Washington, Detroit and Chicago. Prior to URBANCITYFOODS, Merrick was the Deputy Mayor of Economic Development and the Director of Housing and Community Development for the District of Columbia. In that position, Merrick led the District of Columbia to the successful completion of the MCI Sports Arena and assisted with the development of the $30 Million Black Entertainment Television (BET) Corporate Offices and Studio. During his tenure as Washington's Chief Economic Official, Merrick initiated and fostered public/private partnerships that financed the construction and renovation of over 4,500 residential units, four new childcare centers including the Mazique Parent Child Center; two major neighborhood retail centers, the Nehemiah neighborhood retail center and the Good Hope Marketplace and the restoration of the historic Lincoln Theatre at U Street. Merrick has a law degree from Georgetown University and is a real estate and transactional attorney.

Alex Shewchuk, Chief Financial Officer, has worked on four Metropolis projects, covering tax and financial reporting, budgeting, insurance, condominium document preparation, settlements, bookkeeping and transactions oversight. Alex attended The Wharton School, where he earned an M.B.A. and a Master's in International Relations. He has lived in Brazil, Japan, England, Spain, and Taiwan. He holds a B.A. in Economics from Yale University. He has also worked in management consulting with A.T. Kearney, and in systems programming with Morgan Stanley.

Re: Shaw-Howard Florida Avenue Joint Development Site

Dear Mr. Karim:

Thank you for the submission of your proposal for the above-referenced 2007 Joint Development Solicitation (JDS) site.

The purpose of this letter is to bring to your attention missing or incomplete items or items that require further discussion and clarification. We would like to schedule an oral presentation by your team on December 17, 2007 at 10:30 a.m. at WMATA headquarters and have attached instructions for the presentation. We ask that you provide 10 copies of the supplementary information requested in this letter not later than the presentation and preferably before so that we may first review it.

The following items need clarification, correction or completion:

Technical Information

Within the schedule you presented, please indicate the outside, firm date by which a lease would be executed.

What, if any, zoning approvals or variances will you be seeking for Parcels 1 or 3?

Please explain your schedule more fully. It appears to build in very long time periods for negotiating a WMATA agreement and not enough time for local historic preservation, zoning, and building permit approvals.

Also, please provide an outside date for stabilization.

How will you finance affordable housing piece?

Assess the market for rental apartments in the area now that conversions of condominium projects to rental product are occurring. Is the market becoming oversaturated with rentals and would you expect to experience difficulty in obtaining financing for your project.?

Do you have prospective tenants for the Robeson museum or themed restaurant?

Have you discussed with DDOT the proximity of the Parcel 2 garage entrance to Florida Avenue?

Economic Information

WMATA expects escalation in the sale or rent amount from today's values if closing is delayed beyond a year. Please indicate how you would satisfy this requirement.

The pro forma rents do not seem to square with the schedule. For example, stabilization seems to take 7 months in the schedule but the pro forma appears to show a longer time. Please reconcile.

WMATA also expects and receives participations in capital events and in cash flow (or, alternatively to cash flow, revaluation of the project in which rent values do not fall below the previous year). Please provide your proposal.

Provide evidence of the interest of MacFarlane Partners in providing equity for this project. Do you have alternative equity sources?

Document the creditworthiness of the entire team. Banking references are provided only for the Donatelli part of the partnership, which is 30% of the team.

Please submit the balance sheets that the proposal indicates will be provided under separate cover.

We look forward to your presentation and to further discussion on this project.

Sincerely,

Joel R. Washington

Board Action/Information Summary

◉Action ○Information	MEAD Number: 99972	Resolution: ○Yes ◉No

TITLE:

Shaw-FL Av Developer Selection

PURPOSE:

Approve the selection of, and term sheet with, the Banneker Ventures LLC development team as Developer for the Shaw-Howard/Florida Avenue joint developent parcels and authorize the negotiation of a Development Agreement to be presented to the Board.

DESCRIPTION:

Metro owns three parcels totaling 28,892 sf on Florida Avenue, NW between 7th and 9th streets. Originally purchased for construction of the Green Line tunnel, which runs partially beneath them, the parcels are now available for development. In accordance with a joint development work program approved by the Board in July 2006, Metro issued a request for Expressions of Interest in the spring of 2007. Metro subsequently issued a joint development solicitation for which three responses were received in October 2007.

Staff recommends selecting the Banneker Ventures, LLC team as developer of the parcels. The team consists of Banneker Ventures, LLC; District Development Group, LLC; and Metropolis Development Company, LLC; they will form an LLC for this project. The team has the experience to complete the project; for example, Metropolis recently developed the Langston Lofts joint development project at 14th and V streets. The developer provided a better financial offer than its closest competitor and the same type of development: 4 to 5-stories of residential units over a ground floor devoted to retail and arts uses. This is the type of development recommended in the District of Columbia`s adopted Duke Plan for the area. The third competitor did not meet appraisal benchmarks.

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED

Under a 60-year ground lease, the developer proposes to build a minimum of 104 apartments and devote 11,750 sf of the ground floor to retail and arts uses, consistent with the Uptown Arts Overlay District in which the three parcels are located. The parcels are also in an historic district. Their development will help extend the successful U Street/Florida Avenue Transit Oriented Development of the past few years from Metro's redeveloped sites near the U Street/African-American Civil War Memorial/Cardozo Metro station (13^{th}-14^{th} and U streets) eastward to the Shaw-Howard University Metro station at 7^{th} Street.

No Metro facilities will be displaced. Work over and next to the Metro tunnel and the 8^{th} Street fan shaft/air vents will need to be approved by staff.

FUNDING IMPACT:

Lease revenue from the project will be deposited into the Transit Infrastructure Investment Fund (TIIF).

RECOMMENDATION:

That the Board of Directors approve the selection of, and term sheet with, the Banneker Ventures, LLC development team as developer for the Shaw-Howard University/Florida Avenue joint development parcels and authorize the negotiation of a development agreement that will be presented to the Board for approval.

Re: Shaw-Howard Florida Avenue Joint Development Site

Dear Mr. Adler:

Thank you for the submission of your proposal for the above-referenced 2007 Joint Development Solicitation (JDS) site.

The purpose of this letter is to bring to your attention missing or incomplete items or items that require further discussion and clarification. We would like to schedule an oral presentation by your team on December 12, 2007 at 11 a.m. at WMATA headquarters and have attached instructions for the presentation. We ask that you provide 10 copies of the supplementary information requested in this letter not later than the presentation and preferably before so that we may first review it.

The following items need clarification, correction or completion:

Technical Information

Within the schedule you presented, please indicate the outside, firm date by which a purchase or lease would occur.

What, if any, zoning approvals or variances will you be seeking for Parcels 1 or 3?

Do you expect that Parcel 3 loading from Florida Avenue will be acceptable to DDOT?

Though you have identified existing hotels in the competitive market, how would you assess the opportunity for the hotel type you are proposing if a competitive product were developed in Howard Town Center?

Please relate your experience with office condominiums.

Economic Information

Note that your valuation of the site is considerably below WMATA's appraisal and needs to be increased substantially or your offer cannot be considered. Likewise, the percentage of rent to value falls below WMATA appraisal thresholds and needs to be raised. These are FTA requirements.

WMATA expects escalation in the sale or rent amount from today's values if closing is delayed beyond a year. It further expects and receives option fees for each year that the property is held off the market, until closing. Please provide your proposal.

WMATA also expects and receives participations in capital events and in cash flow (or, alternatively to cash flow, revaluation of the project in which rent values do not fall below the previous year). Please provide your proposal.

It appears from your discussion that you are interested basically in a sale on Parcels 1 and 2 because of your financial arrangement with the Parcel 2 adjacent property owner and your interest in office condominiums. If you entertain a lease, explain how that can be accommodated given your option to purchase the adjoining property. Also, explain how you would combine the two properties in separate ownerships.

It appears that you are valuing the property adjacent to Parcel 2 at $94/FAR sf ($4.8M sales price divided by 11,330 sf x 4.5 FAR) whereas you value Parcel 2 at $42/FAR sf. ($4.9M divided by 26,100 sf x 4.5 FAR). Please explain the disparity and assure WMATA that it is not subsidizing the adjacent property deal.

Note that WMATA standard leases require annual minimum escalations of rent (as opposed to the once every 10 years that you have offered) and, also, that owing to past experience, WMATA has decided that it cannot grant a right of first refusal as you propose.

We look forward to your presentation and to further discussion on this project.

Sincerely,

Joel R. Washington

Re: Shaw-Howard Florida Avenue Joint Development Site, Dec. 4 clarification request

Dear Mr. Washington:

This letter addresses the questions raised in your request for clarifications dated December 4, 2007, in preparation for our presentation to WMATA, now scheduled for December 19, 2007, at 2 p.m.

Below, we repeat and number each question and provide our response.

Technical Information

1) Within the schedule you presented, please indicate the outside, firm date by which a purchase or lease would occur.

We are willing to make the dates presented on page 22 of Volume 1 firm outside dates (rounding to the closest first of the month). Therefore outside date for land purchase would be November 1, 2011, or ground lease start date would be January 1, 2013. Note that it is quite possible closing will occur much sooner, if the WMATA selection process takes less than the ten-plus months advised by WMATA, and if the developer selection process is sufficiently certain at an early stage for us to start our study period and early approvals process – plan preparation, HPRB and BZA submissions, etc. – concurrent with the developer selection process.

2) What, if any, zoning approvals or variances will you be seeking for Parcels 1 or 3?

FOIA CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT REQUESTED

As stated on page 23, Volume I, of our submission, Section J.1., "Zoning": "All projects proposed are by-right, with the exception of a parking reduction to be sought for the hotel proposed for Parcel 3 (the alternative plan for Parcel 3 of office and retail would not require any zoning relief at all.)" The same is indicated in Sections D and G of our submission, in the description of our plans for each parcel.

To clarify further: in order to keep the parking garage on Parcel 3 to a single level below grade, and thereby avoid any interference with the Metro tunnel easement, if we proceed with a hotel rather than office/retail on Parcel 3, we would expect to seek a zoning variance to reduce the C2B zone parking requirement for hotel use by 50%. The base C2B hotel requirement is 1 space per 2 rooms.

The plans proposed for Parcels 1 and 2 do not require any zoning approvals or variances, nor does the office and retail alternative plan for Parcel 3. This presumes that the bulk of the retail uses on Parcel 2 will be "evening uses" (principally restaurant and entertainment uses, as suggested in our submission) as described in D.C. Zoning Code Section 1901.5(a). In the unlikely event that the retail leasing market cannot produce restaurant and entertainment-related tenants for the bulk of the ground floor of Parcel 2 (and Parcel 3 if an office/retail plan is pursued), we would seek a special exception from the BZA to reduce parking requirements by 25%, thereby keeping the parking to a single level below grade.

Of course, given the rapidly changing nature of today's real estate market and the unknown time period until a final agreement with WMATA is approved, we must reserve the right to seek additional zoning exceptions, variances and other approvals as necessary to maintain the marketability and financial viability of the proposed projects.

3) Do you expect that Parcel 3 loading from Florida Avenue will be acceptable to DDOT?

The placement of loading access on Florida Avenue for Parcel 3 was an error in the preliminary design, as such access is prohibited by Section 1903.2 of the D.C. Zoning Code. Parcel 3 loading access will be relocated to 8th Street.

4) Though you have identified existing hotels in the competitive market, how would you assess the opportunity for the hotel type you are proposing if a competitive product were developed in Howard Town Center?

(Prepared by Max Mednick, Milestone Hotels)

Our research indicates that the market immediately surrounding the subject property is severely underserved by hotel properties. We believe that this particular neighborhood has the ability to absorb the supply of several additional hotels. By way of example, in 2006, the supply of hotel rooms in the identified competitive set grew by 24.9% (reflected by the opening of the 384-room Embassy Suites Washington Convention Center in November 2005). Despite the additional supply, the comp set increased its average rate and REVPAR (revenue per available room) by 9.5% and 8.4% respectively in 2006 versus 2005. Furthermore, it is our strong belief that any commercial development in the immediate surrounding market, whether hospitality-related or otherwise, will only benefit the entire neighborhood and continue to pull critical mass up the U Street Corridor as has been occurring the past several years. In short, we would not only welcome additional supply to the market, but would also be interested in constructing additional supply ourselves if the right opportunity presented itself. In an environment of ever-increasing construction costs, newly built properties always benefit existing properties by pushing room rates higher in the market to compensate for the initial costs of development.

The proposed hotel is in no way reliant on Howard University as the sole demand generator. The subject property will benefit from a wide range of primary and overflow generators based on its close proximity to the Washington Convention Center, central business core, and major tourist attractions, in much the same manner as is already occurring at management's Hilton Hotel in Silver Spring, Maryland, located five (5) miles to the north.

(LaKritz Adler adds): Our contacts at Howard University have indicated, and current public plans for Howard Town Center show, that there are no plans for a hotel at Howard Town Center as of the date of this letter, and they have further indicated, in response to our query, that there is "no chance" of a hotel at Howard Town Center. Howard does, however, continue to express interest in developing a hotel as a joint venture that combines Parcel 3 and the adjacent CVS site, as described in our Volume 1 submission.

5) Please relate your experience with office condominiums.

(Prepared by Douglas Bream, DANAC Corp.)

Condominiumizing a building provides an opportunity for commercial and/or residential clients to purchase property and share in the long term benefit of ownership. Recently, DANAC Corporation developed a 72,000 SF building, condominiumized it into three units, and sold two of the units to Metropolitan Regional Information Systems, Inc (MRIS). The third condominium unit, which is the ground floor level, is currently for sale or lease. Another recent example is the development of the Rockville Town Square, where as the master developer DANAC sold the retail space to Federal Realty Investment Trust, developed the parking directly for the City of Rockville, and condominiumized the residential area into 648 units, which we sold to third parties.

For certain projects a condominium structure provides more flexibility and a stronger client interest with a long term benefit to the surrounding community. This is particularly true for the likely tenants or office condo owners of 800 Florida Avenue, many of whom are non-profit organizations that can obtain below-market financing for ownership through tax exempt bonds, New Market Tax Credits, and tax-deductible capital campaigns, but cannot use these low cost capital sources for paying rent.

Economic Information

1) Note that your valuation of the site is considerably below WMATA's appraisal and needs to be increased substantially or your offer cannot be considered. Likewise, the percentage of rent to value falls below WMATA appraisal thresholds and needs to be raised. These are FTA requirements.

It is difficult to answer this question without knowing the date and content of the WMATA appraisal. Our valuations were derived using widely accepted methods for calculating market land residuals based on the proposed development plans for the sites. We would need to consider whether the WMATA appraisal takes into account the decline in FAR values in the vicinity of the parcels since summer 2005; further, how does the WMATA appraisal adjust the land values for the time and cost impacts of the Metro tunnel running beneath the parcels? Does the WMATA appraisal account for ongoing double-digit construction cost inflation, and the impact on development land values? Does it reflect realistic by-right construction yields for the site based on actual architectural and engineering studies of the sites, and not just hypothetical, unachievable zoning envelopes?

We would hope that WMATA appreciates these nuances, and is willing to update its appraisal to reflect current market values and site conditions if the appraisal is found to be unrealistic.

In fact, we have in our possession an actual, complete MAI commercial appraisal of Parcel 3 which puts the value at $2.3 million in 2004 – our current offer of $2.7 million for this parcel is 17% higher than the appraisal value. And land values in this vicinity have been falling since mid-2005, so a 2004 appraisal is probably not far off from today's value.[1]

Regardless of the appraisal, we also understand that WMATA's intent is that we raise our offer price. Our economic calculations for the site have not changed since our submission of our Volume 2 on October 5, 2007. If anything, the decline in both residential and commercial land values has accelerated since this time, owing to the widely-reported ongoing global credit crisis, which has caused a sharp increase in commercial and residential financing costs and reduced the availability of most forms of leverage, thereby reducing the value of real estate assets and increasing risk on development projects. Cap rates have been rising, pressuring commercial real estate values downward, even in the best markets.

[1] The drop in land values is well-known, even if it is reflected more in a slowdown in land settlements and increased contract cancellations than in settled sales at lower prices. For example, when the DC Housing Finance Authority publicly offered for sale its 29,000 square foot Arts/C2B-zoned parcel at 815 Florida Avenue, directly across the street from Parcels 1 and 2 (but outside the Historic Preservation overlay and also without a Metro tunnel underneath, and therefore of superior value on both counts), in summer 2005, it reportedly received over a dozen offers in the approximate range of $10 million to $12 million. One year later, after two consecutive sale contracts fell through, DCHFA reoffered the site to the public, and received offers reportedly in the range of $5 million to $6 million – a 50% decline in land value in a single year.

Nonetheless, we would consider adding our estimated Metro tunnel-related site work costs for each parcel back into the parcel prices for Parcels 2 and 3 (Parcel 1 assumes no special site work), less $250,000 for each parcel for general site work, provided that WMATA will reduce the actual sale price at settlement (or reimburse us after settlement, as the parties may agree) by the amount that a qualified site work contractor and structural engineer determine, in a Guaranteed Maximum Price form of contract, will be required to address Metro-tunnel specific costs in the projects as designed, not to exceed our original site work estimates. In other words, we will increase our offer price on Parcel 2 by $538,408 (43% of the $1.5 million budget less $250,000, since Parcel 2 is 43% of the area of the Parcel 2 and 1920 8th combination), to $2,138,408, provided that Metro will reduce sale price or reimburse us up to $538,408 for our actual site work, excavation and foundation (and related soft) costs in the project to be built on Parcel 2 caused specifically by the presence of the Metro tunnel and systems under and about Parcel 2.

Similarly, we could increase our offer price on Parcel 3 by $1.589 million, to $4,289,000, provided that Metro will reduce our sale price or reimburse us up to $1.589 million for our actual site work, excavation and foundation (and related soft) costs in the project to be built on the Parcel 3 caused specifically by the presence of the Metro tunnel and systems under and about Parcel 3.

We are already assuming there will be no Metro-tunnel related costs on Parcel 1, so we are unable to adjust this price.[2]

Ground lease rates could be adjusted accordingly, as 4.77% in the first year of the new sale prices, after adjusting for the site work cost. (In fact, since the date of our offer, long-term interest rate indexes have fallen, suggesting that the ground lease rate should be reduced.)

[2] Parcel 1, along with Parcel 2, is a good example of a site where an appraiser who has not performed an architectural and engineering study could very easily make wrong estimates about the site valuation, since a simple FAR calculation would suggest that the site has 17,100 residential square feet available, but in fact, owing to the small, irregular size, underground tunnel and parking constraints, only a single story retail building with mezzanine (about 4,100 square feet) is achievable under zoning requirements and with a modicum of cost-effectiveness and efficiency.

2) WMATA expects escalation in sale or rent amount from today's values if closing is delayed beyond a year. It further expects and receives option fees for each year that the property is held off the market, until closing.

As shown in Volume 2, our offer prices have been derived assuming purchase settlement occurs on October 26, 2011, or ground lease payments start on December 19, 2012, and as stated on pages 6 and 7 of Volume 2, we will increase purchase price by 3% and rent rate by 2% annually, pro rated monthly, for each year that settlement or lease start is delayed beyond those dates (provided that the delay is the fault of the developer, and not WMATA). Since our calculations assume that we are not paying debt costs or equity returns on land value prior to the project settlement or lease start dates, if purchase or lease were to start sooner than these dates, the purchase price or ground rent would have to be adjusted downward to derive the same returns, which are the minimum acceptable returns for this project. In other words, our offer prices are not today's values – they are higher than today's values.

At this time, Metro has received a $100,000 earnest money deposit for our contract on the parcels. In addition, we will be spending over $2 million during the contract period, investing in an entitlement process that adds great value to these Metro-owned properties, including HPRB, BZA and DCRA permit processes. If we were holding a passive land option on the properties for a period of time until deciding whether or not the develop the land, an option fee would make sense, but we are expediting the development process, at our time and expense, adding value to the Metro land and making it possible for us (or another purchaser) to purchase the land from Metro at the proposed values (without these entitlements, the land is worth less than the offer prices). We believe option fees are not appropriate for this situation.

3) WMATA also expects and receives participations in capital events and in cash flow (or alternatively to cash flow, revaluation of the project in which rent values do not fall below the previous year).

We presume this question is only applicable in a ground lease scenario, since in a sale WMATA has no ongoing interest in the properties. We would appreciate further clarification of what WMATA has in mind for participation. We can then run a net present value analysis of the ground lease taking the additional payments to WMATA into account, and reduce the base ground rent rate accordingly, to achieve the same minimum required return for the investor equity and debt. Alternatively, we are open to a percentage ground rent, where ground rent payments are calculated on the net rental income from the improved properties, and are increased or reduced as a fixed percentage of that net rent. This would be an alternative to a base ground rent rate.

Having made this offer, we nonetheless urge WMATA to make these transactions as simple as possible, through fee simple sales on all three parcels, without complicating and therefore handicapping the transactions and potential developments by adding options, recapitalization and revaluation distribution formulas and percentage rent calculations to an already complex situation on three relatively small parcels in a transitional location and a downward-trending real estate market.

4) It appears from your discussion that you are interested basically in a sale on Parcels 1 and 2 because of your financial arrangement with the Parcel 2 adjacent property owner and your interest in office condominiums. If you entertain a lease, explain how that can be accommodated given your option to purchase the adjoining property. Also, explain how you would combine the two properties in separate ownerships.

We are most interested in a sale on all three parcels, first and foremost, because a fee simple sale is the simplest type of transaction, and would give the developer the greatest range of development, financing and ownership structure options, thereby giving the project the greatest likelihood of success in an uncertain and rapidly changing market environment. On pages 29-32 of our Volume 1 submission, we go into great detail as to the reasons we prefer a fee simple sale on all three parcels. It is true, as described on page 31 and cited in your question above, that multiple and different land ownership structures beneath a single building will be difficult to accomplish and will needlessly complicate the transaction, and therefore make it less likely to succeed. This is not only a reason to sell Parcels 1 and 2 fee simple, it is also a reason to sell Parcel 3 fee simple, because there is a good probability that Parcel 3 will be combined with Howard University's adjacent CVS parcel in the ultimate development, and this will entail the same problems as combining Parcel 2 on an unsubordinated WMATA ground lease with 1920 8th Street.

To restate our argument on pages 31-32, our market feedback is that many prospective commercial tenants for these location will want at least a purchase option or right of first refusal on sales of their office spaces, if not an outright purchase of an office condominium, to induce them to locate to this pioneering office location. This would be very hard to accomplish if the land underlying the buildings is on a ground lease (especially a ground lease with multiple lots and owners.) Again, the key to success in this project, for any developer, will be flexibility – best achieved through a fee simple sale with no strings attached.

As to how we could combine 1920 8th with Parcel 2 if Parcel 2 is on a ground lease – our ground lease and option terms for 1920 8th Street explicitly allow us to combine the lot with adjacent lots for zoning and building purposes during our ground lease period. We would have a single building lot for zoning purposes with multiple tax lots for ownership and taxation purposes. Of course, WMATA would have to agree to this arrangement as well. If we owned Parcel 2 in fee simple this would not be an issue.

5) It appears you are valuing the property adjacent to Parcel 2 at $94/FAR sf, whereas you value Parcel 2 at $42/FAR sf. Please explain the disparity and assure WMATA that it is not subsidizing the adjacent property deal.

We appreciate your concern. Therefore, it is important for us to better explain the terms of our 1920 8th ground lease and purchase option contract. To review, the essential terms of the 1920 8th ground lease are:

- Commenced August 3, 2007, with a one year base term and nine one-year renewal options
- Ground rent of $225,000/year in the first year, $150,000/year for renewal terms 1-4, and $200,000/year for renewal terms 5-9.
- Purchase option exercisable at any time during base term and renewals. Exercise price of $4,800,000 in the base term, increasing by 1.5% in each of the first three renewal terms and then remaining fixed at $5,019,256.20 for the remainder of the renewal terms.
- $100,000 of ground rent, once paid, credited toward the purchase option in the base term and in each of the first two renewal terms, with 100% of ground rent paid following the second renewal term and in every renewal term thereafter credited toward the option price. Therefore the purchase option balance due (i.e., the purchase price) at the end of the last renewal term (August 3, 2017) shall be $3,419,256.20.
- Landlord is obliged under the ground lease to subordinate its unencumbered fee interest in the Property to Tenant's Construction Lender (and subsequent lenders), meaning that Tenant has full use of the land value of the Property as collateral to secure its construction financing, in place of a cash equity investment of equal value.

Under our agreement, we will be paying $3.42 million to buy 1920 8th in August 2017, a price of $67/FAR-sf. Let us assume we would close on the WMATA land at $42/FAR-sf on November 1, 2011, our firm outside closing date. Rounding to a six-year interval between the two settlements, and assuming an 8% discount rate, the Net Present Value (NPV) of a $42/sf number in 2011 is equivalent to the NPV of a $67/sf number in 2017. In other words, the values are identical.

Moreover, during the ten-year 1920 8th ground lease period, we are carrying 100% of the $3.42 million purchase price at an interest-only rate of 4.39% over the next four years ($150,000/year), increasing to a rate of 5.89% over the following five years ($200,000/year). This rate is superior to the bank financing terms we would receive on the land purchase today.

But the biggest difference between our deal on the 1920 8th parcel and the proposal for the WMATA parcels is that the 1920 8th ground lease is a fee-subordinated ground lease. The landlord has to pledge 100% of his fee interest in the property as collateral to our development, construction and permanent financing. This means that lenders will count the land value as the equivalent of cash invested in the deal, yet we and our investors do not have to invest this cash, and we are not compensating the cash beyond the low carry cost rates described above (an average of 5.2% over the next nine years). The minimum return for cash invested in a real estate development project today is 20%, compounding annually (and in most cases it is more). Assuming that 1920 8th appraises for $3.42 million and thus replaces an equal amount of cash equity in our project, the correct discount rate to apply to the future cash flows (ground lease payments) and eventual (2017) purchase price is 20%. We can compare this NPV to the NPV of purchasing the WMATA Parcel 2 for $1.6 million in 2011 at an 8% cost-of-funds (discount) rate, and then paying an 8% interest-only rate on 100% debt financing on that purchase until 2017. The end result is an NPV of $1.2 million for the 1920 8th Street deal, versus $1.5 million for Parcel 2.

Therefore, we are offering to pay WMATA 25% more for Parcel 2 than we are paying for the adjacent property at 1920 8th Street. It is not WMATA Parcel 2 that is subsidizing the purchase of 1920 8th, it is 1920 8th subsidizing WMATA. There are other ways to analyze this differential, but the gap would be even larger if we considered the full near-term benefits of the land equity available to us from the subordinated ground lease. We would happily make the same deal on the same proportionate price and terms with WMATA, but WMATA has stated that it will not subordinate its fee interest in a ground lease.

A final point of distinction between the two parcels is that at 1920 8th Street, we have a by-right, 47,600 square foot office building plan that meets zoning code parking requirements without any underground garage, saving us the entire cost of both Metro tunnel site work and underground garage construction if we build 1920 8th on its own. Anyone building on Parcel 2 on its own would either have to obtain a zoning variance for a large (50%) parking reduction, impairing the marketability of the building, or would have to incur relatively large underground garage and metro-tunnel specific costs to construct a by-right building on Parcel 2, which even then would not come close to the full FAR potential of the site because of the parking requirements (without going an unfeasible two floors underground for parking). Thus the Parcel 2 sale price must be reduced by the costs imposed by the Metro tunnel running beneath it, whereas 1920 8th on its own does not need to be discounted by this cost (although it does need to be discounted if combined with Parcel 2, since both sites will then incur the special site work costs over a larger area.)

6) Note that WMATA standard leases require annual minimum escalations of rent (as opposed to the once every 10 years you have offered) and, also, that owing to past experience, WMATA has decided that it cannot grant a right of first refusal as you propose.

We will agree to change our ground rent escalation rate to 1.8% per year, rather than 20% every ten years.

Eliminating the right of first refusal on future sale of the property eliminates one of the inducements for a developer to enter a ground lease for the parcels, rather than a purchase. As a trade off, we believe the ground rent rate should be reduced, which would also bring the rate more into line with current market trends.

We look forward to further discussion on December 19th, and reaching an agreement with WMATA to acquire these parcels.

Sincerely,

Joshua Adler

Strategically using earned media
Rather than tightly controlling the message through press releases or opinion pieces in Washington Post using other forms of new media may be more effective. Local blogs, if courted properly, can help the office publicize its accomplishments without giving the impression that the content is hyped or package. Content can be offered to blog editors with the insinuation that future engagement requires a positive representation of the office and its contribution. This will also help reach the 20-30 something demographic. Because others are carrying the message, there is no risk that the message will be perceived as inauthentic.

Emphasize the office's excellent constituent services
Demonstrating the office's ability to respond to constituent requests has no downside. Who would criticize the office approaching DDOT or DCPD if it helps constituent? This is politically neutral and there is no other side to this argument, unlike most other issues the offices engages. Social media – Twitter and Facebook – should take every opportunity to emphasize that this is an area in which the office excels.

Selectively using broadcast media
Network news – WJLA, WTTG – does not reach Ward One constituents. This medium is most effective when there is a need to channel community outrage. There is downside to this, as it risks perpetuating the perception of "Grahamstanding" or acting as a "Media Queen." It does not help communicate the office's accomplishments and does not bolster the office's image of providing excellent constituent services.

Jonetta Rose Barras: Everywhere a scandal

By: Jonetta Rose Barras | 05/10/10 3:00 AM

Before there was the controversy surrounding the Department of Parks and Recreation projects, there was the scandal around the city's lottery contract, including allegations of favoritism, interference and intimidation by Chief Financial Officer Natwar Gandhi, D.C. Council Chairman Vincent C. Gray and others.

The lottery storm kicked up in 2008. But the ugly affair seemed resolved with the award last year of a new contract. Then, last week, Eric W. Payne, a former director of contracting for the CFO, filed a multimillion-dollar lawsuit alleging violations of the Whistle Blower Act and the False Claims Act, along with constitutional defamation and wrongful termination.

In his complaint, Payne said the CFO and others "viewed internal controls, rules, and regulations as optional and secondary to political considerations."

"Gandhi served as advocate for the politically connected and the powerful," he told me.

The allegations, if proven true, could have devastating consequences for Gandhi and for Gray, who recently kicked off his mayoral campaign.

Payne's troubles began when Gandhi decided to ditch Lottery Technology Enterprises -- owned by P. Leonard Manning -- and GTECH. That partnership had held the contract for 25 years. But in 2005 and 2006, there were security breaches and the company subsequently was fined $1.4 million.

Gandhi made it clear "LTE was not to be selected as the vendor for the new contract award," Payne said. It wasn't. W2I Venture was chosen. That group included a local company owned by Alaka Williams and Warren Williams Jr. -- who were friends of Mayor Adrian M. Fenty -- and Intralot, a lottery operator based in Greece.

Council members went ballistic. After all, Manning had provided financial support for many of their campaigns. It was chit collecting time. Legislators promised to scrutinize the new contract.

In May 2008, Payne said in his complaint he met with "Gandhi, a senior elected official, and other CFO personnel" and was told to "get rid of Warren Williams Jr. and replace him with Leonard Manning."

When Payne rejected that appeal, Gray -- who Payne told me was the "senior elected official" at the meeting -- refused to place the new contract on the legislature's agenda.

Payne complained to the CFO's Office of Integrity and Oversight and the city's inspector general about being pressured to circumvent the city's procurement law. But nothing happened. In fact, he said the individual at the Inspector General's Office he spoke with eventually went to work for Gandhi.

When the dust cleared, the council disapproved the W2I contract. Manning remained temporarily as the contractor. Payne was fired.

"[He] became a political doormat, disposed of after being trampled upon because of his character, integrity and insistence on public accountability," said Donald Temple, Payne's lawyer.

Attorney General Peter Nickles told me there were "serious issues related to the [W2I] lottery contract."

Gray couldn't be reached for comment. David Umansky, the CFO's spokesman, said Payne was removed as manager but "retained his salary, grade and some responsibility over the lottery contract. What was important to us was that he wasn't managing people."

It is true that Payne was moved -- to a position that had little to do with the contract. It is also true that he was then fired.

Umansky insisted to me that the charges in the lawsuit were "baseless" and "totally without merit."

At this point, that is hard to believe.

Please explain your schedule more fully. A detailed schedule is attached which includes time for historic preservation review, zoning review, and building permit approvals.

Please provide an outside date for stabilization. October 29, 2010

Assess the market for rental apartments in the area. According to the most recent (Third Quarter 2007) Delta Associates Mid-Atlantic Market Report, the "Washington metro area remains healthy despite softening conditions. Unemployment remains one of the lowest in the nation [3.3% as of July 2007] and jobs continue to expand at an above-average pace." According to the Report, the effective rent per square foot (as of September 2007) for Class A rental high-rise apartments is $2.86 with the average effective rent at $2,447 per unit, with a 1.2% concession. Stabilized vacancies remain at 1.3% and overall vacancies are at 4.1%. The monthly absorption pace per project for the most recently delivered market-rate projects are at 5 months; our project has 7 months in the schedule which provides some cushion to the market.

Delta reports that "[a]lthough the [apartment] pipeline has grown significantly in response to the recent robust performance of the apartment market and as a result of developers reprogramming condo projects in light of the slowing condominium market." The "District's 36-month pipeline of projects has grown to 6,353 units as of September 2007, a large jump from the previous quarter. Despite this uptick in the pipeline, the District currently retains the healthiest supply-demand balance in the region. The report further states that "[v]acancies are extremely low – up to 1.3% from a paltry 0.8% one year ago – and rent growth is the strongest in the region at 6.5% per annum. Additional development of exceptionally designed and well located projects would appear warranted. Since The Jazz @ Florida Avenue is exceptionally designed (according to the Office of Planning) and is well located (2 blocks from 2 Metro stations), we believe that a proposed rental project at this located is warranted.

Do you have prospective tenants for the Paul Robeson Theatrical Museum or themed restaurant? Yes. We have prospective tenants for the museum as evidenced by the letter of interest on the following pages. Moreover, the Utopia Jazz Restaurant, a national restaurant based in Charlotte, NC and partially owned by NBA and former co-owner of the Washington Wizards Michael Jordan, a letter of interest of which is also attached.

Have you discussed with DDOT the proximity of the Parcel 2 garage entrance to Florida Avenue? We have met with DDOT and OP about the proximity of the garage entrance to Parcel 2 and they prefer that the alley between Parcels 1 and 2 be widened to allow for the garage entrance to come off the alley. Our proposed design can certainly accommodate their preference.

Economic Information

WMATA expects escalation in the sale or rent amount from today's values if closing is delayed beyond a year. If closing is delayed beyond a year, we will be prepared to pay WMATA a 3% increase in the pre-development rent.

The pro forma rents do not seem to square with the schedule. Attached is a revised schedule that reconciles with the stabilization date of the pro-forma.

WMATA expects and receives participations in capital events and in cash flow. Please provide your proposal. We will be prepared to pay WMATA 10% of the net proceeds upon the sale or revaluation of the project.

Re: The Jazz@ Florid: Avenue Project/ The Utopia Jazz Restaurant & Lounge

Omar:

I am writing this letter to express my interest in trying to open a live jazz restaurant as apart of the Jazz@ Flo ida Avenue Project. Being a co-founder of the music label Hidden Beach Recordings wh ch is home of artists like Jill Scott, Mike Phillips, and Kindred the Family Soul, I could n t think of a way better way to come back and thank the Washington, D.C. cor munity for their support for our label and our artists than to put this live music venue i the nation's capitol.

I am currently in the p ocess of opening a similar restaurant in Charlotte, N.C. called Utopia, which is due t open in September 2007 with two partners named Kennedy Howard and Juvenile Ogbuneke. Kennedy and Juvenile are currently owners of a restaurant in Charlotte. N.C. called The Jazz Café, which opened May 29, 2005. The Jazz Café has had shows with national recording artists such as Mike Phillips, D.C. native Marcus Johnson, Mari n Meadows, Pieces of a Dream, Ronnie Laws, Walter Beasley, D.C. natives Spur of th Moment, and Hidden Beach Recording artist Jeff Bradshaw just to name a few.

Our interest in being a part of this exciting new venture is great and I would definitely like to continue dialog with you to see if we can make this a reality. Please let me know if you have any questions and I can be reached at 310-489-3122.

Best Regards,
